The kindergarten of the Broadway school was presented Friday morning a 100 per cent. banner, won because every child in this room is a depositor in the Savings Bank of New London. The teacher of the kindergarten is Miss Doris G. Bindloss and the presentation of the banner was made by Miss Lillian White of the Savings Bank of New London Friday morning at the school. This is the first room in the town of Stonington to receive such a banner.

In a recent issue of a Hartford paper appears the following notice relative to Rev. H. W. Maier, who is well known here, having preached a number of times in the Mystic Bridge Congregational church. His wife is a former Mystic woman, Miss Sadie Cheney, daughter of Flavius Cheney and a sister of Mrs. Walter T. Fish:

Compelled by ill health to give up the pastorate of the First Congregational church of New Britain, which he has held for the past eighteen years, Rev. Henry W. Maier, tendered his resignation in a letter read at the services Sunday by Judge William C. Bungerford, clerk of the standing committee. The resignation will be acted upon at a meeting to be held at an early date.

The Rev. Mr. Maier's collapse in health is due to a breakdown, resulting from injuries received when an automobile accident five years ago, when he was struck by an automobile Mr. Maier at that time suffered a fractured skull, a crushed shoulder and body bruises and for a long time, he suffered from his injuries. Upon the advice of physicians, he submitted his resignation.

Rev. Mr. Maier was graduated in 1903 from Auburn Theological seminary and was ordained to the ministry in the same year. He was in the west for a time and also had pastorates at Schenectady and Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Eighteen years ago he came to New Britain as pastor of the First Congregational church. He was a "Y" worker overseas during the war, attached to the Twenty-sixth division.

C. OF C. OPPOSES POSTAL SALARY INCREASE BILL

Washington, Dec. 7.—Support of President Coolidge's veto on the postal salary increase bill was asked in letters addressed today to senators by officers of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The chamber said investigation had disclosed conditions in some offices making it desirable that congress authorize "as a temporary measure," additional compensation for employes in these communities. The general increase bill, however, was declared "unsound in principle and inconsistent with a proper program me of government expenditures."

REPUBLICAN TICKET.
United States Senator.
HIRAM BINGHAM
of New Haven.

BINGHAM IS NEEDED.

Such talk as that being indulged in by democrats, or those giving comfort to the democrats, that the election of a republican senator from Connecticut at the special election next week is not necessary to insure support to the president is grossly misleading.

As a matter of fact there will be in the next congress but 54 senators who were elected as republicans, 40 progressives and one farmer-laborite. If a republican from Connecticut is elected the 16th there will be 55 republicans, but of that number four are never read out of the party and are as liable to vote with the democrats as the republicans. That, considering the independence shown by a few others leaves the republican margin of safety decidedly small even with two republican senators from Connecticut.

Should Hamilton Holt be elected as a democrat it is to be expected that he would act as a democrat. His talk about supporting the president goes only so far as to bring to mind the fact that he refused to support Mr. Coolidge in the recent election, and it is well known that the republican principles and the Coolidge policies aren't changed since November 4th.

If Mr. Holt should be elected and should refuse to vote as a democrat it would be aligning himself with that group which though getting office through one party's influence immediately place selves above party and desert those who elected them. Other than Mr. Holt talks of supporting the president with reservations it cannot be exactly pleasing to the members of the democratic party, and certainly it cannot inspire members of other parties to back such a democratic uncertainty. Perhaps he would accept an election in the same manner that he did his selection of delegate to the state democratic convention without being a voter in the state of Connecticut.

Connecticut hasn't indicated its desire for any such uncertainty in the past and it doesn't want it now.

Assurance of the support of President Coolidge and the carrying out of the republican principles which are of so much importance to Connecticut lies in the election of Hiram Bingham next week Tuesday. Connecticut has a chance to strengthen the republican margin of safety in the United States senate. The only way that can be done is to insure Colonel Bingham's election.

He should be thoroughly understood that Hiram Bingham is needed at Washington, that he is committed to republican policies, that he stands for the best interests of Connecticut and that there should be a big vote in Tuesday December 16

SECRETARY MELLON'S REPORT.

Secretary Mellon of the treasury department has been long regarded as one of the best men ever called to that position. This has been manifested on numerous occasions. His tenure of office has covered a most important period, when able administration of the financial operations of the government has been called for and it has been a conspicuous fact that through the guidance of the secretary of the treasury great benefit has accrued to the country.

Mr. Mellon speaks from knowledge and experience. He has had not a little to say in offering advice concerning the revision of our federal taxes. There have been those who have opposed his ideas for political reasons, but he holds to his views conscientiously, and as he restates them in his annual report, issued last week, he cannot fail to make a deep impression upon those who might be politically opposed.

He deals in a calm and positive manner with the government's financial position and he points out in an impressive manner what has been gained as the result of the policies carried out. His leadership has been that of an expert. In following such a course as has been adopted there was reason for it, and the results speak for themselves in the cutting of the national debt more than four billions, with which of course comes the benefit of big reductions in interest.

As regards his taxation views he speaks also with authority and he has no difficulty in disclosing the effect of the existing taxation, or the stimulation that could be expected from the proper readjustment of taxes. His plea is against the tax exempt securities which permit of so much tax dodging.

His look into the future is rosy and encouraging. He sees years of prosperity ahead, "if we approach them with intelligence," with improvement in the European situation and conditions were never better here for "continued business and industrial expansion."

NEW YORK PARKING.

As might be expected New York city recognizes the importance of establishing parking regulations, but after doing what it considers necessary to meet the situation with such a large number of machines to deal with it finds that it is not an easy task to enforce them. It doesn't consider that it has done anything but what is demanded when it fixed the parking limit at a maximum of 20 minutes below 59th street, but it finds an enormous number of violators. Congested traffic courts result day after day and even then it is recognized that all who disregard the parking restriction are not caught.

It is, however, an interesting plan which the deputy police commission in charge of traffic has hit upon of suspending the issuance of summonses for violation of the parking rules for a ten day period in order that the automobilists may be put upon their honor. He considers the solution of the parking problem rests with the auto owners or drivers, and he proposes to give them a chance to demonstrate.

Perhaps he will be able to show that the faith thus reposed in the motoring public is justified. Perhaps they will figure that they "got away" with a violation today and will try it tomorrow and the day after.

It has been the lack of consideration of others, the street congestion accidents, and the prevention of streets being used for the purpose intended that have made regulations, including parking restrictions, necessary. Perhaps New York has hit upon the right solution, but it will be surprising if the honor system results in a better respect for the 20-minute parking system than the knowledge that such a regulation is being enforced.

MAIL EARLY, MAIL SECURELY.

At this season of the year there is a common appeal from the postmasters to 'do your mailing early." It is bound to get hearty endorsement if one stops to think about the situation and what benefit accrues to the sender, receiver and those who are obliged to handle the many Christmas packages if it is heeded.

But there are other things about which postmasters are also concerned. They know through their experience that it is highly important that stout containers, strong string and heavy wrapping paper are necessary to insure the delivery of articles intact. Use as much care as is possible and yet no one can prevent fragile articles getting broke unless some idea is given of their character. It is impossible to deliver the much handled packages over long distances if such paper as might be used to wrap up roses is placed around a lot of playthings and tied insecurely with only common twine. Perishable as well as breakable goods should be plainly marked, while too much importance cannot be attached to writing plainly the complete name and address of the person to whom the package is going, as well as placing the name of the sender in the upper left hand corner.

Handling the Christmas mail is a big job. It requires much time and a taxing of forces and facilities. Whatever help can be given by those depending upon the mail is thoroughly justified. Certainly speedy and safe delivery call for proper wrapping and address by the sender.

STREET SLIDING.

Connecticut hasn't had a great volume of snow as yet, but it has had enough to start the coasting and with it has come the first accident in the highways, due to the collision of a coaster with a wagon.

This carries its own warning. It brings to mind the many other accidents which have occurred as the result of sliding in the much used public highways, where none too much care is exercised by the coasters and where those using intersecting streets have little or no warning of the situation. The situation was bad enough when horse drawn vehicles and electric cars were the chief dangers, but in these days when there are so many automobiles and when much greater speed is common the danger is greatly multiplied.

There may be plenty of hills on the outskirts of cities where there is little traffic and no intersecting streets. If such are available the practice of sliding in the streets may be accompanied with slight danger, but where there is much travel by any form of vehicle, or by all kinds, the advisability of placing restrictions on coasting in the interest of safety has manifested itself most clearly for a number of years.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The next important event for Connecticut is the special election a week from Tuesday.

The man on the corner says: The prayers must continue to be for rain, rain and more rain.

Do your Christmas shopping early; is something that ought to get far beyond the resolution stage.

Mexico has a new president and a new cabinet and it has managed to dodge a revolution for a week.

You have probably noticed that it is not at the railroad crossings where all the fatalities are being recorded.

The battering which the Leviathan received shows that the big as well as the small get rough treatment when storms break.

This congress should realize that it is now having its last chance to square itself for some of the bad mistakes of the past.

The ultimatum to the Scranton coal miners to resume work or lose their charters shows that striking miners are not always right.

Those Paterson, N. J., women who are going to make the men patriotic seem imbued with a spirit as determined as Carrie Nation's.

The radio and cross word puzzles may keep people up till midnight and after but what is needed is one that will get them up by six in the morning.

Just because the president went to Chicago in a Pullman there is talk of increasing his traveling account. That would be in direct opposition to his idea of economy.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Borax will drive away ants.

Rugs and carpets should be swept with the grain.

Three parts ice to one of salt are correct for freezing.

Griddle cakes should be turned but once or they will toughen.

A raw potato dipped in brick dust will remove stains on knives.

Painted walls are best in the kitchen on account of the washing possibilities.

To brighten carpets sprinkle them with tea leaves and sweep lightly but thoroughly.

Gentle, but persistent rubbing with turpentine will remove tar stains from flannel.

One or two maraschino cherries in each jar of canned pears makes it very attractive.

Paste a narrow strip of old velvet along each rocker if a chair is of the "traveling" variety.

Cheesecloth is best for cleaning polished surfaces. Linen streaks them and leaves deposits of lint.

Canned foods are more wholesome if they are turned from the can about a half hour before they are to be used and exposed to the air to reoxygenize.

If soup has been made too salty add a few slices of raw potato and cook five minutes longer. The potato will absorb the salt.

Tapping the bottom of the loaf is the best bread test. If there is a hollow sound your loaf is baked.

In making cake or creaming butter and sugar for hard sauce add a tablespoon of boiling water. This greatly lessens the work, produces a fine creamy mixture and makes the cake more moist.

Be certain that the hardwood floors are perfectly clean before either waxing or applying shellac. If all stains are not removed they will show up very plainly under the polished surface.

RENOVATING IRON WORK

When picture frames, iron fenders, door knockers, or iron work outside the house become shabby and worn-looking, try the following method, which will transform a battered gold frame into a black one, resembling ebony, and make shabby iron work bright and new again.

Purchase some vegetable black from an oil shop, and mix with one part of gold size and two parts of turpentine; apply with a brush, and allow it to dry. When just dry, polish with a blacking brush, finally rubbing with a soft cloth. The result will be a surface and appearance like ebony.

After using, the brush must be washed with turpentine, and then with soap and water.

Wrought-iron lamp stands, iron bedsteads, grates in bedrooms where they are seldom used, in fact, any iron which needs restoring, may be renovated by this method.

BATHING CAPS

Bathing caps will keep from year to year if proper care is taken to protect them. Sprinkle talcum powder both inside and outside and then stuff the inside of the cap with soft tissue paper. Cover with another sheet of paper and pack away.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Persons employed will find great comfort in a change of footwear upon their arrival home in the evenings. A fresh pair of shoes after the day's work seems to take away a great deal of that tired feeling.

Nails broader than they are long indicate a worrying and other meddlesome disposition, and scolds and "grousers" usually possess square-looking nails.

A poor circulation is another cause of red noses. Regular exercise, deep breathing, sufficient sleep and well-balanced diet will correct the trouble.

To strengthen the back muscles lie face downward on the floor, hands clasped behind your back, arms and legs straight and toes stretched as far as possible, heels together. The chest rests firmly on the floor. Slowly raise head and shoulders from the floor and at the same time raise both legs, knees stiff. Observe the body as far as possible. This is a simple exercise, but it brings into play all the back muscles from neck to feet. Relax slowly and repeat five to ten times.

YOUR NAILS AND YOUR NATURE

Doctors have discovered that the look of the nails is a good indication of the state of health of their patients. But more than this, the size, shape and color of the finger nails tell an observant person a great deal about the disposition of the owner.

Long-nailed people are gentle and calm and generally quietly cheerful. They do not fuss or get restless. But they are rather too cautious and lacking in self-confidence, and are apt to be obstinate in their opinions.

The quick and keenly critical person, full of ambition, inclined to argument and analysis, almost always has round, even pink nails. If they are small as well, then she is rather a melancholy nature and so thin-skinned that she is always taking offence where none was intended.

NEW GLASSES

When you buy new glasses, put them in a pan of cold water and place over a slow fire until the water reaches the boiling point. Take from the fire and let cool in the water. Be sure the glasses are thoroughly covered with water while on the fire. Ice water or hot fluids will not affect the tempered glasses.

BREAD TEST

The bread test is most reliable when frying doughnuts. Put 2 cubes of bread in the fat. When it begins to turn a golden brown remove and add another, counting slowly up to seventy. The bread should then be a golden brown and the fat ready to use.

KEEP IN THE JUICE

When roasting a piece of meat, it should be cooked quickly at first to sear the outside enough to hold in the juices. Then the temperature of the oven may be lowered to prevent burning.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Blouses of white kasha or broadcloth are combined very beautifully with skirts of black of velvet.

Skirts of velvet or velveteen are very much liked with silver or brocaded smocks or overblouses.

Borders of flame-colored satin or crepe liven up scarfs of black cashmere intended for sport wear.

An evening frock of turquoise blue velvet has brocaded designs of burnt orange and is worn with a velvet scarf of orange.

An evening coat for a young girl is a vision of loveliness in white panne velvet with a collar of fluffy white fox fur.

A very attractive coat is composed entirely of cross tucking, the material being a very fine one.

Ensemble costumes that are particularly stunning have black coats, with linings of brilliant red and are worn over red gowns.

Gloves are seldom worn in the evening except for such formal occasions as the opera or theater, when white suede or glace kid is appropriate.

The tunic costume that is so much the rage now should be worn with discretion, and the woman who is larger through the hips than through the shoulders should avoid it.

The latest idea for the boudoir is to have the toilet articles match the curtains in colors and design. Some fascinating brushes, combs and mirrors are enameled in cheerful cretonne patterns.

Many women who wear all-black on the street add a note of life to their costume by colorful corsages. A single camellia of bright red that seems to be lacquered is a popular type.

There are two types of evening slipper in equal favor today. One is the demure black satin opera pump without any ornamentation at all. The other is a black satin pump with a flashing buckle and blazing diamond heels.

TEA TABLE COVERS

Table covers for the tea table are made in the shape of the Greek cross, fringed at the ends, but hemmed and lace trimmed all the rest of the way around. The embroidery is done in a central design, and on the four centers of the cross pieces. One odd cover was of embroidered black linen with gold colored medallions and a black Colport tea set with gilt handles was used over it. This combination was very smart and unusual.

GRACEFUL IN EFFECT

The knee-flare silhouette—that is, the most attractive departure so far this season from the long, slim lines which have obtained so long. The evening frocks by prominent designers now flare at the knee by means either of plaitings accordion or otherwise, or godets, which give the same freedom of movement and grace of contour.

POPULAR FALL FABRIC

Silk is silk and wool is wool but unlike Kipling's east and west they frequently meet and join in bengaline, the newest material for suits, coats and street frocks. It is silk and wool mixture procurable in penny brown, copper, bottle green, beige and other colors.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

A good way to patch knitted underwear is to cut the patch to fit, then stitch twice about the edges, then buttonhole the patch to the garment, cutting out the worn parts beneath.

To distinguish linen from cotton, drop a drop of glycerine on the fabric. On linen it will quickly be absorbed and form a transparent spot. On cotton it will not be absorbed, but roll about like mercury.

Do not machine tucks to be let down in a kiddy's garment, but work with a loose chain stitch or feather stitch, that can be cut through for alteration.

To prevent the out-growing of princess petticoats, cut the front and back wide enough to allow forming a pleat each side of the center of the neck, which may be feather stitched down to keep them flat.

Let the fullness flow at will below the pleats and put a few tucks at the bottom of the skirt. As the child grows the garment can be let out in the bodice and skirt.

WASHING SOLUTIONS

"Soil" in clothing is particles of dirt and waste oil from the body held suspended in the fibers of the textiles of which the garment is made. In order to make clothing clean, we must "cut" this grease so that dirt particles may be loosened from the material and carried away in the wash water. Therefore whatever method accomplishes this aim best, with least wear and harm to the clothes, is good washing practise. And modern science proves to us that this grease is most rapidly and thoroughly cut by the use of the right chemicals dissolved in a washing or soap solution, and not by rubbing.

Here are two standard and satisfactory formulas:

1. Combination Soda-Soap Solution (hard water) White Clothes only. One bar soap (or eight ounces powdered or flaked soap,) one pound washing soda, four quarts hot water. Dissolve soap in hot water, add soda crystals and continue heating until perfectly clear. Use one cup of solution to each "load" in the machine.

2. General Washing Solution (soft water) White and Colored Clothes. One bar soap (or eight ounces powdered or flaked soap) two quarts water, two tablespoons borax. Dissolve soap in water by heating over a low fire, cool and add borax. Use one cup of solution to each "load" in the machine. — The Planter.

TIDY BUREAU DRAWERS

The only possible way for a woman to keep her bureau drawers in a neat condition is to have boxes for her various pins, ribbons, handkerchiefs, etc. We women have far too many necessary trinkets to attempt to keep them unsorted.

LESS RATHER THAN MORE

When cake baking, don't think a larger lump of butter will make the cake better. Too much butter will absolutely spoil a cake and many of the best cakes you have eaten have had no butter at all in them.

TO KEEP PASTRY

Leftover pie crust or pastry should be rolled in cheesecloth wrung dry out of cold water and kept in the refrigerator. It will be good for a week or more.

CONCERNING WOMEN

In Portugal if the wife publishes literary works without the husband's consent the law frees him at once.

For 43 years Mary Pike has taught school in Franklin, N. H., and in that time she has never lost a day on account of illness.

Girl students of the University of Washington, 90 per cent of whom arrive at the university with feet ailments, are now required to wear shoes approved by the physical education department.

Mrs. Adelia A. Hallock, who has just entered upon her 90th year at her home in Clarinda, Ia., is the mother of eleven children, two of whom are clergymen, two the wives of clergymen and three foreign missionaries.

The first decision in the United States on the eligibility of women to hold public office was rendered by the Attorney General of Iowa in the early '70's in the case of a woman who had been elected to the office of superintendent of schools in Mitchell county, in that state.

KEEP KNIVES SHARP

Keep your carving tools in good shape. Many a good roast or well-cooked steak has been mutilated through carving with a dull knife.

WELSH RABBIT

Try a Welsh rabbit for the main dish of your luncheon. It is much more than merely a light dish for a pleasure time but is a valuable meat substitute.

RECIPES

Apples With Marshmallows: Core two firm red apples and peel about one inch of the skin from the stem end. Place the apples in a baking dish, fill the centers with sugar, and cover the bottom of the dish with water. Bake in a hot oven, basting every 10 minutes. When the sugar has dissolved put a marshmallow in the center of each apple. When tender remove from the oven, place another marshmallows on top, and bake a minute or two longer. Serve hot or cold.

Deviled Creamed Eggs: Boil eggs enough to allow two to a portion, hard. When they are cold cut them lengthwise, remove all the yolks and mash and devil them by adding two teaspoonful of Worchestershire sauce, salt, pepper, a saltspoonful of sugar, the same of curry powder and melted butter or olive oil enough to soften the yolks. Allow a teaspoonful of minced cold boiled chicken to each egg and add a tablespoonful of chopped capers. When these ingredients are well mixed stuff the egg whites, pressing the eggs together again and laying them on slices of crustless, buttered toast. Make a rich cream sauce and pour it over the eggs. This is an unusual and very good dish.

"Cascarets" 10c if Constipated, Dizzy, Bilious

Feel fine! Let "Cascarets" clean your bowels and stimulate your liver. No griping or overacting. Millions of men, women, and children take this harmless laxative cathartic. It doesn't sicken you like pills, oils, calomel and salts. Tastes nice—acts wonderful. 10c, 25c and 50c boxes—any drug store.

Lowden, the Country School Teacher Janitor

Following years of work and self-denial, Frank O. Lowden was able to enter college, but soon afterward his funds gave out and he had to go back to toil at the bottom of the ladder again. On the farm near Sunrise, Minn., where he was born, his father tilled the soil and ran a blacksmith shop. While still a lad, Frank was taken by his parents to Iowa where he helped to build a cabin on the prairie.

By studying at night and attending school in spare time the boy acquired sufficient education by the time he was 15 to become teacher in a country school. To add to his meagre salary he swept out the school room.

After five years of teaching and toil, he had saved enough money to enter the University of Iowa. His start was brilliant as a student, but his savings were not sufficient for him to complete the course. Returning home, he taught in a country school again until he had accumulated enough to go back to college. Then he was graduated at the head of his class.

As an eight-dollar-a-week law clerk he earned his way through the Union College of Law in Chicago, being graduated at 26, winner of the prizes for scholarship and oratory. Entering upon the practice of law, he rose rapidly. At 35 he was married to the daughter of George M. Pullman, the sleeping car magnate. Three years later he became a professor of law at Northwestern University, serving a year.

Entering politics at 38, he was a delegate to the national convention and campaigned for McKinley. Three years afterward he ran for governor of Illinois, but was defeated.

Deciding to withdraw from politics, he bought an extensive place near Oregon, Ind., and soon became a successful farmer.

After three years of farming, he was elected congressman, and was reelected, but declined a third term because of poor health. Two years later he was chosen republican national committeeman. At 54 he was elected governor of Illinois, in 1920 was mentioned as Presidential nominee and this year declined the nomination for vice president of the United States.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Egyptian crisis has served to bring back into the limelight that famous British soldier, Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, who has been the British High Commission in Egypt since 1919. Field Marshal Allenby is counted among Britain's greatest military leaders of the present day. Although his greatest fame came to him in the World war, he had previously won distinction for himself in military service. Early in his career he saw active service in various expeditions, and was twice cited in the South African war. At the very outset of the war in Europe he was given charge of the cavalry division of the British army that "went out" in 1914 to stay the onrush of the Kaiser's hordes and it is acknowledged that to the masterly manner in which he covered the terrible retreat from Mons must be attributed in great measure the British escape from disaster. It was later in the conflict, however, that Allenby attracted the world's attention by his successful campaign in Palestine and his capture of Jerusalem and Jericho.

CHILD TRAINING

WHAT DO THEY REALLY WANT?
Mary S. Stover

Did you ever have the experience of giving a child some carefully selected and perhaps expensive gift which was not appreciated because the little one's heart had been set on something else?

It may be that you know in advance what the child most wanted, but you could not easily procure it or considered the other thing more suitable; again, it may be you were enlightened only by a resentful or heart-broken outburst regarding the sled, bicycle or toy of heart's desire.

At such a time nobody should be too much impressed by the child's apparent ingratitude, nor too anxious to hurry down-town and secure what he wants. More important is the open-minded consideration of his desire. Is what the child wants in reason? Does he really long for it, or is this merely a passing whim, perhaps the selfish desire to own something like whatever a playmate has?

One can do a child grave injustice by getting him everything he wants. This is a world of imitations, thwarted wishes, necessity for sharing with others. The person whose every early wish was granted finds it hard to adjust himself to life.

We ought, however, to choose our gifts from the standpoint of sympathetic regard for the child and less from what catches the adult fancy; there ought also to be more concern for the needs of his developing life. Knowledge of what the child really wants furnishes valuable understanding of his personality. This means not only to know what he wants but why.

Two boys may declare that they want "a sled like Fred's," and yet have very unlike desires. Joe may express his reasonable wish for a sturdy, well designed piece of play apparatus that he would continue to value, care for and use a long time; John may only want to have a shiny new sled because Fred has one. Keeping up with all the neighbors is a dangerous ambition, as we have tragic witness everywhere; fostering that spirit is no mark of parental kindness nor should we cater to unduly expensive tastes in children.

On the other hand, a boy or a girl who seemingly "wants the moon" may in reality be yearning for something essentially more attainable, such as moonlight! It is worth much patient inquiry and observation to learn what children really want to have, since their longings are significant signposts pointing the way that individual tastes and abilities lead.

The child who talks of wanting a violin may only be hungry to hear good music, an excellent but different thing. Perhaps he does want to play some instrument but would be discouraged by beginning on such a difficult one as the violin.

The boy who teases for expensive mechanical toys may have his real wish better gratified in the ownership of materials with which to experiment and contruct his own metal toys. Of all things, one should be sure not to stunt a creative talent by the presents he gives.

NORWICH SCHOOL BOY MAY GET HERO MEDAL

Zest, the national savings newspaper, is distributed monthly to pupils from the 3rd to 6th grades, by Norwich Savings Society, Charles R. Butts, president, in twenty-five schools where this banking house has placed saving stamp machines.

The current issue of Zest devotes a page to the heroism of a Norwich school boy, Dominic Feraco, who is a candidate for a Carnegie bravery medal, having rescued a playmate from drowning. Feraco is a pupil of Miss Mary T. Tracy, in the Bridge District, East Side.

Zest tells the following story:

The bravery and presence of mind of Dominic Feraco of Norwich, Conn., saved a playmate, John Barber, also of Norwich, from drowning this summer. Perhaps a Carnegie medal may come his way.

The two boys are classmates at Bridge school, and were playing one afternoon on the historic battle grounds along the east bank of the Shetucket river, when John decided to go in swimming. John is a strong swimmer, and felt confident that he could cross the river and come back again.

The Shetucket river did not look so wide to him as it really is. At first his strokes carried him far out into the river. Soon, however, he found that the current was very strong. Then he kept trying to get ahead, but the effort exhausted him.

Dominic, watching on shore, observed his companion's distress, and swam quickly to his aid. After a long, hard struggle he succeeded in getting John on his back and swam back to shallow water. Dominic was almost as exhausted as his friend, he helped John ashore and after resting awhile, accompanied him home.

The battle grounds, the location of the rescue, are a favorite playground for boys and girls of this vicinity. There are numerous legends told about the early history of the place, most of them Indian tales.

One tradition sets forth that its name was derived from a battle fought by Indians long before the settlement by the English in 1659. A local tribe invited an inland tribe to a feast. Eels proved to be the chief article of food, and as the visiting tribe never had seen eels they thought their hosts were trying to make them eat snakes. A fight resulted. It was such a bloody battle that the land has been called the battle grounds ever since.

John made no further effort to swim across the Shetucket during the summer. In the future he says that he expects to cross the treacherous river in the only really safe way—by row boat, accompanied by his good friend, Dominic.

BINGHAM DECLARES HE WILL OPPOSE LEAGUE

Hiram Bingham, republican candidate for United States senator at the coming special election, was the speaker here at a noon luncheon Saturday at the Wauregan house of the state central committee members and the chairmen and vice chairmen of the town committees of New London county, declaring to them that the coming election would be a straight contest whether Connecticut voters wanted a senator who was for or against the United States joining the league of nations.

Mr. Bingham told his hearers that he was absolutely against the league, while his democratic opponent, Hamilton Holt, had devoted his life to support of the league. The voters could show by their ballots where they wanted Connecticut to stand on this issue. Mr. Bingham urged that the party get out the full vote in theelection and declared that he felt justified in accepting the nomination for senator as it was given to him by the same people who had nominated him for governor.

About 50 attended the meeting which was presided over by Ernest E. Rogers of New London, who has been elected state treasurer. The state central committee men and women present were A. J. Bailey and Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell of this city, from the 19th district, Daniel Cronin and Mrs. Thomas F. Dorsey of New London, from the 18th district, George H. Bradford of Montville and Mrs. W. Ellery Allen of Waterford, from the 20th district.

BELATED BID FOR GAS AND ELECTRIC PLANT

Representatives of an unnamed company with a bid to buy the Norwich gas and electric plant, met Mayor Milo F. Waters and the special committee of the common council Sunday afternoon at the mayor's office at the Court House, but their bid was not received.

Mayor Waters said after the meeting that the bids closed Friday and the committee took the ground that they had not right to receive this belated bid. The mayor declined to make public the name of the new bidder or the terms of the bid.

It was intimated that the bid might yet be presented directly to the common council when it holds a special meeting this week to hear the report of the special committee.

Mayor Waters and the committee are to meet today (Monday) with the representatives of A. E. Fitkin & Co., of New York, who have made the high bid of $3,000,000. Samuel Moorhouse of New Haven, attorney for the company will attend the meeting, part of the business of which will be to discuss the necessary steps to be taken with the legislature in case it is decided to sell the municipal gas and electric plant.

NORWICH ELKS PAY TRIBUTE TO THEIR ABSENT BROTHERS

An audience that filled the body of the house at the Broadway theater was present Sunday afternoon at 2.30 for the annual memorial service conducted by Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. E., with a programme that was rendered with deep impressiveness. Members of the lodge met at the Elks home and marched to the theatre where they occupied a central block of seats, while the rest of the house was open to the general public. The memorial address was by Attorney John H. Cassidy of Waterbury, formerly of this city, whose impressive words were listened to with the closest attention.

The setting on the stage for the officers for the lodge in the memorial service was of a beauty and dignity that has not been equalled in years that these services have been held. Against a background of palms and green the chairs of Exalted Ruler John E. Fitzgerald and his associate officers were arranged in a semi-circle. Suspended behind the exalted ruler's station was a large clock in white and purple, with the hands pointing to 11 o'clock, and at either side were four large purple frames showing the cardinal principles of the order—Charity, Justice, Fidelity and Brotherly Love. At the front of the stage was an altar with the Elks' head, Bible and American flag, and the footlights showed red through a fringe of potted ferns at the front of the stage.

Under each of the large frames was smaller circular disc bearing the names of the four members of the lodge who have died in the past year, Archibald Mitchell Jr., William Blackburn, Thomas Norris and Samuel Sanderson. An electric light above each name was extinguished as the name was called and the answer "Absent" given at the appropriate time in the services. The effective arrangement was planned and executed by Morgan Cronin, with the floral decorations by Otto F. Ernst.

The instrumental musical part of the programme was finely given by Swahn's orchestra and there were well rendered selections by the Clarion quartette of Hartford, comprising Charles T. Oakes, first tenor; Frank G. Sunderland, second tenor; William A. N. Scott, baritone, and Charles S. Ulrich, bass.

The programme was carried out as follows:

Memorial Address.

In the memorial address, Attorney Cassidy, a member of Waterbury lodge, spoke in part as follows:

The melancholy days have come. Autumn has folded her jewelled arms about the dying year. Everywhere nature presents a barren picture. Trees that but so lately shone green with refulgence of life, stand aghast with the aspenness of frost-shrowded cadavers, mere skeletons with limbs stripped of the beautiful foliage that told us of the beauty, wealth and glory of life, now stretch out in space with barren branches; remorseful reminders that all that is brought to life, that springs into being by the wish of the Creator, must again, obeying that same wish, return to the source from whence it came. The silent, steady, dropping, dropping of the leaves from the trees, tells the sad, sad story of them and you and me. Today, all is sad! All is sorrowful! We know of lives, radiantly colored, beautifully green, severed, only He knows why, prematurely, and fall softly, gently to the ground. Lives that the summer's sun had just begun to bloom. Lives that had grown large and strong to shade and shelter fellow mankind! Lives that had blossomed the fairest of all the fair and spread the perfume of joy and happiness upon all around all these have gone! The whitehand of frost, that frost which must touch us all, has cast its blight, and all is no more.

Why should we weep for those who die, the speaker asked, quoting a poem which expressed the thought that we should not sorrow because death leads to a happier life. Nothwithstanding those cold poetical philosophy, we are gathered here to exercise that wholly and wholesome thought to pray for the dead. A memorial! Moments yielded to thoughts of other persons and other days. Sad they are, but though being sad they are comforting.

The speaker mentioned the especial care the Elks give to the wives, daughters and children of departed Elks and went on to say, "What manner of men are these that should have the charge of the precious of human kind? What bond so strong that binds them to such a trust? What special purpose is there, that such men hope to help the weak by the aid of the strong? I will answer. They call Themselves the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. They are bound by an oath as strong as words and obligation can make, to practice Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity. They have stopped long enough in this steady tramp, tramp of the relentless, industrial march of the 20th century, when men are judged by the size of their bulging purses and not by the benevolence of their hearts, to form an army of men who will give drink to the thirsty, clothe him who is naked, feed him who is hungry and bury him who is dead; their organization is one founded on love, love of mankind, on that great commandment, "Love thy neighbor as thyself; do unto others as they would do unte you." There is no organization outside the pale of a church of any denomination of any creed that has higher, more ennobling principles than those believed in and practiced by the members of this fraternity. Charity—not the puffed-up vaunted charity, that gives for the sake of renown but the silent invisible helping of one to help himself. And now abideth Faith, Hope, Charity—these three—but the greatest of these is Charity, and so the greatest of all organizations is the one that chooses charity as the keystone of its foundation. Robert Ingersoll, the infidel, with all his heresies and false doctrines, when he stood at the tomb of the great Napoleon, that restless man and in reverie gave utterance to sentiments that have lived after him and said "I would rather have lived and died unnoticed and unknown except by those who loved me, than to have been that imperial impersonation of force and pride that reduced Europe to blood and tears." When he uttered these words, he anticipated the sentiments of that handful of men who formed this organization for they said "We consider it the greatest thing in the world to do unto others as we would they should do unto us and we would rather write the faults of our brothers on the sands and their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory" than to have all the riches all the wealth and all the power that man can possess. These sentiments have been lifted up, have spread, have been disseminated, have taken root, grown so that today thousands of mankind are bound by a fraternal chain endeavoring to propagate them. Woes have vanquished, purses have been filled, troubles have been dispelled and hearts made lighter. In the practice of these virtues and in the broad purpose of helping mankind, the strong hands of the members of Elkdom have been stretched forth to aid particularly those who of nature are the weakest. In the performance of that practice of Charity, because of her helplessness, her inability to contend with the world, our tender nature, her susceptibility, the Elk has drawn about the image of woman a barricade fortified by the strongest of oaths, she has been almost deified, she has been placed upon a pedestal and there she stands surrounded and protected by men, men of the world, for Elks are the men of the world, they know her weaknesses better than herself and they have sworn to protect her. Point the finger of scorn at that image and it is the duty of an Elk to resent it, lift the eye of desire and it is his duty to blind you, speak with lip of impropriety and he will strike you dumb, and think upon her with impurity he will muzzle your thought with a blow. Therefore, I say, place the widows, the sisters, the mothers and the children beside men of this stamp, for they are their protectors, they are their guardians, they are their earthly saviours. To practice Charity and to protect the chastity of woman is the almost divine object of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. From the days of the creation of the world, down to this very moment, woman has shaped the destinies of man, in art, in literature, in justice, in liberty, in war, in drama, in the novel, in everything woman has been the ideal, and always it has been man who has been the serpent tempting, tantalizing, terrorizing tainting her with blandishments and false flattery till she, that ideal, has fallen through his foulness. And so this organization is formed of men to crush out the hydra-headed monster that glides and glitters and seeks to remove the innocence from the brow of womanhood and leave a scar, the imprints of his fangs, his poison there. We endeavor to practice Charity to all mankind and in its practice to be particularly indulgent to woman. Woman in her purity, directs all that is good in us, she prompts us to give charity, she tempers us in justice, she is an example in fidelity and is the paragon of Brotherly Love.

In the strengthening of the ranks that make up this army of men, our organization knows no creed, no sect, no denomination, no social no financial qualification. There are but these requisites, a belief in the Supreme Being and the acknowledgment of the soundness of an administered oath to practice in their various forms the virtues of Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity. He is an Elk! The word

DEDICATED NEW MEMORIALS AT TRINITY CHURCH

At the morning service at Trinity Episcopal church Sunday, Rt. Rev. E. Campion Acheson, D. D., suffragan bishop, was the preacher and conducted a service of dedication of the new memorials placed in the church during the alterations and remodeling through the past summer. A congregation that filled nearly every seat heard the earnest words of Bishop Acheson.

The rector, Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, announced that a letter of congratulation from Bishop Chauncey Brewster had been received, and Bishop Acheson told the congregation that he brought the congratulations of the bishop and the council upon the completion of the restoration of the church along lines of such beauty, a church that has memories and traditions that it cherishes. You have had people, he said, who have lived and walked in Norwich and have kept the faith and I am glad that you have those now who are carrying on the faith. I congratulate you too on the man whom you have for rector, one who keeps before you the high ideal of the church. The people, too, are doing their share. You are not making this a religious clubhouse. I have no use for a religious clubhouse.

Bishop Acheson went on to speak of the Lord's house as a means of grace into which we come to worship and receive int oour souls the free, unmerited gift of the grace of God. The church is a means of grace, he declared, and the means of grace gives us the hope of glory.

The service concluded with the confirmation, which was followed by holy communion, administered by Bishop Acheson, assisted by Archdeacon Brown.

OBITUARY

Rev. Ignatius V. Maciejewski

Parishioners of St. Joseph's church were grieved and hundreds of friends in Norwich and vicinity learned with sorrow, Saturday night, of the death of Rev. Ignatius V. Maciejewski, pastor of the church, which occurred at the rectory on Cliff street about 8 o'clock, after the last sacraments of the church he had served so well had been administered by Rev. Theophilus Kotowski curate of the parish.

Although the death of Rev. Fr. Maciejewski cast a shadow over the parish and saddened the hundreds of parishioners, who had learned to love him during his years of service as pastor, it was not unexpected. Fr. Maciejewski had been confined to his bed for the past fifteen months and several times previous to Saturday his death had been expected, but he had rallied. He was weakened after months of struggle, with a complication of diseases.

REV. I. V. MACIEJEWSKIE

Rev. Ignatius V. Maciejewski was born in Poland, July 14, 1877, the son of Valentine and Anna Maciejewski. When he was a child of four, his parents came to this country and made their home in Brooklyn, N. Y., and, in that city Fr. Maciejewski received his early education.

It was his ambition to study for the priesthood and after concluding his studies at St. John's College, Brookline, Mass., he entered the Polish Seminary at Detroit, Mich., where he took up the study of philosophy and theology. He concluded his studies for the priesthood at Overbrook Seminary, Overbrook, Pa., and December 8, 1900, he was ordained a priest.

His first appointment was as curate to Shamokin, Pa., where he remained for six months. Immediately after this he received his first pastorate, being assigned to St. Joseph's church, Mt. Carmel, Pa., where he served for five years. His work at Mt. Carmel was recognized and he was sent to Union City, near Waterbury, Conn., where he organized a parish among the Polish residents. He quickly endeared himself to the people of that place and his parish within six years numbered over 400 families. His executive ability made itself manifest while at Union City and he planned and supervised the building of a church and rectory.

Fr. Maciejewski came to Norwich, September 10, 1912, to succeed Rev. John Ambot, transferred to Hartford. He added to the equipment of the parochial school, which at the time of his death has eight sisters as instructors, while the pupils number over 500. Many children could not be accommodated and it was plan planned last year that a new school building would be erected in the spring of 1925.

Father Maciejewskie also interested himself in providing a modern convent and in 1914 the new convent building was erected on Cliff street, a most convenient location, next to church and school. Under the leadership of Rev. Fr. Maciejewski the parishioners made an effort to clear the parish from debt and it was during his illness that the long-looked-for goal was attained, and Rev. Fr. Maciejewski paid off the last money to clear the church.

During his term of service in Norwich the rectory was remodelled and made into an up-to-date structure, this change with others that had gone before endearing him to his parishioners as an able shepherd and leader.

Rev. Fr. Maciejewski is survived by a sister, Mrs. Anna J. Fliss of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a brother, John Maciejewski of Meriden. He leaves nephews and nieces in Brooklyn and Meriden.

Monsignor Bucholski of Brooklyn, N. Y., has arrived in Norwich and is in charge of the funeral arrangements. The affairs of the parish are being administered by Rev. Peter Sroka, who has served since the illness of Rev. Fr. Maciejewski and he is being assisted by Rev. Theophilus Kotowski, curate of the church.

Although head of such a wide-spread parish and burdened with many cares, St. Joseph's pastor was always cheerful and optimistic. He sought to have his people take their place and do their full part as worthy citizens. In the school, he employed a lay teacher who gave instruction wholly in English and there was never any community project or plan which had not his ready and liberal sympathy and aid. A devoted priest, he virtually "gave his life for his sheep," laboring early and late for his people and his parish, for he continued his work even while broken down in health.

ATTENDED CONFERENCE ON WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

Among those present at a meeting of the inspectors of weights and measures of the state held in Hartford at the office of the superintendent of weights and measures was Harry W. House, local sealer of weights and measures. Matters relative to weights and measures were discussed and suggestions were made regarding proposed new legislation. Attention was called to some recent changes in the law affecting weights and measures, particularly with regard to gasoline pumps.

Because of the construction of gasoline pumps and because they are affected by weather conditions it has been found that the pumps frequently deliver either short or over measure. Therefore new rules have been added to Chapter 121 of the general statutes of the state for liquid measuring devices. These tests should be made at least once each day berore service to buyers starts.

Other changes include a new table of weights of various commodities and a new table of tolerances and allowances for weights and measures Mr. House has information for the public at his office in the Osco building.

Due to financial reverses, Blanchard & Hagar had to give up the proerty in 1898, but Mr. Hagar then took the Pequot house in New London. Here again he was unfortunate and the place was bought by the late Frank E. Brandegee. After the fire that destroyed the Pequot house in 1907, Mr. Hagar conducted The Inn on Bank street and later was at Larchmont, New York. Following this he opened the new Belvidere at Baltimore.

NURMI WILL MEET AMERICA'S BEST RUNNERS ON TRACK THIS WINTER

New York, Dec. 7—(By the A. P.)—American track and field followers will see probably the greatest running machine of all time in action during the 1924-25 indoor season when Paavo Nurmi, Finnish marvel who is due here this week, meets the pick of Yankee runners in a series of meets in the nible invasion of tracks in the middle east. His plans also contemplate a poswest and Canada.

Nurmi, whose Olympic conquests last July at Paris and amazing streak of record-breaking performances are well known wherever the cinder-path sport is followed, comes here at the height of his career. Only 26 years old, the Finnish star holds ten world's records at distances ranging from 1500 metres to seven miles and over the past two years has flashed a consistent brand of speed that has given him an unprecedented place in athletic annals.

His first competition is slated for January 6 at Madison Square Garden, where, under the auspices of the Finnish-American Athletic Club, he will run in two races, one at a mile and another at 5,000 metres.

In attempting this feat, Nurmi will be duplicating the task he set for himself at Paris when, in a single afternoon, he won the Olympic 1,500 and 5,000 metre races, both in record time.

Willis Ritola, Nurmi's American-trained countryman and co-star at the Olympics, is expected to be a contender in both races at the garden. Over 5,000 metres at Paris, Nurmi won from Ritola by a yard.

Aside from Ritola, Joie Ray, veteran former American mile champion; looms as Nurmi's strongest rival. Ray, according to reports, is showing a return to old-time form in training at Chicago and may come back to duplicate his sensational races of two seasons ago when he toppled six world's records.

Nurmi, so far as a search of records reveals, has not been defeated since 1920, when he lost the Olympic 5,000-metre race to Guillemot of France. Since then, the Finn has gone from one notable success to another, lowering the world's mile record to the remarkable figure of 4:10 2-5 and reaching his greatest heights at the Olympics, where he won four races. A few after his return to Finland he broke five world's records over a 10,000 metre course.

STAGG TO REPRESENT WEST AT NATIONAL FOOTBALL MEET

Chicago, Dec. 7.—With the selection of Coach A. A. Stagg, of the University of Chicago, to be their representative at the annual meeting of the National association of football coaches in New York, December 29, Western conference mentors, athletic directors and faculty representatives left Chicago last night with 1925 sport schedules ready for the inspection of their followers.

The outstanding results of the meeting were these:

The schedule of three intersectional games by Chicago and one by both Illinois and Michigan.

The application for membership in the Western conference by Nebraska University and the Michigan Agricultural college.

Unanimous disapproval of the present kick-off rule.

The adoption of the intercollegiate swimming rule permitting a swimmer to compete in only two events.

Removal of restriction on the number of pre-season basketball games which waformerly placed at three.

The University of Chicago eleven opens its 1925 season against Kentucky University Oct. 3, and will meet Pennsylvania and Dartmouth later in the season in addition to playing conference games, according to the new schedule. Illinois will play Tulane University Nov. 14 and Michigan meets the Navy Oct. 31 in the other two intersectional games.

No action was taken on the application of Nebraska and the Michigan Aggies for administration into the Big Ten, while the football coaches were united in their belief that the kick-off should be made from the forty yard line as formerly.

Coach Knute Rockne was the cynosure of eager eyes among the coaches who all sought games with his Notre Dame team. Coach Glen Thistlethwaite, of Northwestern, emerged the favored negotiator, returning to Evanston with a three year contract. Minnesota will be Rockne's only other Big Ten opponent. His negotiations with Zuppke of Illinois failed when the two could not agree on a playing date.

The indoor track meet was awarded to Northwestern and the outdoor competition to Ohio State, the former coming on March 13 and 14, and the latter on June 5 and 6.

PLAINFIELD ANTICIPATES BIGSEASON IN BASKETBALL

The followers of the two crack basketball teams of the town of Plainfield are waiting for the opening game to be played on Plainfield's battle ground, Friday night the two teams had a fighting work out. About three hundred followers of the two teams watched with eagle eyes, the snappy pass work and trick plays of the teams. Manager Salisbury watched on the side lines with a broad smile and was loud with praises for the local boys. Lester Salisbury has had many years of experience in handling basketball teams and states that this year will be the best season Plainfield has ever seen. The hall is all set for the opening game. Bets are being laid already on a record breaking crowd at the Community Club house. Nolan, the crack mate forward and Provost, the unbeatable guard, will be in Plainfield's line-up. Manager Salisbury is waiting for a few more challenges before stating who will be the Army and Navy's first opponents.

The fifth consecutive year of the Plainfield Buddies Basketball association has started off with a national salute. These boys have been together for the past five years and have always given Plainfield the sport and excitement it has looked for. This season the team is managed by Emile Arseneault and captained by Arthur Arseneault, two young men well experienced in this line. The boys hold regular practices at the Community House daily and when the season opens on December 19th Plainfield will see the fastest boys in the state don their fighting togs.

BASEBALL CLAN GATHERING FOR ANNUAL MEETING

New York, Dec. 7.—Peace reigned over advance cohorts of American and National leagues. So far as could be learned those who have been at the hotels here since Friday, after attending the minor league convention at Hartford, neither consummated nor even discussed any deals, officially.

The National league meets Tuesday, the American Wednesday, and there will be a joint meeting Thursday.

The usual interest in the player market appears to have given way as President Ban Johnson of the American league approaches the coast pursued by a storm which is now indicated as of tremendous proportions. Johnson has declared that he will lay before the meetings his charges and his proofs in connection with gambling in the Pacific coast league.

Moreover, the man who was called Czar of baseball before former Judge Landis was appointed to commissionership, may be called upon to make plain his reported charges against the Giants, for he was first to demand that the world series be called off when Landis settled the O'Connell-Dolan bribery case.

Baseball men profess to see a war to the death, which either will end the regime of Landis or that of Johnson.

Tomorrow the hotel lobbies undoubtedly will seethe with the discussions of magnates and managers, and from these little knots of owners and managers may come transactions which will startle the public. But so far, only the Browns, Yankees, Giants, Reds and Cubs are mentioned in deals, although Detroit is reported to be rushing into the market with "Lu" Blue, his first baseman, as bait.

Before today's lull much had been said about sending Urban Shocker to the Yankees for an unmentioned consideration, Bill Terry of the Giants to Cincinnati for Eddie Rouch or Adolfo Luque, and Bob O'Farrell, of the Cubs to the Giants for Irish Meusel or maybhap George Kelly. These matters have been discussed more or less officially, but nothing definite has been done, according to late report.

PACIFIC COAST WINS FIRST INTERSECTIONAL BATTLE

San Francisco, Dec. 7.—(By the A. P.)—In the 16 to 0 victory which the University of Southern California scored over Syracuse University in the Los Angeles Coliseum yesterday, the west took the first of a series of post season football games with the east.

The Syracuse team found itself outplunged and encountered a stiffer defense than it was able to offer. The Trojans blocked two punts in the first period, making possible a goal from placement and a touchdown. Syracuse however, held off further scoring until the fourth period when a forward pass across the goal line netted the Trojans another touchdown. The turf was slippery, and McBridge, Syracuse back, whose specialty is field goals, was not able to kick scores.

Three more east-west games remain to be played in California. On Christmas Day, Southern California will entertain at Los Angeles the University of Missouri, champion of the Missouri aValley Conference. New Year's day four undefeated teams will appear, Notre Dame against Stanford at Pasadena and Pennsylvania against California at Berkeley.

RANGERS BEAT HARTFORD OLYMPIAS IN EASY GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 7.—The New London Ranger soccer team found itself this afternoon at Calkins park and vengeance was had at the expense of the Olympias of Hartford. Displaying a fine forward attack and dominating the playing throughout the contest, the Whalers came out of the contest with flying colors by a 5 goals to 1 count.

The victory for the locals was decisive and well earned, showing the real power of this team. To give an idea as to what chance the Olympias had to come out the winner, we would like to mention that the goal tender for the locals had two chances to stop the ball from going through the goal. How could the Capital City eleven win when five goals were chalked up against them? As it was the only goal hung up by the Olympias was merely a gift. Apparently the Christmas spirit had controlled the movements of Orkney, and he accidentally gave the visitors their only score.

About 15 minutes after play was started, Carlaw, playing his last game under the local colors, shot a clean goal for the first score of the afternoon. He was accorded good co-operation from his teammates, which made the initial score possible. Soon after the kickoff following Carlaw's goal, Silva sent the ball skilfully through the protected zone for the second score. Continuing their fine offensive play, Crawford shot the last goal just before half time.

The Rangers slacked up on their terrific pace which they set from the outset, but regardless of this managed to score the fourth goal soon after the opening play of the second half. Orkney gave the visitors their only goal when he drove the ball across the goal line after one of the infrequent breakaways.

Crawford terminated the scoring for both teams about 10 minutes before the half terminated. It has been announced by the management that Carlaw, center forward, and Crawford, inside right on the team, have been released to the Bradford eleven of Rhode Island.

FARRELL AND CRUICKSHANK BEAT BRITISH GOLFERS

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 7.—Great Britain went down to defeat 3 and 2 here today when Bobby Cruickshank and Abe Mitchell, who are touring the United States, in a 36 hole match.

The British stars lost their game on the putting greens. Neither Duncan nor Mitchell could benefit by a beautiful long game when they neared the cup. The putts repeatedly refused to drop for them. Duncan got some satisfaction out of his game by tying the course record held by Henry Bolesta, pro at the Palmacia club, where the match was played with a sixty eight in the afternoon round, five under his morning play and two under the two seventies which Cruickshank registered.

The invaders outdrove the Americans on practically every hole Mitchell in particular placing himself in position good enough for a win on several holes. His drives averaged fully 250 yards, many of them touching close to 300 yards. On the 15th, and 16th, holes Mitchell's drive and approach put him about four feet from the cup. His putts were missed, both holes being halves as a result and the game ended on the sixteenth green.

The morning round ended with the Americans 3 up. In the afternoon the fourth and eighth holes went to the Americans while Duncan and Mitchell took the fifth and seventh, Mitchell wining the fifth with a birdie three and his countryman the seventh also with a birdie three.

Cruickshank and Farrell played consistent games. Both missed putts, but never missed quite as many as did Duncan and Mitchell. Cruickshank in particular had an accurate game up to the greens. At no time was he in real trouble other than a little long grass on the very edge of the fairway.

INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 7.—Besides electing officers for the Eastern Connecticut league at the annual meeting held for that purpose at Stonington High school during the latter part of the week other matters of an athletic nature were also discussed. Among those questions which were brought up and judgment passed on was the drawing up of the football schedule to cover the league's activities during the season of 1925.

The schedule was drawn up before the meeting got under way, but had to be ratified by the various coaches and managers of the four high school teams entered in the league. Although the custom of having teams play a home and home game in the league is fast becoming obsolete in other sections of the state and out, the same custom will prevail again this season in this league. The schedule published below is not by any means the complete schedule of the teams entered in the league. They are only scheduled league contests, and the schedules of the teams are only partly completed.

The schedule for the Eastern Connecticut football season of 1925 is as follows:

Sept. 25—Westerly High at Norwich Free Academy.
Oct. 3—Norwich Free Academy at Stonington High.
Oct. 10—Chapman Tech. High at Stonington High.

N. L. DUSTY LEAGUE OPENED SATURDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 7.—The Industrial basketball season was inaugurated at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening before a small crowd of fans. There was but one contest played instead of two as was originally planned. The only game of the evening was played between the Standard Oil company five and the Palmer Brothers. The better team play gave the Socony quintet a 41 to 28 victory over the quiltmakers. The game which was scheduled to be played and which was cancelled due to the last minute withdrawal of the J. N. Lapointe team from the league was the New London Ship and Engine-J. N. Lapointe contest.

Although better form is expected to be exhibited later in the season, the Standard Oil five had things their own way almost the entire evening. Their play was better than that of the Palmer five, and with Beany hanging up seven baskets, followed closely by Howard and Johnston, who had five each, the Socony team was never threatened to be dislodged from their leading position which they occupied from the first whistle.

The playing of Johnston, Beany and Howard of the Standard Oil five was good. They accounted for the majority of the Rockefeller employes' points.

Griffin led the Palmer Brothers in scoring with five field goals and a foul basket.

The score:

Socony.	F.G.	F.G.	Tls.
Johnston, rf.	5	0	10

Falco A. C. Lose

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 7.—The Falco A. C. of Holyoke, Mass., lost to the Rochester Moose here today in the National cup qualifying competition. The score was 3 to 1.

SPORTING NOTES

Patsy Donovan has been re-engaged as manager of the Jersey City team of the International League.

Duke Landgraf, who represents things baseball around Allentown, Pa., is said to be ready to put a club in the proposed new Pennsylvania League, which, according to tentative plans, would include a number of cities which are now in the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Tom Ferris, at one time a player with Louisville in the American Association and later with Montreal in the International League died recently in Brooklyn. For the past six years Ferris had been associated with semi-pro ball in Brooklyn. He was 35 years old and left a widow and three children for which a benefit dance is soon to be given by friends in Brooklyn.

Toronto is certain to keep its connections with the Detroit Tigers. Manager Dan Howley has notified the Board of Commerce at Augusta, Ga., that his team will train there. The men of Cobb will also do their conditioning in Augusta. This means, with the Augusta Sally League team that three clubs will assemble in the Georgia city.

Precedent will be pushed to one side by President Dan O'Neil and his Eastern League club owners for their next meeting, which is to be held in New York city on November 28. The meeting is in line with O'Neil's desire for the reorganization of baseball throughout the United States, and it is likely that the merger loop will go on record as indorsing their president's ideas, and will personally and formally present a resolution regarding their attitude in the National Board of Arbitration, which is to meet in New York on the same day.

Indications are that Fred Luderus, will be manager of the Shreveport team of the Texas League in 1925. Bob Tarleton, who is looking after affairs in the Louisiana end of the Lone Star loop, wants the former Oklahoma City pilot, and the chances are the papers will be signed in a short time.

A. G. Reynolds, a player of the Toronto team, had a lot of tough luck while on his way from the Canadian city to St. Louis to marry Miss Marita Walsh. When he reached Chicago he left two suit cases of clothes and presents in an automobile of a friend and a thief got them. Reynolds is thanking himself for his good judgment in keeping the wedding ring in his pocket.

Tom Hickey, president of the American Association, will try to speed up the games in his league next season. He says the games in the A. A. are too long-drawn-out, and that they must be carried through with greater speed next season. He is not blaming the umpires, but declares that the players and managers are responsible for the condition.

Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who has been ill with pneumonia at his home in Baltimore, has passed the danger mark according to physicians in attendance. Robinson was taken sick a few weeks ago while on a hunting trip in the south.

Walter (Rabbit) Maranville, who is working for the circulation department of a Pittsburgh newspaper, got in bad the other day when an automobile he was driving ran down a small boy, fracturing his skull. Maranville was arrested and held in $1,000 bond pending the outcome of the lad's injuries. Witnesses said that the accident was unavoidable.

GIBBONS AND KID NORFOLK IN PRIME CONDITION FOR BOUT TOMORROW NIGHT

New York, Dec. 7.—Tom Gibbons of St. Paul, whose record for sure-footedness has weathered the attack of a champion, meets a worthy opponent in William Ward, pugilistically known as Kid Norfolk, negro light heavyweight, in Madison Square Garden Tuesday night. Although entitled to the favorite's position by reason of ability to stave off the knockout punch, the Minnesota must be at his best, for Norfolk also has an impressive line of conquests behind him.

Since 1913 Gibbons has sent many including heavyweights to the floor for the count of ten, including among his victims Al Reich, Porky Flynn, Willie Meehan, Clay Turner, Pat McCarthy, George Asche, Joe Burke, and Jim Tracey. Last spring he journeyed to England and sent down Jack Bloomfield at the International exposition at Wimberley, receiving less than half of the 50,000 he had been promised.

In his career he lost three bouts, to Billy Miske in 1922 on a foul, a 15-round bout to Harry Greb in the same year, and the memorable battle at Shelby, Mont., to champion Jack Dempsey. He outpointed Georges Carpentier, erstwhile light heavyweight champion, at Michigan City this year.

In 1922 Harry Wills, who recently eliminated Luis Angel Firpo from the forces of heavyweight contenders, knocked out Kid Norfolk in the two rounds at Madison Square Garden, and sporting writers are still disagreed on how it happened. The knockout blow came to be known as the "invisible punch." Sam Langford sent him to the canvas in the second round of a battle in 1917 and Lee Anderson of Boston knocked him out in nine rounds.

Norfolk, however, has floored for the count such men as Arthur Pelky, Tom Cowler, John Lester Johnson, Clay Tuner, George Ward, Wolf Larsen, Tiger Flowers, Tut Jackson, Jamaica Kid and Kid Nolan. He has fought 10-round nodecision contests with Harry Greb and Billy Miske and has gained decisions over Miske, Bill Tate and Battling Siki.

Colored Champion Loses

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Jimmy Jones, colored lightweight champion of Chicago, lost a ten round decision to Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, in the feature bout at the Coliseum here last night.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Slater Hall Musical Course.

Few American singers have won such recognition in the musical centers as has Lambert Murphy, the famous Irish tenor, who will appear in Slater hall on Friday evening, December 12. Lambert Murphy has been remarkably successful in the three folds of the vocal profession—opera, oratorio and recital.

His beautiful tenor voice, the youth and intensity of feeling that he instills into his interpretations, his clear diction, the ease with which he sings and obtains artistic effect, all these qualities make Lambert Murphy one of the few real concert recitalists of the present generation.

Mr. Murphy's programmes are very attractive and embrace every known style of singing from the early school to modern composers from many lands and songs of many moods.

Appearing with Lambert Murphy will be Marcel Grandjany, the great harpist. This artist is in the front rank of the world's great harpists. He is not only a virtuoso without an equal, but he is also, a noted composer and improvisator and a member of the Jury of the Paris Conservatory.

The outstanding feature of Marcel Grandjany's playing is his musicianship, beautiful phrasing and the great wealth of color which he infuses into his instrument by the different strokes and hand positions and exquisitely soft harmonies.

Following a tour of the United States and Canada, Mr. Grandjany will play several concerts in Spain and Italy.

This concert will be under the auspices of the Norwich Free Academy and is the opening concert of the Slater Hall Musical Course.

Other concerts in the series will be given as follows: On Friday evening, January 9th, Georges Enesco, the distinguished Roumanian violinist and composer.

On Friday evening, February 23rd, the American Grand Opera Trio. The artists of the trio are Mme. Helen Stanley, soprano; Paul Althouse, tenor, and Arthur Middleton, all operatic stars.

On Friday evening, March 6th, The Flonzaley Quartet, the greatest chamber quartet in the world.

Course tickets $6, for four concerts. Single tickets for the joint recitals of Lambert Murphy and Marcel Grandjany will be on sale Tuesday, December 9th, at The Cranston Co., Broadway. Tickets $2, tax exempt. Mail or phone orders will be given prompt attention.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lyceum Theater, New London

Yesterday brought the first presentation in New London, at the Lyceum theater, of Cecile B. De Mille's splendid dramatic spectacle, The Ten Commandments, a Paramount production which is presented by Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky. The picture is an unusual one, inasmuch as it combines a Biblical story of ancient Egypt with a thrilling modern melodramatic narrative of contemporaneous life in San Francisco. The scenes of oriental pageantry and the picturing of miracles such as the destruction of Pharaoh's army in the waters of the Red Sea, are said to reach the highest point of artistic perfection so far achieved in the making of motion pictures. Nearly three thousand people were employed in the creation of the film. A touring orchestra accompanies the picture and performs an elaborate musical score arranged by Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld. The Ten Commandments will be shown twice daily, at 2:30 and 8:20, during the four day engagement at the Lyceum. It will not be presented elsewhere in New London during the present season.

Breed Theater

Recent months have brought to the silversheet many historical photoplays so obviously produced only because of their costume possibilities, that the regular picturegoer is entitled to be skeptical of any offering that dates farther back than the world war. Indeed, in their abundance the costume spectacles have become almost a drug on the market.

It is as with a collective sigh of relief and a maximum of pleasure, therefore, that the fans greeted Barbara Frietchie, which opened at the Breed theater last night. Not that the picture lacks costume possibilities. For it does not. But, wisely, the producers have refrained from smothering a perfectly good story in a heap of fancy raiment—even when tempted by one of the most colorful periods in American history.

There must be a division of the laurels, too, for Edmund Lowe, whose appearance as Capt. Will Trumbull, the soldier sweetheart, is one of the particularly bright features of the production.

Emmett King, Louis Fitzroy, Joe Bennett, Charles Delaney, Gertrude Short, Mattie Peters and Jim Blackwell, who comprise the supporting cast, are excellent. All of them in prominent or lesser roles contribute much individuality to the production.

Other pictures include the news and comedy.

Broadway Theatre.

About everything that one could desire is on the programme for the first half of this week at the Broadway. Another banner show of Keith vaudeville is assured.

In Dental Dexterity George and Ethel Livingston offer a clever travesty containing a barrel of fun and good entertainment.

Scully and Caplin offer songs and steps that you'll like.

In "Many Talks," John Barton & Co., have a freshly minted comedy featuring Anne Ashley and a company of four. It is a bit of original comedy with novel effects and clever dancing.

Johnny Murphy, like most of his race, has a highly developed sense of humor. He also has a splendid voice and makes Timely Topics Tunefully Told worth while.

The Pigeon Cabaret is a bird novelty that is seen very seldom.

Shades of "Passion" and all the rest: Pola Negri in an Ernst Lubitsch production. Sounds like old times!

"Forbidden Paradise," which opened at the Broadway theatre last night, brings Pola to the screen in the first American-made production by this greatest of all European directors.

The story is a romantic drama of a small Balkan kingdom, Pola has the role of the Czarina, a woman of many loves; Rod La Rocque is a soldier in her army at the front and Adolphe Menjou plays to perfection the role of court chancellor. Pauline Starke, who completes the featured players, is first lady-in-waiting to the queen, in love with La Rocque, as Alexei.

At Slater Hall.

All those who hear Charles Colfax Long in his presentation of "Washington: Our National Shrine," under the auspices of Faith Trumbull chapter in the Slater Memorial hall on the evening of December 10, 1924, will forget they are viewing the passing of over two hundred exquisitely hand colored and natural color photographic slides. It is as if each separate scene is an oil painting of surpassing vision and the beholder will realize that Washington is more than the home of presidents and congress, that it is the shrine of embodied beauty and ideals of this country, which is theirs, that the beauty of Washington belongs to them, as well as the beauty of the city in which they live. You will see Washington as never before.

The Illinois Women's Athletic Association which has grown to a membership of 2000 since its organization in Chicago five years ago, is soon to have one of the largest and best equipped clubhouses owned by any athletic organization in the world. POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Mute San and Teddy Bear

When Betty asked her friends to call
And be there sharp, at half past three
She promised frosted fruity cake,
And steaming cups of Ceylon tea.

So Teddy Bear and Mute San,
A China Princess—Japanese—
Went home to prime and powder puff—
They were so fond of Betty's teas.

Just on the dot they rang the bell,
And Betty met them at the door,
"So pleased to see you," Betty said,
And then they squatted on the floor.

"Not on the floor, 'tis very hard.
Do take a chair or cushion, please,"
And so the hostess took Miss San,
And placed her gently on her knees.

When taking Teddy by the ear,
She sat him near the fruity cake.
It looked so good that Teddy tried.
A pretty compliment to make.

But being stuffed with rags and wool,
He could not speak—he was too full.
The princess also tried, in vain,—
For she was made of porcelain.

And so they sat with vacant stare.
The Princess and the Teddy Bear,
Then Mute San began to weep,
So Betty rocked them both to sleep.

The Echoing Green

The sun does arise,
And make happy the skies;
The merry bells ring,
To welcome the Spring;
The skylark and thrush,
The birds of the bush,
Sing louder around,
To the bells' cheerful sound;
While our sports shall be seen
On the echoing green.

Old John, with white hair,
Does laugh away care,
Sitting under the oak,
Among the old folk.
They laugh at our play,
And soon they all say,
"Such, such were the joys
When we all—girls and boys—
In our youth time were seen
On the echoing green."

Till the little ones, weary,
No more can be merry;
The sun does descend,
And our sports have an end.
Round the laps of their mothers
Many sisters and brothers,
Like birds in their nest,
Are ready for rest,
And sport no more seen
On the darkening green.

—William Blake.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Some people have a habit of snubbing others because they do not feel they are their equals socially and financially. This is a very wrong attitude for anyone to take. The person snubbed may be worthy of far more respect than the person who does the snubbing. Clothes and money mean little or nothing where character and ability are concerned and it is character and ability that count in this world of ours. It is very unkind and most inconsiderate to snub a person for something for which he is not to blame and can't help. It only serves to make him miserable and unhappy and we gain nothing by spreading unhappiness about us. Perhaps if the truth were known, the person snubbed may have in him qualities that outshine those of the more fortunate person who looks down on him. With regard to snubbing, here is what one writer in the Sentinel has to say:

Don't snub a boy because he wears shabby clothes. Don't snub a boy because of the ignorance of his parents. Shakespeare was the son of a man who was unable to write his own name. Don't snub a boy because his home is plain and unpretentious. Abraham Lincoln's early home was a log cabin. Don't snub a boy because he chooses a humble trade. The author of Pilgrim's Progress was a tinker. Don't snub a boy because of his physical disability. Milton was blind. Don't snub a boy because of dullness in lessons. Holbrook, the celebrated painter and engraver, was a stupid boy at books. Don't snub a boy because he stutters. Demosthenes, the greater orator of Greece, overcame a harsh and stammering voice. Don't snub anyone. Not alone because some day he may far outstrip you in the race of life, but because it is neither kind nor right, nor Christian.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Our New School

Uncle Jed: Our school house is most tumbling down and in the winter time it is very cold. There is a lot of repairing to be done so the town decided to build us a new one or have an addition built to Pitchville school and have all the schools in the town of Bozrah go there. They voted to see which they would do. The parents of the children thought it was too far to send them to Pitchville in the cold weather so they built a new school.

They started it in September and finished it about the middle of November.

Our new school house is facing the road and has two doors in front. It also has a little porch. On the left side it has seven large windows, on the right it has the slate boards. We have four rows of seats, each row containing six, making twenty four in all. In the front of the room is our library. It is a separate room with a door to it. There is also a place in there for our water and sink. The walls and ceiling are white, it is very clean looking and light. As yet we are not in the new school but when we do go into it I am sure we will appreciate it very much.

Thanksgiving Day

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I'm going to tell you about Thanksgiving. I am a turkey. Last night I heard my master say to his wife to get the knife sharpened. When I heard that I thought of my wings. The next morning bright and early, I went in the woods. Forever after I lived happy.

The Quarrel

Dear Uncle Jed: One day there was a quarrel in a blacksmith's shop. The fire began it.

"Dear me!" he said, "the blacksmith, our master, couldn't live without me. If I should stop burning, he would have to close his shop. I am the most important thing here."

"I don't know about that," answered the bellows. "You have to depend on me. If I should stop blowing, you would go out. I think I am more important than you."

"Nonsense!" said the big hammer. "Between you, you only heat the iron. If I did not give my great weight to hammering it, what good would your work be? I think that I am more important than either of you." "And how could you hammer the iron, if I did not hold it for you?" cried the anvil. "I have to bear both the fire-heated iron and the weight of the hammer. I think I am the most important thing here." A horseshoe, that had just been made said, "Don't quarrel my friends. No one of you alone can keep the shop open. It is by working all together that you work best."

A Hike in the Woods

Uncle Jed: One day a party of girls and I went hiking. We walked far in the woods and lost our way. We walked until we came to a path. We followed it for a long way until we came to a little farmhouse. I knocked at the door and a kind looking man came to the door. We asked him if he knew the way where we lived. He said we were about two miles from home. He then told us to enter. We went in and he gave us a lunch. Then he showed us a path to follow to get home. We did so and on our way saw many bushes of holly. We each took a bouquet and followed the path further and soon reached home.

My Trip to Slater's Memorial

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my trip to Slater's Memorial. Upon reaching the memorial, we were met by Mrs. Johnson. She first interested us in a bronze plate. This told how we got the memorial. The memorial was erected by Mr. Slater in honor of his father.

One of the statues I saw was of a large man who was throwing a discus. The name of this statue was Discobolus. When this statue was found the head was off of it. Another sculptor put a head on this statue. In doing this he made his head look forward instead of watching the discus.

Another statue was that of Hermes. Hermes was shooting a bow and arrow. Hermes was standing on his tiptoes and he should have been standing on his whole foot.

The statue that appealed to me the most was that of Athena. Athena was the Goddess of wisdom. Every year the people of Greece had a large feast in her honor.

Thanksgiving Day

Dear Uncle Jed: I have been reading the stories and articles by the Wide Awakes and have enjoyed them very much. I would like to help the Circle by contributing my story.

When you mention Thanksgiving, everyone thinks of the big dinner. I was fortunate enough to enjoy a good and wholesome meal like many of the other Wide Awakes. But, after all Thanksgiving is really our opportunity to be thankful to God for everything we have, because there are so many to whom Thanksgiving day is just as any other day for they are poor and have not these luxuries.

Our Party

Dear Uncle Jed: Well this is my second letter to the Wide Awakes Circle. I am going to tell you about my thanksgiving entertainment in my school. We had about twenty five people.

We had songs and pieces and plays and we had a very good time. I go to a little school so we don't expect very many people.

A Stitch in Time Saves Nine

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awakes. One day my mother was sewing. She happened to come to my dress. It was torn in the sleeve. She called me from my playroom to sew the hole up. I started to sew big stitches and to sew with blue thread instead of brown. When I was all through I threw it in the chair and ran back to my playroom. All of a sudden I heard my mother call me to sew it with brown thread. My mother said, "Why didn't you do it right the first time." This proves to me that a stitch in time saves nine.

A Favorite Kitten

Dear Uncle Jed: Three little kittens were born in a house where there were two lively children. The kittens at once were named Tom, Dick and Harry. As soon as they were big enough to handle, the children began to carry them outdoors. Nancy, the mamma cat, did not like her kittens to be handled so much. She mewed but the children did not notice her distress. Dick, a lovely gray, seemed to be her pet. One day little Dick could not be found. They noticed however that Nancy did not seem worried. They did not notice that she would leave Tom and Harry for a while and go upstairs. When washing day came they found out all about it. In a low, dark, closet where the soiled clothes were kept, Nancy and Dick were found. Dick was snuggly wrapped up in the clothes and purred contentedly. Mama Nancy lay beside him. She had taken her favorite kitten and hidden him so the children would not play with him.

Making Leather

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write how leather is made. When the calf was killed its hide was cleaned and soaked in lime and water. This loosens the hair. Then the clean hide was soaked in barley water to open the pores.

Next oak bark was dried, and ground into a coarse powder. This powder was mixed with water in a large vat. Then the skin was soaked in this liquid for many months. This is called tanning. The bark makes the skin shrink but makes it strong and flexible.

When the skin is well tanned it is taken out and dried. Then it is run between rollers to make it smooth. The calf skin is no longer a raw hide, it is now leather.

The First Thanksgiving

Dear Uncle Jed: The Pilgrims were people that fled from England. They reached Plymouth, December 21, 1620. The suffering during the first winter was severe. Before spring half of the number had died but they had no wish to return. Weak as they were in numbers and possessions, they were young men and women of serious purpose and brave enough to face whatever danger might threaten their little colony.

The first dreadful winter had passed. Renewed hope had grown with the colony during the summer. In the fall the crops of corn and other products were gathered Governor Bradford set aside a day for Thanksgiving. The women spent days boiling, baking and roasting. They invited eighty Indians who brought deer turkeys, rabbits and ducks. The tables were set out of doors and the feast lasted three days.

After that Thanksgiving was observed every year. Usually the day was set by the governor but now it comes on the last Thursday in November every year.

Thanksgiving as in olden days is one of the greatest holidays. Stores, banks, schools and all other buildings are closed and the whole family come together to have a glorious time.

Alexander Markdon

Dear Uncle Jed: I translated this from a Jewish journal.

Alexander Markdon was the first king of Russia. One day he told his wise men that he would like to make an expedition to the land called, Africa. "This you cannot do," said the wisemen. In the middle of your journey you will find a ridge of mountains which are called the dark mountains. This name was given to them because they hide the sun and it is as dark there at day as it is at night.

"What shall I do?" was the kings reply. I have made up my mind to go and would like to have advice.

The wisemen gave the king advice. Take white donkeys from Egypt which can travel in the dark. Take large balls of string so you can tie one at the beginning of the mountains. The remaining hold in the hands so you will know how to return to the place from which you started.

The king followed his wise mens advice. On his journey he came to a country which was inhabited all by women. He wanted to declare war upon them. So the women began to ask him questions. Why do you want to declare war upon us? If you will be victorious what will the world say. You need not think that you are a powerful king. If we will be victorious over you the world will say this is a king who women have been victorious over. Alexander saw that the women were right so he did not have war with them. He asked them if they would bring him bread to eat.

When Alexander left this region he wrote on the gates of the womens' principal city. I, Alexander Markdon, have been a fool all my life until I came to the land of Africa and learned sense from women.

Andrew Jackson

Dear Uncle Jed: I will tell you a story of one of the United States presidents. Andrew Jackson was the son of Irish parents who had emigrated to America.

He was born on the 15th of March, 1767, shortly after the death of his father.

A scene taken from his early boyhood gives the keynote of the life of the child who was to become General Andrew Jackson the seventh president of the republic. He stood in the midst of a group of older boys his fists doubled his blue eyes blazing. "Don't dare touch my things," he said hotly. The older boys stepped back amazed at the sandy haired little fury that confronted them. "If you ask me for my things," the child went on, "you may have them but you shall not have them without my leave." In the fall of 1797 Jackson was chosen United States senator but a year later resigned his office. He continued to practice law and also opened business as an Indian trader.

Jackson served two terms as president and upon his retirement from his office he returned home. The people of Nashville met him with outstretched arms and tearful faces. He was seventy years old, their president and he had come home to live and die with them. On Sunday June 8, 1845 the family of servants gathered in his sick room and wept bitterly. Peace was written in the face upon the pillow. The spirit of the fiery great-hearted man was at rest.

A Marshmallow Roast

Dear Uncle Jed: It is a long time since I have written to the Wide Awake circle so I thought I would write and tell you about the marshmallow roast. One night after supper my friends and I all came out to have a marshmallow roast. We all got some money the night before so we could get the stuff to eat. We bought a pound of frankfurters, a loaf of bread, two cans of marshmallows and a jar of mustard to go with the frankfurters; we also got a large piece of tin to cook the frankfurters on. First of all we made a little fireplace so that we could spread the tin across the fireplace to put the frankfurters on to cook. When the frankfurters were cooked we ate them with the bread and mustard. When we had eaten the frankfurters we roasted the marshmallows over the fire with a pointed stick. When we had eaten all the stuff we went home tired but happy. The next morning everybody was talking about the good time they had had the night before.

My Trapping Day

Uncle Jed: On November first, I made my rounds on trapping. I selected my territory, one of the best around the location. I built my traps and went to see them every morning thereafter.

At the end of the week I was successful by getting a large black skunk, and several muskrats. I took them home with great joy and skinned them.

Now I got a price list, from a company, with large prices where I shall send my furs. I hope I shall have the same luck till the season closes.

My Trip to Canada

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer I went on a trip to Canada with my mother and sister. We went by the way of Central Vermont railroad, and stopped at Brattleboro, Vermont, where we had dinner. From there we went on to Three Rivers, Canada, where we were met by my aunt and uncle. My mother and sister returned to Norwich the next week and left me there.

I often went to Quebec and Montreal on week end visits. We stayed at the Windsor hotel. I could not understand the language that the Canadians spoke.

I visited the Joan of Arc monument and various others. I stayed in Canada for two months, then returned to Norwich.

The Bat in the Parsnip Stew

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write to you. I am going to tell you about some parsnip stew that we had for dinner. I will tell you what happened while we were all around the table.

The stew that was in the dish began to wiggle and it bubbled and bubbled. We did not know what was the matter. Soon out flew a bat. How astonished we were. You should have heard some of us scream. It flew around and around the room. We tried to make it go out but it wouldn't. It went into a pitcher of milk. We then got a cover strong enough to hold him in there as quick as possible.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Lights Go Out

"If you'd be good, you must be kind;
If you be kind, you must be good,"
Sang a little brown bird from a leafy tree
That stood in a shady wood.

"You are right, little birdie," answered dear Uncle Lucky, as he and Little Jack Rabbit sped along in the Luckymobile on their way home from Welcome Inn and the Police Station.

"It's a Hobgoblin Lantern."

as I mentioned in the last story. You remember the kind hearted old gentleman bunny had instructed the Policeman Dog to set Danny Fox free. The Old Fox had been locked up for breaking into the Little Red School House. Very hard on Mrs. Fox and the little fox boys. Oh yes, indeed. The reason dear kind Uncle Lucky had asked that the old fox be set free on a promise that he would be good in the future.

"Gracious me, how dark it is growing," suddenly exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit. It certainly was dim and dusky under the tall trees, making it difficult to see the roads. Somehow the lamps on the Luckymobile seemed to shine less brightly than usual. All of a sudden, out they went, blinky blink, and the old gentleman bunny was forced to stop, just like that, quick as the bills on the first of the month.

"Now, what are we going to do?" he asked, wiping his forehead with his blue silk polkadot handkerchief. "Here's a fine kettle of fish, a peck of trouble and a bushel of worry."

Just then who should come along but Twinkletail, the gray squirrel, carrying a lantern. No, it wasn't a lantern, although at first sight the old gentleman bunny thought it was.

Hey, there, Twinkle tail," he hauted, "lend us a light. We want to get home for supper tonight."

"Why, it's a Hogoblin Lantern," laughed the little rabbit.

Sure enough, it was. Or rather a pumpkin lantern which the clever little squirrel had made by cutting holes for eyes and nose in the pumpkin shell.

"Sit up in front and hold it on your lap," advised the old gentleman rabbit. "I'll drive carefully so you won't slip off."

Then away they went, only not nearly so fast as before, until by and by, not so very long, they turned up Carrot street."

"Miss Mouse's at home," laughed dear Uncle Lucky. "I see a light in the kitchen," and he steered the Luckymobile through the gate in the white picket fence and around to the garage in the rear of the house.

"Come in to supper," added the hospitable old gentleman rabbit, as he hopped out of the Luckymobile. "No, you can't wait? Well, here are a couple of carrot cents. Much obliged for lighting us home," and over to the kitchen door he hopped, followed by his small bunny nephew.

"Dearie me, you're late," sighed Little Miss Mouse, pushing back her bobbed hair "I was beginning to worry.

"Never do that,"

"Life's too short to worry.
And too long to hurry."

answered Uncle Lucky cheerfully, hopping into the hall to hang up his dear old wedding stovepipe hat, and in the next story I'll tell you what happened after that.

Then we took the pitcher out of doors. We had an exciting time. We went to get some more stew. As they were coming in with it we heard a scratch at the window and there was the bat.

A Story About an Apple

Dear Uncle Jed: I am an apple singing in the breeze. The way I grow will soon be told. At first the blossoms come out, and for a couple of weeks the blossoms stay on the tree then they fall off and for the first time in my life I see the outside world for which I was always longing to see. I looked around with a happy face to see if there were any more of my kind around me. I grew surprised indeed to see lots of them right near me, some over my head some on my side and others on the bottom of me. We were all green but day by day we all grew redder and redder. One day while we were talking we received a shock. As I said we were talking five of us were killed outright because the lightning hit one of the branches and the five apples fell down. We had other accidents but not of a serious nature.

Autumn came along and with it we all grew afraid, because we had heard that the people of the farm were going to take us down and put us away. But as the days went by we all grew lighthearted because the people didn't come to take us down. But it soon proved different. The men came and took all my friends down, but they didn't see me so they left me there. It was about winter and I began feeling cold. A boy happened to look up into the tree and saw me there. He climbed up and took me off the tree. And while walking to school ate me up. Thus it was that I died like the others.

A Thanksgiving Poem

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you a letter to tell you that we have learned a poem at school for our Thanksgiving treat and I am sure you will like it. It is called, A Thanksgiving Poem.

The apples have been gathered and piled in rude heaps; and down among the grasses the purple aster sleeps; We brought the glossy chestnuts from hillside far and near. And it will be coming the glad day of the year.

How I Spent Armistice Day

Dear Uncle Jed: Armistice Day my mother, my brother and I went to see the parade. We went up to Chelsea parade and waited for the parade to come up there. There were over seven thousand people marching. I saw a truck that was decorated with roses, and in it rode the mothers and wives of the soldiers who were killed in the World war. We also saw how they placed the wreaths on the monument which was erected by the people of Norwich in honor of the soldiers and on it is engraved the names of the soldiers. Speakers spoke about Armistice day, and songs were sung after this.

A Thanksgiving Entertainment

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write about a Thanksgiving entertainment last Wednesday. It started at 2:30 and lasted an hour. We had pieces and we had a play called the Thursday After.

That was the day before Thanksgiving. Thursday we had our Thanksgiving dinner. We had a great big goose and it was very good.

My Pet Puppy

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing it tell you about my pet puppy. One Sunday my puppy and I were out in the wood. She chased a baby squirrel into a tree. It was hollow so we could not get it out of the tree. Then we went a little farther. We saw a baby rabbit in the wall and, in a minute he came out and ran away. The puppy ran after it and chased it into another wall. Then we came home and had some dinner. We went to the cornfield and got some nuts for winter.

POETRY

READY.

Dear Lord, I crave to live as one unmindful
Of all the world can give and take away,
Made buoyant by eternal life within me
And purified by hope against that day.
No anchor cast of mine own wish or casting,
No cable thrown to hold my craft to land,
But like some ship with sails spread from the masting,
So may I wait Thy call and Thy command.
And whether my release come with the Rapture,
Or whether piloted by Thee at death,
I pray that naught may keep my soul from flying
To meet Thee here or there with my last breath!
That naught of earth district my thoughts from Thee
For all the space of time and through eternity!
—Jane D. Wood, in Sunday School Times.

IF.

If all who hate us would love us,
And all our loves were true,
The stars that swing above us
Would brighten in the blue;
If cruel words were kisses,
And every scowl a smile,
A better world than this is
Would hardly be worth while;
If purses would untighten,
To meet a brother's need,
The load we bear would lighten
Above the grave of greed.

If those who whine would whistle,
And those who languish, laugh,
The rose would rout the thistle,
The grain outrun the chaff;
If hearts were only jolly,
If grieving were forgot,
And tears and melancholy
Were things that now are not—
Then Love would kneel to Duty,
And all the world would seem
A bridal bower of beauty,
A dream within a dream.

If men would cease to worry,
And women cease to sigh,
And all be glad to bury
Whatever has to die;
If neighbor spoke to neighbor
As love demands of all,
The rust would eat the saber;
The spear stay on the wall;
Then every day would glisten,
And every eye would shine,
And God would pause to listen
And life would be divine.
—James Newton Matthews.

France's exports trade is largely de luxe. This is evidenced by such French imports into the United States as women's bags, gowns, lingerie, millinery, silk goods, perfumery, fans, jewelry, artificial flowers. France buys chiefly from the United States raw cotton, mineral oils, copper, wheat, sugar, raw hides and skins, tobacco, machinery and tools.

NEW LONDON ENGINEER DIES, FOLLOWING INJURIES AT MIDWAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 7.—Richard J. Wolf, 47, engineer in the employ of the freight service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad on the Midland division, was fatally injured early Saturday morning when crushed beneath a string of freight cars in the Midway yard, succumbing to his injuries when he was about to be transferred from a caboose to an ambulance at the station. He is survived by his wife and five children of 24 Lincoln avenue and by two sisters, also of this city.

Wolf went to Midway about 4 o'clock Saturday morning to begin his duties prior to taking his run, freight train 772, to Worcester. The engine was taken from the engine house and run to a siding between the engine house and the coal pocket and after the locomotive had been oiled and the locomotive made further ready for the trip he stood inspecting the engine. While doing so freight train B-H3 had entered the yard and following a practice, a string of cars with perishable merchandise, were taken from the train to be switched to the ice house for refrigeration. As the cars were being backed to the ice house, Wolf did not observe their approach and was struck and knocked down, the wheels passing over both legs near the knees and one arm near the elbow. He was found beside the rails a short time later, by yard employes, was placed in a caboose and was rushed to New London. He remained conscious during the trip, but as the stretcher bearing him was about to be taken from the train, he expired.

Leo Bigley and Francis Downey were arrested this morning by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolmen Michael Dorsey and John Sullivan, charged with breach of the peace. They were not held, however, being turned over to Captain M. B. Curtiss, of the marine corps, stationed at the submarine base, who assured the local officers that the sailors would be disciplined.

Bigelow and Downey went to The Story Pharmacy, 21 Bank street, early after midnight and created a disturbance that Nicholas Halligan lodged complaint with the police. Sergeant Murphy and Patrolmen Dorsey and Sullivan arrested the sailors.

Josephine Porowsky, 5, 185 North Bank street, was struck by an automobile, owned and driven by Robert D. Foster, 248 Montauk avenue, this evening on North Bank street. The child sustained only injuries of a minor nature and went to her home after being treated by a physician.

Fred Scott was taken into custody this evening by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman George Lalor, charged with theft. He is being held pending a hearing of the police court tomorrow morning. Scott is accused of being in company of Myron Brown and of having robbed him of $15.50.

The police department investigation is in the works and from this date will be the one matter of interest in that department. The council has a committee appointed consisting of Councilors Whiton, Streeter and Murray to go into the matter and devise a way of increasing the usefulness of the department. It is claimed that firemen pass by infractions of ordinances that are in front and which they can see unless blind, and it is not supposed officers are defective in vision. They allow crates and boxes to stand on sidewalks days and nights at a time, yet give on instructions to owners to remove them. The officers are accused of passing law violations which are apparent to anybody. Rules and regulations that are supposed to be in force are disregarded and this the committee of the council is not disposed to overlook. The resolution under which the committee is appointed is to determine how to increase the efficiency of the department.

The committee has no power to demote nor to discipline members of the force. But what they may learn from the investigation of the methods prevailing in the department may lead to such charges if that course is warranted. There is a board of trial constituted by the charter of the city which is composed of the mayor of the city, the judge and the assistant judge of the police court and that board is to hear and decide as to the merits of the charges prefered. That there is to be a probe of the department is not expected. It is known that the policemen have not been negligent as to what is going on and that they have retained counsel to look after their interests in the event of charges being preferred. They, to a man, declare that they would welcome any charges of inefficiency or neglect of duty and on that ground they stand as a wall. It is also declared that the rules under which the department is working now are those that were adopted some six years ago. Since then there have been changes in the ideas of the police committee and the powers that rule the city, and a different code of procedure is expected. But the rules have not been changed and no one has secured the printing of these rules and caused the officers to be supplied with them that they may be held accountable for any infraction. The committee of the council has not yet held a meeting and will not hold such until the coming midweek when they will hear, in chambers, any complaints that are to be made. Then there will be something doing, it is believed.

It is a certainty that a lieutenant is to be appointed to succeed Lieutenant Beebe. Sergeant Gaffney is now acting lieutenant and there is a belief that he will be made the lieutenant by appointment. He is one of the oldest members of the force in point of years of service and he has never had a mark against him. Patrolman Timothy C. Sullivan, an officer with a record of 22 years in the service is now doing desk duty as a sergeant, and is being urged for promotion by friends to the post of sergeant. He served with distinction as a patrolman and has no mark of discredit against him, though he did duty when duty was very different from what it is today. He was in the riot when the freight handlers started things some years ago on Main street and carries the marks of wounds he sustained then. He has not sought the appointment to a sergeancy, but his friends are seeking it for him on the ground that he deserves promotion and has been so modest that he would not ask for it.

The fishing boat J-467, Capt. Wallace Burke of New Haven, was seized in Long Island sound early Saturday morning by the crew of the revenue cutter Red Wing, flagship of the dry navy fleet, stationed at this port, charged with being a rum-runner. Burke was later arraigned before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich at the customs house here and was held in bonds of $1,000 for trial before the next term of the United States district court. He furnished a surety on his bond.

The Red Wing was scouting the sound off the mouth of the harbor about 5 o'clock when the fishing craft was sighted, low in the water and headed westward. The Red Wing started in pursuit of the craft and after a short chase overhauled the boat. A command was given Burke to bring his craft to a stop, which was heeded, and with the officers of the Red Wing boarding the smaller boat a search revealed a cargo of 450 cases of Scotch and rye whiskey. The fisherboat was taken in tow and brought into port, being taken to the United States Coast Guard pier, where her cargo was unloaded and transferred by truck to storage in the customs house. With Burke was another seaman, but he was not held.

The funeral of William G. Wilbur, former manager of the Ferguson stores at Fisher's Island, whose death occurred at his home in Fitchburg, Mass., several days ago, was held Saturday morning at 10.30 o'clock, at the parish house of the First Church of Christ, Union street, and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Albert Pyne, a former resident of New London, now of 643 Tillmore place, West New York, N. J., and Miss Elizabeth Gardner of that city were married at St. Joseph's church, New York, last Wednesday, announcement having been made by relatives of Mr. Pyne in this city. Among the attendants at the wedding was Mrs. David Almy of Raymond street, sister of Mr. Pyne.

The police received a telephone call Saturday night that a sailor stationed at the United States Coast Guard academy had been held up and robbed on the Shaw's Cove bridge, the approach to the academy. Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Michael Dorsey were dispatched to the bridge but they were unable to find the reported victim of the robbery, nor were there any loiterers in that vicinity.

Police Sergeant Nelson Smith was confined to his home, Rogers street, today because of indisposition.

The three story brick structure at 38-44 North Bank street, owned by Attorney Morris Lubchansky, will change ownership June 1st, for it was revealed Saturday that Attorney Lubchansky and H. Marcus, one of the occupants of the building, had entered into an agreement whereby Marcus would purchase the property for $15,000. The structure, which was formerly occupied for many years by the Smith plumbing establishment, is now occupied by Marcus as a dry goods and notion store and by a restaurant on the ground floor, for storage purposes on the second floor and religious organizations on the third floor. It will be remodeled by Marcus after he obtains title to the property. The two upper stories will be converted into lodging accommodations, about fifty rooms to be provided for lodgers who seek sleeping accommodations at a moderate price. Many of the lodgers now securing accommodations at the B. F. Learned Mission, it is planned, will be provided with lodgings at the Marcus structure, because of the mission having acquired the former Sebastian Lawrence property, corner of Main and Federal streets, where it is not planned to house the element of lodgers for whom they now provide accommodations.

Mrs. Antillio Paulino and twin babies, a son and daughter, of Nameaug street, and Miss Helen Steadman of Westerly, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Joshua N. Enos, about 85, died Saturday at Niantic, where he had made his home about ten years. He formerly resided in New London but moved to Niantic when his health showed signs of a breakdown. Mr. Enos was a veteran of the Civil war and is survived by his daughter, Mrs. William H. Denison, of Blackhall street. Mr. Enos was one of the oldest members of W. W. Perkins post, G. A. R.

Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman and City Physician George P. Cheney are absent from the city for a few days, and during their absence Dr. Alfred Labensky is performing their official duties.

Joseph Chenzar, 14, of 98 North Bank street is missing from home, the youngster having disappeared yesterday, and today his father requested the police to assist him in locating the youngster.

Rev. William J. Green, 297 Williams street, this afternoon complained to the police that vandals last night destroyed a bulletin board in front of All Souls' church, Huntington street.

Hyman Mallon, 36 Hempstead street, complained to the police Saturday afternoon that mischievous youths had stolen the veranda of the vacant building owned by him at Maple avenue and Wightman street. The veranda is 16 feet in length and a size that would make it difficult to carry away.

Attilio Pelverari has sold to Victorio Federici the dwelling at 29-33 Walbach street.

UNCASHED CHECKS MAKE MOTOR DEPARTMENT PROBLEM

Many governments, especially the United States treasury, have conscience funds made up of money returned by people who have in various ways received funds from such departments to which they are not entitled and which their consciences will not permit them to keep. It is often a problem to know what disposition to make of such money.

The state motor vehicle department has a somewhat similar problem on its hands which it may ask the incoming session of the legislature to dispose of. It has on hand a balance to the credit of its checking account of about $5,000, accumulated by failure of people to whom refund checks have been sent, to cash the checks. As the law governing the finances of the motor vehicle department now stands, no use can be made of the money, and the fund continues to grow slowly.

The fund is made up largely of many small amounts. Most of the refund checks are for amounts of about fifty or seventy-five cents to cover overpayments made by people who have applied for their car regulations by mail and enclosed checks for amounts in excess of those required for the purpose. It is undoubtedly done, in many cases, because of a desire of the applicant to leave a slight margin in favor of the motor vehicle department to cover any error he may have made in computing the cubic inch piston displacement of his motor, upon which the amount of fees is based.

On the other hand the department frequently finds it necessary to send back to an applicant for more money than he has enclosed forhis registration. The result in the busy season is to slow up the work of issuing registrations. With less than a month left in this year, applications for the 1925 registrations are coming in at a rate so slow as to indicate the usual last minute rush for license plates in the closing days of the year.

RAN FROM AUTOMOBILE AFTER TAFTVILLE COLLISION

After the automobile driven by Albert W. Higgins, 49, of Hartford, had run into the machine of Clarence L. Briggs, which was parked on a Taftville street while Briggs was in a barber chair Saturday evening, Higgins was found stretched out on the bleachers of the velvet mill ball grounds and was arrested on the charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Briggs was in the barber's chair at the time of the crash and he came out of the shop with his face half lathered to see what had happened to his machine. Higgins jumped out of his car and fled to the ball park immediately after the accident but he was seen and followed to the ball grounds. When brought back he claimed the other car had cut in on him on a curve. Officers Riley and Sharvan brought Higgins to police headquarters where bonds of $300 were furnished for his appearance in the city court.

Higgins received a cut in the face from broken glass and both cars were damaged.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE AFTER HITTING MACHINE

While John Barrett of Westerly was stopped in his automobile early Saturday night on North Main street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, where he had been halted by Officer Luke Riley because he was driving with only one light, his machine was run into by the car of Benjamin Mandell of this city. Mandell was said to have been driving at about 30 miles an hour and he was arrested by the officer on the charge of reckless driving. Barrett was also arrested on the charge of violation of a traffic ordinance and both men will appear in the city court.

SIXTH ANNIVERSARY WAS CELEBRATED WITH DANCE

The Harmony Sextette orchestra supplied the music and Professor Charles Bennett prompted. Guests were present from lodges in surrounding towns. NUMBER FOUR is magic, speak it and you speak the name of fraternal affection, hear it and all that is yours is poured forth in response.

My brothers, you and I are bound never to divulge the secrets of this organization. The world outside knows in general, the objects for which we are formed, but never will they experience the joy, the pleasure, the happiness that comes from the practice of these objects, the tears that have been dried, the aching hearts that have been healed, the sorrows that have been lifted, the eyes that have been brightened, the lives that have been saved by helping others to help themselves. In vain you have called the names of members of your fraternity. Solemn silence has been the answer. Their light has gone out. We mourn their absence. Grant, O Lord, that when their names are called by Him, who rules the destinies of us all, they are present answering, singing the praises of their Creator, ever to live in peace and happiness forever. My brothers, practice the principles of your fraternity. Let your hearts go forth in a determination to act with Charity, Justice Brotherly Love and Fidelity toward all mankind and you will be a ray of sunshine in winter and a place of shade in summer. And as time goes on and your name is unanswered and your light is snuffed out and you stand on that great judgment day, with the hosts of those who were, are and will be, you may turn your eyes toward the strong light of your Redeemer and say with strong voice, "O Lord God, I loved my fellow-man, I was faithful unto the end."

Officers of Lodge

The officers of the lodge participating in the exercises were:

John E. Fitzgerald, exalted ruler; Charles W. Cassidy, esteemed leading knight; Felix P. Callahan, esteemed loyal knight; James M. Osten, esteemed lecturing knight; William R. Balcom, secretary; Laurence E. Miller, treasurer; Nicholas Doyle, esquire; Fred Hutchinson, tyler; William E. Corey, chaplain; Walter Carrigan, inner guard; Hugh Kinder, organist; Nelson J. Ayling, James W. Semple, James P. Hayes, trustees.

The memorial committee comprised Charles W. Cassidy, Joseph P. Williams, Felix P. Callahan, Arthur N. Campbell, John H. Carney.

So the People May Know!

In conjunction with the offer which we made Friday, December 5th, to the Special Committee of the Council, Mayor Waters chairman, for the purchase of the Gas and Electric Department of the City of Norwich, we desire to make our position and intention entirely clear to the Citizens of Norwich, on the matter of Rates.

In preparing our offer we took into consideration the Gas and Electic rate schedule as they exist today an dbased our offer accordingly, without any contemplation or plan of changing these schedules in any manner whatever.

We would however REDUCE the present power schedule with one or two LOWER STEPS in the power rate so as to encourage prospective industrial organizations to locate in the City of Norwich.

We are on record with the members of the Mayor's Special Committee in regard to the above statement and are prepared to fulfill any further confirmation of our attitude that the Court of Common Council and Citizens of Norwich may desire.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Dec. 7.—(By The A. P.)—With the markets still buoyant and with industrial news still encouraging, a cheerful tone persisted throughout financial and commercial quarters last week. The president's message to congress, by drawing attention afresh to the possibilities of further tax reduction, added to optimistic feeling.

A further moderate tightening of money rates was considered a natural result of the expansion in credit demands occasioned by reviving industry and active markets. The federal reserve statements showed that these banks are still helping to furnish the additional credit. A sizeable increase in discounts for member banks was accompanied by another substantial addition to the volume of bankers' acceptances purchased by the reserve banks in the open market. Part of the enlargement of earning assets were attributed to the special demands that center around the first of the month. It was thought, however, that more than merely transient influences are at work.

Two large exportations of gold toward the end of the week were a reminder of the importance that the international gold movement now carries. Although the influx of the metal slackened during the fall, a definite excess of gold exports has yet to be established. Bankers realize that fundamental economic forces favor an export movement and are watching closely for a turn in the tide.

While railroad car loadings now are showing the normal seasonal declines and they are continuing to set new high records for this time of year. The loadings for the week ended Nov. 22, the latest for which figures are available, amounted to 1,010 000 cars.

With the traffic movement at such levels it was not considered surprising that the railroads October earnings were excellent. The Class I roads were able to show net of $127,000,000, which is equivalent to 5.8 per cent. on the interstate commerce commission valuation.

Cotton prices sagged off slightly with the January future losing about 45 points at 22.95 cents. The loss was attributed to expectations that tomorrow's government crop report would show an increase over the 13,992,000 bales estimated in the last official report. Average figures indicate that the trade has been coming to expect a crop of about 13,250,000 bales. The exceptionally favorable fall weather, which increased the yield, has helped to solve the problems of the textile trade.

The grain markets have been rather quiet with values generally well maintained. Rains and snows in the west have helped the winter wheat crop.

Those who frequent the woods about the town are noticing that the grouse can now be found quite close to the village limits. The scarcity of these birds this season in this locality is being laid by some hunters to the increase in foxes during the past year. It is believed that more foxes have been taken this year than have been for a number of seasons. Game birds cannot exist in places where foxes are so numerous. Others believe that the scarcity of grouse can be laid to the pheasants, which were liberated here some years ago and have now become fairly plentiful. Cock pheasants are fighting birds, and some hunters charge that they drive the grouse hens from their nests and smash the eggs. This may have been the reason for the disappearance of the Hungarian partridge, purchased in Pennsylvania and set free here some few seasons ago. Very few of these birds were ever reported shot during the hunting season, and there are none to be found anywhere in this part of the state, so far as is known. Whether they migrated to other parts of the country, or fell prey to foxes, or were exterminated by the pheasants, none can say. As pheasants were not so plentiful here in the days of the Hungarian partridge, it would hardly be fair to charge them as being the cause of the latter's disappearance.

Aime Henault has resigned his position with No. 3 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

County Agents Annual Report

The annual report of County Agent Walter T. Clark was submitted and accepted. In part the report was as follows:

Probably the most outstanding example in which the local people functioned was in the pure bred sire campaign. This was much smaller to what was reported last year only more elaborate. The county committee met once and with the aid of the county agent and dairy specialist, appointed leaders for this project in each town. It was desired to select a man in each town who kept pure bred stock or was interested in bettering his herd. Each town chairman selected men to work with him with the aid of the county agent. These men in the different towns were furnished a list of scrub bull owners and a list of available bulls for sale. In this way it was possible to place a great many bulls which otherwise would have been almost impossible for one or two men to do.

Another example was in the cooperative paying. The buying committee met with the exchange managers at the farm bureau office and decided to have a fertilizer, seed and insecticide pool, where an exchange did not exist in a town. Local order takers were appointed who turned in their orders to the county buyer and they were placed on the open market for prices.

The policy of the Farm Bureau in this county is to work with the organizations and concerts where both are to be benefited. We have worked with the local papers in sending out publicity material on meetings and the purebred bull campaign. The local papers are more than glad to take any publicity material and cooperate to the fullest extent. In this way we can get our work before the farm people where we could not with just the Farm Bureau news.

The work with the Granges has been confined to talks given at their meetings, these have been fewer however.

We have worked with the four Breed Associations during the sire campaign. All but one association sent in a representative for one week. At that time they made farm visits to farmers interested in their particular breed. They also worked with our mailing list by sending out literature telling the benefits of keeping a pure breed dairy sire of their blood or any other they might be interested in.

Fair exhibits were set up at three different fairs, these being Norwich, North Stonington and Cohanzie.

The Farm Bureau has worked with the New England Milk Producers' association in the county and the Connecticut Milk Producers.

It also has cooperated with the New London County Agricultural Society in arranging for a Junior Club exhibit of dairy stock.

The local Farm Bureau has co-operated with the Tri-State Farm Bureau in its membership campaign.

Program of Work

The program of work was selected by first considering what was most needed in the county, second by what we had to work with, and third by what amount of time was available from specialists at the Connecticut Agricultural College. It was thought that in as much as the dairy industry was the chief agricultural industry in the county, it should receive more time than any other. Thus it was decided to continue with the pure bred dairy sire campaign as the dairy industry suffered from the need of high producing cows to make the business more profitable. This was the only project which was attempted to be put across as a county project. Other projects were distributed where it was thought they were needed and where people asked for them.

The soil program has been confined mostly to lime work. Several soil samples have been taken and acidity tests run by means of the tetrosynide which is very simple and can be completed on the farm and the amount of lime needed to correct the acidity in a few minutes. Several lime demonstrations were started in conjunction with what clover work was done this year.

It is planned to do considerable lime-work this next year by interesting more farmers to use lime and the value it will give them in growing clover to better advantage.

Twenty-seven farmers received individual help in selecting their needs for chemicals by which to mix their fertilizer.

Farm Crops

The same seed corn demonstration was continued this year that was in operation last year. This is with Rhode Island Flint and is more a breeding demonstration than anything else.

The silage corn work this year has been confined to the encouraging of the use of Ohio Loaming or Sweepstakes or any other variety which will give weight and grain. Ninety-two bushels of seed corn were bought by the seed pool.

Alfalfa demonstrations this year were confined to four. Michael Tynda of Colchester, H. F. Beard of Bozrah, C. B. York of Stonington and J. L. Raymond of Lyme. Mr. Tynda sowed his alfalfa with oats this spring. Mr. York with Hubas clover and Mr. Heard and Mr. Raymond clear. All of these fields came up well and are going into the winter in good shape.

Without doubt alfalfa can be grown in New London county on a number of farms. It is our desire to select a few men about the county who are readily interested and will follow instructions and go through with the project. It is much better to do it this way and have a few come through clean than to have a large number start and many failures. There are a total of five acres in these four demonstration plots.

Clover

Twenty-two clover demonstrations were started this year with the idea in mind of getting more farmers to using clover seed that would survive our winters. There were about 1,209 pounds of northern grown clover seed brought into the county from known sources. This seed was planted along side of European and South American seed to show what the comparison will be next spring, as to how each strain survives the winter.

Pasture

There were only two new pasture demonstrations started this year and eight old ones carried over. The new ones were treated with acid prosphate in 300 and 600 pound doses per acre and potash 100 pounds per acre. A plot was made for each with a check plot for the whole lime was put on one-half and one-half had no lime.

Potatoes

The potato work in the county was confined to encouraging the use of certified seed and the value of sufficient spraying.

There were seven and one-half carloads of certified potatoes brought into the county by the exchanges and six cars brought in by hardware men and seed dealers. The seed dealers and hardware men are becoming more and more interested in certified seed and are getting in more each year. The farmers are also asking for such seed more each year.

The certified seed trial on Shedd & Dawley's field on Preston Plains had ten strains of certified seed and one home grown sample.

On Preston Plains at the Irving Foote farm four rows were left unsprayed while beside them the potatoes had been sprayed nine times. The difference in yield is not comparative as the spray probably drifted over and effected the unsprayed area somewhat.

Horticulture

The fruit program this year has consisted of nine orchard demonstrations, seventeen nitrate demonstrations and one raspberry demonstration. There also have been eight pruning demonstrations held in the county this year.

The orchard demonstrations were carried over from last year and will be carried on for another year. All of these men excepting one put on all the sprays their orchards needed and applied nitrate of soda.

Seventeen men applied nitrate of soda on their apple orchards this year for the first time. The results were very satisfactory. Two men who never received enough fruit that was worth saving except for cider tried nitrating and spraying for the first time and got a real apple crop, one getting twelve hundred bushels of marketable apples, where he previously had about three hundred bushels of cider apples.

Three spray rings operated this year, spraying about a thousand trees with at least one spray same having as much as five sprays. The quality of fruit in these spray rings is increasing each year. This year as a whole it was much better than last.

Mr. Beckwith in Franklin who worked on the pure bred bull campaign a good deal became interested in an orchard which he had. In past years most of the apples were used for cider apples. The county agent talked to him about using this orchard to increase his farm sales. He would like to but didn't know how to go about it. He attended a pruning demonstration and got a few pointers there, these were added to what he already knew. He also bought a sprayer in cooperation with another man and applied five sprays. Nitrate was sown about the trees.

He was surprised at the crop he got and at the quality of the fruit. In talking with him this fall he said that in previous years he had picked about three hundred bushels of cider apples, but this year he had about 1200 bushels to sell for market apples.

Vegetables.

Most of the vegetable work done in the county has been done through the Norwich Vegetable Growers' association, working with the vegetable specialist. The association meets each month in the farm bureau office with the vegetable specialist, where talks were given on vegetable subjects. An association was started a year ago in Groton but died because of lack of interest.

The demonstration work was largely strain and variety trials with sweet corn, early and late cabbage and staking early tomatoes.

Animal Husbandry.

The principle project in animal husbandry was the sales of North Dakota horses. Two car loads of 30 horses each were sold in the county by the farmers of North Dakota, cooperating through the New London County Farm Bureau. One sale was held in Norwich where the average selling price was $137.50 and one at the state camp grounds in Niantic where they averaged $156. A saving of at least $30 on a horse was estimated as a result of the sale.

The sheep work, what little was done, was carried on directly by the sheep specialist at Storrs.

Dairy Work.

The dairy project this year has been practically all pure bred sire campaign work. What other work was done in dairy was in feeding problems which was entirely individual work and often done along with the pure bred sire work.

During the week of Jan. 14 an extensive drive was made to place pure bred bulls or interest dairymen in securing one. A representative from each dairy bred excepting the Jerseys, spent a whole week in the county. During the day time each representative, the dairy specialist and the county agent visited scrub bull owners, each in the company of a farmer from the town that was being canvassed in this way. We had at least five pairs of men visiting farmers in different parts of the county.

There were three truck loads of bulls brought in during the spring and sold to those farmers who were interested in buying and who were on the prospect list. A total of 26 calves were sold in this way.

A number of bulls were placed by the publicity material sent out for the papers. For this reason a survey in the form of return post cards was sent out asking if a pure bred bull had been bought during the past year. In checking over the replies it was found that 123 had been placed.

Poultry.

The poultry clubs that were in existence last year and the year before were met quarterly this year instead of once a month. These meetings were held in Norwich, Pachaug, Stonington and Waterford. At some of the meetings, demonstrations were held. No records were kept by the members attending the meetings. Timely poultry subjects were discussed with the poultry specialists.

A number of farm visits have been made either by the specialist or county agent, on disease or parasite work. A great deal of this has been on intestinal worm trouble from brooding on unclean ground. Many sad tales have been told of the results of such brooding and it is hoped that a few disease control and sanitation demonstrations can be put on next year.

Rural Engineering.

Very little of this project has been done this year. The most important items have been the installation of two water systems after the recommendation of Mr. Knipe, extension agricultural engineer. These visits were requested from the county agent.

Service was given on a drainage problem in Lisbon. The man wished to drain a patch of land in the middle of his field which was not available for cultivation. The ditch was surveyed and he was shown how to lay the tile. This was done during the early winter last year. This spring he has not been bothered with water standing in his field.

Farm Management.

There have been 41 farm account books placed this past year and from follow up work done, it looks as though a large percentage would be completed. This is a project that is hard to introduce because farmers as a rule dislike to keep records, which is to their own sorrow many times.

One Young Farmers' club was started in North Stonington but there were only eight members originally and they were not over enthusiastic. However, about five books will be completed by them.

A tour was held during the summer for the Young Farmers' club and several young men invited from outside of the club in North Stonington. There were 17 on the tour altogether.

The marketing has been confined to cooperative buying this year, although some assistance has been given in lining a few members up for the Eastern Connecticut Poultry Producers' association.

There were three pools in the county. A fertilizer pool, an insecticide pool and a seed pool. The two last mentioned have been spoken of under the fruit and crops project respectively.

The fertilizer pool was organized at a meeting of the exchange officers and managers at the farm bureau office. About 1100 tons of chemicals and mixed goods were ordered. It is certain that many hundreds of dollars were saved by ordering in this way. The men who were in the pool are looking forward to buying for another year. In towns where no exchange operated local order takers were appointed and their order given to the county buyers.

Summary.

The extension work in New London county this year has been largely dairy work in the form of a pure bred sire campaign. One hundred and twenty-three bulls have been placed since the work started. Eighty-two were placed between December, 1923, and November 30, 1924.

One week of intensive campaign was done with the help of breed association men.

A list of purchasers is being kept at the farm bureau office for future follow up work.

The crops work has been largely encouraging the growing of more legume hay and using more lime on our dairy farms. This has been done by demonstrations on strains of seed and lime, versus no lime, comparisons. The use of certified potatoes for seed has been encouraged. There being 13 1-2 car loads of certified seed brought into the county by dealers or exchanges.

The horticulture work has been the increasing use of nitrate of soda by farmers having small apple orchards, there being seventeen of such demonstrations.

Nine orchard demonstrations were carried through this year. These were demonstrations of general orchard management which included pruning, spraying and fertilization.

The vegetable work was largely done by the specialist from Storrs. There were ten demonstrations in this work.

The poultry work consisted of quarterly meetings in four different communities about the county. This took the place of the poultry clubs which were started.

Agricultural economics is a project which should receive more attention but is very hard to get across to the farmers in an interesting way. It has been confined to placing farm account books and organizing buying pools.

1925 Programme.

The program of work this year will be changed somewhat from last year in some respects. However, the major part of the program will be dairy work or agronomy, whichever one chooses to call it, as it will consist of increasing the production of legume hay and the use of more lime.

The pure bred sire work to be done this year will be cleaning up what prospects there now are. This will be a minor project, however. It is planned to spend about two or three days per month on this work. The dairy specialist will also spend that amount of time.

The number of bulls we hope to place is 30.

The lime and clover work probably will be carried on in the form of a campaign similar to the pure bred sire campaign. We already have the mailing list to work with and can use the organization which put over the bull campaign. What we need now is to know who raises closer and who does not.

A survey car may be sent out like the following:

Number of acres of clover to be seeded 1925?

Number acres need each year to feed each cow two tons clover hay per year.

Our goal is to get 15 per cent of the farmers not raising clover to raise it beginning this year. That is 15 per cent of the 1050 making milk.

We intend to increase the amount of northern seed brought into the county and the amount of lime used.

We are planning to get at least a car of lime into each town. Some towns of course will be increased considerably more than that.

The demonstration orchards will be continued again and probably two more added.

The goal for nitrate trials will be fifty. We are hoping to work in a fruit area which we did not know existed. The towns of North Stonington, Stonington, Ledyard and Groton according to the 1920 census have more apple orchards than any other section of the county. A great many of these farms are in the need of more diversity to increase their gross sales. For that reason we intend to spend quite a little time in trying to bring these orchards back to bearing good fruit. A simple survey will be taken to find out who owns these orchards and if they are being cared for in an up-to-date way.

Under the poultry project there will be one county meeting, a series of quarterly meetings and four disease-control demonstrations which will consist largely of breeding on clean ground.

An elementary poultry course will be put on in Salem, starting in a few weeks. A great many of the Salem farmers are foreigners and have very small gross receipts for their farms. Poultry seems to be the thing that will meet their conditions best to increase the receipts.

A poultry survey as follows will be taken and summarized so that we will know just where to begin with the work:

1—Number of hens.
2—Number of pullets.
3—Do you feed dry mash?
4—Do you purchase day old chicks?
5—Do you run an incubator?
6—Do you set hens?
7—Do you run brooders.

It is quite evident that we are shooting above a great many of our farmers when we select a county programme, especially when we try to put on a campaign on disease control. Some of these men, especially the foreign farmers, are unfamiliar with the very simplest of poultry practices.

All of this specialized work will bring in considerable farm management in getting the thing over.

Fifty farm account books will be placed this year.

One Young Farmers' club will be started.

The cooperative buying pools will be maintained.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION PRIEST'S SERMON THEME

"Mary had to be immaculate, because she was the Mother of the immaculate Son of God," said Rev. John J. Reilly, preaching before a congregation which filled every pew in St. Patrick's church at the 9 o'clock mass Sunday. Father Reilly was anticipating the Feast of the Immaculate Conception today (Monday), a holy day of obligation, when there will be two additional masses in the church, at 5 and 8, besides the regular daily parish mass at 7. As with the waters of the Red sea, God put aside the stream of sinful humanity, making a path through which His sinless Mother might pass.

Father Reilly spoke of the Blessed Virgin as St. John depicted her, clothed with the sun, the moon under her feet, her crown twelve stars. In every important gallery of Europe hangs a canvas upon which some master of old has sought to picture the chaste Mother of God, "our tainted nature's solitary boast," the only created being who has escaped the eternal, unaltering sentence of original sin resultant from the disobedience of our first parents. Christ, who was God, chose His Mother, foretold by prophets as an habitation worthy of Him. Mary is the exemplar of Christians in the virtues of purity, charity, humility. She is the ideal of the Catholic, who, studying her, loves her, and, loving her, seeks to imitate her perfections, which will be manifested in his life.

As a practical and convincing proof of vigorous parish growth, at communion time rows of penitents, three and four deep, men, women and elder children, went to the sanctuary rail, to receive the Eucharist from Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the low mass, and from Father Reilly, who assisted him in giving communion. The hymns were sung by the junior choir, the recessional being Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

PLACING SIGNS FOR NEW TRAFFIC RULES

The new traffic ordinance, passed by the common council at the meeting last Monday, became effective Saturday, the five day period after its passage having elapsed. Parking and one-way signs are being placed as rapidly as possible by Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, chairman of the board of police commissioners, and these will aid local people as well as those from out of town to obey the new rules. Through the courtesy of Mayor Milo R. Waters the prosecution of violators of the ordinance will not be pushed until January 1, 1925, but the public is warned to obey the rules now and thus avoid trouble later for failure to obey them.

SCOUTS PLAN FOR MIDDLETOWN CONFERENCE

Patrol Leaders Thomas Baldwin Jr. of Troop No. 12, and David Tigar of Troop No. 7, accompanied Scout Executive F. A. Benton to a conference at the Old State House, Hartford, Saturday. Executives and scout patrol leaders planned a programme for a two-day meeting of patrol leaders for Norwich, New London, Middletown and Hartford councils to be held at Middletown Jan. 2 and 3. This conference is open to all patrol leaders of all troops in these councils and it is expected that there will be 200 or more scouts present.

The program will be conducted almost entirely by the scouts themselves. The boys will be entertained over night at the homes of Middletown scouts. Discussion of games, lectures, a swim in the college gymnasium pool, and other interesting features will be on the program.

Norwich is expected to send 25 leaders to the meet.

RAINFALL COMES TO HELP OF RESERVOIR

President J. J. Corkery announced that the rainfall of Friday night and Saturday, amounted to 1.03 inches and would greatly aid Fairview reservoir to hold its own for several days.

At present Stony Brook reservoir is up about 7 feet, no water being taken from there at the present time as the entire drain is being placed on Fairview.

The new pump for Trading Cove brook is now ready and following the hearing Friday water will be pumped from the brook. President Corkery has had men out along the watershed giving it a thorough cleansing and the water will be better than supplied for many cities which get their water from rivers and bears the approval of the state board of health.

MOSES REGARDS ELECTION OF BINGHAM FULLY ASSURED

Chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee Has Been Recalled to Washington by "Whip" of the Senate—Before Leaving Hartford Senator Moses Cited a Situation to Emphasize the Compelling Necessity For the Election of a Republican Senator From Connecticut—Congressman Tilson to Return to Connecticut to Campaign For Bingham.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, Dec. 8.—Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire who is chairman of the republican campaign committee and who has been in Connecticut for several days in connection with the special election to be held a week from tomorrow returned to Washington tonight.

"I have not been here as an 'invited observer' after the manner of Mr. Holt on the western front in wartime," said Senator Moses. "I have been here as a willing volunteer in the republican cause. Nor am I running away from a fight," the senator continued.

"I regard the election of Colonel Bingham as fully assured, and I therefore feel free to respond to an urgent "whip" sent out by Senator Curtis, the republican leader in the senate, who has summoned all available republican senators to be constant in their attendance in the chamber from now until the holiday recess. The first of the appropriation America, a section of the world immediately and because of the illness of Senator Dale of Vermont and the absence of some of the war western senators it is imperative for the rest of us to be on hand. This situation serves to emphasize the compelling necessity for the election of a republican senator from Connecticut. If Colonel Bingham were already in his seat at Washington we would be in a much easier posture from a partisan sense and I hope the lesson of the situation will not be lost upon any republicans here who may be indifferent to the performance of their duty at the polls next Tuesday.

"The revival of industry throughout the country as a result of the election of President Coolidge, and in which Connecticut is already sharing, largely brings home to the managers and employes of every Connecticut enterprise a question which is of prime importance to the prosperity of the state. The protective tariff which Mr. Holt promises vaguely to support in a "non-partisan" fashion has provided for an ample home market for Connecticut products against competition from abroad. Corollary with that we must now take legislative steps to provide for a wider foreign market for our wares. The nearest, the most promising and the most virgin of foreign fields for American enterprise is to be found in Latin American, a section of the world with which Colonel Bingham is thoroughly familiar, in which he has many close friends in official circles, and where any proposal sanctioned by him will carry an initial mark of favor. Some of us in the senate have already undertaken to cultivate this opportunity to the south of us and we know that Colonel Bingham can reinforce our efforts powerfully.

"With Senator McLean occupying, as he does, a powerful place on the committee on finance which deals with tariff legislation and with Colonel Bingham as his colleague in the senate to advance legislation, looking to the extension of our commerce in Latin America, Connecticut will have a team of senators whose joint efforts will be reflected in a broadening of Connecticut's industrial enterprise which will be of incalculable benefit.

Mr. Holt knows very well, and his speeches show that he knows, that he can be elected senator only by the votes of republicans; and there seem to be some republicans who intend thus to honor him. Their number does not seem to me to be impressive. It approximates the number of those discontented ones who gathered in the cave of Adullum and who were 'about four hundred'—a number, it will be seen, which is of equal cabalistic importance both in scriptural narrative and in modern society.

"But the great mass of republicans in Connecticut are by no means ready to give to Mr. Holt, a support which they refused to Mr. Lonergan, Mr. Cummings and Mr. Spellacy. These gentlemen were well known in Connecticut. They were born here and they spent their lives here. They have been constantly identified with the state in many lines of activity. Mr. Holt is a newcomer. In fact he has not yet even unpacked his trunks. It is most unlikely that republicans of the state who shunned political contact with life-long friends like Messrs. Lonergan, Cummings and Spellacy will now embrace the grotesque alliance proposed by a freshman citizen who wishes to go to Washington armed with a goadstick to be used in "prodding" the president.

"I am satisfied that the republican organization in Connecticut is complete and efficient and that it is functioning earnestly to bring out the vote next Tuesday. This is a republican state and will remain so."

MUSCLES SHOALS QUESTION DEBATED IN THE SENATE

Washington, Dec. 8.—Solution of the Muscle Shoals question advanced a step nearer today with the introduction by Senator Underwood of amendments to his government-ownership bill which were recommended by the war department.

Senator Underwood said no serious differences on the Muscle Shoals question existed between himself and the administration. He declared he was willing to agree to all of the amendments if it was deemed wise to incorporate them in the bill.

Senate leaders believe that, if certain amendments are adopted, the measure would be in no danger of a veto at the hands of President Coolidge. With objections covered in amendments, both democratic and republican leaders are hopeful of bringing the measure to an early vote.

Chairman Norris, of the senate agriculture committee, announced in the senate if the Underwood bill is accepted as an amendment to the Norris bill he will offer a modification of his measure as an amendment to the Underwood bill which then would be before the chamber for passage.

Mr. Norris explained that his new bill would provide for separate development of the fertilizer and power units at Muscle Shoals and would prevent the power utilization from becoming secondary to fertilizer.

A number of amendments to both the Underwood and Norris bills have been introduced by other senators, including one by Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, to place Muscle Shoals and would prevent the power utilization from becoming secondary to fertilizer.

A number of amendments to both the underwood and Norris bills have been introduced by other senators, including one by Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, to place Muscle Shoals employes under the civil service commission in event of government operation, which was the subject of considerable discussion on the floor today.

BISHOP CHARGED WITH MISAPPROPRIATING FUNDS

Copenhagen, Dec. 8 (By the A. P.).—Rev. Dr. Anton Bast, American Methodist Episcopal bishop for Scandinavia, was arrested here tonight on a charge of misappropriation of charity funds. He will be given a hearing in court tomorrow morning.

The charge against the bishop was made by Rev. Mr. Ingersley, head of the great central mission organization, and certain Methodists who had been dissatisfied with the alleged activities of Dr. Bast.

For more than a year there had been rumors of the bishop's alleged mixing his own interests with money collected for charity through the central mission organization.

A semi-official commission which was appointed to investigate Dr. Bast's administration found that insufficient control had been maintained over charity funds collected. The report commented on Dr. Bast's alleged private enterprise as owner of a printing shop which supplied the missions with tracts and periodicals at high prices. Dr. Bast's work in the slums was praised in the report.

The arrest of the bishop occurred on the day his usual Christmas appeal for funds reached the public. Dr. Bast has fed thousands of persons, including beggars and professional criminals.

NEW ENGLAND MOTOR TRANSPORT CONFERENCE

Boston, Dec. 8.—Speakers at the New England Motor Transport conference, which opened here today, representing railroads, electric trolley lines, motor truck transportation companies and bus line operators showed a general tendency today to agree that the several forms of land transportation of passengers and merchandise should be co-ordinated in a harmonious system. At meetings tomorrow morning and tomorrow afternoon the conference will attempt to formulate a series of recommendations for the attainment of harmony in New England's transportation system.

An effort, it is planned, will be made by the various interests represented to find a common ground for regulation of taxations

In speaking at the afternoon session, Gerritt Fort, vice president of the Boston and Maine railroad said "highway transportation has come to stay. It represents a new economic development which railroads could not check if they were disposed to and one which they would not try to check.

He declared in favor of regulation of motor transportation which, however, would not throttle the industry. The Boston and Maine, he said, was experimenting to determine whether or not all unprofitable branch lines may not be replaced by truck and bus lines.

C. L. Bardon, general manager of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad said that on the Fall River and Providence line business declined 33 per cent. with the introduction of a motor bus line. He declared that while, on ordinary days, bus lines would handle traffic satisfactorily they would be unable to meet the requirements of holidays or the strain of other unusual occasions. If railroads, hit by competition until they were being run at a deficiency, abandonment, he said would be the next step, citing again the Fall River line. The railroads, he said, would not operate motor buses as they were outside their province.

He presented a resolution asking for a conference of all interested at which an effort will be made to effect a co-operative agreement.

WILL OF LATE SENATOR LODGE FILED FOR PROBATE

Salem, Mass., Dec. 8.—The will of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge with four codicils was filed today in the Essex county probate court here. No estimate of the value of the estate was given.

His library estimated at about 25,000 volumes Senator Lodge left to his grandson, Henry Cabot Lodge. All manuscripts and papers were left to his son, John Ellerton Lodge, his daughter, Constance Williams and the grandson as literary executors. A trust fund of $5,000 was created for the Massachusetts Historical society with the proviso that one-fifth of the income be added yearly to the principal and the remaining four-fifths used at the discretion of the councillors for the purpose of the society.

The large villa at Nahant was bequeathed to his daughter, Constance Williams. The residence at Eastern Point, Nahant, was left to his son, John Ellerton Lodge for his lifetime, to go then to the grandson, Henry Cabot Lodge. The will provided that if the grandson should desire to build at Eastern Point in the lifetime of the son, he might do so on a site agreed upon between the two, or failing such agreement to be selected by the trustees.

If the estate is to be sold it is to be on the written consent of John Ellerton Lodge and Henry Cabot Lodge, the will directed. The proceeds of such sale would go to create a separate trust fund.

The will left several bequests to employes, Christine McKay will receive $1,500 and an annuity of $500, and Harold Hobday and Agnes Power $1,500 each. Senator Lodge's secretary, Charles F. Redmond, is to receive $1,000.

The residue of the estate is left to John Ellerton Lodge, George Cabot Lee and William Crowninshield Endicott as trustees and executors the income to be paid to his children and their issue for 20 years after the death of the last child, when the principal would be divided among the issue and heirs at law.

SPEECH RESTORED AFTER REMOVAL OF VOCAL CORDS

Philadelphia, Dec. 8.—Using a few bellows instead of his lungs and a bit of stretched rubber in a little box instead of his larynx, Dr. Harvey Fletcher, of the Western Electric, tonight demonstrated how speech is restored to persons whose vocal cords had been removed.

The demonstration was given before the Philadelphia section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. The device, Dr. Fletcher said, would prove of great value to persons who had been rendered speechless through loss of their vocal cords. Through its use, he declared, they would be able, after a little practice to carry on a normal conversation.

Await Court Finding On Tax Publicity

Republican Leaders of the House See No Hope For Legislation Pending Court Decision.

Washington, Dec. 8. — Republican leaders of the house are of the opinion that any move to repeal the publicity provisions of the revenue act must await a supreme court decision as to whether newspapers are privileged to print income tax lists.

Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee, discussed the legislative situation, particularly with regard to revenue matters, with President Coolidge today, and after leaving the White House conferred with Representative Longworth, the republican leader.

Mr. Green said no attempt would be made at this session to revise the tax law generally, but he thought an effort might be made to amend the publicity of returns section.

Mr. Longworth explained that appropriation bills have the right of way in the house, and declared that any controversial subject would be avoided until they are out of the way. Expressing opposition to action of the publicity question until a supreme court decision is handed down, he said that if the right of newspapers to publish tax lists is established there undoubtedly would be an increased demand for repeal of the publicity provision.

$50,000 FIRE IN BUSINESS SECTION OF NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Dec. 8.—Fire starting on the third floor of a three-story brick building at 171-173 George street, in the heart of the business section, late today, swept through the upper floor, burned off the roof and resulted in heavy water damage to the floors beneath. The loss was estimated at $50,000.

The fire started in the plant of the Yale Cap company, owned by Samuel M. Gordon and M. L. Letvin. The concern employed eleven persons, but none was at work today. The owners said they left the plant at 5 o'clock and that everything was in proper order at that time. Fifteen minutes later smoke was seen pouring out of the windows, and when the firemen arrived the upper floor resembled a roaring furnace. The owners were unable to say how the fire started.

Although the fire burned up through the roof of the building, it was confined to the upper story of the building and did not spread to any of the surrounding structures.

The cap company's loss was estimated at $20,000. The Olympian bowling alleys and billiard parlors occupied the second floor of the building. There the water damage was heavy, the seven alleys being practically ruined and the tables badly damaged. The loss there was estimated at $5,000.

The first floor was taken up by the Buten Wilcox Flint Used Car exchange. There were forty cars in the building at the time of the fire. The loss on the first floor was placed at $1,000.

The building was owned by Adolph Mendell and his loss is estimated at $24,000.

The Bijou theatre is located just behind the building afire, but there was no sign of a panic in the show house. The program was not halted and none of the patrons left the building.

CHURCH COUNCIL TO DECLARE WAR ON WAR

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 8 (By the A. P.).—War on war was declared today by the Federal Council of Churches, in session here.

Among the methods of maintaining world-wide peace approved by the organization, which represents 28 Protestant denominations, are the world court, pledges by all nations to submit to "suitable' tribunals fall international disputes of a threatening nature, the branding of war as an "international crime," universal disarmament and co-operation of the United States with other countries in the operation of this so-called machinery.

William Jennings Bryan, Dr. James T. Shotwell, New York director of the Carnegie endowment for international peace, and Governor William E. Sweet of Colorado led the attack against war. Governor Sweet approved the Geneva protocol, urged the Christianization of international relations and declared the churches are "indignant, and rightfully so, at the attitude of congress concerning America's relations to world peace." The republican administration was criticized by him for this position in regard to international problems and for its sponsoring of "Defense day."

HIGH COST OF LIVING HAS AFFECTED THE NAVY

Washington, Dec. 8.—The high cost of living affected the navy during the last fiscal year to the extent of an increase of one-half cent per ration, Rear Admiral David Potter, paymaster general, reported today in his annual review of the affairs of the bureau of supplies and accounts.

The average ration cost for the year was given as 50 1-3 cents, and Admiral Potter added that "a further increase may be expected for the fiscal year 1925 in view of the higher prices demanded for the crops now being harvested."

Despite the increase, the expenditures of the department for supplies and materials were $15,328,986 less than for the preceding year, Admiral Potter reported, while nearly all claims for cancellation of contracts resulting from the arms limitation treaty, and, with few exceptions, similar claims for cancellation of war contracts, had been settled.

LEGION'S CAMPAIGN FUND FOR HOMELESS ORPHANS

New York, Dec. 8—Details of the American Legion's campaign to find a home for every homeless orphan of a world war veteran, were outlined by National Commander James A. Drain at a dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria tonight. Commander Drain also stressed the purpose of the organization to continue its activities in behalf of disabled veterans; to work for peace through international disarmament and a world court, meanwhile advocating preparedness at home, and the passage by congress of a universal draft bill.

Speaking of the legion's plans for the orphans of veterans, Commander Drain said:

"There are over 5,000 children in America today—sons or daughters of men who were in the world war—needing some degree of care or attention. The slogan of the American Legion, with respect to the children of veterans, is: 'A home for every homeless orphan of a veteran,' and that means what it says—a home, not a place in a foundling asylum, not a place within a family, but adoption into an American family."

The work, Commander Drain explained, is being carried on through the 11,000 posts of the legion, if the children cannot be immediately adopted in the locality where found, they are sent to American Legion billets, like the one at Otter Lake, Mich., until adopted.

TEST CASE FOR AUTO INTERSTATE CARRIERS

Hartford, Dec. 8.—A question of state and national interest has been raised in the superior court by the injunction proceedings brought by Lawyer Samuel Rosenthal on behalf of Charles L. Silverman of Boston, president of the New York and Boston Auto Touring company to test whether interstate busses come under the control of the public utilities commission of the state or the interstate commerce commission. The question also raises the two collateral ones as to whether the state of Connecticut has the right itself with an interstate carrier while passing through the state, or to use its police power to take away rights guaranteed by the constitution of the United States.

The questions are raised by the action of the state police stopping one of the company's busses at Berlin last Wednesday the day Mr. Silverman and one of his drivers had been fined $50 for feiure to have a jitney license, and the further fact that the motor vehicle department threatened to revoke the company's non-resident operator's license unless surrendered today.

To meet this situation Mr. Rosenthal has obtained a temporary injunction signed by Judge Newell Jennings of the superior court.

After making several mad rushes at their trainers the elephants finally took refuge in the Wabash river where they remained for several hours before being captured.

AFFAIRS IN GERMANY NOT CLARIFIED BY ELECTION

Result Leaves German Internal Politics in a Tangled State—While Ludendorff's Party Was Virtually Eliminated, the Von Tirpitz-Von Bismark Party Made Distinct Gains—Outcome Affords No Basis For Construction of a Government Pledged to Unadulterated Liberalisms.

Berlin, Dec. 8 (By the A. P.)—The net result of Sunday's balloting for the reichstag and the Prussian diet is set down by political observers as indicating a distinct setback for progressive policies and parliamentary government in that it leaves in its wake an inter-party situation which affords no basis for the construction of a government pledged to a program of unadulterated liberalism.

This condition is amply reflected by editorials appearing today in the nationalist and conservative bourgeoise press which professes to see in the party lineup brought about by Sunday's national polling the long sought opportunity to eliminate the socialists, and possibly also the democrats, from participation in future governments.

No concealment is made in governmental circles of the fact that the Von Tirpitz-Von Bismarck party has not only been returned in its full former strength but has also enhanced its representation in the Prussian diet by 34 mandates.

As this state legislature has always been the goal of Prussian reaction, because it affords an important strategic operative base, the party's capture of increased seats there in contradiction to a loss of 20 seats suffered by the socialists, warrants unconcealed pleasure of the nationalists with yesterday's elections

The circumstance that Ludendorff's party, through its loss of 18 seats, is believed to have virtually eliminated itself from further political consideration, and that the communists lost 17 seats in the reichstag, is declared to suggest no useful offset to the realization that the unrevised official election count, as now at hand leaves German internal politics in an akwardly tangled state.

Contemplating the various solutions to the apparent parliamentary impasse occasioned by the indecisive vote, Germania, which is close to Chancellor Marx, suggests as the only available solution the formation of a so-called big coalition.

This coalition according to the newspaper, would comprise the socialists, clericals, peoples' party and democrats, and, on issues of foreign policies, could count on the support of the Bavarian peoples' party and several non-partisan minor groups which control a dozen mandates.

JURY INVESTIGATION OF DEATH OF C. G. ROGERS

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 8.—The investigation of the death of Charles G. Rogers, bond salesman of this city, was concluded by the jurors of the North Haven tonight.

She gave a complete account of th eevents leading up to the tragedy, the prosecutor declared, her story being practically identical, he indicated, with the version she gave Coroner Elix Mix in his examination of the death of the young man. The coroner, in his finding, held that Rogers met his death accidentally.

Questioned whether he would call Miss Schneider at a later hearing, Prosecutor Church said that for the present he was satisfied with her testimony and that he would not summons her again until something new developed in the testimony of other witnesses.

DRAFTING PROGRAM FOR NAVY'S TWO BIG AIRSHIPS

Washington, Dec. 8—A tentative program of employment for the navy's two big airships, the Los Angeles and the Shenandoah, during the next few months, was worked out today at a conference between officials of the Bureau of Aeronautics and a group of officers from the Lakehurst naval station, the home of both ships.

While the program has not been disclosed, it is understood the officers were in agreement as to the desirability of using both ships to observe and make photographic records of the solar eclipse January 24.

Among projects looked over were the proposed flights to the Los Angeles to Panama and to London, and also details of the projected use of the Shenandoah in maneuvres with the fleet in Hawaiian waters next year.

Employment of the Los Angeles is on an entirely different basis, as she can be used for non-military purposes only, and the Panama and London flights have been suggested as means of testing the practicability of establishing commercial air routes for great dirigibles such as the German built Zeppelin. The London project also contemplates a possible future fast mail service.

COUNCIL OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS IN SESSION

Rome, Dec. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Vigorously proclaimed confidence in the league of nations as a potent foce for world peace and human happiness was the dominant note at the meeting today of the thirty-second session of the council of the league of nations which began its deliberation here in Doria palace.

The necessity for this new insistence on the league's usefulness was undoubtedly occasione dby Great Britain's recent request for postponement of consideration of the question of the Geneva peace protocol and of arrangements for a conference on disarmament, and by the ensuing impression permeating some quarters that England was growing cold on the league.

Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs, plainly went out of his way today to dispel any such impression. He explained at what inconvenience to the British cabinet and parliament he had come to Rome, but said that the government and people, and even the opposition, favored his journey, because all wishes to show respect for the league and their high sense of the value of the things which the league has achieved and the high hopes entertained for the league's future success.

Signor Salandra, for Italy, and Afrani Mello Franco, of Brazil, as president of the council, also emphasized the increasingly important role the league is filling as a mechanism for the amelioration of world conditions.

As for the protocol for the Pacific settlement of disputes, there was a very strain running through the private comment of all the members of the council on Great Britain's suggestion for a postponement. It indicated that the protocol was very much alive and is likely to continue to live.

CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY TO OBSTRUCT JUSTICE

Mount Clemens, Mich., Dec. 8 (By the A. P.).—Charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, four prominent Mount Clemens officials and citizens were brought into justice court today on warrants issued as the result of Judge Leland W. Carr's recent grand jury investigation here. The respondents are William F. Sawn, justice of the peace; Arthur L. Rosso, chief of police; Varnum J. Bowers, former mayor and democratic candidate for congress in the November elections, and Lynn M. Johnston, former prosecuting attorney.

The warrants were based on the alleged failure of Mount Clemens authorities named to bring to justice men who are said to have operated a confidence game and swindled Anton Morvich, former miner, out of $10,000, money he received as an award following an accident in a mine.

GEN. BUTLER MAY BE RECALLED TO SERVICE

Washington, Dec. 8—President Coolidge gave additional consideration without final decision today to the request of Mayor Kendrick, of Philadelphia, for a three-year extension of leave from the marine corps for Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, now serving as director of public safety of the Pennsylvania city.

Views of the navy department on the request of Mayor Kendrick have been placed before the executive, but have not been made known, and thes were considered by Mr. Coolidge during the day along with the expressions from the senate and house naval committees.

The president is understood to be reluctant to grant further leave, believing it ot be a bad practice for the federal government to loan the services of its military or naval officers except in cases of emergency.

REGARD BRITISH DEBT REFUNDING AS SETTLED

Washington, Dec. 8—The American debt commission considers the British debt refunding settlement as closed and believes it unlikely that any move will be made by the British government looking to a revision of those terms even in event another nation is granted more liberal treatment in a debt settlement.

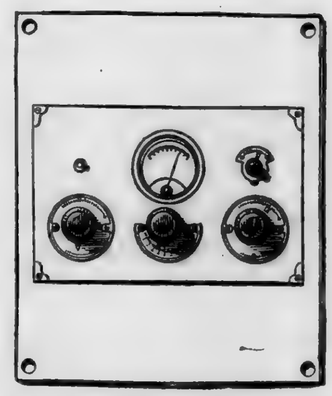
The statement was made in connection with recently published reports from London reflecting discussion there of the possibility of a request for a reopening of the agreement. Treasury officials insisted, however, that there was no official support for the press dispatches, expressing the opinion that the discussion represented the view of one political faction.

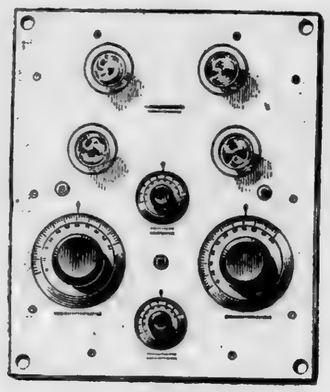
Whatever your favorite radio set may be you can have it in a Victrola

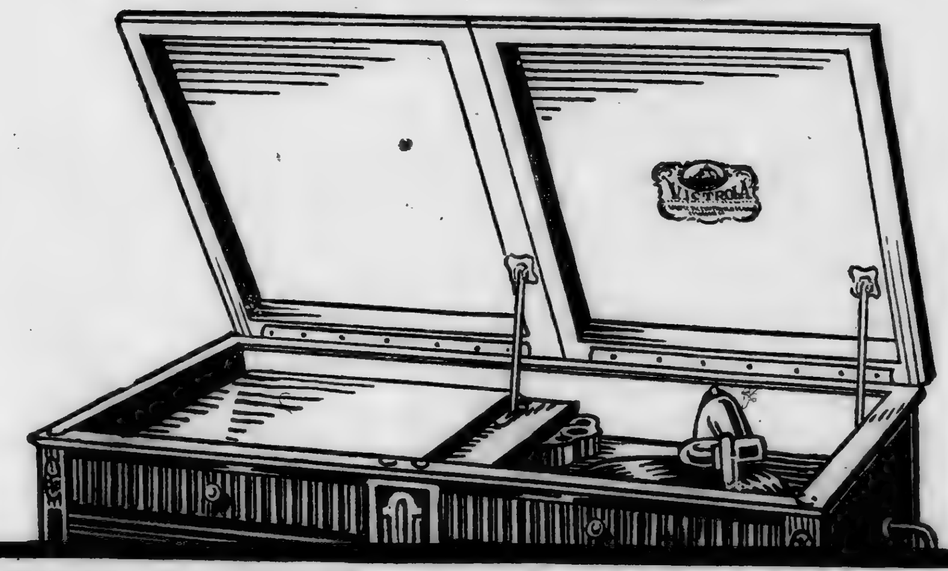
Every prominent manufacturer of radio equipment has offered to make radio sets which might be built into Victrola instruments. But with so many excellent radio sets on the market we are unwilling to limit our customers' freedom of choice—unwilling to commit them to a built-in proposition which is likely to become obsolete.

Instead we have so modified the construction of our instruments that virtually any of the more reliable radio sets may be installed as a complete unit ready to operate as soon as delivered.

In this way our customers may combine the radio set they prefer with the Victrola, the one instrument which in giving them the music of their own choice at whatever time they may choose to hear it offers such a service as has never yet been equalled.







There is but one Victrola and that is made by the Victor Company

Local merchants, working for their mutual interests, were affixing their signatures to a petition Monday to have the common council call a holiday halt in the present traffic regulations on Main street and allow cars to park in a position diagonal to the curb until Christmas. The one object of the movement is to grant automobile owners the privilege of parking right on the main thoroughfare and much nearer to the stores than would be possible with the present rules in effect. Reverting to angular parking would allow room for over twice as many automobiles on Main street. There were those among the signers of the petition who proposed a suspension of the two hour parking limit during this period and still others who are in favor of having cars head-in to the curb in preference to backing in if the half is granted by the council. Driving in, it is pointed out, is a mighty fine proposition as far as getting into a small space without tie up of traffic is concerned; but with cars on both sides and the view badly obscured how is a driver to know what kind of a mess he is going to get into or he backs out? On the other hand there are others who want to let well enough alone. They state that after much effort new parking regulations have been established in the city. They have served materially to keep Main street clear and traffic flowing constantly. As near as can be determined the rules are working out favorably and they dislike to see them monkeyed with until they are infinitely proven ineffective.

The December meeting of the Ministers Union of Willimantic and vicinity was held Monday at St. Paul's Episcopal church, that church entertaining. Rev. Frederick C. Williams, president of the organization, was in charge of the business meeting held in the forenoon. A paper was read by Rev. Arthur S. Lunch was served at 12:30 o'clock by the auxiliary of St. Paul's under the direction of Mrs. Frederick Williams and Miss Elizabeth Burke. Edgar had a one ton truck and Dubina a touring car. The drivers came to police headquarters to file their reports and there they engaged in a heated argument over the settlement of damages. When it was pointed out that the damage to the cars was but trifling and that failure to agree would mean their appearance in police court the men joined hands for a shake and each decided to settle for his own damage.

Music and addresses will appear on the programme of the rally to be held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the town hall by the Windham Republican club. United States Senator Frank B. COMMON COUNCIL MEETS, OPENING FISCAL YEAR

Willimantic, Dec. 7.—The common council held its first meeting of the fiscal year Monday evening, Acting Mayor George W. Hickey presiding. Considerable business was transacted including the annual reading of the rules of the board, the fixing of salaries and the appointment by the mayor of the standing committees for the year. Through the death of Mayor Dion two changes were made necessary. Alderman Buck was placed on the ordinance committee and Alderman Larumee on the purchasing committee. Acting Mayor Hickey was unanimously elected president of the board thereby retaining the position of acting mayor for the ensuing year. A summary of the patrol of the water shed made during the past summer by Albert Bowen was read, as signed by City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell and Superintendent of Water Works Henderson S. Moulton. The leasing of a storage pond for a period of years to protect the city against a drought was strongly recommended. On the petition of local merchants to have the present parking regulations suspended and replaced by the angular parking during the holiday season, the council voted to take no action. Authority was given for the purchase of a new road roller for the city.

On resolution of Alderman Lee a settlement of $350 was granted on the claims case of Catherine A. Mitten who sustained spinal and brain injuries in a fall on the sidewalk on Main street some time ago. It is understood that the original claim was for $700.

Claims for injuries to himself and damages to his car were read from George A. Gage whose machine was damaged and who was injured Sept. 20 last when a limb of a tree on lower Main street broke and fell on his car during a high wind. Sixteen dollars has already been paid for repairs to the car. The matter was referred to the claims committee for action. The fact that the town offices in the town building are to be closed on Saturday afternoon after Jan. 1 was brought up but the city charter forbade the board from granting the city clerk who has office in the same building a similar half holiday. A resolution presented some time ago by Alderman Jackson for the establishment of a pension system or pension fund for the fire department was again taken up. Alderman Lee was chosen chairman of a committee to meet with the representatives of the next legislature regarding the proposition. The other members of the committee are Aldermen Jackson and Laramee. Alderman Lee inquired about the progress of the work to have Chapman street graded into a city street. Mayor Hickey stated that the parties interested including officials of the American Thread company, would meet within a few days. At the suggestion of Alderman Lee the city light committee will meet the officials of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company regarding a betterment in the city street lighting system.

Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton appeared before the board and offered a remedy for the present unsatisfactory voting booth in the third and fourth voting districts. His proposal will be taken up before the charater changes committee who will meet at an early date and consist of the entire common council, Mayor Hickey, ex-Mayor Charles A. Gates, former President of the Board Edgar W. Jacobs, and ex-Alderman Louis J. Flynn.

Adjournment was taken at 10.20.

PEDESTRIANS' HABITS MAKE DANGER FOR THEMSELVES

One of the most glaring instances of careless and absolute disregard for their own safety on the part of pedestrians is the manner in which many people walk on paved highways on the outskirts of cities, says a local automobile dealer. Attention has been called to the advisability of these pedestrians walking on the left hand side of the road facing the direction from which automobiles may be approaching. It is gratifying indeed to note that some cities have adopted means of encouraging this precaution by placing warning signs on their highways directing the pedestrian to walk on the left hand side of the road.

Grand Rapids, Michigan, for instance, has its highways so marked and the example set by this progressive city should be followed by every other community. Those who are interested in furthering safety methods should make it their business to see that this is done.

The time of greatest danger is the evening. It is astinishing how many people will deliberately walk on the right hand side of the road in the dark, where at time it is almost impossible for a motorist to see them until he is so close that it is extremely difficult for him to stop without hitting them.

Every motorist knows that when he is passing cars going in the opposite direction with lights on there is a dark spot for a certain distance ahead of his car and it is impossible for him to see a person who is walking ahead especially if the person is dressed in dark clothing.

H. CLAY PRESTON ON NAT'L HUMANE COMMITTEE

To further information to prevent the cruel treatment of animals in rodeos and other "wild west" exhibitions, W. K. Horton of New York, president of the American Humane Association has appointed the following committee for this purpose: George A. H. Scott, Chicago, Counsel for the Illinois Humane Society, H. Clay Preston, of Hartford, General Manager of the Connecticut Humane Society, Matthew McCurrie, San Francisco, Editor of Our Animals, Mrs. Richard Hardy, Chattanooga, President of the Humane Educational Society of Tennessee. Mr. Horton in a recent interview said:

"The rodeo does not depict the west of the present day at all. The shouting, shooting cowboy of the plains and the frontier town is a relic of the picturesque past, which is a fact generally known and accepted everywhere at this time. The lariat is almost a curiosity; the erstwhile vast plains are fenced; the cattle are tame."

"Like prize-fighting in America and bull-fighting in the Latin countries, the round-up or rodeo has become commercialized. Professionals largely constitute the "talent" of those exhibitions. They do not represent the true feeling of the western pioneer days; they are not characteristic, in fact, of the west of today. The rodeo must go; it has no place in our modern civilization."

"When the rodeo first came to the eastern states, with its advertised glamour of the old west and its loudly proclaimed feats of daring, curiosity attracted many people to it. The public found, however, that the glamour was lacking. Easterners did not look upon the calf-roping and the steer-wrestling as feats of bravery. A man in cowboy garb twisting the neck of a docile steer, using the long horns of the animal as a powerful lever to throw it off its balance, and chasing a wobbly-legged calf around an arena and finally throwing the frightened animal into a creature to the ground is not an edifying spectacle."

"Performances of the wild west and rodeo order lack true play and sportsmanship demanded by present-day amusement seekers. Hence the constantly diminishing audiences to which these organizations are playing."

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

There will be no letting down, once Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill begins the collecting of overdue and unpaid personal taxes through action in the town court. Mr. Bill made this clear Monday afternoon. This is explained to forestall any assumption that an attempt will be made to create a scare by haling a few people before the court. The work will be gone through with. As Mr. Bill points out, it would not be fair to make an example of a few and allow three or four hundred other people to rush in then and pay taxes they have long owed and escape paying $3 or $4 in court costs over and above their tax assessments. Those who owe cannot hope to escape through any such subterfuge. All will be treated alike. The only chance in escaping court costs is to pay the personal tax collector Attorney Louis A. Woisard, before the court proceedings begin.

Numbers seemed to sense this Monday and made a point to get their tax money to Mr. Woisard. He also was deluged with telephone calls following the publicity that The Bulletin gave to the collection plans Monday morning. Mr. Woisard pointed out that some are laboring under a misapprehension, inasmuch as they are making inquiries as to paying 1924 personal taxes which will not be due until next February. The collections to be made are on the levies of 1923 and other former years. All the delinquents have received bills for these overdue taxes.

Mr. Bill has the complaints that are to be issued all printed on a special form and they will begin to go out at once. When the issue starts those who have not paid will not it possible to adjust matters without appearing in court, paying the taxes due and the costs that will be assessed in the process.

Today (Tuesday) may be the last chance to see the collector on the matter of overdue personal taxes.

There was business for the town court Monday morning and the first prosecutions in this town in some time for violations of the liquor laws.

Samuel Sapsson, resident in Water street, appeared to answer to a charge of keeping with intent to sell. He pleaded not guilty. Later after making the statement that he had only $60 and indicated that he could make some arrangement on that basis he would be willing to go to jail and place the burden of the support of his family on the town. Eventually he entered a plea of guilty and was fined $20 and costs, a total of $38.73, which he paid, and was given a suspended sentence of 30 days in jail.

Mike Bishop, resident at the corner of Mechanic and Oak streets, was presented to answer to alleged violations of the liquor laws. There were seven counts, some of them charging actual sales, in the complaint filed against Bishop. He pleaded not guilty and his case was continued until next Monday at 10 a. m., that he may have opportunity to retain counsel. His bonds were fixed at $2,000, in default of which he went to Brooklyn jail on await the hearing. Bishop was brought to court as the result of developments of Sunday afternoon.

The funeral of Mrs. Victor Stringer was held from her home in Central Village Monday morning with a service at which Rev. Joseph E. McCarthy officiated at All Hallows' church in Moosup. Many relatives and friends attended. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery at Wauregan. The bearers were Napoleon Harrel, Joseph Frenette, Arthur Cote, Thomas Bouchard, Alfred Darby and Henry Faucher. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

More rain that came Monday served toward making up the water shortage that was becoming acute in late November. It is a fact, nevertheless, that despite recent heavy rains, the water supply is still materially below normal for this time of year. This will be indicated by an inspection of ponds and reservoirs throughout this territory. As late as Sunday the ponds and reservoirs around East Killingly were as low as they usually are in August.

In observance of the Feast of the Immaculate Conception many hundreds of members of the parish attended the special masses at St. James church Monday morning. The feast day was also declared a holiday for the several hundred pupils in St. James' school.

Another serious accident in this territory again impresses upon the minds of those who ride in motor cars that it is an extremely dangerous thing to stand in the rear of a car at night and by so standing shut off vision of the tail light from any other driver who may be coming along. This is carelessly done hundreds if times and has been the cause of scores of deaths or serious injury to persons.

With continued open weather there is steady employment for men in the building trades and this promises to continue so long as severe winter weather holds off. Numbers of building projects are underway here and there is work enough on contract to keep the builders busy well through the winter season.

Miss Dorothy Wheale, secretary of the Young People's branch at Bridgeport, is to be the speaker this (Tuesday) at a meeting of the W. C. T. U. to be held with Mrs. John A. Paine. This (Tuesday) afternoon will bring the release of over $50,000 more in Thrift club funds to over 1,000 of its depositors by the Danielson Trust Company. This will complete the releases of such funds here for this Christmas season, and the stage is now all set for a great carnival of shopping. Over $100,000 has been made available for club members at this Christmas period.

Danielson people are expressing a considerable amount of curiosity over the gasoline-driven trucks that are to be put on the local branch of the New Haven road in the near future to replace certain passenger trains now operating through this territory. It is not that Danielson develops such a tremendous amount of passenger business for the line as to see just what kind of facilities the new form of transportation will afford.

A man with a practical idea suggested Monday that it would add greatly to the glamor of Christmas for many if a universal plan could be made to work under which all unpaid bills would be squared with those to whom they are owed. Such a Christmas remembrance, there is no doubt, would bring greater joy to many than the mere presenting of gifts for which one might have little use, yet be in actual need of money due him.

And another man, peeved over being told and hearing told that a certain remedy would cure one hundred different ills to which flesh is heir, these ranging from rheumatism to scarlet fever, got his revenge when a motorist asked him how he thought he could start a balky motor. "Give it aspirin," was the laconic advice.

PUTNAM

Miss Anna McCaulay of Providence, who was so frightfully injured in the automobile accident Sunday that one leg had to be amputated, and her life despaired of, was improved Monday, although not out of danger. She rallied from the effects of the injury and the shock caused by the surgical operation, but there are still indications of internal injuries.

According to the statements of the other occupants of the car, Miss Evelyn Roberts of this city and her sister, Miss Florence Roberts, of Johnson, R. I., the injured woman had just started to alight. She was balanced on the running board on one foot and the other poised above the ground when the Ford coupe driven by Charles Letters struck her. There are conflicting stories about the lights. The young women claim that their lights were on, but Mr. Letters says that he saw no lights and no car until he was within a few feet of it.

The injured woman was bleeding profusely and a boy in the crowd that gathered took off his four-in-hand tie and offered it for use as a tourniquet, and it served the purpose very effectively.

The turkey given away at the Industrial show at the state armory that was a part of the Come-Back celebration went to Mrs. Harold L. Kelly of Providence.

Mr. Kelly is one of the officials of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co., and was loaned to the Citizens' National bank to assist in the work of organization. Mrs. Kelly came here Friday and she and her husband visited the exposition at the armory Saturday afternoon. Alexander Gilman, president of the Chamber of Commerce, asked them to register their names.

"The turkey might be awarded to us if we did," responded Mr. Kelly, "and I don't see how I would get it to Providence."

"If you get it," replied Mr. Gilman, "I'll bring it over to you."

"We will accept that proposition," said Mr. Kelly, and he and his wife signed their names in the visitors' book. Monday in the rain Mr. Gilman carried out his proposal, and the turkey, alive, and as beautiful a specimen as Connecticut produces, is now a resident of Rhode Island.

It is understood that an official visited the railroad station Sunday evening evidently in the interests of whether the platform is well lighted at night on Sunday. As it happened to be a moonlight night it was hardly the time to judge of the Egyptian blackness that prevails there nearly every Sunday night. The official was informed, so it was said, that it was light enough if anyone was sober. As a large majority of the passengers are women, one woman, who boards a Sunday night car every week, says she hardly dares to set her bag down for fear she will not find it, that "sober" statement is rather flat. Also he was told, it was reported, that a light was always burning at the store at the other end of the platform. The traveling public does not come to or go from the station from that direction, or board or leave the car anywhere near that light.

Camden Man's Amazing Message to Rheumatics

After Suffering Intense Agony for Many Years—He Wants to Tell Others.

Dr. Brigadell: I simply had to write and tell you what your wonderful Camphorole has done for me. For many years I suffered the tortures of Rheumatism as only those who have it know. At the same time I had a terrible itch and, covered with sores, the sharp pains were so severe, I could not sleep. Had to get up and rub and scratch. It almost drove me crazy. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine I was told to take, which only left me worse. I could not bend my knees. I am a steamfitter by trade and had to give up my work. Seeing your advertisement in a paper, I thought I would take another chance and told my daughter to get me a package of Camphorole. You can imagine my surprise after using Camphorole, I started to get better right away. After using two jars of Camphorole I am well and happy and have gone back to work. I shall never forget the day I took a chance on Camphorole. After all the years I suffered, it feels good to be well again. Robert W. Teesdale, 1017 High St., Camden, N. J.

MORTIMER TESTIFIES IN FORBES CONSPIRACY CASE

Chicago, Dec. 8—(By the A. P.)—The bitter personal feeling of Elias H. Mortimer, chief government witness in the Veterans' Bureau conspiracy trial, against Colonal Charles R. Forbes, one of the defendants, came out frequently in the defense cross examination of Mortimer today.

Mortimer charged that Forbes had broken up his home, and said that he "hoped" Mrs. Mortimer had received the divorce for which she applied in Philadelphia a few days ago. He said he agreed not to contest it.

"I found him in my apartment with Mrs. Mortimer Labor Day evening, in 1922," Mortimer said, "and I helped him out and told him not to come back. I mean as he was going out. I helped him along. I didn't need any help then and I wouldn't need any now. There are still some things I want to even with Forbes."

The next day, Mortimer said, this breach, one of several similar ones earlier in the summer, was temporarily healed, and they all went together to the wedding of Mortimer's sister-in-law in Philadelphia, September 20, 1922.

"A day or two later I saw him riding in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, with Mrs. Mortimer, with Mr. Williams' chauffeur (J. F. Williams of Philadelphia) Mrs. Mortimer's uncle, Mortimer said.

"I went over to him and asked what he meant by being with Mrs. Mortimer after I had warned him to stay away," Mortimer said. Forbes reply was not stated.

"Did you use this circumstance to induce Forbes to grant the second Tupper lake (New York) hospital foundation contract to the W. L. Sutherland Construction Company of St. Thomas, was asked by Colonel James S. Easby-Smith, Forbes' chief counsel.

"Yes" Mortimer replied, "that and a lot of other stuff back of that, and Forbes knew he had better do as I asked."

Previously he had testified that he was acting as agent for Sutherland Company on the Tupper Lake foundation contract, because James W. Black, now deceased, the business associate of John W. Thompson, Forbes' co-defendant, had notified him Black did not want the Tupper Lake job.

HEARING ON PURCHASE OF CAPE COD CANAL

Washington, Dec. 8—Government purchase of the Cape Cod Canal, as proposed in a bill passed by the house at the last session was the subject of public hearings today before the senate commerce committee.

Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, appeared in favor of the measure.

"We are building a great inland waterway from Maine to Florida," he said, "and I think it extremely desirable that every link in that chain should be a free waterway."

"I am favorably disposed towards this proposition," said Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas. "We in Texas are deeply interested in the inter-coastal waterway."

Senator Fletcher, democrat, Florida, wanted to hear from the army officer who had charge of operation of the canal. He read from statements of previous hearings to the effect that to make the canal available for regular commerce, a cost for dredging would be entailed which would make it impossible to operate the waterway at a profit.

SHIPPING BOARD PROBE HAS BEEN RESUMED

Washington, Dec. 8—The special house committee investigating the shipping board and its subsidiaries, today resumed examination of witnesses for the first time since last June.

James W. Boring, advertising manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, occupied the stand throughout the session. He testified that editorial support of the ship-subsidy plan by a newspaper had nothing whatever to do with the placing of advertising contracts, and explained the method followed by the corporation in attempting to check the results of its advertising.

The corporation, he said, for several months met the deficits incidental to starting publication of the Oceanic Edition of the Chicago Tribune, but now paid the Tribune Company a flat rate of $500 for each vessel on which the paper was issued.

Showing of motion pictures on vessels he asserted, was taken up in an effort to make passage as attractive as possible in view of reports that some people avoided the vessels because they were "dry."

RESINOL

RESIGNS AS TRUSTEE OF MARY BAKER EDDY ESTATE

Concord, N. H., Dec. 8—V. Dittemore, of Boston filed in Merrimac county probate court today his resignation as a trustee under the residuary clause of the will of Mary Baker Eddy, to take effect at the end of this year. A petition filed by Mr. Dittemore's fellow trustees for his removal had been awaiting hearing in the probate court.

In a letter setting forth his reasons for resigning Mr. Dittemore said:

"I do not feel that I can fulfil the office of a competent trustee under the will of Mary Baker Eddy while remaining as a minority of one and being a party to what I consider to be a misapplication of the church manual, which constitutes an important part of Mrs. Eddy's trust property.

"In a petition filed in your court on July 22 last it was alleged by my co-trustees that I have ceased to be a follower of Mary Baker Eddy. This statement is without the slightest foundation. I accept unreservedly the teachings of Christian Science as contained in Mrs. Eddy's writings and her published rules for the government of Christian Scientists. I also accept the responsibility which her teaching lays upon me to protest against its adulteration and to bear witness to the truth.

"That Mrs. Eddy, who has been deceased for fourteen years, is still the leader of the Christian Scientist church and the public proclaimed occupant of the first official office with its vital reservations of authority necessitating active fulfillment of its unctions, is one of the theories which the trustees are using their funds to perpetuate, but which I cannot accept.

"In view of my increasing opposition to the policies and methods of my fellow trustees, both in respect of their conceptions of Mrs. Eddy's purposes as declared in her will, and of her broader purposes her writings and from the church manual, and of their views as to what will best promote the progress of the religion of Christian Science, I hereby tender my resignation as a trustee under the residuary clause of the will of Mary Baker Eddy and as a trustee under clause 6 thereof to take effect at the end of the present quarter, December 31, 1924."

In their petition for Mr. Dittemore's removal his co-trustees declared that he "has become unfitted and unsuitable for the trust and unsafe to be entrusted therewith." It was also alleged that the "relations between him and the other trustees have become inharmonious and unfriendly; that lack of agreement and co-operation between him and other trustees has become frequent and apparently permanent; that he has ceased to be a director or even a member of the church named by the testatrix in the residuary clause of her will; that he has "ceased to be a follower of Mary Baker Eddy."

The trustees subscribing to the petition were Adan H. Dickey of Cohasset, Mass., James A. Neal of Brookline, Mass., William R. Rathvon of Boston, Edward A. Merritt of Concord and Josiah E. Fernald of Concord.

TO REMOVE PORTRAIT OF LADY ASTOR FROM COMMONS

London, Dec. 8—(By the A. P.)—Lady Astor's portrait is not to hang in the house of commons, at least during her lifetime. The portrait, which was painted by Sims, occupies a place on the wall of one of the staircases, but it is covered with cloth, and now will be removed because the conservative parliament, like the new previous parliament, finds it "undesirable as a matter of principle that pictures or statues of living persons should be accepted for the house of parliament."

The hanging of Lady Astor's picture in the house raised a little storm among the members and for some weeks there has been a dispute about its ultimate fate. It was presented to parliament by Lord Astor originally with the approval of the government then in power.

TRAFFIC CONGESTION IS COSTLY TO NEW YORK CITY

New York, Dec. 8—Congestion of traffic in Manhattan—a problem held to be as vital as that presented by underground and surface transit—is costing the busy island's commercial interests $1,000,000 every business day of the year, city officials were told by representatives of Merchants' Association.

Asserting that traffic congestion was costing Manhattan merchants $300,000,000 a year, Guge E. Tarbell, of the Fifth Avenue association, offered to raise half a million dollars within thirty days, to be presented to the estimate board for purposes of devising relief measures. His offer was rejected by the mayor, who assured the business men the municipality would take action at its own expense.

ONE CASE OF CLEMENCY BY BOARD OF PARDON

Hartford, Dec. 8—Louis J. Alman, serving a minimum sentences of nine years for burglary, alone among 39 petitioners for pardons, received clemency by the board of pardons, meeting today for its December session at the state prison at Wethersfield. Even Alman did not receive a pardon, but a commutation of the minimum length of his sentence to three years, which will give him opportunity to appear before the board of parole at its January sitting.

It was the first time in more than four years that the board had failed to grant a pardon, and especially at the Christmas season it had been assumed one of the several long terms would receive leniency.

Although there were 73 petitions for pardons on the docket when the board convened at 10 o'clock this morning, all but 39 were withdrawn, or petitioners failed to appear when their petitions were read by Clerk Harry W. Reynolds.

With the exception of an hour's recess for luncheon the board, with Governor Templeton presiding was in session continuously until 5.45 when the decision of the board was made known, after a short executive session lasting only three-quarters of an hour. Under its rules the board can only grant pardons by unanimous vote of its members.

San, Lee Gow and Fung Chung were arrested after the murder, charged with having shot Wong, a Hip Sing tong member, as representatives of the On Leong tong.

Justice Henry V. Borst, this morning granted a motion by the defense that the defendants be given separate trials.

The shooting took place in the recent tong war. San and Chung are believed to have come to this city from Hartford, Conn.

LULL IN HOUSE CLEANING OF COMMUNISTS IN FRANCE

Paris, Dec. 8—(By the A. P.)—Premier Herriot's house cleaning of communists in France simmered down today to the arrest of ten foreign workmen whose immigration papers were not in order. They will be deported.

The ten men were described in the announcement of arrest as being "considered as charged with the mission of organizing international communism."

The police drive seems to have been reduced to ferreting out all undesirable foreigners, and visitors to Paris were warned today to see that their papers are in order, and to carry them on their person.

London, Dec. 8 (By the A. P.)—The king and queen returned today from Sandringham for the opening of the new parliament tomorrow, the sixth of the king's reign, which will inaugurate the brilliant pre-Christmas society season in London.

King George held a council at the palace this afternoon to give formal approval to the royal speech prepared by the cabinet, which he will read in the house of lords at noon. The speech is expected to be long, owing to the many foreign interests, such as Egypt and the league of nations, and it will probably outline the new government's internal program.

REWARDING AVIATORS.

There never has been any question but what this government would suitably reward those aviators who circled the globe. The accomplishment calls for such recognition. It may be regarded that such service was in the line of duty but it was nevertheless an extraordinary service, successfully accomplished and attended with no small amount of sacrifice. No other like it has been rendered.

Thus when there is a movement underway in congress to reward them it is bound to meet with general approval. It will be felt that it would be an ungrateful government if something of the kind was not done. The honor of the feat is not small, and the men are being permitted to realize on their accounts of the trip, but it is fitting that congress should take action.

The plan as now set forth is to have the aviators and their mechanics advanced in rank and to confer upon them a congressional medal of honor. It is to be realized that this means the jumping of some others and perhaps it may be regarded as overstepping certain seniority rights, but it seems hardly possible to regard it as an occasion which should not be recognized in such a manner. The occasions are so rare that it could hardly be regarded as establishing a dangerous precedent.

Concerning the congressional medal of honor there has been an objection raised which seems worthy of attention. It is pointed out by the war department that such a medal can be awarded under the existing law to those who have shown gallantry in excess of the line of duty while in actual conflict with the enemy."

It would of course be far fetched to regard the elements as the enemy. That was not contemplated when the law governing the awarding of the medal was adopted. Such a medal does not fit the case of the aviators but might well be replaced by another such as a distinguished service cross, or the like.

The desire to see that the aviators are properly recognized will meet with popular approval. It is in fact looked for by the country.

THE ILLEGAL ENTRANTS.

Now it appears that when Secretary Davis was quoted as saying in South America that $50,000 entered this country illegally annually he actually made no such statement. What he did say was that there were 175,000 illegal entrants. That makes quite a difference, but it will be recognized as being far and beyond what the number should be.

Whether the number is 50,000 or 175,000 it is against the laws and the desires of this country. It represents a disposition to increase lawlessness and causes us to face a situation which calls for the application of a remedy as early as possible if the violations are to be stopped or even checked.

Restrictions have been increased and they have forced a greater number to resort to violations in order to beat them. Where enforcement is inadequate encouragement is given to smuggling, and when it is realized that once in the country there is slight prospect of being caught and deported, while maintaining good behavior, the willingness to take a chance can be appreciated.

If the present measures for preventing such illegal admissions are inadequate, or unable to cope with the situation, improvements are called for, and if such augmented methods are not likely to be sufficient isn't it time that serious consideration was given to the registration of all aliens?

The protection of the nation's welfare is what is aimed at. Those who enter the country by first breaking its laws are not likely to develop the type of citizen that is desired. It in fact would be an excellent idea to keep tabs on just such individuals and it is possible for such to be done through registration.

This would include those who have been properly admitted as well as those who have not, but if the latter class understand that there is a prospect that they will be discovered and sent home they are not going to display as much eagerness to get here illegally. As it is now if they can avoid getting caught there's the same goal reached by the smuggled as by those who come in legally.

VETERANS' BUREAU.

In all sections of the country there is and has been for years a keen interest in seeing that the disabled veterans obtain the kind of treatment they need and the help they deserve. There has been no hesitancy on the part of congress to make financial provision for such attention. It is an obligation which no one can think of evading, and no one desires it.

It is interesting to note by the budget report, which has recently been made public, that there is to be a reduction of about $10,000,000 in the amount required for the veterans' bureau the coming year. This is due to the fact that there is a decreased demand on the part of the veterans for vocational rehabilitation, together with the reduction of administration expenses which has been found possible. Even with this reduction in the appropriation sought there will be required about $405,000,000 in caring for the veterans.

There have been unfortunate circumstances in connection with the establishment of such a big and new service. It represented something entirely different than had hitherto been attempted. Such means much waste until well organized and until needless expenses are eliminated. This is shown by the reduction by about 2,000 on the payrolls, since it was possible for the remaining 25,000 to handle the work efficiently. This in fact is a number that is subject to further change as Director Hines carries on his reorganization.

This important department cares for nearly 27,000 patients and the present budget appeal for $405,000,000 represents a decrease of about $38,000,000 in the past two years through the more businesslike manner in which the work is being administered, and the fact that time has resulted in a decrease in the vocational demands. The outlay is a large one but so long as it is wisely economically used and accomplishes what is intended there can be no complaint at the amount.

CALLING THE TROLLEYS BACK.

Up in Grafton, Mass., the people have presented a petition to the street railway company to resume activity on a portion of the lines where service has been abandoned.

This is too often the case where a failure to furnish enough business to make it possible for trolley lines to live results in the abandonment of service only to have it develop that the automobile service fails to meet the requirements and a return of the old accommodations is desired.

Grafton has experienced what others have done. It has apparently come to the conclusion that it made a mistake in letting the trolley service lapse, and it now comes face to face with the fact that while it wants it returned, and wants it bad, it must be prepared to insure the road that it will provide sufficient patronage to recommense the road for operating the line.

It is only natural that the trolley company should want some such assurance under the circumstances. If it is going to be subjected to competition it cannot be expected to go to such outlay as would be required to put the roadbed and overhead lines into shape for use and be made to face the deficits of the past.

Trolley service hasn't ceased to be a means of furnishing needed accommodations for large numbers of people, at a small cost. Such service cannot be expected for nothing. It is entitled to fair compensation, and yet, following its previous experience there can be little surprise at the reluctance of the trolley company to resume service until it can get some assurance that it will be given a chance to live.

DEALING WITH INCURABLES.

Periodically there are those who advocate legislation that will permit the ending of the suffering of those afflicted with incurable diseases by painlessly putting them to death. At the present time there is a bill before the parliament of Denmark, presented by its minister of justice, providing for just such legislation, and is quite as radical as other proposed legislation such as the abandonment of the army and navy of that country.

Without a doubt there are many cases where it is known that people cannot possibly get well, and where prolongation of life simply means a continuation of severe suffering. It is of course just such cases as these that the law is supposed to cover, and it is presumed provision is made for the decision of a competent council before anything of the kind could be authorized.

Never has such a question been raised but what there are found to be advocates of it. It has been urged by many who have been ill. Doubtless many desperately ill have urged such a course and yet have recovered. At no time has such legislation been proposed that it has not encountered the strongest kind of opposition, for there can be given no assurance that through such a method the unwarranted taking of life would result.

Denmark will now have an opportunity to hear the advocates of such a measure as well as those who oppose it. Perhaps its parliament can be convinced that such a law is needed and it may be that Denmark is ready to demonstrate to the world the advisability of such legislation.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8th—Congress started off with a whirl of business that exceeded the expectations of even the most sanguine republican. The statement of President Coolidge that he did not favor an extra session sunk deep into the hearts of leaders, for they have learned by experience that the president doesn't hedge. And he is the only person who can call an extra session. That means that the appropriation bills must be passed before March 4th and at this moment there is no blockage in sight, framed by democrats. To be sure there will be some filibustering by such men as Heflin and Caraway, who never fail to attempt something of that sort, to stall republican measures, but the democratic leaders have stated with apparent good faith, that they see nothing to be gained by such methods and do not intend to adopt them.

Congress can adjourn at its will but it cannot call itself into being. The president is the only power that can call an extra session, if there is a president or acting president in office.

Republicans and democrats alike are watching for the result of the Connecticut senatorial election with marked interest. Neither party is sanguine over the probable outcome. Coolidge will need the full support of every former republican seat and to men here it is unthinkable that party strife in Connecticut would result in sending a democrat to the senate and thus embarass President Coolidge in carrying out his party pledges and policy. But there is no disguising the fact that republican leaders here realize a stiff fight is before them. Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the senatoral election committee is in Connecticut aiming guns at vulnerable points in the Holt campaign. Moses will not only conduct a speaking campaign in which he will play an important personal part, but he will send a powerful group of senators and other expert campaigners to work at rallies during the short time between the present and the election. John G. Tilson and Schuyler Merritt, the two defeated candidates, are playing the game in a most sportsmanlike manner and will go home this week to take an active part in electing Bingham.

The democratic cloak room of the house saw a woman admitted beyond its sacred portals for the first time this week. Mrs. Norton of New Jersey, the newly elected member of congress from that state is the first woman to be elected to congress by democrats, although four republican women have already had that honor. Of the four Mrs. Nolan of California was the only one to be returned at the 1922 election and as she did not run again, Mrs. Norton is the only woman who will hold a seat in the house in the next congress unless one is elected to fill some vacancy, by a special election.

The democrats made the preliminary visit of Mrs. Norton very pleasant by showing her considerable attention, introducing her to leaders of both parties and in other ways bidding her welcome.

The house expects to get at least four of the big appropriation bills passed before the customary Christmas recess which begins December 20th and lasts nine days. The senate is putting on speed and it is the hope of leaders that the appropriation bills will be out of the way in session to leave some weeks for consideration of other important measures.

The national conference on street and highway safety has prepared a report which will be submitted to Secretary of Commerce Hoover early next month. The report urges more rigid laws regarding licenses, a better enforcement of existing traffic rules and the adoption of stricter laws and more severe punishment for offenders. The insurance division believes companies issuing policies should keep in closer touch with the cause of accidents and condition of machines that are insured; that states should adopt the principles of certification and registration of automobile titles as one of the most important and effective means of reducing theft; and that adequate legislation should be provided for enforcement of law and proper penalties for failure to observe the law. The appalling number of accidents reported in cities and on state highways has brought the matter to the front.

In its report the organization states that nearly two thirds of the states have not yet enacted title certification laws.

Without such certification a stolen car can be more easily slipped out of a state and sold in another state, than is possible under the certification system. Maryland and Michigan report 50 per cent. less theft losses under that system.

Two of the most important positions on the clerical staff of congress are those of readink clerks of senate and house. A reading clerk must not only have a voice that carries, but he must be a ready "at sight" reader, be familiar with technical terms and possess a poise and lack of "nerves" that few men have been blessed with. The two senior men in congress are John C. Crokett of the senate and Pat Haltigan of the house. Both are well known to national convention attendants. Crokett stood the test of examination head and shoulders above all other candidates when he entered the clerical staff of the senate a number of year ago. Haltigan won new laurels at both the San Francisco and New York conventions, especially at the latter where week in and week out Pat's big voice boomed out the roll call of states and was heard over the din and confusion of the Madison Square Garden convention.

Crokett often goes to the house bearing a message from the senate, which he reads as he stands in the center aisle. And as often his reading is greeted with applause, so distinct is his rendering of the matter in hand.

It is pretty well understood here that Senator Butler will be the chairman of the national committee during the republican campaign of 1926 but who will fill the shoes of Clem Shaver is not yet known. That Shaver will be dropped seems certain and it is rumored that his successor will come from senatorial ranks, either past or present. Names mentioned here are Floor Leader Robinson and former Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who was defeated at the 1922 election. Both are men of energy and pluck and experience, but whether they will have the field to themselves is much doubted.

Cordell Hull, former national chairman, and who was taken ill in the midst of the New York convention has sufficiently recovered to be in his seat in the house as member from Tennessee.

They say out here that traveling like a "commoner" is not new to President Coolidge, and that when a vice presidential candidate he some times took by preference an upper berth, so to save the national committee the additional cost of more luxurious accommodations. The president isn't wasting any time in showing the country that when he talks economy he is ready to put what he preaches into practice.

Had any other man taken the initiative by traveling in the regular Pullman instead of following the custom of having a special train, it would have been classed as an attempt to win over the plain people to his side, and an affectation, but no one ventured to suggest such a motive on the part of President Coolidge, as it is thoroughly well known, that while not in the least stingy, to use a good old fashioned term, he believes the nation should drown down on extravagance, and so carries out his ideas without any self-consciousness or embarrassment.

Parson Wanted to Quit

The office force was small and the work piled high; the hours were long and duties exacting; there seemed to be nothing ahead but constantly accumulating tasks, and Hubert T. Parson became so disheartened that he decided to quit.

From the time he was a small boy he had seen work and trouble in business. His father was called the Oil King of Canada at the time the boy was born in Toronto. Fires and a collapse of the oil market soon afterward wrecked his father's business, and the family moved to Watertown, N. Y. Before Hubert was seven they moved to Brooklyn, N. Y.

After graduation from high school at 17, Hubert found a job as office boy with the Atlantic Chemical Works at $4 a week. Two years later he was asked to become a partner in a chicory importing works. He had no funds, but was given a share in the business, and soon made it successful. Then chicory was placed on the tariff free list and the enterprise was killed.

Now 20, he decided to get into a business that had a permanent future. He advertised for a position. F. W. Woolworth offered him $8 a week, but Parson asked $12 and sought another opening. Before he could accept, Woolworth sent for him to go to work. Woolworth had 14 stores, his force in the New York office was small, and the work was so hard that within a week Parson decided to quit.

Unable to find the other man who had offered him work, he continued at his tasks and finally decided to remain with Woolworth. Plunging into the work he became interested. After several years of grinding office work, that often required all night duty, Parson became traveling accountant and auditor.

When F. W. Woolworth, & Co. was incorporated, Parson, at 33, was made secretary and treasurer. Seven years later the F. W. Woolworth Company, with $65,000,000 capital, was formed with Parson as secretary. Four years afterward he was made vice president, treasurer and general manager.

Relieving Woolworth of his duties, Parson was virtually head of the business and when Woolworth died, became president at 47.

HIS ERROR

"I have gone through life trying to scatter seeds of sunshine," began the Hyde Park man belligerently, "but I am through. For all of me this old world can groan along without pausing to grin from now on!"

"I take it you have been playing one of your so-called practical jokes," his friend from Woodlawn said joyously. "And the axle broke or something!"

"And you're only 6!" the Hyde Park man cried admiringly. "I should say you have a brilliant future before you! Well, I have an old college chum, Sandy McIntosh, who is the most careless individual in regard to his personal belongings that ever was let live. And what especially irritates me is the way Sandy throws around a costly overcoat and trusts in luck!

"Sandy's office door opens from a corridor where all the doors are spaced alike and you go in through a reception room with a view of the inner office. Happening to get him to go out to lunch I saw as I stepped into the outer room the collar and shoulders of his overcoat projecting into the open of the inner office. As usual Sandy had hurled the coat down on a chair, a clear invitation to sneak thieves while he no doubt was still farther away in the suite. Stepping carefully I approached the door, reached in a careful hand, grabbed the coat collar and dragged it toward me.

"Simultaneously my wrist was clutched in a vise and with one mighty jerk I was pulled off my feet, through the air and into the inner room by an utterly strange man eight feet high with hands and feet like battleships and a cold eye belonging by right to the most concealed fish that ever graced ocean depths. I knew instantly that not only did I not know him but that our natures were inimical and I never should want to know him!

"'Well, how about it?' he roared in great triumph, hanging on to my collar.

"I leave it to you if in the same circumstances you would have had the nerve to chirp that you were just playing a joke on a friend, only it wasn't the friend's office, was it, and please, mister, let me go this time? There are times when the truth, certainly looks like a chipped, cracked and faded excuse. He shook me, whereupon I tried to straighten up and be dignified. I said if he would only listen a moment, or look at my letters and cardcase he would understand how impossible it was for me to be what he was thinking I was—whereupon he shook me again and nearly choked me.

"'A-ha,' he hoomed, 'so I was that kind, was I?' One of the smooth slickers, educated and everything!' He had lived quite a time and was too keen to swallow such dope! On the whole, he should have thought I would have been out for larger game than an overcoat—was I sure I didn't want to sell him a gold mine or wasn't it something in oil? His London overcoat! Grrrrrrrrrr! And him sitting right there at his desk! Just wait till he called the cops!

"'Hey!' I barked as he dragged me toward the phone. 'I must a made a mistake in the door—just let me call Sandy McIntosh on this corridor.'

"At which the same awful sound emanated from his paws. He'd had his office in that corridor the last five years and knew every name on the doors, and the nearest thing to McIntosh was J. K. Smith! I got a glimpse of an envelope and I saw I was one floor below Sandy, but my athletic friend was howling into the telephone and the knowledge did no good, as when he had finished he began talking fast to the populace already crowding in. Yes, I even got taken over to the station. There, gritting my teeth, I made the lieutenant listen to my story and send for Sandy. I was morally certain at first glance that he was going to be a brute and say he had never laid eyes on me before—but Sandy is a good sport. He took me out afterward and bought me an ice-cream soda and didn't float once. However, I have finished being light and joysome henceforth. I am completely sold to gloom, pessimism and the straight and narrow! Gosh!"

"Our laws are not nearly severe enough," the Woodlawn man said regretfully.—Exchange.

Connecticut's Senatorship

Every Vote Needed.

(Ansonia Sentinel.)

In taking this course we are mindful of the situation at Washington. We recognize that the republican majority in the senate is slender and Connecticut ought to be relied upon to fully sustain and uphold President Coolidge in his endeavors to recommend and provide suitable legislation for the country. The loss of a republican senator in Connecticut would be little short of a calamity under the circumstances. The republican majority in the United States senate is so slender that a combination of democrats and radicals might embarrass, if not entirely defeat, the remedial legislation that President Coolidge will recommend.

Bingham Is Needed.

(New Haven Register.)

Pro-Coolidge heelers for Hamilton Holt have lately been salving their consciences by contending that the president doesn't need the support of the man who will be elected December 16 to fill Connecticut's vacant senate seat. They protest that the administration will have a majority of four in the upper house of the new congress and that Mr. Holt is sympathetic with many of the president's views anyway.

In taking such an attitude they are only pulling the wool over their own eyes. The administration has no majority in the senate now in session, where the vote of a staunch Coolidge man is sure to be of value in helping to withstand attempts at congressional extravagance that doubtless will be made before March 4. President Coolidge can count upon only 47 votes in that body, whereas a coalition of democrats and progressives can control 48 votes. Connecticut holds the remaining vote, sorely needed by the administration this winter.

Moreover, the administration's majority of four in the next senate includes Borah, Hiram Johnson, Norris and Capper, whose support of President Coolidge has been notably spasmodic. Therefore, it is of great importance to the administration that Connecticut now send to the senate, not a democrat and pro-leaguer who may have some political ideas similar to those of President Coolidge, but a man of steady republican principles. A state which supported the president by such overwhelming majorities only a month ago should not now go back on him and repudiate that support because of a political incident of entirely local significance.

Bingham and Holt on World Court.

The following statement has been issued by the republican state central committee:

"Persistent efforts are being made to create the impression that Hamilton Holt, democratic nominee for United States senator, supports President Coolidge's world court proposal and that Hiram Bingham, republican nominee, has not made his position clear on this matter. Inasmuch as the world court issue seems to occupy a prominent position in many political meetings, the position of the two candidates on this subject is outlined herewith:

"Before Hamilton Holt was nominated for senator, and less than two months ago, he spoke at Hartford, international affairs, in which the world court plays a prominent part, were discussed and Mr. Holt's statement was, 'President Coolidge has no remedies.' Now, after receiving the nomination he is making a shrewd attempt to retract republican votes by reversing himself.

'Hiram Bingham devoted considerable time to the world court in his address delivered before the republican state convention at Hartford last April. Colonel Bingham was a temporary chairman of this convention. The text of that part of his address which referred to the world court is quoted:

"'Our disbelief in the league of nations is not due to any desire for material gain or any fondness for injustice. On the contrary, we want 'to establish justice' and we wish for peace on earth, good will among men. If a world court can be established where causes of international grievance can be heard, if more authority can be given to a court like the Hague tribunal, if a plan can be devised which will keep such a court out of international politics as our own supreme court is kept out of national politics, then we favor such a scheme. To quote again from the president's message: 'Our foreign policy has always been guided by two principles. The one is the avoidance of permanent political alliances which would sacrifice our proper independence. The other is the peaceful settlement of controversies between nations. By example and by treaty we have advocated arbitration. For nearly 25 years we have been a member of the Hague tribunal, and have long sought the creation of a permanent world court of justice.' The president is in full accord with both of these policies. He favors the establishment of such a court. That is, and long has been, a republican policy.'

"In the republican national convention at Cleveland, Colonel Bingham was elected member of the resolutions or platform committee representing Connecticut. This committee drew the world court plank in the republican national platform, upon which the last campaign was conducted. Colonel Bingham was heartily in favor, and voted for the world court plank adopted by the platform committee and later adopted by the convention. The plank is quoted:

"'The republican party reaffirms its stand for agreement among the nations to prevent war and preserve peace. As an immediate step in this direction we indorse the permanent court of international justice and favor the adherence of the United States to this tribunal as recommended by President Coolidge. This government has definitely refused membership in the league of nations and to assume any obligations under the covenant of the league. On this we stand.'"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The distinction of being the first real representative of the British Labor party to be knighted has fallen to Sir James O'Grady, whom the king has created a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. Sir James is the new governor of Tasmania, and the first Labor colonial governor. Born in Bristol in 1866, he was apprenticed to a cabinetmaker at the age of 10 years. Before he had attained his majority he had risen to prominence in his trade union and it was due to his activity as a union official that he was in due course elected to the House of Commons by the Labor Party. He was for a time president of the General Federation of Trade Unions and afterwards formed the National Federation of General Workers, of which he became secretary.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Lester, John Sherman and F. A. Benton transported Troop No. 1 and Scout Master A. L. Peale for Scout works.

Arthur L. Peale gave an interesting talk and called on his troop to give scout tests and games on the platform. The troop accredited themselves well and showed their good training under a veteran. Thirteen boys signed up to form a troop and the troop will be known as Voluntown Community Troop No. 1.

PREPARING WAY FOR REFERENDUM VOTE ON ELECTRIC PLANT SALE

The possibility of a sale of the municipal gas and electric plant on North Main street after twenty years of ownership by the city promises to come before the citizens on a referendum vote. This, it is understood, will be the recommendation of Mayor Milo R. Waters and the special committee of the common council which the mayor will call for Wednesday evening. The other members of the committee are Alderman Henry Gebrath and Edward Crooks.

The committee was in conference at times Monday with representatives of the high bidders for the plant, A. E. Fitkin & Co., of New York, whose offer is for $3,000,000. It is the attitude of the council committee, it is understood, that they are willing to work sympathetically with the Fitkin people in their attempt to buy the city property and that the time has now arrived that the decision should be submitted to the citizens in a referendum vote.

The three representatives of the Fitkin Co., who met the council committees were Mr. Trumbull supervisor of new work, Mr. Davis and Attorney Samuel Moorhouse of New Haven. They were engaged in drafting the necessary petition to the legislature and the citation to the superior court, which are steps to be taken in the legal proceedings.

During Monday, Attorney Edmund W. Perkins was in communication with Mayor Waters to whom he intimated that he might have a bid from a Boston concern to offer at the special common council meeting. Attorney Perkins did not disclose who his client was.

Discussion on the sale of city gas and electric plant has been before the public ever since last March and April when the first offer to buy was made by the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., at $1,700,000 with a reduction in rates that was figured to amount to $94,000.

Another offer that has been made has been from the Central Connecticut Power and Light company of East Hampton, bidding $2,250,000 in cash, or $1,750,000 in cash and $750,000 in notes payable in 15 years, making the purchase price $2,500,000.

On Sunday representatives of a company that desired to put in a bid met the mayor and the committee but were told that the bids had closed last Friday. It is not known whether these are the clients who Attorney Perkins referred to when he saw the mayor Monday.

NEW YORK REPORT OF NORWICH SALE

New York, Dec. 8.—(By the A. P.)—A. E. Fitkin and company, New York, have acquired, subject to municipal referendum, the Norwich Gas and Electric Company, of Norwich, Connecticut. The deal was effected on a bid of $3,000,000. The Fitkin interests agreed to pay $2,600,000 cash and to assume the funded debt of the Norwich company. This will be the first public utility acquisition in New England by the Fitkin interests, which control properties in eight states. The Norwich company is municipally owned, hence the necessity of obtaining an electoral mandate before the property can be transferred.

The first unit of a $5,000,000 power plant, the initial installation costing $1,000,000, will soon be in operation by the Pinellas County Power company at St. Petersburg, Fla., another Fitkin property. A group of local bankers will accompany A. E. Fitkin and other Fitkin officials on a tour of the company's properties in the south, starting tomorrow.

The New York report of a purchase and sale of the Norwich plant is made on the supposition that the referendum vote by the citizens will be favorable to the offer of the Fitkin company.

TO PROSECUTE FALSE FOOD ADVERTISERS

The practice of false advertising of food products, especially turkeys, has again come to the attention of the state dairy and food commissioner. An investigation is being conducted and prosecutions probably will result.

Commissioner Thomas Holt said this week that advertising turkeys for Thanksgiving and Christmas under various names such as "Ohio," "York State," "Vermont," "Maryland," "Vernon" and "Native" has become ridiculous when, in fact, all of the above variety have been known to come through in one car from Texas or Oklahoma, sorted as to qualify on arrival in Connecticut.

"This is in direct violation of the so-called false advertising law passed at the last session of the general assembly and known as Section 6516 of the general statutes," he said. "It is also contrary to the pure food law which provides that the use of a geographical name should not be permitted in Connecticut with a food product not manufactured or produced in that place, when such name indicates that the article was manufactured or produced in that place. "This law applies to any false advertising, but turkeys will be conspicuous in a short time and it will be well for dealers to have a care as to the form of advertising they use. If they wish to avoid prosecution under this statute, which provides a penalty of $1,000. Newspapers should refuse to print such advertisements when offered to them."

12,833 ALIENS ENTERED STATE LAST YEAR

A total of 12,833 immigrant aliens entered Connecticut the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of Commissioner of Immigration Husband made public Monday. Of this number 8105 entered through New York, 2898 through Canadian border ports, 1090 through Boston 212 through Providence and none through New London and one through Stamford.

In the same period 101 naturalized citizens and 1478 immigrant aliens left Connecticut.

Of the 12,833 immigrant aliens admitted, 346 were professional men or women, and 2596 were skilled workers.

The former classification included 29 clergymen, 53 teachers, 10 actors, 14 musicians, 33 professional engineers, 63 electricians, 17 literary and scientific persons, 18 physicians, and only one lawyer.

The skilled workers included 851 clerks and accountants, 284 carpenters and jointers, 187 iron and stele workers, 158 shoemakers, 135 tailors, 109 weavers and spinners, 139 mechanics and 137 masons.

Sad and somewhat puzzling to note, the list also, includes one "brewer."

Others noted are 28 gardeners, 69 blacksmiths, 56 butchers and 44 marliners.

In the "miscellaneous" list of entrance are 46 fishermen, one hotelkeeper, two bankers; also 1800 laborers, 1060 servants, 723 farm laborers and 396 farmers.

DRY LAW EXPENSES HIGH IN CONNECTICUT

Connecticut proved third most expensive state in New England for the enforcement of the prohibition law, according to figures just issued by the commissioner of internal revenue, for the past fiscal year ended June 30.

In Connecticut it cost the government a total of $63,189.34 to enforce the narcotic and national prohibition acts last year, $1,397.82 of the total being spent for purchase of evidence and miscellaneous items.

Prohibition enforcement in the Bay States was the most expensive of the New England states, the total there being $181,855.88. Maine was next, the total cost in that state amounting to $74,648.40.

In Rhode Island the government spent $48,756.12 to see that prohibition laws were not violated, in Vermont $34,993.63, and in New Hampshire, the least expensive of the six state, $27,968.04.

SMALL BOILER EXPLODES AT STONINGTON MILL

Three persons were injured early Monday morning when a 60-gallon copper boiler in the annex to the boiler room of the plant of the American Velvet Co., in Stonington, exploded and crashed through the roof of the building, causing damage of $3,000. The injured are Charles B. McCourt, a foreman, burgess of the borough and assistant chief of the Stonington fire department; Miss Stella Santos and Miss Rita Victoria, employed at the plant, both of Stonington.

The boiler, used for furnishing hot water for washing, tore through the roof and landed outside in the mill yard. So great was the concussion that the heavy concrete wall was ripped out the entire length of the boiler room. The brick wall, between the annex and the mill proper was badly damaged. Steam pipes, in the path of the boiler were broken. No machinery was damaged.

Operations, which were suspended during the scare, were quickly resumed, the damaged boiler having no part in the running of the plant. A temporary roof was placed on the boiler room before night.

Mr. McCourt's injuries consist of cuts on the left side and legs and shock to the system. The injuries of the Misses Santos and Victoria consisted of shock. They were attended by Dr. W. T. Veal, who rendered emergency treatment, after which they were taken to their homes.

Foreman McCourt was standing near the boiler at the time of the explosion and his escape from fatal injuries is considered marvelous. The girls were at the further end of the room.

Superintendent E. J. Simonson and Clarence C. Wempfheimer of New York, president of the company, who chanced to be in Stonington on an inspection visit at the plant, were unable to explain the accident. The former was at work in his office at the time of the explosion and the latter arrived on the scene a short time later.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined.

SALISBURY MAKES HIS EIGHTH PARDON APPEAL

Two long term prisoners who were sentenced in the superior court in this city, one for life and the other for 15 years at Wethersfield, were appellants before the board of pardons Monday at Hartford.

S. A. G. Salisbury made his eighth appeal. He was sentenced for life on October 9, 1918, for a killing on May 6, 1918. Salisbury shot and killed a man who had threatened him. His counsel cited "Alias Jimmy Valentine" as an illustration of how reformation may be brought about in a criminal. William Kenney, constable, and Herman Chapman, Salisbury's landlord, were the men killed, the crime having been committed in Preston.

Attorney John Blackall of Hartford appeared for Mrs. Mabelle C. Kenyon, 49, who was sentenced Oct. 22, 1920, for ten to fifteen years for manslaughter for the killing of Dr. Herbert Tetlow, her lover, at the town of Stonington. Mrs. Kenyon made an appeal in her own behalf. Her claim was that the killing was the result of her efforts to terminate an impossible situation. Her husband, who had stood by her all through the trial attended the session of the pardon board and counsel declared that he had forgiven her and wanted to take her back home. State's Attorney Brown of New London county, who opposed the pardon, was foreman of the grand jury which indicted Mrs. Kenyon for first degree murder.

P. S. Hills, a friend, pleaded for Milton Wadsworth, sentenced Feb. 21, 1919, to one to ten years for burglary, said the petitioner is a descendant of Joseph Wadsworth of Charter Oak fame. He was found guilty of breaking into a cottage at Westport. He was twice in prison, having violated his parole on the first day out of prison. A petition in Wadsworth's behalf, was submitted.

Seventy-eight cases were on the docket to be heard Monday at the December meeting of the state board of pardons held at the prison at Wethersfield. It is the last session of the board over which Governor Charles A. Templeton will preside, unless a special session is held before the governor goes out of office in January.

There were twenty-nine murderers on the list who petitioned the board for clemency and ten who were charged with manslaughter.

The first case heard was that of Thomas Marro 44 years old, who was sentenced to 20 to 28 years Oct. 5, 1920, at Middletown for a crime committed at Portland Aug. 20, 1920, at the robbery of the First National bank of that town. Marro was born in Italy and his mother, 88 years old, was in the room at the hearing. Judge Anderson of Middletown appeared for Marro and said his client was trying out a new Packard automobile when he made the trip from New York to Portland. The trial was heard by Judge Burpee. State's Attorney Inglis said Marro fired one or two shots in the robbery.

Simon Lacy, 50, convicted April 24, 1918, for the killing January 1, 1918, of one Sanger in Stafford Hollow, said the man killed was his friend and the assault made was in self defense. State's Attorney Noone vigorously opposed clemency. Lacy filed a letter from Sanger's father, extending forgiveness and hoping for a pardon. Lacy was sentenced for ten to fifteen years.

Miss Genevieve Cowles, artist, again appeared for the liberation of Charles H. Bishop, who made his ninth appeal. He has been a "trusty" eight years. He was sentenced for life on December 20, 1906. Miss Cowles asserted Bishop was subject to fits, and it was in one of these that Bishop is said to have killed a Mrs. Williams, whose throat had been cut, her head bruised and a cord tied about her throat.

Vincenzo Sasivero, sentenced on June 30, 1903, made his tenth appeal for pardon. He shot Antonio Simminelli following a quarrel which grew out of a card and drinking party on Jackson street in Waterbury.

Michele Carpinelli, 44, made his seventh appeal for pardon. He was convicted Dec. 3, 1907, at Waterbury for a killing committed Sept. 2 of that year. The petitioner was quarreling with one Botticelli when one Genevo was shot and killed by a stray bullet. It was Genevo who handed the gun to Carpinelli to protect himself from Botticelli, who attacked him with a scissors. Pasquale Cappianca was also shot and killed in the fighting.

In behalf of William Kyanskas, 22, serving one to eight years for statutory burglary committed at Waterbury in the theft of tools from a garage, it was claimed he is of low mentality. He was sentenced Sept. 25, 1923.

Charles Bassett made his ninth appeal for a pardon. He has been in prison since Dec. 22, 1905, for a crime committed in Middlebury. A warrant that had been issued in Canada for a crime committed when he was a boy has since been withdrawn.

Mike Kalachuk, serving 18 to 15 years and a payment of a $1,000 fine for possession of explosives unlawfully, was sentenced Sept. 21, 1920. It was claimed that on July 1, 1920, he planned to blow up a house on Crescent street in Waterbury formerly occupied by Police Superintendent Beach.

GOES TO JAIL TO WORK OUT HIS FINE

Edmund Robertson, 49, West Main street, was fined $200 and costs in the city court Monday morning after he had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of selling liquor. He was unable to pay up, his bill totaling $216.75, and he went to jail. The arrest was made by Police Sergeant Thomas Murphy and Officers Patrick Murphy and John Donovan. Albert W. Higgins, 49, of Hartford, was fined $200 and costs for driving his automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was given ten days in jail, suspended for a year. Higgins paid his bill, amounting to $212.80.

The reckless driving case against Benjamin Mandell was nolled by Judge Arthur F. Libby on recommendation of City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins. One man was fined $10 and costs for intoxication and a man and his wife were fined $5 and costs each for intoxication. Two West Side men were given suspended jail sentences of five days each and fined actual costs on breach of the peace charges. They were mixed up in a fight at Thames square Saturday evening and were arrested by Officer John Donovan.

Human Calculator Wins

M. Inaudi, French lightning calculator, was recently pitted against 12 of the best types of machines for calculating sums and he came off with all but one honor. M. Inaudi easily beat his mechanical competitors in addition, substraction, division and finding the square of the cube, but in extracting the square root of a number a machine came out first. In the complicated problems the man won easily.

BULKELEY HAS EIGHT PLAYERS ON ALL-COUNTY MYTHICAL ELEVEN

ALL-COUNTY ELEVEN

Daniels, Bulkeley High, right end.
Watterson, Bulkeley High, right tackle.
Brown, Bulkeley High, right guard.
Dillon, Bulkeley High, center.
Henkle, Bulkeley High, quarterback.
Hinrichs, Norwich Free Academy, right halfback.
Kannenburg, Chapman Tech, fullback.

In selecting an All-New London county team one high school team stands out [illegible] the rest thereby draws the largest percentage of players on the mythical eleven. This team is Bulkeley of New London and recognized as one of the two best teams in the state so it is logical that the majority of players for the all-county eleven should be drawn from this team. The Academy contributes one player in Jack Hinricks, Chapman Tech adds another in Paul Kannenberg and Westerly contributes a third in Novagroski.

Almost every player selected has had at least two years of varsity high school football experience and this was a determining factor hanging in balance when an individual selection was made for any one position. Some players even had three years experience and it is known for a fact that two Bulkeley players saw four years active service under their school colors. Playing, not of the spectacular sort, but of the stead consistent kind, together with fine sportsmanship has played a part in the selection made. There is individual glory for a man, probably the only one from his team to be selected on the team which represents the all-county eleven. But the player selected most generally deserves the honor conferred upon him of else he would be supplanted by a player who is far superior to the one mentioned in the selection.

Football as we know it is a team game not individual play. Others have their selections to offer and might be stronger, but give the team selected a week's practice for organization purposes solely, there would be little doubt that the combination selected above is the strongest possible eleven obtainable.

End Positions

Tillie Daniels leaves little to be desired as far as taking care of a wing position is concerned. He is at present one player who has been selected twice on all-state teams. His ability to catch forward passes, coupled with ability to break up the opposing interference easily gives him this position. The shifting of Georgie Sheflott from a half back berth to end because of the scarcity of wing material this season finds a capable man as Daniels' partner. Sheflott is fast, heavy and not easy to bowl over. His recent operation for appendicitis robbed him of performing his best this year.

He was an all-state selection last year at end.

Tackles

For a pair of tackles, there is little doubt as to the expert ability of the two Bulkeley players, Watterson and Gavitt. They are players who have every qualification for their respective berths and with two or more year of experience plus weight that makes them as heavy as any player who played these positions this year in this section. Gavitt is 178 pounds of muscle. Watterson weighs four pounds less. Their ability speaks for itself for Bulkeley was scored on but four times this year, and the yardage gained on the Orange and Black is a trifle compared to the number of yards Bulekeley gained against her opponents. Their selection to the tackle positions is unanimous.

Guards

Novagroski and Brown make up the guards. Nocagroski hails from Westerly and is the only lineman to break up the selection of an entire Bulkeley forward line. His playing this year was far above the ordinary seen in league play. The kicks that he blocked gained some good ground for Westerly this year. While another time he stopped a kick before it left a Norwich kicker's toe and scored a touchdown against the Red and White winning the game for Westerly. Brown of Bulkeley is consistent, a fine offense and defense player and whose sportsmanship was the best during the past seasonu. He would make a good mate for Novagroski.

Center

Jerry Dillon's work at center for Bulkeley this year has surpassed all pdevious efforts Dillon has attempted. His third year on the Bulkeley team, Dillon was one of the best defensive centers in the state. His passing all was good, not one bad pass was made by him. He could open holes in the opposing line as well, and he deserves unlimited praise for his ability as a pivot man.

Quarterback

The backfield was a problem that was not so easy to solve. Edward Henkie easily drew the barker's assignment, for his work all season and that position was not even approached by any other player in this section of the state. He was a Red Grange of the high school running 70 yards after a kick-off for a touchdown against N. F. A. He also accounted for three other scores against the Academy. His selection of play was not to be questioned, and his runing-back of punts was a strong requisite in this quarterback make-up.

Righ Halfback

The selection of Hinrichs [illegible] half-back berth in preference to Brown of Chapman Tech, although Hinrichs natural position is fullback, is because of his defensive ability, his interference which he could furnish either Rice or Henkie on the dashes around end or tackle, and his ability to crush over the line for a yard or more when needed. He is a valuable man, so valuable that he could not be left out of the final selection. Brown had ability to skirt ends and slide off tackle for gains, but an interfering back had to be chosen to do away with all ball carriers and little can Hinrichs is a bear on defense and his selection will meet with approval since his good qualities as a defensive [illegible] He was also a good drop-kicker.

Fullback

Paul Kannenberg deserves [illegible] fullback position. His playing all season was nothing short of spectacular. Being rangy and well built [illegible] through for many precious yardage in Tech during the past season. He is a fair interfering back, and back on the line fairly well. Another year will improve him greatly.

Special mention should be given some of the other players and these are, Williams, quarterback for N. F. A.; Brown, halfback, Chapman Tech; Haslam, N. F. A. at center; Carlin, end, N. F. A.; Hagberg, guard, N. F. A; Foote and Muscarella, Stonington; Meikle, Westerly and Collins of Bulkeley. Of ocurse there are others that should be mentioned, but the first team selection and the names mention above will find the best performers of the past year.

HARTFORD CRESCENTS AT TAFTVILLE THIS EVENING

Filled with confidence after their decisive victory a week ago over the fast South Manchester quintet the Army-Navy club of Taftville clashes in Parish Hall tonight with the Hartford Crescents. The hoopsters from the Capitol City come here with the reputation of being one of the leading teams in the state as their record of 24 victories and five defeats show. Some of their victims were the Springfield Y. M. C. A., Norwalk Red Men, Middletown, Southington and other teams of like calibre. This season, although defeated by the Bay State "Y" boys they have encountered the same strong opposition in other fast organizations in the state and have emerged a victor. During the latter part of next month they are scheduled to play the Atlas Five of New Haven, champions of Connecticut, and the outcome of such a battle is anticipated with interest. The following men will appear in the lineup: Silverman, Morrissey, Bennett, Pentland, Hafner and Callahan.

The local boys after a stiff workout Sunday feel confident they will come out of tonight's fray on the long end of the score. Manager Murphy has made a slight change in the lineup for tonight's battle. Murphy and Belair will play the forward positions and Harris, well known local "Y" player, will jump at center to replace Mills who injured his wrist last Tuesday night. The new pivot man is a newcomer and a youngster in the game but if he can show some of the speed and flash he is reputed to possess he will become a great asset to the team and a favorite with the fans. The guard position will be taken care of by G. Coleman and T. Coleman and Mills.

The preliminary game will be between the Army-Navy seconds and the Vandals.

SAINTS BATTLE TO SCORELESS TIE AT NEW LONDON

The St. Patrick's grammar school football team battled to a scoreless tie with the St. Mary's school team at New London on Monday afternoon. Although outweighed the Saints put the Whaling team on the defensive at the start of the game and the play was in the St. Mary territory during the greater part of the fray. Jim Shea, the Saints' fullback, contributed the long run of the game tearing off 50 yards before he was downed. Capt. Marks also starred intercepting a pass and wormed his way almost through the opposition. Mingo and Berginzo were the chief ground gainers for the Saints but the St. Mary's line held when close to the goal and the Norwich school boys were unable to cross the final mark.

In the last quarter St. Patrick's team threatened the Whalers goal but a fumble spoiled their chance of scoring. After taking possession of the ball after the kick-off Shea skirted the end for 50 yards before he was brought down. Mingo made four yards around the end and Drew three. Shea made first down and Berginzo brought the ball to St. Mary's five yard line. On the next play Shea fumbled and St. Mary's recovered the ball. St. Mary's boys then brought the ball out and held possession of it until the game ended.

HODAPP EXPECTS TO BE BOUGHT BY THE GIANTS

Cincinnati, Dec. 8—Johnny Hodapp, Cincinnati youngster, who showed brilliantly at Indianapolis in his first professional season last season, expects to become a New York Giant in the spring. He asserted today that negotiations for his purchase are under way, and that he is all set for the trip to Florida with McGraw's men.

"I was told," he said, "to be ready for a call from John McGraw, and I suppose that means a deal between Indianapolis and New York."

BASEBALL OWNERS EXPECTING HARD FIGHT BETWEEN LANDIS AND JOHNSON

New York, Dec. 8 (By the A. P.).—One of the stormiest winter baseball sessions on record, with Commissioner Landis and President Johnson of the American league as the centers of a controversy that has gathered increasing vigor since the world's series and the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal, was in prospect tonight on the eve of the annual major league meetings.

The National league, at its session tomorrow, is expected to take the first important step by adopting resolutions pledging the senior circuit's unqualified support to Commissioner Landis, by endorsing his action in handling the scandal, and, by inference at least, condemn attacks made upon the veteran jurist by Johnson.

The American league's annual gathering is slated for Wednesday, and there were strong indications that Johnson would face another fire, directed by members of his own organization. Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, has disclosed that a majority of American league magnates intend to adopt resolutions supporting Landis and criticising their leader's antagonism to Landis, together with Johnson's failure to attend the world's series.

Assured of practically unanimous National league backing, and apparently well supported in American league ranks, Landis, in the opinion of observers, was strongly entrenched for the final act of the drama scheduled for the joint major league meeting Thursday. A year ago, at Chicago, Landis was understood to have been given a vote of confidence after threatening to quit his position, as a result of criticism from Johnson and the latter's supporters. It was believed in some quarters here that this week's sessions would produce a final "showdown."

There was some doubt tonight whether Commissioner Landis would be here in time for the joint meeting, because of the illness of Mrs. Landis.

Johnson had been expected to arrive today for several conferences with American league men but changed his plans and now does not plan to reach New York until Wednesday, the day of his organization's meeting.

Another feature of the situation revolved about Johnson's charges of gambling in connection with the Pacific Coast league. Reaction to this took place at the minor league gatherings in Hartford, Conn., last week, when resolutions were adopted calling upon the American league executive to produce proof of his charges or retract them.

In reply to this, Johnson announced he would lay the facts in his possession before the directors of his own league, and minor league executives have assembled here to await developments.

It was understood that Harry A. Williams, president of the Pacific Coast league, conferred with magnates of his circuit today to frame a course of action to protect their own interests.

National league club owners, ostensibly meeting this afternoon to discuss plans for their golden jubilee celebration next year, were understood to have discussed and approved a draft of resolutions supporting Landis to be presented tomorrow. This meeting was attended by Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburg president, who criticized Landis at the time of the Dolan-O'Connell disclosures, and also by John McGraw, manager and part owner of the New York Giants, who was the subject of accusations by Dreyfuss.

The re-election of President John A. Heydler for another term is expected to be unanimous, thus setting at rest reports that a move might be made to replace him. No opposition to Heydler appeared at today's meeting, it was learned.

The award of the National league's "most valuable player" prize of $1,000 to Dazzy Vance, great Brooklyn pitcher, will be authorized by the club owners. At the same time, however, President Heydler will lay before them a letter from the St. Louis chapter of baseball writers, asking that details of the balloting be made public as a result of the selection of Vance in preference to Rogers Hornsby, famous St. Louis second baseman and slugger.

While not protesting the award, the St. Louis writers ask the findings of the special committee of baseball writers representing each city in the league, which voted the prize to Vance, be given out in order to reveal which committeeman failed to include Hornsby among his first ten rankings.

SEVERAL BIG TRADES EXPECTED AT MEETING

New York, Dec. 8.—A brisk trade market in connection with the major league meetings was in prospect tonight with the gathering of major and minor league men from all parts of the country but most of the deals discussed were in a tentative stage.

Possibility of a three-cornered transaction involving Cincinnati, New York and Chicago National league clubs loomed after direct negotiations between the Cubs and Giants apparently had come to a halt. Owners of the three clubs were in conference tonight but declined to reveal what they had in mind.

The proposed deal by which the Giants were to obtain Catcher Bob O'Farrell for Outfielder Emil (Irish) Meusel was said to have fallen through when the Cubs insisted upon obtaining George Kelly, Giant outfielder-first baseman, instead of Meusel. Cincinnati desires to get either Kelly or Bill Terry, young first baseman, from the Giants to replace the late Jake Daubert.

Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tigers, said he had several deals pending but did not disclose details of them. He denied, however, that he continued trading Lou Blue, his first baseman.

CHAPMAN TECH OPENS BASKETBALL SEASON TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 8—An earlier start in basketball will be made than what was expected at first at Chapman Tech. The Red and Black will open its present season at the school auditorium this (Tuesday) evening against the Pratt High school of Essex in the second contest of two that are scheduled for the evening. Besides the high school tilt, the Mu Iotas will battle with the Kaybrook team.

Steady work along the developing lines has about terminated satisfactorily, so that Coach Weaver of the Tech five is able to announce the team which will step out on the floor against the Pratt High school quintet. Captain Bernard Hewitt will take care of the pivot position, while Red Andrews, a veteran of last season, will be seen at right forward. His running mate has not been selected as yet, but it is a tossup between Zaparanick and Hicks. Hicks saw more service with last year's winning team at the Connecticut Agricultural college tournament, and will undoubtedly be the other forward to mate up with Andrews. The guards are undecided as yet, but Martin, a substitute last year, will be found at one guard position, while the other open place will find Booth, Everts and Knox each working hard to get the call over the other for the opening game.

Chapman Tech is expected to be able to keep up its stiff pace of last season, and though little is known of the ability of the Pratt players, they always have a good combination to oppose Tech each season. Tech will put forth her best efforts this evening to insure a good start. An overwhelming victory will be an indication that the Red and Black will be as strong this year as last.

GIBBONS READY TO BATTLE KID NORFOLK TONIGHT

New York, Dec. 8.—Tom Gibbons, St. Paul light heavyweight, and Kid Norfolk, Baltimore negro, who meet for fifteen rounds in the feature bout of the annual Christmas fund boxing carnival at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, today were declared by their managers to be fit for the fray.

Gibbons is a strong favorite, from his record of boxing skill and iron-jawed reception of the best that good men could give, but the match is regarded as one of the most important mixed affairs since the establishment of the new state athletic commission and unusual public enthusiasm has arisen to indicate that the Garden's capacity will be tested.

Another interesting argument is seen in the matching of Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion, and Tiger Flowers, a negro who has been advancing speedily in the last two years and who is making his first appearance in the arena operated by Tex Reckard. He has appeared several times in Harlem rings. This bout is scheduled for ten rounds.

Norfolk undoubtedly realizes that this appearance may mean the starting of a fortune which has long been denied him. Last summer the negro heavyweight, Harry Wills, always a good fighter but balked in his every attempt to realize on his ability, managed to obtain a bout with the then outstanding South American, Louis Angel Firpo, for which he received a stippend assuring his financial independence.

Possibly the Baltimore negro, who has been denied competition with the best of the whites, is confident of humbling Gibbons in a manner that has never before been known where the Minnesotan was concerned, but boxing followers are inclined to believe that the same feet and legs which bore Gibbons so gallantly in his meet with champion Dempsey at Shelby, Mont., for fifteen rounds, will sustain him tomorrow in the Garden ring.

Norfolk has the power and the punch; Gibbons the greatest defense of any of the heavyweights, and a heart that never has faltered under fire. The St. Paul man once remarked that Dempsey hit him squarely at Shelby and he saw "blue streaks"—but he didn't go down.

They vary perhaps half an inch in height. Each has scored several knockouts and many decisions over good opponents. Gibbons has never felt a knockout punch; Norfolk has been knocked out four times, once by Harry Wills in two rounds.

In the 10 round preliminaries Tommy O'Brien, Milwaukee lightweight, will face Eddie (Kid) Wagner of Philadelphia.

WALKER BEATS MALONE IN NO-DECISION BOUT

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 8—Mickey Walker, world welterweight champion, defeated Jock Malone of St. Paul in a ten round no-decision boxing contest here tonight, winning nine out of ten rounds according to the majority of newspaper men at the ringside.

The welter titleholder conceded six pounds to his St. Paul foe, and outboxed and outslugged him from the start. The fourth round was Malone's best. He exchanged punches to the head in a thrilling toe-to-toe rally in the center of the ring, turning Mickey half way around with a short right cross.

Walker set a furious pace in the eighth and ninth rounds, hooking lefts to the body that slowed Malone up.

Malone tried desperately but his punches lacked force. Walker won the tenth round although Malone fought back hard.

Tonight's contest was the third meeting of the pair and was fought before 8,000 spectators. Walker weighed 148 1-4 and Malone 153 3-4 pounds at 3 p. m.

M'COY MURDER TRIAL STARTS AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Dec. 8.—Neatly tailored but very unlike the debonair youth of twenty years ago, when he was the prize-ring idol of the nation, Norman Selby, alias Kid McCoy, sat through the first session of superior court here today listening intently to the examination of prospective jurors who will decide his guilt or innocence of the murder of Mrs. Theresa W. Mors, divorced wife of Albert Mors, antique dealer last August.

Opening clashes of opposing counsel indicated that the defense will hinge its plea for acquittal on the testimony of Mrs. Iva Martin, who lived in the apartment where Mrs. Mors was slain.

Attorney George Shrewe declared to the court that Mrs. Martin, testifying for the defense, would identify the "heavy thick set" man she saw running from the apartment immediately after the screams and a shot were heard as the husband, Mors, not McCoy.

LANDIS MAY NOT BE ABLE TO ATTEND BASEBALL MEETING

Rochester, Minnesota, Dec. 8.—Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, declared late today that he would not decide whether he could attend the baseball meeting in New York Thursday until he had received the report of the Mayo clinic on the condition of Mrs. Landis, whom he brought here today.

"Mrs. Landis is here for examination at the Mayo clinic," Mr. Landis said, "and I must await the physicians' report before deciding definitely whether I can go. If I go, I will have to leave here tomorrow evening."

Neither Judge Landis, nor the hospital authorities would give any information concerning the nature of Mrs. Landis' illness but a report from the clinic is expected tomorrow. If her condition is not serious, Judge Landis will leave for New York.

TUNNEY BEATS SMITH DECISIVELY AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, Dec. 8.—Gene Tunney, of New York, American light heavyweight champion, had all the better of his 15-round no-decision match tonight with Jeff Smith, of Bayonne, N. J. For the first time in a career extending over fourteen years of fighting in nearly every country on the globe, Smith was knocked down when he sank to the canvas in the twelfth round before wicked left punches to his ribs.

CHARTER OAK TEAM AT AETNA TONIGHT

A Challenge

The First Combat Train indoor baseball team challenges Taftville, Greeneville, Thamesville, West Side, Yantic, or any other team in and around Norwich, barring none. So far the Combat train has played a fast grade of baseball, taking the measure of real fast teams. An example was the Faber's Demons, who trimmed all other teams they played. Other teams which did not give the same opposition as the Demons, but were considered fast, were the Fitchville, A. C., All Stars of Norwich, and the Valiants. The Combat Train has the strongest aggregation it ever had. With the following lineup, the soldiers have beaten all teams and continue to do so: Tombarl, c; Burdick, p; Cimikoski, 1b; Zaremba, 2b; Chamos, ss; Puruznik, ss; Kelly 3b; Ludlow, lf; Nye, cf; Byington, rf; Any team accepting this challenge please answer through this paper as soon as possible.

SPORTING NOTES

The national League has had eight presidents during the half century of its existence.

Billiard balls are usually made from the best ivory, which costs as much as $800 a hundred pounds.

Construction of Chicago's newest golf course was begun and completed within a period of twelve weeks.

A mammoth bonspiel is to be held in Toronto in January to celebrate the jubilee of the Ontario Curling Association.

Colonel Green Berry Williams, a celebrated turfman who died at Gallatin, Tenn., in 1874, continued active as a breeder and driver of races until his ninety-ninth year.

The big stake event of the race meeting opening at the Fair Grounds track in New Orleans on New Year's Day will be the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap, which will be run on February 7.

Busy days are these for the college basketball teams, which will have the center of the intercollegiate stage for several months, now that football has passed into the realm of the past.

Former Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, for many years prominent as a breeder of race horses, has decided to sell his magnificent stock farm near Lexington, Ky., and retire from the turf.

Speaking of veteran golf officials, a record that is probably without an equal is that of Edward B. Tufts, who has held the presidency of the Southern California Golf Association for twenty years.

Eddie Eagan, the new boxing captain of Oxford University, and the first American to receive that honor, plans by way of celebration to bring a team of English university boxers to America during the Christmas holidays.

Jimmy McAvoy, catcher for the Buffalo team, is facing the necessity of another operation at his home in Rochester, N. Y., because of a stiffened finger of his throwing hand. Jimmy can't bend the finger now, and it is known that the digit kept him out of the game several weeks last season. It is said that the finger must be laid on a block, broken and reset. Buffalo recently asked waivers on McAvoy, but it is understood they have been recalled.

A new eight-club baseball league made up of towns in northern Kansas and southern Nebraska is in prospect for next season.

Lyceum Theater, New London

The presentation of Cecil B. De Mille's now famous dramatic spectacle, The Ten Commandments, at the Lyceum theater, New London, tomorrow, will be an event of great interest not only to picture patrons, but to theater-goers and the general public as well. The magnitude of the production; the importance of its theme, and the celebrity that it has gained in America and England, raise it to a point of importance far above even the higher levels of popular entertainment. The presentations will be given in New London and the picture will not be shown at any other theater there during the present season. Two showings with orchestral accompaniment will be given daily, at 2:20 and 8:20 during the engagement, which is for four days only.

Breed Theater

Romance, it is agreed, is greatest of all the "ingredients" contained in the modern photoplay of popular appeal. While motion picture producers strive, through various means, to give the public "what it wants," it is ever evident that a beautiful romance stirs the hearts of old and young alike.

And now comes to the screen the greatest romance in American history. Barbara Frietchie, a fiegal production, which is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today and Wednesday. Through the near perfection of screen technique, this famous story is made to unfold on the silver sheet with a realism that carries the audience back through history to Civil war days, for it is endowed with qualities of feminine subtlety, sweetness and delicacy so often missing in modern tales of love. And certainly, romance was never faced by greater obstacles than the love of Barabara Frietchie and Will Trumbull, which proved greater than the principles that divided North and Sguth and stood the test not only of separation, but of actual conflict between the girl's brother and sweetheart.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and a roaring two part comedy.

Broadway Theater

It's a truly wonderful show that you'll see at the Broadway theater today and tomorrow. Five splendid acts Keith vaudeville and positively the finest picture that ever came to Norwich.

On the vaudeville program the following acts in order, appeared:

George and Ethel Livingston offered Dental Dexterity. An unlimited field for fun is opened here and the Livington's rise to the opportunity offered.

Scully and Caplin in Stepping Out have a song and dance routine that is hard to beat.

A skit replete with clever comedy is the offering by John Barton and Co., in Money Talks. It is really a freshly minted comedy featuring Anne Ashley and a company of four. It contains novel effects and dancing.

Only an Irishman can get most out of a humorous story and Johnny Murphy in Timely Topics Tunefully Told does just that.

A rare bit of bird novelty is the closing feature and in The Pigeon Cabaret you'll get a rare treat.

Pola Negri's new Paramount picture, Forbidden Paradise, is the feature at the Broadway theater today and Wednesday. It's an Ernest Lubitsch production and features Rod La Rocque, Adolphe Menjou and Pauline Starke. Lubitsch was loaned to Paramount by Warner Brothers.

There's an A-1 cast playing in support.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Less than one week after the Hartford and Willimantic railroad was opened a fatality occurred, one of the brakemen on the train being badly mangled when a portion of a train was derailed.

News from the California gold fields came in some 30 days late from the west bringing news both good and bad to Norwich families. The first death of Norwich men was reported among the items and newspapers sent by Col. John L. Devotion furnished a wealth of information about the gold fields.

Items in part from the Courier of 75 years ago are as follows:

Tuesday, December 4, 1849—The first death on the Hartford and Willimantic railroad occurred the day before yesterday. Through some accident to one of the cars, a portion of the train was thrown from the track and one of the brakemen, whose name we do not know, was instantly killed, his body being shockingly mangled and mutilated.

The postmaster general's report obtained through surreptitious means, has been published in the Philadelphia Ledger. It appears from the report that during the past years the increase in the number of postoffices for the United States has been 588, postmasters appointed 6,333, of which 209 were removed. Revenue $4,904,000. Appropriations unexpended $265,000. Expenditures $4,470,000. Balance in the treasury $691. Estimated expenses of the current year are $4,550,000. Estimated revenue is $4,992,000. Estimated balance next June $1,033,000. It recommends a uniform rate of five cents and the employment of additional clerks. The department is in a very flourishing condition. The report denounces all railroad monopoly.

The steamer Empire City left New York on Saturday afternoon with 244 passengers and the mails for Chagres. Among the passengers were several from this locality who left here several days ago to try to make their fortunes in the gold fields of California.

Thursday, December 6, 1849—Citizens of Norwich are asked to come to the postoffice and get the mail that is awaiting them. The list published in The Courier is one of the largest the office has been required to publish in some time, there being 75 women and 125 men who have mail awaiting them at the postoffice.

Next week at Uncas hall there will be a marvelous exhibition of electricity and natural magic which will be accompanied by an explanatory lecture and scientific demonstration by the world's greatest magician and necromancer, Herr Alexander.

No speaker of the national house of representatives has yet been elected, ten ballots having been taken. On the tenth ballot Howell Cobb of Georgia had 99 votes and R. C. Winthrop of Massachusetts, the only candidate 97. Looking on at this distance it seems to us quite impossible for either Winthrop or Cobb to be carried in and we think a new cast of characters will be required before anything can be accomplished.

At Gales Ferry on December 3rd, Dr. Rufus W. Matthewson and Miss Susan Ellen Williams, also of Gales Ferry were united in marriage. Relatives and friends from Norwich attended the service.

Saturday, December 8, 1849—The steamship Crescent City, Captain Stoddard, commander, arrived at New York yesterday morning a little after 11 o'clock. The Crescent City left Chagres on the 28th ult. and brings $815,000 in gold on freight; her passengers have enough to increase the amount to $1,000,000. Among the passengers on the Crescent City are J. P. Judd his Hawaiian majesty's plenipotentiary, accompanied by his Master Liholiho, the heir presumptive and his brother Kamhameha, who will proceed to Washington and in a few days, to Europe.

Those who returned on the boat report that when they left San Francisco there were at least 100 British vessels in the harbor. The wharves at San Francisco are heaped with merchandise and the streets are filled with ponderous boxes and bales of goods and not in proper condition for winter rains while loaded drays block the thoroughfares. During the month of October the arrivals of emigrants at the Port of San Francisco by sea were as follows: Americans, 2,655; foreigners, 1,414, making a total of 4,068 of which there are 70 American women and 49 foreign women.

Among the deaths recorded in the Pacific News on the 30th of October is that of William L'Hommedieu of Mobile, Ala. He was, we understand, a connection of William L'Hommedieu of this city and leaves a wife, daughter of Elder Bentley of this city and a child in Norwich. Also recorded in the news of October 18th is the death of Harden Hopkins of Greeneville. He died at Sacramento City about the 7th of October after a few days illness. He leaves in Greeneville, a wife and one child.

We are indebted to Col. John L. Devotion, formerly of this city, for copies of various San Francisco newspapers upon which we shall draw for further news items concerning California.

The contest for speaker still drags its slow length along and when it is likely to terminate nobody can predict.

COOLIDGE LEADING IN WORK TO OUTLAW WAR

Atlanta, Dec. 8—President Coolidge has taken the lead in the move to outlaw war, was the statement made by Professor James T. Shotwell of Columbia University and director of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace at this morning's session of the Quadrennial Meeting of the Federal Council of Churches. The meeting was given up to a discussion of War. Dr. Shotwell's subject was "How to Outlaw War."

Praising the Geneva protocol as offering a chance to get rid of war and also of oppressive armaments, Dr. Shotwell declared that the success of the move to outlaw war depends upon the Christian forces of the world. This document has been received in this country with all the prejudices of the old party struggle over the League of Nations. It has been commented upon in sneering tones by smart young writers. It is time for it to be studied carefully by those whose opinions would be worth while. The essence of the protocol is easily understood although its details are intricate. It begins by three main points which underlie the whole structure:

"First, aggressive war is a crime.

"Second, the states take a mutual obligation not to be guilty of it.

"Third, the definition of aggression, is the refusal to accept recourse to a peaceful method of international settlement. This settlement may be through three main channels (a) By the Permanent Court of International Justice (b) By the use of arbitration (c) By mediation and conciliation of the Council or Assembly of the League of Nations for those countries which belong to the League.

"Any state not using these means to settle its quarrels before going to war is henceforth declared to be an aggressor state, any overt act of war when not preceded by these methods of prevention is an aggression.

"There is nothing in all this program which lessens in any way our national security, there is nothing in it on the contrary which does not increase our influence while leaving us our full measure of independence. In following it we can recover once more the ground which has been slipping beneath our feet for leadership in policies based upon justice. This, with adherence to the world court would be a forward-looking program. But to win we must unite."

MARKET WAS FIRM AS TRADING SLOWED UP

New York, Dec. 8, (By the A. P.)—Trading in stocks slowed up percentibly today with the general list displaying a firm undertone despite the attempt of professional traders to bring about a further reaction. Fifty-four issues mounted to new high levels for the year with total sales slightly in excess of 1,600,000 shares.

Brokers reported that speculators and investors with large paper profits on the long side of the market are showing little disposition to convert them into cash presumably on the theory that by waiting until after the end of the year they will be able to take advantage of the proposed reduction in taxes on 1925 incomes. The rapidity with which a number of stocks rebounded when selling pressure was released indicated a scarcity in the "floating supply."

Some violent fluctuations took place in today's trading. Philips-Jones soared nearly 19 points to 80 on a relatively few sales. Nash Motors jumped 16 points to a record at 190 and then eased 5 points on profit-taking. Net gains of 4 to 9 points also were recorded by Maxwell Motors "B," Adams Express, American Express, J. I. Case, Fisher Body, "Soo" preferred, Pierce-Arrow preferred and United Drug.

Among the many issues to sell at new peak prices were Chicago and Northwest common and preferred, American Telephone, American Water Works, American Locomotive, Pullman Air reduction, Westinghouse Electric, Allied Chemical common and preferred, Worthington Pump, Central Leather preferred, Consolidated Gas and General Asphalt common and preferred.

MISSIONARY WORK FOR THE AMERICAN CHURCHES

Atlanta, Dec. 8—Owing to conditions in Europe, the American churches for the next 15 years must assume the major missionary endeavor throughout the world," said Dr. Charles E. Schaeffer of Philadelphia, secretary of the Board of Home Missions of the Reformed Church in the United States, in an address today before the Federal Council of Churches now in session here.

In addition the speaker pointed out that the American churches also must render financial and spiritual aid to the Protestant churches of a large part of Europe, and said that the churches of the United States must avoid foisting American sectarianism upon European Christians.

"The churches in America must take over, at least temporarily, much of the missionary work which the churches of Europe formerly carried on in other lands. Above all, the churches must seek for a revival of the spirit of confidence and good-will in Europe. There is hatred and class prejudice and racial bitterness. For all this there must be substituted the spirit of love and good-will."

NOL PROSSED A CHARGE OF USING PROFANITY

Boston, Dec. 8.—District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien today nol prossed a charge of using profanity against Robert E. Dinsmore of East Boston, member of the state house of representatives who was arrested earlier in the day at the district atorney's office where he had gone to request a speedy trial on a conspiracy and larceny indictment.

Dinsmore was arrested last week on a charge of being implicated in a conspiracy by which three persons extorted $200 from Harry Buyers, a convicted bootlegger. The grand jury returned indictments against Dinsmore and two others after investigating charges that the money was taken from Buyers by a man impersonating the district attorney who promised Buyers immunity from prosecution.

Owing to the illness of a material witness the trial of Dinsmore was postponed. He went to the district attorney's office to demand immediate trial, and it was there that he was taken in charge by a policeman on the ground that he was using profane language.

HEARING ELECTION CONTEST AGAINST SENATOR MAYFIELD

Washington, Dec. 8.—Theft of a ballot box in the 1922 primary election in Texas by eight armed men was testified to before the senate lections committee hearing the contest against Senator Mayfield democrat, Texas.

W. S. Lewis, an election supervisor in Burleston county, told the committee the box was taken from election officials on election night.

Lewis said he did not know what happened to the box. He declared, however, he had heard it was thrown into the office of the county judge the same night.

Lewis testified that, although he thought one of the pistols carried by one of the band which took the ballot box was like one owned by "Slidge" Houston, klan candidate for sheriff, he was certain Houston was not one of those who took the box.

The ballots in the box had been counted, he told the committee, but they were not counted officially, because, he testified, officials said the result would not have been affected recording them.

EASTMAN'S NEW GIFTS TO EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 8.—George Eastman, of the Eastman Kodak company, today announced new gifts of $12,500,000 to educational institutions, bringing his total known benefactions to $53,515,000, and disposing of the last large block of his personal stock holdings in the Eastman Kodak company.

The institutions which benefit under the new gifts are the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, $4,500,000; Eastman School of Music, $3,000,000; University of Rochester Medical School, $1,500,000; University of Rochester College for Women, $1,500,000; Hampton Institute $1,000,000 and Tuskegee Institute, $1,000,000.

Gifts made today are under terms similar to those made to employes. Stock is sold to the benefiting institutions for less than its actual value.

While provision is made that it may be paid for in instalments during the life of Mr. Eastman, it is given without any restriction regarding the time for sale. It may be sold today, if the beneficiaries desire to part with it.

In the event that they wish to keep the stock, it may be paid for out of its own earnings, as was the case with that given to employes of the company.

If the stock is kept by those to whom it is given, there is the possibility, not only that it may be paid for by its earnings, but it will increase in value, thereby making the gift much less than its present face value.

Despite the fact that he has parted with these large holdings in his company, he made it clear that he will continue to direct the affairs of the company and continue his work there until his death.

OPENING OF SECOND OPIUM CONFERENCE

Geneva, Dec. 8.—The second opium conference, profiting by President Zahle's exhortation to the sub-committees at the morning's plenary session, got down to serious committee work this afternoon.

Activity was particularly noticeable in the sub-committee dealing with the establishment of an international central board for the handling of world-wide opium traffic.

The American and British representatives on this committee stood together for the adoption of the so-called estimate system whereby opium would be allotted nations on the basis of estimates they turned into the board at the beginning of the year for their needs during the ensuing twelve months. Other nations led by the Japanese and French, seemed inclined to favor the so-called statistic system by which the board would make its allotments on the basis of the statistics of opium consumption for the year just passed.

The American contention is that the estimates system provides a surer check of manufacture and export and success in driving down the price for purchasers needing the drug for medical and scientific purposes. Furthermore, the committee was told, America already practices the estimates system regardless of the non-existence of any international convention.

GRAND DUKE CYRIL MAY BE EXPELLED FROM BAVARIA

Berlin, Dec. 8—(By the A. P.)—The Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, who not long ago proclaimed himself czar of all the Russias, whose wife, Grand Duchess Victoria Feodorvna, is now visiting the United States, may soon be obliged to leave Coburg, where he is living in semi-state at present, according to Bavarian advices.

Unemployment of royalty, it appears, has become a serious problem in Bavaria, especially at Coburg and other places in Saxe-Coburg-Gotha which produced rulers for many of the European countries in the pre-war days and now has had many of them turned back to it. The most conspicuous case, it seems, is that of Grand Duke Cyril, who is considered to have gone a bit too far when proclaimed himself czar in succession to the murdered Nicholas II and practically set up a court in Coburg, where former King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, who was deposed when the German empire was dissolved, and many other royal sufferers from the wave of democracy which swept Europe are living at present.

The Bavarian communities have been urging in their parliament that the government must expel Cyril, as the republic cannot permit an alleged court to function within its borders. And while the officials have been slow to act publicly it is known that the Grand Duke had been advised that it would be better for him to move his court to some place where monarchies are more popular, or abandon all claims to the Russian throne and agitation against the Moscow government, with which the German republic is on good terms.

Cyril, apparently, is not much more popular with many of the Romanoffs and former officials from the Petrograd court than he is with the German communists and the soviet government in Moscow. For instance, the former czarina, mother of the late emperor Nicholas, who is a refugee in Denmark, opposes the pretentions of her nephew Cyril to the throne and insists that her son Nicholas may still be alive.

Many other prominent Russians have raised the question as to the strictly orthodox standing of Cyril's branch of the family, some of them arguing that it could not possibly supply a legal czar.

What You Should Know about a baby's care

Illness is usually due to constipation. Quickly give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

THE young mother should watch which foods the baby relishes most, which foods and their quantity cause distress, and act accordingly.

The good health of a baby is largely a matter of intelligent attention to diet. Nevertheless, in spite of your efforts you will sometimes notice belching, flatulence, wind and symptoms of colicky pain.

Give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and thereafter vary the offending food. Syrup Pespin is a laxative admirably suited to infants and children, as it is mild and wholly free from opiates and narcotics.

If you delay in giving it you will soon find the baby suffering from constipation, and that may lead to more serious illness. Half a teaspoonful promptly given will avoid trouble.

Many thousands of mothers have never given their babies any other medicine but Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and they have successfully raised large and sturdy families. The formula is not a secret, being a combination of Egyptian senna with pepsin, and agreeable aromatics. The ingredients are stated on the package. Mrs. Dewey Walker, Elida, N. M., and Mrs. B. Higginbotham, Otter Creek, Fla., are among the many who are firm believers that Syrup Pepsin has kept their families and themselves in good health.

No family with young children can afford to be without such a household medicine. It is effective, beneficial and safe regardless of your age and has been considered so for over thirty years. In consequence it is today the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles being sold annually.

You will find that Syrup Pepsin quickly brings relief in the severest chronic constipation, in biliousness, lack of appetite, sleeplessness, headache, cankers, bad breath, and to stop a cold or fever.

Every druggist sells it, and the cost on the average is less than a cent a dose. It is guaranteed to be effective in these symptoms or your money will be refunded.

WESTERLY

Connecticut state and Stonington borough police officers were at the special session of Stonington town court in Borough hall, before Judge William A. Wilcox Monday morning. There were present Connecticut state troopers from the Groton barracks Albright and Bobnick, Pawcatuck Night Patrolman Burdick, Supernumerary Kenyon of Pawcatuck and former Patrolmen Ledwith of Stonington borough and McWilliams of Mystic and Deputy Sheriff Confiell of the borough. All the officers were interested in the three cases tried.

In state, George R. McKenna, prosecuting attorney of the town of Stonington, vs Roland Lallo of 37 Pierce street, Westerly, as the defendant was under age, Attorney John F. Gallagher of Pawcatuck was appointed his guardian by Judge Wilcox. The complaint alleged that Nov. 23rd defendant was operating an automobile with plates other than those which were issued for that automobile. The defendant pleaded guilty and Attorney McKenna told the court that something had gone wrong with the defendant's auto in Mystic and it was in tow of another car between Wequetequock and Westerly on the Stonington-Westerly road on the evening of the day when it was in collision with a Stonington bakery truck. The attorney said that there might have been negligence on the part of both parties but he was satisfied that it was not a case of reckless driving. The plates used were from a car which defendant had purchased four or five days before but which had not been paid for. In view of expense and even his arrest a small fine was recommended. The investigation of the collision was made by Pawcatuck patrolman No. 1, Vernon A Burdick. Judge Wilcox fined the accused $10 with costs of $26.06, which were paid.

The second case before the court was that of the state, George R. McKenna, vs Harold R. Burdick, 85 of 32 Robinson street, Pawcatuck. The complaint charged that Dec. 7th the defendant operated a motor vehicle without first having obtained a license from the commissioner of motor vehicles of Connecticut. A collision with a Ford car of John Jessiman, at the junction of West Broad street and Lincoln avenue on Sunday night was investigated by Supernumerary Patrolman Kenyon and the fact was discovered that the defendant was without an operators license. A plea of guilty was entered. Attorney McKenna told the court that investigation had shown that it was a case of carelessness rather than reckless driving. A fine of $5 and costs of $13.51 imposed by Judge Wilcox, was paid.

State vs Tony Conveiver, a complaint of two counts, keeping for sale and reputation, brought by Prosecutor McKenna, as the result of raids Nov. 15 by Connecticut State Policeman Albright and Bobnick, in which the place in the Marsh district of Stonington was visited and 9 bottles of home brew were reported taken, was the last case. Solicitor McKenna stated that the officer visiting the place on the day in question saw the bottle goods taken from the house which were seized by them. He recommended that as a result of conference between himself and Attornies Benjamin Hewitt and John Gallagher, who represented the defendant, the reputation count be nolled and a substantial fine be imposed on the possession count. Attorney Hewitt in his demurrer to the complaint, stated that defendant was a foreigner of small funds and not a "regular bootlegger" and the case an isolated one. Judge Wilcox overruled the demurrer, nolled the reputation count and finding the accused guilty on the possession count fined him $50 with costs of $71.14 and imposed a suspended sentence of 60 days in jail for 6 months, to be imposed if defendant was brought into court again. John Lopes acted as interpreter.

COMPULSORY SCHOOL AGE THE SUBJECT OF RULING

A. W. Buchanan of Mansfield, Attendance and Employment Agent of the State Board of Education, directs the attention of The Bulletin to the fact that several of the school committees in New London, Windham and Tolland counties have advanced the grade for children leaving school to the seventh or eighth grades, but have attached a proviso that they can release pupils who have not completed this grade in special cases. The law states that a child must complete six yearly grades, but town school committees have the right to fix a higher leaving grade if they so desire. Mr. Buchanan thinks that these votes were adopted by a misunderstanding.

Before the school committee of the town of Hartford adopted such a vote the members referred the matter to their attorney, W. Arthur Countryman Jr.

The question was raised as a result of a request to the board to approve a vote that "no pupil over 14 and under 16 years of age, who is within its jurisdiction, shall leave school unless such pupil shall have completed the work of the seventh grade, with exceptions to be made in individual cases by action of the board of education."

The board asked for opinions on the following:

"1. Has the town board of education the power to raise the compulsory grade through the seventh?"

"2. If it does this, has it the power to make exceptions for what it considers sufficient cause in the cases of individual pupils who are in the seventh grade?"

After quoting statutes governing the matter, the city of Hartford's legal adviser says:

"An examination of this statute leaves no doubt as to the power of the Hartford board of education as a board to require that a child under 16 years of age shall have completed a course of study equivalent to seven yearly grades in the subjects mentioned before leaving school to be employed in any mechanical, mercantile or manufacturing establishment, and your first question should therefore be answered in the affirmative.

"The answer to your second question is not so free from doubt but I think it may be said at once that the Hartford board of education as a board has no power to make exceptions of individual pupils from the educational requirements mentioned. The language of the proviso regulating such release is that it may be done by a member of the board of education designated by said state board of education. This to my mind precludes the possibility of such action being taken by the Hartford board of education as a board. The action contemplated is that of an individual member of the board who is designated by the state board of education expressly for such purpose. The language of the proviso under examination that a child may be released from the educational requirements heretofore described at first glance apparently refers only to the six yearly grades mentioned in the earlier part of the act, but I believe that a closer examination and more careful consideration will show that the proviso is intended to authorize the member of the board designated to release a child from any higher educational qualifications which the board as a whole may see fit to require.

"It is only reasonable to assume that if a child may be released from a sixth yearly grade requirement, it may also be released from a seventh yearly grade requirement, which is a higher qualification than the statute specifically names. I believe, therefore, that if your second question is reframed to read as follows, namely: If it does this, has a member of said board of education, designated by the state board of education, the power to make exceptions for what he considers sufficient cause in the cases of individual pupils who are in the seventh grade—it should be answered in the affirmative."

RUM-RUNNING UNDERWRITER: FOURTH TIME IN NEW LONDON HARBOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, December 3.—With the capture of the tug Underwriter off Block Island early this morning by the United States destroyer Cassin, the richest cargo of liquor yet seized by the dry fleet operating from this port was brought into the harbor, for the Underwriter had 2,000 cases of Scotch and rye whiskey aboard. The liquor is now stored in the customs house and is valued at close to $100,000. The tug is moored at the state pier and by her being tied up there she occupies a berth in the harbor for the fourth time in three months, as a result of her rum-running activities.

Shortly before daylight the Cassin was scouring the Connecticut and Rhode Island shores in search of rum-runners that were expected to be hauling liquor from the rum supply ships at Rum Row, to ports for distribution at Christmas time. The Underwriter was finally sighted about 25 miles off Block Island, headed eastward. The Cassin put chase and within an hour overhauled the tug. When the tug was brought to a stop and officers from the destroyer boarded her, the rich cargo was revealed. The tug was ordered headed for this port and arrived in, followed by the Cassin, shortly after 6 o'clock. With the arrival of the tug at the state pier the liquor was taken from the craft and conveyed to the customs house.

This afternoon at 5 o'clock, Capt. John O'Brien, New York, master of the Underwriter, and his crew of 12 men, were presented before United States Commissioner Earl Matthewson of Norwich at the customs house and all were held for hearing Friday the 13th inst., at 2 p. m. O'Brien's bond was not fixed and he was held a prisoner until Friday, but the crew were placed under bonds of $500, which was furnished by a New York bonding company.

Fred Scott is to appear before the police court Tuesday morning to answer a charge of theft from the person, a crime that will take him to state prison if he is convicted. The sum he is alleged to have taken is $50. But it is declared that the man who accuses Scott was intoxicated and for hours was lying where he might have been robbed by others. It is not certain that Scott had the opportunity to rob the fellow and the complainant is by no means sure of his ground when he accuses Scott. The latter obtained a bond of $700 when he was today held for appearance Tuesday.

Peter Doucett, a man of apparently retined manner, was helplessly drunk Sunday and relatives asked that he be taken into custody so that harm would not overtake him. He admitted in the police court today that he was intoxicated when found. The old man said he made the mistake of taking a drink and that after that it was all "on" with him. He admitted that the wisest course he could pursue was to abstain from drink and promised to follow that course in the future. Then Judge Reince suspended judgment for 24 hours.

Louis Minault was taken from a street car where he was helplessly drunk and was locked up till he got a bail bond. He is employed as a foreman at a manufacturing plant in the city, but he fell from the water wagon once he took a drink. When he was asked if he had employment and desired to return to it he pointed to the spectators' benches and said "They are waiting for me." A suspension of judgment came to him.

Rudolph Guibe paid the penalty of operating an automobile while he was under the influence of intoxicating liquor Saturday. He was fined $100 and lost his license. Rudolph was out of luck when he monkeyed with red-eye. He didn't even know where his license was when he collided with an automobile on Main street, near State, but he found it later. He will not know where it is now until the motor vehicle department makes him a present about Christmas time.

The attendance at the lodge of sor-row conducted by the New London Elks at the Lyceum theatre Sunday evening was not as large as usual. And Thomas McKone, the orator of the evening brought the information that in all the large cities the same conditions prevail that were noticeable here. He declared that the assemblage was a very solemn one and that the members did not desire to participate in the solemnity of the memorial exercises. He said they are called upon to attend funerals and to perform a duty for the dead frequently, so that they do not voluntarily seek the solemnity of the lodge of sorrow. Mr. McKone's address was declared one of the best to which the local lodge members have ever listened. He was located here as a department of justice agent during the war, and is a past exalted ruler of Hartford lodge.

Doyle, contractor, which was stolen from the Doyle garage, Grand street ten days ago, was recovered today when the automobile, a Ford runabout, was found abandoned at Suffield. NEW ALEWIFE COVE BRIDGE FAVORED BY COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 3.—The city council at its meeting this evening considered matters that may mean the expenditure of a large sum of money by the city. It took up the matter of the issuance of bonds to the amount of $300,000 for sewer extension and referred to the director of finance the preparation of a bond for that purpose. The matter is then to come back to the council for action and the making of the appropriation. The bridge across Alewife cove is so badly out of repair that it has been closed and trucks that are constantly carrying heavy loads are not allowed to use it. The wooden bridge was constructed some 30 or more years ago and is weakened by long use. The council is disposed to consider the use of the Niles hill road when that highway is put in condition. There are three suggestions as to how the bridge may be repaired. To rebuild of wood the cost is estimated at $3,000. A bridge of steel could be constructed, it is believed, for $7,500. If it is deemed advisable a cement structure can be placed there that will be enduring and of artistic design for about $15,000. Then there is the cost of maintenance and that the council believes should fall upon the town of Waterford as well as on the town of New London. It is true that Waterford is in need of the bridge more than is New London. Councilor Scott raised the point as to whether the town of New London was in duty bound to keep the bridge in repair for the use of Waterford, and Manager Holt showed that there were two other ways in which access to and from Waterford could be gained, though he was of the opinion that the Alewife cove road was the most desirable. The city manager is to confer with the state highway department and with the officials of Waterford as to the repair end of the expense. The matter went to the public works committee finally, for a report to the council.

The council voted for the prolongation of North Bradley street to Main street just north of Federal street. This vote was unanimous.

G. G. Avery & Son asked for the privilege of establishing a dining car—a Pullman, so called, which shall be taken off its wheels and be as a separate building. Then came up the matter of connection with the sewer system and the water works and it was found that such connection was contemplated. But the matter of sanitary and toilet facilities were then injected into the plan and on that the council halted. It was disclosed that such a dining car is to be located at the corner of Bailey and Bank streets if the permission of the council can be secured for that. It was shown that such a location was regarded as a nuisance by business nearby. On the whole the Avery petition was not granted. It was also brought out that there are several people who are in the lunch business close by the site on which it is proposed to locate the Avery cars, the operators of these business places are the owners of the property so used and that they are tax payers and that they would be in competition with the Avery car, which will be of fireproof material—metal. The matter will yet come before the council after a report is made upon the project by committee.

After the meeting of the council, the members of the board of school visitors met in joint session with the members of the council to discuss the project of a new school building, corner of Mercer and Williams street on the so-called J. N. Harris lot. The school board has petitioned for such a school building to accommodate the children that are ready to pursue their education.

The Saturday club asked the council to purchase the so-called Goddard lot, corner of Main and Douglass streets, to be made use of for a children's playground. What the cost of this land may be was not hinted at, but it is known that the land has been held at about $20,000. The planning board was delegated to take this matter into consideration and report back to the council.

NORWICH TOWN

The Family Album was presented before an unusually large and appreciative audience in the Norwich Town chapel Friday evening under the auspices of the W. L. T.s and the One Aim class of the First Congregational Sunday school. Miss Bernice Underwood was general chairman. Miss Susan Hyde, teacher of the One Aim class, spoke briefly, explaining what the program was to be, and by whom given—also mentioned that some members of the class were unable to be present and their places were to be filled by others.

The program opened with two piano selections by Herbert L. Yerrington. Miss Sadie J. Dawson as Mrs. Almira Pease explained the "pictures" in the album in a sprightly manner. Dressed in quaint costume and sitting by a table on which was a lighted candle, Mrs. Pease was busy crocheting as the curtains parted for the first scene. Her reflection in a mirror which had been effectively arranged on the platform, together with the heavy draperies and proper lighting, showed off the album to good advantage. As Mrs. Pease turned the pages of her album, which was four feet by five in size, she recited in an interesting vein notable facts concerning the members of her family.

The following were the pictures shown: Mother, Miss Jessie E. Hyde; Father, Arthur Avery; Me—as a little girl, Mrs. Carlos Ricker; Eben, My Husband, Marcus Grady; Me—as a bride, Miss Minnie Durr; The Twins, Miss Helen Avery and Mrs. Burton Jopson (the latter substituting for Miss Marjory Merry; The Parson, George F. Hyde, substituting for George Durr; The Parson's Wife, Miss Ida Beebe; The Parson's Son, John L. Browning (substituting for Robert Avery); Sister Jane, Miss Bernice Underwood; Sister Jane's Husband, Burton Jopson; My Eldest Daughter, Mrs. Marcus Grady; My Youngest Daughter, Miss Mabel Corrigeux; The Village Beauty, Mrs. William House; Grandpa Hobbs, William House. Another piano selection by Mr. Yerrington brought the program to a close.

During the social hour which followed cake, home-made candy and ice cream were on sale, and there was a grab bag, everything being disposed of. The young men had charge of the ice cream. Walter Durr took tickets, also had charge of the lights. Before the album was shown Miss Doris Browning and Miss Dorthy Heath sold candy. The grab bag was in charge of Miss Helen Avery and Mrs. Burton Jopson. Miss Susan Hyde, at the candy table, was assisted by Mrs. William House, Mrs. Carlos Ricker and Mrs. Marcus Grady, while at the cake table Miss Ida Beebe had the assistance of Miss Mabel Corrigeux, Miss Minnie Durr and Miss Jessie E. Hyde.

Assisting the general chairman, Miss Bernice Underwood, in completing the arrangements were two special committees—Album, Miss Marjory Merry, Arthur Avery and Miss Jessie E. Hyde, the latter teacher of the W. L. T.s; and booth, Miss Ida Beebe, Robert Avery and George Durr. The net proceeds of the evening was $70. This is to be added to the Church improvement society fund.

Following out a custom that has prevailed for many years, a large delegation of members of the Norwich Rural association and company of boys, under the direction of Walter T. Camp, chairman of the sidewalk committee, the boardwalks for winter use were laid Saturday afternoon in various locations in Norwich Town.

Through the courtesy of C. Morgan Williams, a large motor truck was loaned to help transfer the boards from their storage on Town street, and Julian L. Williams furnished one of his employes, James Way, to drive the truck. John Mullen also helped out with his horse and lumber wagon.

Mr. Camp was assisted by others, including Philip A. Johnson, Leonard Hough, Charles B. Gilbert, Groevenor Ely, G. Houghton Gilman, Herbert L. Yerrington, Ozias Dodge, Bartholomew Sullivan and John Dawson, also by the following boys: John Dodge, Francis Mullen, James Mullen, Dunston Perkins, Harold Smith, Joseph Sullivan, Norman Johnstone and Merrill Merrett.

All boards were placed Saturday afternoon and during this week John Dawson is to be engaged in putting them together and making necessary repairs.

During the afternoon, while the men and boys were striving zealously to complete the work, a company of women saw to it that plenty of hot coffee and doughnuts were forthcoming. Those who served were Mrs. Walter T. Camp, Mrs. Alexander H Abbott, Mrs. Ozias Dodge, Mrs. Philip A. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson's mother, Mrs. Lewis Dexter, of Andover, N. H., who is visiting in town.

This took place at the Town street entrance to Lowthorpe Meadows, where a fire was built out of the fragments of the boards.

The boardwalks, which are much appreciated by the townspeople where there are no stone or cement walks, were laid on a section of Washington street, Town street, West Town street, Harland road, etc. Now that the winter season is here, were it not for this spirit of the Rural association, pedestrians would experience some pretty severe walking in many places about town, especially when the frost is coming out of the ground in the spring, and the mud comes over the top of ordinary rubbers.

There is to be a meeting of the Lathrop Memorial Foreign Missionary society Wednesday afternoon in the Congregational chapel. There will be a report of the Hartford meeting.

The December meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the First Methodist Episcopal church is to be held Thursday afternoon at 2.30 with the president, Mrs. James B. Aldrich, at the parsonage. This also will be the thank offering meeting and there is to be a special program under direction of Mrs. George Manning which the public will be privileged to hear.

Plans are being formulated for a supper and sale under the auspices of the social committee of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the Methodist church, of which Miss Florence M. Brown is chairman.

DRIVER'S SKULL AND ARM ARE FRACTURED

Four persons were injured, two seriously, about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when a touring car turned turtle three times near Trail's Corner, Poquonoc Bridge. All four were rushed to hospitals in New London.

The injured are: John Tasca, Stillman street, Westerly, fractured skull and fractured left arm; Mrs. John Tasca, his wife, head and internal injuries; Hilda Burnham, Clark street, Westerly, injury to back; Anna Tasca, Stillman street, Westerly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tasca abrasions and contusions of face and arms.

Mr. and Mrs. Tasca were reported in very critical conditions Monday. Mr. Tasca is a patient at the Lawrence hospital, his wife and Miss Burnham are at the Home Memorial hospital. Miss Burnham is reported slightly improved. Miss Tasca was discharged from the institution Sunday afternoon.

Tasca is believed to be the most seriously injured. He was picked up, following the accident, lying on a rock and bleeding severely. State police authorities say that if he recovers he probably will be charged with reckless driving.

The accident occurred when Mr. and Mrs. Tasca, their daughter and Miss Burnham were on their way from their homes in Westerly to New London.

The Buick car with Mr. and Mrs. Tasca riding in the front and the girls in the rear, was descending the grade just east of Trails Corner at a rapid rate of speed, according to the police, and attempted to pass another car moving in the same direction. The identity of the other autoists is unknown to the police.

Tasca had succeeded in passing the unidentified car, it is believed, and was attempting to get back onto the right side of the highway when he evidently lost control. From notes taken by state police after the accident, it is apparent that the Tasca car careened for a distance of about 200 feet on the left hand side of the highway when the driver cut too sharply to the left and caused the vehicle to turn over.

All four occupants were thrown from the car as the machine rolled over three times and finally landed right side up in a ditch on the right hand side of the road. M. J. Murphy, address unknown, driving a car bearing New Jersey license, stopped to assist the victims.

Tasca was found lying across a rock 10 feet from the place where the machine landed and the three women were lying in the field nearby.

State Policeman Walter Wood, of the Groton state police barracks, was assigned to the case and from evidence brought in after a survey, state police say that Tasca was recklessly driving.

Picture on Life of David

A feature moving picture The Shepherd King, was witnessed by a large audience in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. The opening exercises consisted of singing, scripture reading and prayer. Hugh Kinder rendered a vocal solo and also furnished very appropriate music for the pictures thereby adding much to the interest of the service. The pictures were of excellent quality and were most beautiful in photography and very true to the Bible narrative of the gripping story of David the great character of history. The nobility of David's character was vividly pictured, in many scenes, and especially when he could have slain King Saul but refrained, thus returning good for the great evil Saul had done to him. The nine reels from beginning to end were such as to interest and inspire, the large audience and no doubt the lessons taught by this wonderful picture story will long remain in the minds of those who saw it.

Emmett J. Fritz and Donald Bullard acted as ushers.

MADE QUICK WORK IN TEARING DOWN BUILDING

Just about ten days have sufficed to tear down the Chapman building on Franklin square, at the corner of Rose place, where Peter Sellas, the owner is to erect a three story modern store and office building. The work has been done by Charles Mayberg and M. J. Fitzpatrick, of New Haven, with the latter in active charge, and the work has been kept moving along fast from day to day as the roof, walls and interior of the building were demolished and the material was carried away to the dump, or sold.

Seventy eight cases were on the dock-et to be heard at the December meeting of the State Board of Pardons held at the prison at Wethersfield.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS FIRM.

New York, Dec. 8.—Stock prices displayed a firm undertone in today's market with trading in substantially reduced volume. Professional traders, acting on the theory that a further reaction was warranted by the technical condition of the market attempted to unsettle the general list in the early trading. They succeeded in depressing a number of the popular industrial shares 1 to 2 points but failed to bring out a large volume of long stock with the result that they wer equick to cover later when a spirited demand arose for some of the motors and high-priced industrial specialities.

Fifty-four issues, including eight rails, nine motors and 10 public utilities, attained new peak prices for the wyear. Preferred shares of the carriers were in particularly good demand, new highs being recorded by the senior issues of Chicago and Northwestern, Southern Omaha, "Soo," Baltimore and Ohio and Ann Arbor.

Rising commodity prices and the establishment of a new high of sterling exchange above $4.70 had a cheerful effect on speculative sentiment.

The rise in the motor issues reflected the improved earnings outlooks of some of the laarger companies. Nash Motors was the individual feature, scoring a sensational gain of 16 points to a record top at 190, and then slipping back to 185. Unusually heavy trading also took place in the Maxwell issues on publication of a report showing that net earnings in the first ten months exceeded $3,750,000, equivalent to about $15 a share on the A stock. The A stock advanced 2 5-8 to 77 5-8 and the B jumped 4 1-2 to 3 61-2, a new wtop. Pierce Arrow preferred climbed seven points and the prior preferred four, while Mack Truck advanced 2 3-8 and Jordan 1 1-2.

The pivotal industrials showed only nominal changes on the day. United States Steel common closed 1-8 lower at 116 7-8, American Can dropped 1-2 to 119 3-4 and Baldwin showed a net gain of 3-8 at 123 5-8.

Phillips Jones soared nearly 19 points to 80 and the preferred closed four points higher at 83. Other outstanding strong spots were Worthington Pump, Adams Express, American Express, J. I. Case Threshing Machine, Fisher Body, Soo preferred, South Porto Rican Sugar preferred and West Penn Power, up 3 to 9 points.

Among the issues to break through their previous year's highs were American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, General Asphalt common and preferred, American Water Works, Allied Chemical common and preferred, American Locomotive, Westinghouse Electric, United Drug, Pullman, Air Reduction and Central Leather preferred.

There were a few conspicuous heavy spots. General Baking closed four points lower at 152 after having sold as high as 160. Net losses of 2 to 4 points also were recorded by Federal Light and Traction, Onyx Hosiery, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, and Public Service Corporation eight per cent. preferred.

Call money renewed at 3 per cent. and then advanced to 3 1-2 on the culling of bank loans to make good the deficit in reserve reported in the weekly clearing house statement last Saturday. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm with business steady; middling 23.55.

Except for an advance of about 1 3-4 cents in sterling, there was little of interest in the foreign exchange market, the continental rates showing narrow and irregular changes.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Dec. 8.—Reactionary tendencies predominated in today's bond market, which was forced to absorb a heavy volume of realizing sales. Semi-speculative rail issues, which had been the strongest features of recent trading sessions, yielded readily to profit-taking and dealings in other sections of the list were marked by considerable irregularity.

Interest in investment circles turned from trading to reports of new financing. Bankers admitted that consideration was being given to two Belgian loans, one of about $25,000,000 for construction of Congo railways, and another of about $50,000,000 for consolidation of the Belgian floating debt. Proceeds from the sale of the recent $100,000,000 loan to France will be placed at the disposal of the French government tomorrow.

The outcome of the German elections failed to have any noticeable effect on European bonds. German 7s moved up a trifle and then fell back while French 8s and Belgian 6 1-2s lost ground. United Kingdom 5 1-2s of 1929 responded to the rise in sterling by advancing fractionally to a 1924 top price at 115 1-2.

Realizing sales brought about recessions in a number of active railroad liens, including Frisco Income 6s, Peoria and Eastern Income 4s, Norfolk and Southern refunding 5s and Norfolk and Western Consolidation 4s. Local traction issues also lost ground but Chicago Railway 5s were one of the chief strong spots of the day, advancing two points to a new high at 83 1-2.

A $5,000,000 issue of general mortgage gold bonds 5 per cent., series A, due December 1, 1954, of the Union Electric Light and Power company of St. Louis, a subsidiary of the North American company, will be offered here tomorrow by Dillon, Read & Co., Harris, Forbes & Co., and Spencer, Trask & Co., at a price of 99. The issue, which is said to have received the approval of the Missouri Public Service commission, is redeemable at any time at 105 and interest.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Smashing of high price records for the season took place today in grain and provisions with corn and wheat reaching a new peak on all the months that were traced in. Reports of severe crop damage to corn in Argentina led to a big general wave of speculative buying. Corn closed strong, at 2 to 2 3-8c advance, May 1.26 3-4. Wheat finished firm, 1 1-2 to 1 7-8c net higher, May 1.64 to 1.64 1-8 and July 1.44 7-8 to 1.45, with oats 1 3-8 to 1 7-8c up and provisions varying from 7c decline to 20c gain.

According to advices which were widely circulated, the corn crop in Argentina may yet produce half a normal yield, provided heavy rains come within the next two weeks. Otherwise, the damage by drought, frost and locusts will be incalculable. With such reports current and with a sharp advance in Liverpool quotations for the January delivery of corn, a rush to the buying side of the corn market here began right at the opening. Reactions were of only a minor transient sort, and the close was at virtually the day's top figures.

Despite heavy profit-taking sales, the wheat market closed at only a moderate setback from the day's maximum advance. Argentine wheat crop reports were decidedly bullish, though less so than corn. Besides, the United States' visible supply of wheat showed a decrease, and the amount of wheat on ocean passage was greatly reduced.

Investment buying of lard was a feature in the provision market.

Net losses of about a point each were recorded by Standard Oil of Indiana, Prairie Oil and Gas and Gelena Signal and other active issues showing only nominal changes.

Lehigh Valley Coal certificates, the most active feature of the industrial list, showed a small recession at the close. Moderate strength developed, however, in the Continental Baking issues, and the radio shares. Thermiodyne touching another new top at 15 7-8 as against the recent offering price of 12. ECONOMIC CLUB HEARS TALK ON RAILROADS

New York, Dec. 8.—This nation's railways constitute "the most nearly perfect transportation machine in the world," R. H. Aishton, president of the American Railway association, told the Economic club, in annual session at the Hotel Astor tonight.

But, said Mr. Aishton, it is requiring more than a billion dollars of capital expenditure per year to reach and maintain this state of near-perfection. Most of the money is borrowed "on faith on the part of the railroads and investors in the desire of the American people to insure a measure of reasonable protection to investment in railroad property."

Lower rates for labor, reduced costs for materials, and improved methods of operation saved the public $1,373,000,000 in reduced freights during the first 32 months after January 1, 1922, said Mr. Aishton.

The recently organized shippers' regional advisory boards were credited with a substantial contribution to the present satisfactory condition of the railroads, and the absence of traffic congestion and car shortages during 1924. Cooperation by these boards had become so effective, said the speaker, that government regulatory bodies no longer received complaints concerning car supply and service.

Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, declared that results of the November elections indicated the American public's emphatic aversion to government ownership and operation of railroads; a desire that the Esch-Cummins act be preserved "until it could be improved in the light of a larger experience;" and a conviction as evidenced by the defeat of sponsors of the Barkley bill, "that the public should have a voice in labor disputes which threaten to interrupt transportation service, and a voice in controlling labor costs."

SECOND SHIPMENT OF GOLD MADE TO GERMANY

New York, Dec. 8.—The second shipment of gold to Germany representing proceeds of the share of the German loan sold in this country was made today when J. P. Morgan and company consigned $2,000,000 in gold coin to the reichsbank. The first shipment of $5,000,000 went forward last week.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Several local building projects in Norwich and vicinity are fast nearing completion while others are not so far along. At the Merchants National Bank the work is fast approaching the completion stage work now being done on the interior, putting in the trim and interior decorations.

The two new buildings at the Norwich State Hospital are well along and here also the work is mostly inside. The heating plant has been installed and the heat turned on so that plaster work and interior decorating can go on regardless of extreme cold and wet weather.

Interior work at the Nurses Home of the W. W. Backus hospital is being done by Contractors Peck, McWilliams Co. The home is expected to be ready for occupation within a very short time.

Contractor Sweeney has made exceptionally good progress on the Sellas property on Franklin Square. Where it was first intended to simply renovate and reinforce the building Mr Sellas found this impracticable and has decided to build an entirely new building. The old building which has stood on Franklin square for many years is no more. The workmen have razed the building to the foundations and as soon as the debris of the old building is cleared away work on the new foundation will start. A heavier foundation will be put in suitable to hold the new steel and concrete structure that will be built.

The house for George Charbonneau at the corner of West Thames street and Nelson Place is fast being completed and Mr. Charbonneou expects to occupy the house before the first of the year.

Other buildings in and about Norwich have also been rushed along toward completion. The garage on North Main street where the old Bray block used to stand is nearly completed. The Pagnik garage on Shetucket street is also well along and is nearly roofed in. Another garage on West Main St., for D. Fishkin is well along and will be ready for occupation by the first of the year.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 8 sales of real estate as compared to 14 for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $57,432 and $80,300.

There were 10 sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 13 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $35,000 and $41,200.

Building Outlook for 1925.

Estimates of the probable building activity for 1925 based on present demands are now being made showing that building requirements in the United States for the coming year will total $5,000,000,000. This would indicate that there will be little recession from the record of building activity of the past three years. In this connection the American Builder says in part: Our estimates of construction planned in 1924 place the total value at about $6,000,000,000 and the actual construction at about $5,000,000,000. We start then with a "Carry-over" of not less than $1,000,000,000, to which must be added the normal annual building requirement. Between 1910 and 1920, the United States census showed an increase in the total population equivalent to 14.9 per cent or an annual increase of about one and one-half per cent. This represents 337,374 average families added to the population in twelve months for whom additional housing will be required. At an average value of $4,500 this represents an annual building expenditure for housing of $1,518,183,000. To this must be added the business, industrial, educational, church, amusement, institutional and other buildings required to care for this added population. Residential building amounts usually to about 60 per cent of the total and we can, therefore, make the total value for building due to population increase $2,530,305,000. There are still other important items to be added which should represent the building required to make good losses by depreciation, fire, tornado, floods, etc., also by buildings becoming obsolete. Fire losses for 1921 alone amounted to $552,854. The major portion of this sum is undoubtedly for buildings. Summarizing, we have in prospect for 1925 a year of great building activity which will probably exceed $5,000,000,000 in view of the outlook for a year of great national prosperity."

Building Operations

The statistics of building permits issued in the Connecticut towns reported in The Commercial Record during the week in comparison with the record for the like weeks of 1922 and 1923 show a substantial gain in the amount of money expended for new construction. Last week 253 permits were granted for new construction amounting to $1,023,019, in comparison with 242 permits in the like week of 1923 for buildings costing $696,147, and 188 permits in 1922, the buildings costing $494,049.

New London

The contract has been awarded for a business building on Green street at the corner of Golden street, for H. D. Barrows, 123 State street. The proposed building, from plans prepared by contractors, will be 65x45 feet, of brick and steel construction, three stories high. It will have artificial stone trim and slag roof. There will be five plate glass and copper show windows on the ground floor. This floor will be arranged for store purposes. The second and third floors will be unpartitioned but provision will be made for subdivisions to be made according to the needs of the tenants. The basement will have an entrance from Green street and will be lighted by sidewalk glass. It will be suitable for business purposes. The excavating and concrete work has been completed, the work having been done under a separate contract. The sub-contracts for the plumbing, heating and electric wiring will be awarded separately by the owner.

The owner is taking bids for the proposed work, which will not be started until after January 1, 1925. The three floors of the building will be completely altered and will have new fronts and other improvements. There will be an extension to the present heating system, new plumbing and electric wiring and metal ceilings.

Sketches for an apartment building for Sidney Sulman, 8 Shapley street, to be built on Church street, on a section of the former Williams property, have been approved by the owner and final plans and specifications are now being prepared. The building will be 60x90 feet, of brick and steel construction, with artificial stone trim. There will be a tile vestibule, modern heating system, hot water heat, tile baths and an entrance court. The arrangements of rooms will be for 24 apartments of two and three rooms each.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

A New Fur Cap

"Tick, tock, tickerty tock," Went the good Old Grandfather Clock."

"I declare, there's no place like home," sighed tired Uncle Lucky, dropping into his old armchair by the fire.

"Slippers ready, warm and neat,
For my poor old weary feet."

"Hurry and put them on," laughed Little Miss Mousie. "What would you do if some one didn't look after you?"

"There's no place like home."

"Nothing at all. Sit here all day with my rheumatiz," answered the dear old gentleman bunny, smiling at his tiny housekeeper. "I'm a lucky old rabbit. 'Deed I am."

"Uncle Lucky," all of a sudden shouted Little Jack Rabbit from the landing at the top of the stairs. "There's a new fur cap on my bed. Who put it there?"

"Give your old uncle a hug and I'll tell you," answered Uncle Lucky, with a tear in his eye. My goodness, how he did love that little bunny nephew of his. Loved him more and more every day.

The next moment, hipperty hop, skipperty skop into the room came the the little rabbit, the new hat on his head and a smile on his face and a twinkle in his eyes. Yes sir, happiness was written all over his face and maybe behind his two pink ears.

"Do you like it?" anxiously asked dear Uncle Lucky. And then, with a smile, he turned to Little Miss Mousie. "Do you think it's becoming?"

"Becoming?" exclaimed his tiny housekeeper, tossing back her bobbed head. "It's warm and comfortable. That's enough for a boy."

"Well, maybe you're right," sighed perplexed Uncle Lucky. "Ladies know more about these things, I guess. So you think it's all right?"

"I like it," shouted the bunny boy. "There, that's enough to satisfy your kind heart," whispered Little Miss Mousie, smiling at the old gentleman rabbit as his small nephew hugged him. "Now, I must run out to the kitchen to put the frosting on the angel cake," and away she scampered leaving the two happy rabbits to play a game of checkers.

Just then the telephone bell went tinkle, tinkle.

"Eeny, meeny, miny mo,
Who is calling? Let me know," shouted the little rabbit. "Why, it's Mother!" he exclaimed the next minute. "I was just going to call you up to say that Uncle Lucky has invited me to spend the night with him. May I Mother dear?"

Of course Lady Love answered yes, so back to the game of checkers hopped the bunny boy. But, dear me. He couldn't win a game from Uncle Lucky. Not in a thousand years could he do that. No one could beat Uncle Lucky, except Daddy Longlegs, the old gentleman insect, who had played every day for forty years in the corner grocery store in Bunnybridge. And in the next story I'll tell you what happened after that.

NORWICH GIRL WEDS PLAYWRIGHT AFTER RAPID FIRE COURTSHIP

Love in 20 minutes. A proposal in two seconds. Four hours of cruising in a taxicab to get marriage license, such is the story a New York paper gives of the marriage on June 13 last, of Helen Counihan, a former resident of this city, whose home was on Oakridge street, where her mother still lives.

The newspaper story continues:

Doesn't it remind you of Augustin McHugh's playlet, "Love in Twenty Minutes?"

And who ever thought that Augustin McHugh would take his play as a precedent for his own romance?

But he did—as was revealed yesterday when news of McHugh's marriage to Helen Counihan, an artist's model, astonished all but their most intimate friends.

Had it not been for the activities of the bride in bustling about her husband's supposed bachelor flat at No. 17 Stoddard place, Brooklyn, preparatory to sailing with him for Europe in two weeks, Broadway might never have caught on at all.

Yesterday Mrs. McHugh curled up on the lounge in the Stoddard place flat and said:

"It's a joke to me how our marriage has been kept quiet so long. You know, I first met Mr. McHugh when I was a child of nine, 12 years ago. He had just written "Officer 666," and when I met him I thought he had the most wonderful profile—he was my hero.

"Well, I didn't see him again until last June. Then I went to a party given by my sister, Mrs. L. A. Fournier, and there was that wonderful profile again!

"Some one kidded my husband about being unmarried. He said when he fell in love he'd fall in 20 minutes. I had been there just 10. In another 10 he came over to where I sat and proposed. That was June 11.

While cruising down the streets of Jersey City a motorcycle policeman stopped them to arrest the driver for speeding. On hearing their story he took them to the home of a friendly magistrate, to whose court he was attached. Here they were married on the morning of June 12.

Miss Counihan resided for a time with her sister, Mrs. Leo Fourloer on Perry street, New London, but removed to New York several years ago when Mr. and Mrs. Fournier took up their residence in that city.

NORWICH YOUNG MAN IN NEW YORK HOSPITAL

Thomas Enright of 2 Gilmour street is in the Holy Family hospital in New York with a broken leg according to a telephone message received by his family from the hospital.

The message first came to Chief George Linton on Sunday in a telegram from Chief Inspector Fahey in New York to notify the family of Thomas Summers, 2 Gilmour avenue that he was in the hospital with a fractured leg. Although the name was not known here and there is no Gilmour avenue, Chief Linton thought it might be worth while to send Officer Charles Smith to 2 Gilmour street, the home of Mrs. Annie Enright. One of her sons telephoned to the hospital and after learning that it was his brother who was a patient there, left by automobile for New York Sunday afternoon.

Standardization and Life was the topic of a very interesting talk given Monday evening by Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy, at the monthly meeting of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church at the Community house. There was a large attendance in spite of the stormy evening. A pot roast supper was served at 6.30 o'clock after which the monthly business session was called to order by President Walter F. Lester. Secretary Edwin V. Ross read the minutes of the previous meeting which were accepted. One new member was proposed and favorably acted upon. Announcement was made that Bert Spear, the well known writer who recently addressed the Brotherhood has been secured to speak before the Brotherhood again, at the January meeting, and that an unusually large turnout of the members is looked for at that meeting.

Arthur L. Peale of the lecture course committee announced that at the second in the series of lectures the speaker will be Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars.

President Lester presented Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy, as the speaker of the evening. Prof. Tirrell said he had chosen as the topic for his talk, Standardization and Life. He spoke of the old time narrow gauge railroads and said that in past years the railroads had all sorts of gauges. Then the gauges were standardized so that the railroad cars could go from one road to the other. Standards are necessary, said Prof. Tirrell, and the standardization we use so much today is as old as history. Standardization involves a good deal more than a conformity to certain rule. It is necessary to have an organization of different standards. This makes for efficiency.

Standardization does produce a certain kind of efficiency. I think what we need to remember is that we don't accomplish very much by the law of averages alone, or by standards alone. We are apt to forget that back of standardization is the brains that keep the organization going. The best things in life cannot be standardized. Democracy exists for the greatest good for the greatest number. The greatest good for the greatest number is an opportunity for free self development. Men are equal in material things but we are not equal in what we should make ourselves.

Democracy depends on developing these leaders that are not according to standard, but are better than standard. You must have certain uniformity of work but you must have opportunity for self development. You can standardize science. You can standardize quality. You can't standardize quality and you can't standardize art.

Prof. Tirrell was given a rising vote of thanks for his talk, following which the meeting adjourned.

SPOKE ON IMMORTALITY AT SHOP MEETING

The subject presented at the Richmond Radiator plant, Monday noon, by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, was Immortality. The address as usual was given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Immortality is the unending existence of the human soul. The idea was held long before Christ came, but was dim and misty before it was touched by his glorious personality. The doctrine come to us in three forms, the first of which is the one most commonly accepted that the human soul has a continued existence after the death and dissolution of the body; 2, while this existence is admissable we have no knowledge of it. This is agnosticism; 3, the soul lives after death but is unconscious between death and the resurrection. The speaker did not enter into the controversy saying that it was his duty to proclaim the doctrine not to argue it.

The following five points were made:

1. No race of men have yet been discovered who did not believe in life after death. The early views were grotesque and unreasonable, but it raises the question, would all these races have this belief if there was nothing to it. The good Lord would never trifle even with the intuitions of a savage. Universal belief in anything is not conclusive evidence of its existence, but it is strong presumptive evidence.

2. Immortality is a condition of being that is associated with place. Man, being the creature of God, is finite; the word "finite" means bounded, limited, confined to a difinite portion of space. This is in contra-distinction to the unlimited, the unbounded, infinite, and these attributes belong to God only. In death man loses only his material being, not his finiteness. As long as he is finite he must be associated with place. Christ understood this perfectly when he said, "I go to prepare a place for you."

3. Our living now is finding its future trends. It is fair to presume that people enter the next world just as they leave this. There is nothing in the act of dying that changes character. Those who have been saintly here do not enter the next world as demons and visa versa, those who have been demons here do not enter the world as saints. While we are influenced on all sides in the last analysis it is man himself who marks out the moral pathway that he follows. The speaker dealt with this question: are these two conditions fixed beforehand? He put much emphasis on the fact if the human personality is immortal it can never lose its self determination.

4. To enjoy the felicity of the saints hereafter there must be the cultivation of the saintly spirit. There is always a long distance between the swineherd's hut in the "far country and the Father's house." One can never go from either to the other in a single leap.

5. The newness of our place in the hereafter will require newness of the body. The Scriptures have much to say about "spiritual bodies". Nobody knows just what they are, but we may surmise what they are not. They are not maimed. No cripples in the Secret Isle of Somewhere; no sanatoria for little tuberculosis children or camps for consumptive adults; no insane asylums with their unutterable tragedies. They will be bodies incapable of tears and heads that will know nothing of grief, cruelty, injustice and wrong. All this is possible because one has gone to prepare a place for us.

DEER UPSET COUPE ON COLCHESTER ROAD

A full grown buck deer in the New London Hartford highway near Colchester before daylight Monday morning made a hazard that Edward S. Huntley, a New London bank man, could not avoid with his automobile. The deer was killed in the crash and the automobile was upset and wrecked. Mr. Huntley escaped with scratched knees and bruised hands.

Mr. Huntley had spent the week end with friends in Winchester, N. H. and had negotiated the long journey from New Hampshire without incident up to the time of meeting the deer. Approaching the town of Colchester, he observed the animal by the roadside and altered the course of his car to the opposite side of the highway to give it a wide berth.

Just as the Ford coupe was almost abreast of the deer, the latter gave a leap and lunged directly at the oncoming headlights. The impact killed the deer, caused the Ford to carom crosswise of the roadbed and then carried by its momentum, turned completely over on the concrete highway.

Mr. Huntley's car was badly battered. The fenders and mudguards were crumpled up two wheels were smashed, the top and sides of the body broken, radiator cracked and only the motor failed to show effects of the collision. That the driver escaped with a few scratches was regarded as little short of miraculous.

The accident happened shortly after 1 o'clock and the driver of a bread truck from Hartford, who was following Mr. Huntley over the pike came to his assistance. The coupe was righted and afterward towed to a neighboring farm yard where it was left for the night. The carcass of the deer was loaded upon the truck and with Mr. Huntley brought to New London. Aside from the general shaking up, Mr. Huntley was little the worse for his harrowing experience and was back at his duties at the Winthrop Trust Co., Monday where he is assistant treasurer.

County Game Warden Robert B. Chappell was informed of the circumstances by Mr. Huntley and requested to take charge of the deer. Deputies were sent to dispose of it.

EARLY MAILING HELPS AVOID CHRISTMAS RUSH

Last year, through the generous cooperation of the press, the movies and other advertising mediums, Christmas mailers were induced to dispatch their Yuletide presents earlier in the month than ever before in the history of the institution of gift exchanging in the holiday season.

As a result, the spectacle of the last minute rush of former years, with its attendant heartbreaking labor on the part of wearied and nerve worn store clerks and postal employees, was avoided.

This year Postmaster General New and First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett have determined to make an even better record and to banish for all time the suffering undergone in past years by those engaged in the sale or transportation of gifts. They hope to make "Shop Early" and "Mail Early" a habit with the American people.

Mailing early does not mean December 1 or before, but it everyone could get their holiday tokens in the mail between December 10 and December 20, the post office could not ask more.

Particular attention this year will be paid to greeting cards. Despite the success last year it was noted that the last-minute mail consisted largely of cards. Possibly many of them were returned greetings to friends, heard from on a previous mail, but overlooked on the original Christmas list. Unlike parcels and letters containing money orders, cards, of course, can not well be marked "Do Not Open Until Christmas." Therefore, it is possible that the many mailers hold them until the last to insure delivery on Christmas Eve. This class of mailers this year, however, may find their cards undelivered until after Christmas Day.

Believing that the energies of postal employees should not be sapped to the last degree for any avoidable reason, and, intent upon securing for them the same Christmas privilege enjoyed by others, Postmaster General New asks the hearty cooperation of the public. The last-minute, or zero hour has been moved up so that all postal employees may eat their Christmas dinners at home. Rural carriers will deliver no mail at all on Christmas day and clerks and carriers in the city offices will stop work promptly at noon.

SPORTSMEN WILL HAVE CONFERENCE IN HARTFORD

Fish and game clubs will have delegates at a convention to be held Dec. 15, at 10 A. M., in the hall of the house of representatives at Hartford under the auspices of the state fish and game commission. The officers hope also that towns where there are no clubs will be represented.

On Nov. 2, 1922, the sportsmen of the state were invited to a convention held in the house of representatives for the discussion of the various subjects relating to proposed legislation, and on Nov. 16th, delegates representing the various sportsmen's organizations, as well as individual sportsmen, convened and discussed proposed legislation. At the following session of the legislature, the charter of game laws was amended, codified, introduced to the legislature by the joint committee on Fish and Game with favorable recommendations and finally became a law. Quite a few sections of the old law were repealed.

The anglers and hunters have now had an opportunity to see the workings of the new law. There are a few technicalities overlooked in the preparation of the codified chapter which will require legislation.

The angling license law has had nearly one year's trial. In addition to the angling and hunting license provisions there should be a combination license for those who wish to avail themselves of both hunting and angling. The question of fees for separate angling and hunting licenses and for a combination license will naturally have consideration in connection with the proposed combination license.

Owing to the varied opinions of hunters and fishermen on the question of fish and game conservation, the chapter of game laws as enacted is necessarily a compromise in some directions, but appeared to represent the opinion of the greatest number of those who actually fish and trap in Connecticut. Now that this chapter of laws has been on trial for a considerable length of time, the commission desires to obtain the views of the sportsmen on the legislation which they think ought to be presented to the legislature soon to convene with a view to united action.

SKIDDED ON HILL AND HIT ANOTHER CAR

While driving his automobile down Broadway hill shortly after noon Monday, Joseph Chinigo of 12 Hickory St., skidded on the wet surface and slid into the car of Max Levine, which was parked in front of the Broadway theatre where Mr. Levine is employed.

The Chinigo car was but little damaged but the Levine machine received the force of the blow in such a way that two wheels and an axle were broken. Both cars were driven up onto the sidewalk in the crash.

World Wide Guild Heard Speaker

At the regular meeting of the World Wide Guild of the Central Baptist church held Friday evening at the church, Miss Mary Lathrop, former field Secretary of the Christian Americanization of the Baptists of New England, was the speaker of the evening. She gave a very interesting address on the aims and plans of this work among the Jews, also of her personal experiences. The remainder of the working session was spent in doing White Cross work, after which light refreshments were served.

POETRY

CAPE COD COLOR.

Summer's gold and Autumn's red
With their life and warmth have fled
Colorless the landscape lies,
Bleached and dead beneath dull skies.
Look again—with clearer eyes.

Have you ever seen a Cape Cod pond in winter,
With a garland of red alder round its edge,
Its smooth water of an almost tropic azure,
Dulled and softened by the tones of faded sedge?

Have you ever seen the Cape Cod pines in winter,
Living green, beneath the snowy, powdery drift?
Or watched the pink-brown oak leaves as they shiver?
Or noted how the brown-gray tree-trunks lift?

Have you ever seen the Cape Cod fields in winter,
With the tawny grasses as they bend and sway?
Or the orange lichens, where the stone walls crumble?
Or the holly trees that light the woodland way?

Have you seen the marshes with their browns and russets?
And the cranberry bogs with purple dye run o'er?
Or the sandhills where the dusky shadows gather?
Yes, summer's dead and Autumn's old,
Winds are blustering and bold;
While the beaches whiten round the sparkling shore?

But, beneath the wintry skies,
Life and warmth still meet your eyes;
(Cape Cod's color never dies!
—Helen L. Bayley, in "Cape Cod in Poetry."

THE RAINY DAY

The day is cold, and dark, and dreary;
It rains, and the wind is never weary;
The vine still clings to the mouldering wall,
But at every gust the dead leaves fall,
And the day is dark and dreary.

My life is cold, and dark, and dreary;
It rains, and the wind is never weary;
My thoughts still cling to the moldering Past,
But the hopes of youth fall thick in the blast,
And the days are dark and dreary.

Be still, sad heart! and cease repining;
Behind the clouds the sun is still shining;
Thy fate is the common fate of all,
Into each life some rain must fall,
Some days must be dark and dreary.
—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Striking the hours on the bell of the church over which it is hung, a wooden clock without face or hands has counted time for a London community for nearly 400 years, says Popular Mechanics. Made by a village blacksmith in the sixteenth century the timepiece is of the crudest type but strongly constructed throughout. The winding gears are cut from heavy oak, and iron is used for the bearings. Recently some new metal parts and striking pins were placed in the clock, which experts declare, should continue to give accurate time for years.

CURE FOR TRANSPORTATION MUDDLE IN NEW ENGLAND

New England Transportation Conference Adopted Resolution Urging State Regulations of Common Carriers—Believes That Public Interests Will Best Be Served Through Cooperation of Rail, Motor and Water Carriers, Rather Than Through Unregulated and Wasteful Competition.

Boston, Dec. 9.—The New England transportation conference, before adjournment tonight, took steps to perpetuate itself through a permanent transportation council and adopted resolutions urging state regulation of common carrier motor vehicles and their co-ordination with the older methods of transportation.

It was also advocated that traffic centers study the peculiar needs of their cities to provide present relief and development of the basic physical plan.

Beginning with the general statement that "adequate transportation facilities of all types are essential to the continued progress of economic, social and civic life in the New England states," the adopted resolutions declared "the public interests will best be served through the co-operation of the rail, motor and water carriers rather than through unregulated and wasteful competition."

"Regulation of the common carrier * * * should be vested in a state authority charged with the task of providing the public with the transportation that it requires, such control to be placed with the existing commissions of the various states.

"As a pre-requisite to the operation of the motor vehicle common carrier, the owner thereof should be obliged: (a) to receive a certificate of public convenience and necessity provided that lines in bona fide operation * * * shall be presumed to be necessary to public convenience; * * * (b) to take out liability insurance to indemnify injuries to persons or passengers or damage to property or cargo resulting from negligent operation.

"The state regulatory bodies having this control should be vested with the powers they exercise in controlling other forms of public utilities. Taxes on motor vehicle common carriers should consist of (a) those imposed in the particular state upon motor vehicles * * *; (b) proper and equitable taxes in exchange for franchise rights, provided that if such taxes are adopted, amounts equivalent to those paid unded A should be deducted.

"Legislation should be enacted enabling steam railroads, trolleys, shipping companies and other public utilities to acquire, own and operate motor vehicles in conjunction with their regular lines of business. Regulation of highway traffic, including size, weight and speed of motor vehicles, should be lodged with state highway departments and made as uniform as possible. The development of highways designed to meet the economic traffic requirements should be continued under the present plan of federal and state co-operation.

"It is recommended that the public authorities of the several states charged with common carrier regulation join in the formulation of uniform state statutes for legislative consideration in order to place these motor carriers under reasonable control. * * *

"In the furtherance of efficiency and economy in the handling of freight, that the motor truck interests in the several localities of heaviest traffic appoint committees to act with similar committee of the railroads to make a comprehensive and unbiased study of the problem.

"Resolved, That in order to continue the relations established through the New England transportation conference, a permanent committee should be created, to be known as the New England transportation council, and consisting of equal representation from each of the several agencies represented in this conference, together with representatives from the general public. Resolved, further, * * * That its work should be simply to correlate the efforts of existing transportation agencies and not in any sense to constitute a new or super-organization."

MORTIMER TESTIFIES OF GIVING MONEY TO FORBES

Chicago, Dec. 9 (By the A. P.)—Elias H. Mortimer, first witness for the government in the trial of Col. Charles R. Forbes and J. W. Thompson for conspiracy to defraud the government through hospital contract awards by the Veterans' Bureau, told again on the witness stand today that he gave Forbes $5,000 in cash in a Chicago hotel on June 20, 1922.

Forbes, at the time, was director of the Veterans' Bureau, and Mortimer, according to his testimony, was agent for Thompson's construction firm, Thompson & Black, then bidding for hospital contracts.

Mortimer stood by his story through a vigorous cross-examination by James S. Easby-Smith, chief counsel for Forbes. He was unmoved by the attempt of the defense counsel to establish that the story of the money payment as related by Mortimer in direct examination differed in some respects from the story printed as Mortimer's testimony before the special senate committee which investigated the Veterans' Bureau.

The defense has issued a subpoena for Frank A. Vanderlip, New York financier, for examination as to details of a story involving details of the Veterans' Bureau administration under Forbes which Mortimer testified he gave to Vanderlip in Washington last March.

The witness, when questioned by the court as to Vanderlip's identity, replied:

"Vanderlip was the go-between for Senator Wheeler during the senate investigations."

The cross-examination was halted by the court until it was stated by the defense attorney that a summons had been issued for Vanderlip.

Mortimer's story today was that he arrived in Chicago on June 20, 1922, signed a note for $15,000 in Thompson & Black's office before noon, was given $10,000 in new $500 bills in the bathroom of his hotel suite by Thompson about 4.30 p. m., and gave $5,000 to Forbes within an hour in the same room. He asked Forbes if he wanted to sign a note for the "loan," the witness said. Forbes smiled and said: "We'll drink on it," according to Mortimer's testimony.

Mortimer also repeated today his story that when he arrived at his hotel suite with Thompson he found Forbes and Mrs. Mortimer "shooting craps on the bed."

"He had his coat off, was in his shirt sleeves and working hard," the witness said.

"It cost me $220 to pay for his fun that afternoon."

In answer to further questions, Mortimer said he was not certain whether the money ever had been given to Forbes by Mrs. Mortimer.

"They were so close, I doubt if he got it," he said.

The $15,000 given him by the construction firm on his note, the witness said, was for Forbes and himself and "the expenses of the trip" to the Pacific coast in the summer of 1922 when Forbes took Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer and a few close friends from the Veterans' Bureau headquarters on a tour of inspection to the western seaboard.

ROUNDING UP STRANGE CHINESE IN SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 9.—In the belief that members of the warring Chinese tongs are drifting into the city as a result of the shooting of two members of the On Leong tong by three Chinese said to be members of the Hip Sing tong Sunday night, Chief of Police W. A rigid search for weapons also will be made.

FRANCE'S MILITARY BUDGET WILL BE 4,468,000,000 FRANCS

Paris, Dec. 9 (By the A. P.)—France's budget for the maintenance of her standing army, together with other military expenses for 1925, will amount to 4,468,000,000 francs, General Nollet, minister of war, announced in the chamber of deputies today.

The war minister added that this was just a transitory budget and that the government, at the next session of parliament, would ask that body to vote on a bill now being drawn up which will call for the reorganization of an "armed nation."

Comparing the 1925 war budget figures with 1,700,000,000 francs in that of the 1924 war budget, General Nollet said that, owing to the depreciation of the franc, it represented only 75 per cent. of the pre-war yearly military expenditures.

"Compared to France's 25 per cent. decrease," said the minister, "the war budget of the United States shows an increase of 74 per cent., Holland 38 per cent., Spain 29 per cent. and Japan 18 per cent. over pre-war figures.

"France, often accused of militarism, has reduced its military expenditures, compared with the forces of potential adversary. The present situation is favorable to France, but we cannot overlook the necessities of victories which must be maintained, and we must give France a military organization and all material necessary to safeguard peace."

The "armed nation" bill to which General Nollet referred is an extensive plan prepared by the superior war council whereby all the forces of the nation are organized in times of peace so that they may be mobilized in the briefest period for war.

Washington, Dec. 9—Supreme Court Justice Mahlon Pitney, retired, died today at his home in this city after a long illness.

When Justice Pitney was forced by two strokes of paralysis to go upon the retired list 18 months ago, his physicians held out no hope of recovery. The inroads of the affliction were so gradual, however, that after his retirement, he was able at times to move about without assistance, and he was, in fact, conscious until the end came, unaware that death was approaching.

For the last six months, the encroachment of his illness had held him closely to his bed, and in the last week his weakness had increased, but the announcement of his death came as a surprise to his associates.

Justice Pitney's former associates and the new members of the supreme court plan to attend the funeral in a body.

It may be more blessed to give than to receive, but the average man is always willing to let the other fellow have the blessing.

CHANGE IN REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN

Hartford, Dec. 9.—Uncertainty as to the dates when they could come to Connecticut to speak in the republican senatorial campaign caused Secretary Alex W. Creedon of the republican state committee today to cancel the speaking engagements of Senator James W. Wadeworth, Jr., of New York, and Congressman Theodore Burton, of Ohio, keynote orator by choice of President Coolidge at the republican national convention.

Congressman Burton was to have come for a Monday rally, but wired today that unforeseen developments made it necessary for him to come tomorrow. That gave too short notice to arrange another rally, for him to address. Senator Wadsworth volunteered to fill Senator Borah's speaking engagement in New Britain, but a night later than that for which Borah was assigned. The time was too short to revamp the arrangements.

First Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett, former government of New Hampshire will speak at Foot Guard hall here tomorrow night.

Publicity of Income Tax Returns Lawful

Verdict Sustains the New York Herald-Tribune—An Appeal to Be Taken.

New York, Dec. 9.—A directed verdict of not guilty as returned by a United States district court jury today in the case of the New York Tribune Company, Inc., publishers of the New York Herald-Tribune, indicted for unlawful publication of income tax returns.

The trial continued only a few hours, the prosecution calling four witnesses and the defense none, although Federal Judge Knox declined to dismiss the indictments, as the Herald attorneys requested, he directed the verdict of acquittal in order, he said, that the prosecution might appeal directly to the United States supreme court. Such an appeal would be taken immediately, United States District Attorney Hayward announced.

Counsel for the Herald-Tribune conducted its case on the assumption that it was wholly a question of interpretation of the law, rather than of fact. Only one objection was raised to the facts cited by the prosecution as warranting the indictments, the defense contended that the publication of names, addresses and amounts of income tax paid was not publication of a part of the income tax returns.

Judge John C. Knox directed the jury verdict of not guilty in order, as he said, that the government might be in a position to appeal directly to the United States supreme court.

Later it was discovered that the criminal appeals act barred an appeal to the United States supreme court, as Hayward had planned, making a reindictment of the Tribune corporation necessary.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT AS COP FIRED AT BANDITS

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 9.—Dolph J. Ossene, 25, proprietor of a drug store in Newton square, was accidentally shot by Patrolman Robert J. Vaughn tonight while the policeman was in a close range gun battle with two bandits who attempted to hold up the store while the patrolman was in it.

Ossene was taken to a hospital where surgeons said his condition was serious but he would probably live.

The shooting occurred after Vaughn had drawn his revolver to fire on the two armed men who fired five shots at him while within a distance of 15 feet. The men had held up Ossene's wife and Stephen J. Horgan Jr., a customer, not knowing that the policeman was in the rear room with Ossene who was drilling holes in a partition in an effort to catch shoplifters who have recently visited the store.

One of the bandits fled and exchanged shots with the policeman on June street before making his escape in an automobile.

"The people of your city and your state are the only ones who had requested a three-year extension of the leave of absence given General Butler a year ago.

The president granted the extension of leave on condition that further request for General Butler's services not be made and also on condition that the federal government and especially the White House be in no-wise held responsible for the conduct of his office or his relationship with the office of mayor.

PARLIAMENT OPENS WITH SPEECH FROM THE THRONE

London, Dec. 9 (By the A. P.).—The new parliament, destined for a long legislative life, lent its ears to the party leaders today after learning from the king's address some of the things the conservative government intends to do, shortly after his majesty had ceremoniously opened parliament, the prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, with two-thirds of the commons back of him, told the house what his government aims to accomplish.

When the premier had done talking, Ramsay Macdonald and Mr. Lloyd George, the leaders of the labor and liberal minorities, respectively, told the cabinet ministers and their conservative colleagues some of the things they thought the government ought and ought not to do.

So far as the house of commons itself is concerned, there is little time to do anything this year, except to talk, as parliament will begin its long Christmas recess a week from Friday, and the members will remain away from Westminster until Feb. 10. One of the questions which will be discussed in parliament very soon is the subject of international debts.

Mr. Lloyd George remarked today that he regretted the omission from the king's speech of any reference to any effort by the government to deal with the inter-allied debts.

Great Britain, he said, was the heaviest taxed nation in the world. He asked if it was taking part in the negotiations going on between France and the United States in regard to the French debt. He knew it was a very unpleasant matter to ask one's friends to pay their debts, but, he added, "United States never hesitated a moment to call upon this country to pay."

The speech from the throne covered a multitude of affairs, both domestic and foreign. Among the most interesting announcements was that the Prince of Wales would shortly pay a visit to Argentina. The king's reference to Egypt was decidedly pointed. He declared that the British demands, which have been accepted, "were designed to secure respect for those interests which are of vital concern to my empire."

NOTED PIANO PLAYER TO BE RELEASED FROM PRISON

Jefferson City, Mo., Dec. 9 (By the A. P.)—The "king of the ivories," who won acclaim for his exceptional piano playing via radio, while serving a term in the Missouri state penitentiary here, is to be released January 16.

He is Harry M. Snodgrass, serving three years for robbery at St. Louis, who has appeared as the star performer on the Monday night programs from WOS, the state marketing bureau station.

Last night while Snodgrass was performing officials announced that, with the benefit of good time earned under the prison merit system, he would be released next month. His three-year term would not expire until June 21.

Snodgrass recently won the title of "the most popular radio entertainer," in a nation-wide contest. He has a wife and son, 8 years old. Last night when the announcement was made, it was stated that he would leave the prison a poor man. Today more than $300 in gifts and donations have been received, officials said.

He has received many offers of employment on vaudeville circuits, in theaters, cafes and with dance orchestras, but does not know yet what he will do, he says.

PROVISIONAL SUPPORT TO NEW CHINESE GOVERNMENT

ESME HOWARD'S VIEWS ON DISARMAMENT AND PEACE

British Ambassador to the United States Declares Great Britain May Have to Go Further Than the United States in Cooperation With the Other European Nations to Produce a State of Confidence—States That Every European Power Would Be Glad to Reduce Expenditures For Armaments if Only a Sense of Security Could Be Established.

New York, Dec. 9.—Great Britain may have to go further than the United States in cooperating with the other European nations to produce a state of confidence leading up to disarmament and peace, Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, told members of the English-Speaking union of the United States tonight.

This must not be construed, he asserted, as implying a possibility of a clash between American and England," which the other nations of the world must really learn to consider—as we already do consider—as the one thing we will neither admit nor endure."

Every European power, Sir Esme said, would be glad to reduce expenditures on armamments if only a sense of security could be established. This could be done, he believed, by the adoption of the Geneva Protocol, which he described as "just an honest attempt of perfectly honest men to find a method of making war impossible so far as that can be humanly done." Compulsory arbitrations, he asserted, was the only way to establish a sense of security.

The great interest and aim of the United States and Great Britain, the Ambassador continued, was to promote peace and not to establish an Anglo-Saxon domination of the world.

Sir Esme, spoke at a dinner the Union gave in his honor at the Hotel Plaza. George W. Wickersham presided and other speakers were Frank Aydelotte, president of Swarthmore college, who spoke of the work of the Rhodes scholarships in bringing about better understanding between the two countries, and the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes, Cadman, president of the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America.

President Coolidge sent a message asking to be numbered among "those who will pay their tribute to the ambassador and the great country he represents."

"The aim of your organization to promote those sentiments of good will and cooperation between this country and your own is deserving of all support," the president wrote.

Sir Esme was luncheon guest this noon of the Association of Foreign correspondents at the Lawyer's Club here. In an address he said Europe recognized the United States' determination to stay out of the league, but hoped for her cooperation.

TO VIEW ECLIPSE FROM VAN VLECK OBSERVATORY

Middletown, Conn., Dec. 9.—The observers from Mount Wilson and the other observatories of California, Virginia, University of Virginia, University of Wisconsin, Harvard and Brown and possibly from the Yerkes observatory at Chicago and Princeton and the United States bureau of standards will come here on January 24 to view the eclipse of the sun at the Van Vleck observatory connected with Wesleyan university. Apparatus is being sent from some of the observatories for use here.

According to Prof. Frederick Slocum, in charge of the Van Vleck observatory, the observers will attempt to get the time of contact at the beginning and at the end of the eclipse. They will photograph partial phases to get the relative position of the sun and moon and also will attempt to get pictures of the shadow bands. These bands, which appear as fluttering shadows on the earth just before and after the eclipse have never been photographed successfully, according to Prof. Slocum. The scientists also will take photographs of the flash spectrum to determine the chemical composition of the gases just outside the surface of the sun the height to which they extend and the conditions existing in the vapor. The flash spectrum is the last bit of light visible just before the moon covers the sun. The observations to be made in connection with it, will, according to Prof. Slocum, have an important bearing on the theory of the structure of the atom.

The observers also will make observations of the eclipse in connection with its bearing on the Einstein theory

A second sub-committee had virtually reached an agreement and expected to make a report Wednesday afternoon.

PROGRESS IN HOUSE ON APPROPRIATION BILLS

Washington, Dec. 9.—The house today cleared from its legislative pathway the first of the annual supply bills, that carrying the interior department, and then took up the agricultural appropriation measure, carrying $8,000,000 for road construction. Before adjournment it had concluded general debate on the agriculture bill and was well along on the reading of the measure under the five-minute rule.

No sooner had the bill been sent to the senate, than senators from southern and western states made a move to retain the provision for 39 land offices, and to eliminate a section, approved by the house, to do away with the office of surveyor general. Several senators also announced their intention of procuring a substantial appropriation for the Spanish Springs reclamation project in Nevada, which failed in the house, when Representative Richards, democrat, of that state, attempted to amend the measure to provide $500,000 for this purpose.

The Spanish Springs project has proved a controversial subject since it came into prominence in the closing hours of the last session.

Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, in charge of the bill in the house, made another appeal for economy before final passage of the measure today, and demanded a second vote on the amendment proposing continuance of the land offices. This amendment, offered by Representative Sinnott, republican, Oregon, eliminated a section to abolish the offices. On a second vote the Sinnott proposal was sustained 183 to 162, and the house then passed the bill by a viva voce vote.

More than a third of the agricultural bill had been read when the house adjourned, and not an amendment had been offered. Items approved included $1,440,000 for agricultural experiment stations, $1,308,540, for farmers' cooperative demonstrations, $1,300,000 for cooperative agricultural extension work, $2,343,192 for weather bureau activities, $8,385,156 for the meat inspection, and for the eradication of various diseases among livestock, and $1,824,638 for the bureau of plant industry.

The agricultural bill will be laid aside by the house tomorrow for miscellaneous legislation from the naval committee but will be taken up again Thursday.

MAY BE NECESSARY TO APPORTION OUT WATER

New Haven, Dec. 9.—The use of America's water supply is rapidly reaching the stage when "it will be necessary to apportion out the amount to be used for drinking and household use before the industries are allowed to utilize any for manufacturing or any other purposes," Frederick H. Newell, former director of the United States reclamation service, said in a lecture on "safeguarding our national resources" delivered at Yale university tonight under the auspices of the Yale Forestry club.

With the great development of the use of water power for generating electricity in recent years he said, the demand for water has become so great that it will soon be necessary to establish priority rule for the different usages of water, so that the essential priority rule for the different usages of water, so that the essential use may be taken care of first.

GRADUATE NURSE WAGE SCALE ADDS CALAMITY TO SICKNESS

New Haven, Dec. 9.—Dr. Creighton Barker, secretary of the New Haven County Medical association, today, in criticism of a new wage scale of graduate nurses, announced yesterday, said: "Things have come to the point where it is cheaper for a sick man to die than to get well in New Haven. No one realizes better than doctors of this community how expensive it is to be sick, but as long as the public attitude towards nurses and nursing remains as it is there is nothing the physician can do to relieve the situation."

The nurses some days ago met and decided that their association should adopt a new wage scale which would be from $42 to $49 a week, increased from $35 to $40.

"Vanderlip was the go-between for Senator Wheeler during the senate investigations," the witness said.

STEAMERS FORCED TO SHELTER AT PORT ARTHUR

Port Arthur, Ont., Dec. 9—Coated with ice from stem to stern, the Northern Navigation passenger steamer, Huronic, steamed into port today and joined the 22 grain vessels which have been forced to shelter from the heavy gales sweeping this district.

The Huronic will unload her cargo tomorrow and expects to clear immediately for her home port, Carnia.

This afternoon, some of the vessels which had been anchored in the bay here moved into the open. They were reported to be encountering heavy northwest winds with high seas running. Many others will be forced to stay here for the winter it is believed as ice is forming rapidly.

After a man gets off one witty remark he is expected to give a continuous performance.

"Windham Town" a song, the words of which were composed by Rotary's own song writer, Valentine L. Murphy, and which expresses a beautiful thought of loyalty to the home town was tried out in rehearsal at the weekly meeting of the club Tuesday noon. The setting is by the club pianist, John T. Quinlan. Dr. Everett Taylor gave a fine resume of his experiences in his recent six months' trip abroad allowing the members to more keenly visualize the wonder of the Tower of Pisa and the historic buildings nearby through large photographs. Mention of the proposed municipal Christmas celebration was made by Mayor eGo. W. Hickey and Albert B. Smith. The report of A. E. Greene, chairman of the committee on Rotary welcome signs at the five entrances into the city was given and the club moved to have the signs erected. The committee was instructed to give an estimate of the cost of such signs at the next meeting. Dick Dodge spoke on presentation of the opera, Pirates of Penzance in nearby towns, stating that the production is being heartily received by large audiences. The opera is to be given here for the benefit of the Rotary boys' work fund. John Ahern reported that tickets were going like hot cakes and it is expected that the house will be filled. The club vocalists who carried the song, Windham Town through its initial steps, comprised President Standish, John Pickett, Doc. Jones, Ellison Smith, Ray Parker, Leader John Ahern and the song writer, Val Murphy. Dr. Ireland, state director of health and physical education was a guest of George Shafer.

The postoffice building is in the hands of painters and the exterior woodwork and the vestibule of the Main street entrance will shine with a new coat of paint on the holidays. Although the outside is being well cared for the interior remains sadly neglected. The walls and ceilings which have not been touched up since the building was taken over in 1911, present a very uninviting appearance of dirt and dust which nothing but a good redecoration job would correct.

I Paid $5.00

To obtain powders like these.
By Edna Wallace Hopper

I long paid $5.00 per box for my face powder. So do most beauties in the movies and on the stage. We have them made to order, by the greatest of experts, and no price is too high to pay.

I have for 40 years consulted the leading powder experts. I have obtained their best, regardless of the cost. So many of my friends have for decades ordered their powders through me.

When I offered my beauty helps to women, they overwhelmed me with requests for powder. They wanted to use what I use. But I could not offer them this powder at the price I paid.

So I went to the makers. I told them I could sell a million boxes at ordinary prices. They finally agreed to supply it—my identical powders—under my name.

Now you can obtain it. Every druggist and toilet counter has it. It comes in two types. One is heavy, clinging, cold cream powder. That is the type I like best. But the other is light and fluffy. The heavy powder in square box costs $1.00, the light in round box 50c.

You will find these supreme creations. No powders you have used can compare. Any face powder branded Edna Wallace Hopper is an exquisite product.

R. G. SULLIVAN'S MEMORY HONORED

Manchester, N. H., Dec. 8—Industrial Manchester paid tribute Dec. 2 to the memory of R. G. Sullivan, founder of the 7-20-4 cigar.

The story of Roger G. Sullivan, is a story of American opportunity improved to the full. He was born in Bradford, N. H., Dec. 18, 1854, but removed with his parents to Manchester, N. H., when a child, and in this city built up the business which brought him success and in a made Manchester famous wherever cigars are smoked.

In December 1874, at the age of 19, Roger Sullivan hired a small store and one cigarmaker and began the manufacture and sale of cigars. Later he located at 724 Elm street, Manchester From the street number of this store 724, the 7-20-4 cigar derived its name

R. G. SULLIVAN

Since 1874 the business has outgrown six factories and now occupies one of the largest and most hygienic cigar factories in the world. More than 1500 men and women are employed, with an annual payroll of over two million dollars.

Some idea of the magnitude of this business can be realized in the statement that in 1923 the firm of R. G. Sullivan paid the United States government $2,225,000 for import and stamp taxes alone. A recent purchase of Havana tobacco amounted to $1,400,000.

This phenomenal growth was due to the sagacious judgment of Mr. Sullivan. He was habitually affable in manner, considerate and charitable, and his friendly personality made friends of all who knew him.

Notwithstanding its enormous growth, the entire business was owned by Mr. Sullivan until his death July 13, 1918. Since then it has been and is now owned and operated exclusively by his family.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Watch tomorrows paper for the announcement of the great vaudeville show scheduled for the last of this week.

With memories of Monte Blue's performance in The Marriage Circle still fresh in the minds of film fans, the announcement comes that this popular star is to make his next appearance on the screen as a society idler in Declasse, a Principal Pictures offering in which he shares stellar honors with Marie Prevost at the Broadway theater beginning Thursday.

Some of the most notable successes recently scored by Mr. Blue have associated him in the same cast with Marie Prevost, and the announcement that he will be seen with the former bathing girl who has made her way to the peaks of stardom in dramatic films will be good news to many an ardent follower of the cinema.

In Daughters of Pleasure Mr. Blue will be seen as a wealthy bachelor—of late he has been cast as a married man so much that this in itself will be a novelty—a man who is concerned with but two thoughts: the first being "where is the next party," and the second, "what can we do to make it really lively."

Kathlyn Williams comes back into a Cruze production as a Fifth avenue society woman who adopts the baby of Mother O'Day, and whose vindictive attitude eventually robs her of the mysterious revenue which has enabled her to maintain her position for many years.

Appearing in the strong supporting cast are such well known names as Pierre Gendron, whom you remember as leading man for Madge Kennedy and Marguerite Clark a few years ago. James Farley, Ben Hendricks and Vondell Darr.

The City That Never Sleeps, which will be the feature at the Davis theater, was adapted to the screen by Walter Woods and Anthony Coldewey. Karl Brown, who "shot" The Covered Wagon, did the photography.

Mr. Harry Odell the acrobatic drummer has quite a few novelties to offer. Mr. Russel Carlson who is responsible for many new arrangements to be played Saturday evening takes great pride in mentioning the latest song hit Prince of Wails, which is termed by music critics as a Knockout. The harmony and rhythm of this popular outfit is superb. A record breaking crowd is expected from Norwich and vicinity.

Breed Theater

Barbara Frietchie, the photoplay of the greatest romance in American history, closes its run at the Breed theater tonight. Lovely Florence Vidor has the title role and Edmund Lowe is seen opposite her as Captain Will Trumbull. The large and notable supporting cast includes Emmet King, Louis Fitzroy, Gertrude Short, Joe Bennet, Charles Delaney and others.

While the film is a faithful chronicle of Civil war times, mobs are not featured as is so often done in pictures of this sort. The war serves merely as a background for the famous love story. The photoplay is based on the Clyde Fitch stage play in which Julia Marlowe appeared. It was adapted for the screen by Agnes Christine Johnston and Lambert Hillyer. The latter also directed.

A news and comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Lyceum Theater, New London

Cecil B. De Mille's magnificent cinema production, The Ten Commandments, which has been running for many months with great success in New York, as well as in London, will be presented for the first time in New London, at the Lyceum theater today. Two performances will be given daily, at 2:30 and 8:30 o'clock during the rest of this week. The picture will be shown by a touring organization, consisting of an orchestra under the direction of L. De Francesco, together with projectionists, electricians and a crew of mechanics.

The first part of The Ten Commandments is a superb pictorial revelation of the Exodus of the Children of Israel from the Land of Egypt and their safe passage through the Red Sea towards the Promised Land.

In the modern story, which forms the second part of the production, the chaos of present day life and thought in America is set forth in an equally impressive and at times startling fashion. The love story, involving one who scoffs at and one who obeys the laws of Moses, and the adorable woman who is the heart's desire of both, is thrilling in its episodes and marvellously human in its appeal and message.

At State Hall Tonight

The pictures of Washington, our national shrine, the remarkable illustrated lecture by Mr. Charles Colfax Long, are exquisite in their soft coloring and bring forth the elusive many moded beauties of Washington. The views will long remain in the memory of those fortunate enough to attend the lecture, for the pictures forcibly bring to the mind of the audience that the city, their capital city, is really a wonderful city, more beautiful, perhaps, than many think.

Washington is the national shrine and there no man's shrine to be found within that shrine.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Out of Oneco comes the announcement that a bill will be introduced in the session of the Connecticut legislature opening in January to establish a town court in Plainfield. This is especially interesting in view of the fact that Oneco is a province of the town of Sterling.

It is not an unusual thing for many bills to be introduced into every legislature that assembles in this state. No more unusual than the fact that the congress of the United States now has 14,000 bills pending, including one to remove the national capital to Milwaukee, a town that beer made famous, though it used to be alleged that Milwaukee made the beer famous. That does not count much any more in view of the fact that most towns are trying to make themselves infamous by varied and sundry violations of the eighteenth amendment.

But to get back to Plainfield! Oneco alleges that Plainfield has 15 justices of the peace and that few, or any of them, really know much about law or the administration thereof, not to mention the multiferious statutes of the state of Connecticut. Of course, this is no particular reflection on the town of Plainfield and might apply to any township in Connecticut that retains the justice and grand juror system. It would be equally true of Killingly, if this town were still doing its legal business through justices' courts. It merely points out, from Oneco, the fact that the justice system is, or ought to be, a thing of the past, and that no one but a member of the bar of the state of Connecticut is competent to judicially preside over a court to whose destiny the case of any sovereign citizen is submitted. This argument has been heard many times before in various towns in eastern Connecticut. Not only has the matter been discussed, but there are those who contend that the district court system prevailing in Massachusetts and other states and embracing jurisdiction in several towns, should be adopted.

It is alleged from Oneco that the enforcement of prohibition is back of the plan to put a town court in Plainfield. It is set forth that 15 justices, with full power to hold court, and six grand jurors, with full power to further prosecutions, might work at cross-purposes with each other; that many people have many views about the enforcement of prohibition, which continues to be a favorite bone of contention among people who have not yet schooled themselves to regard it as among the things of life that are settled, even if they do not happen to be in the minds of sundry thousands of people.

Plainfield's object seems to be, if advices from Oneco are to be credited, to have one tribunal presided over by a member of the bar and one prosecuting attorney, both skilled in the ways of law administration. The plan seems to be, to shut out the amateur prosecutors and presiding justices. It aims, indirectly, at the abolition of all grand jurors and justices of the peace. Various charges of incompetency are aimed against grand jurors and justices in the arguments of those who would have a town court. It is held that grand jurors in many cases do not know how to make out complaints and that justices are too prone to listen from what is classified as outside advice in imposing sentences, regardless of the law and circumstances in each case. And what is alleged to apply to Plainfield will apply to about every Connecticut town that still retains the archaic system of law administration.

Much that has been set down here relative to the inefficiency of grand jurors and justices of the peace finds secret approval among members of the legal fraternity of Connecticut, though these attorneys are not broadcasting the fact, for obvious and various reasons. In a word, they are not looking for an argument. But they know the facts!

Unintentionally—in fact, with a view to remedying something with which a town may be finding fault—it is queer how the making up of a newspaper can juggle things around so as to make difficulties for those who write for it. An item that belonged in the Jewett City news and having to do with the lack of lights at the station there, crept into the Putnam news column Tuesday morning. And thereafter, 16 telephone calls at least came to disturb the peace of mind of the Danielson correspondent relative to the matter.

It so happens that Danielson has no squawk about the lights at the New Haven railroad station Sunday evenings. They are all and adequate. And the same applies to Putnam. Jewett City will have to fight its own battle in this instance and accept full responsibility for all news items relative thereto sent out from that place. It is altogether too hectic a job these days to be carrying on correspondence on too many fronts! Life is strenuous enough as it is eternally right!

Its stroke who had revered him through life, and friends who were proud to claim him as such, gathered Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Charles S. Hyde, in Brooklyn, to attend the funeral services for Comfort Starr Burlingame, 73, who died in New York. The service was conducted by Rev. Charles S. Johnson, of Canterbury. The bearers were Charles S. Hyde, Mortimer Marlor, Judge Oscar F. Atwood, A. T. J. Clark, Leroy Pearl and Michael T. Shea. Burial was in the Hyde family cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

At Attawaugan, Tuesday morning, the death of Mrs. Mary Raymond occurred after an illness with pneumonia. Mrs. Raymond was the widow of Timothy Raymond, whose burial took place a year ago today, Dec. 10. The family had been resident in Attawaugan for several years.

Today (Wednesday) County Agent Frank L. Davis of the Windham County Farmers' association is to be at the farm of Thomas Mara from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. This information is broadcast for all interested persons resident in the area of the Willimantic division of the S. N. E. Telephone company. These people may get in touch with the county agent by communicating with him at Mr. Mara's.

When George Robinson, rated as one of the five best middleweight colored boxers in the United States, and Battling Thomas of Boston meet here Thursday evening next week at the Casino arena the fans of eastern Connecticut likely will see one of the greatest action exhibitions in the history of boxing in Danielson. Tonight (Wednesday) at Atlanta, Ga., Robinson meets Tiger Flowers, and it is understood that he is to receive $2,000 for his end of the purse, win or lose. This should indicate his class to followers of battling in the squared circle. Battling Thomas will be recalled as the conqueror of Baltimore Joe Gans, of Norwich, at the last boxing exhibition held here, during November.

In various business places about Danielson there are receptacles set up in conspicuous places these days that invite one to give something toward providing Christmas cheer for the needy of Danielson. Little need be said as to giving to this fund to those who for years have made a practice of giving to it. Much may be urged upon those who find money easy and life a rather pleasant sort of experience. Whatever one may deposit in the jars that have been made ready for those who like to think of their less fortunate fellowmen, will do 100 per cent good. This is assured. The fact should touch the heart and pocketbooks of those who regard Christmas merely as an opportunity to make a showing of opulence in quarters where it will count the most in gratifying returns. There is greater joy, on the testimony of millions, in doing something for those who need a friend. A measure of one's generosity is the amount he spares toward making Christmas a period of real, unadulterated joy for those in need of generosity.

"For God's sake do something in your clounn to save Connecticut from Holt!" So reads a missive that has reached this correspondent. Now there does not seem to be any need of such perturbation as that. Mr. Holt is a very good man, but he isn't going to be elected a senator from Connecticut, not unless about 100,000 republicans drop dead or give up their vote next Tuesday. There need be no appeal, in one humble opinion, to the Deity regarding such a practical issue of national affairs. Mr. Holt's chances can be kept down to the irreducible minimum that they have never risen above if those who believe in the republican party and its program just get down to the polls and vote next week. Most of them probably will. After the election, up at Sunset farm in Woodstock, Mr. Holt will not appear the great bugaboo some think he is today, though he isn't anything of the kind.

Tonight, state armory, whist party, benefit Service battery athletic fund. —adv.

Quick Way to End Sore Throat

Why bother with slow acting remedies that may and may not help your raw sore throat, when two or three gargles with Kojene before you go to bed at night will reduce the inflammation, destroy any and every germ and cause the soreness to go before morning.

If by any mishap Kojene doesn't do this, Lee & Osgood Co., or any progressive druggist anywhere will gladly return the 60 cents you pay for a six ounce bottle.

Read the directions for sore throat as Kojene, the world's most powerful antiseptic, should be diluted to obtain quick results. Kojene is non-poisonous — you can drink it if you want to.

PUTNAM

George E. Dresser, druggist, who has probably occupied the same business location as long as any retail merchant in Putnam, very much favors the suggestion made a year ago by Alderman-at-large Richard, that the city acquire the property on the East Side of Livery street, demolish the buildings and make a second Main street of it. Mr. Dresser says that more than ever he realized Saturday evening when he was trying to make his way into the Industrial Show in the state armory, the necessity for some relief for automobile as well as pedestrian congestion.

"Traffic congestion on Main street has grown so fas in the past few months," he said, "that there are times when it is very difficult for automobiles to pass. This is especially true on Saturday nights. As one means of helping correct this condition, I would suggest that the property owners on the east side of Livery street donate ten or fifteen feet of ground to the city and that the street be widened to that extent.

"If the present owner of the Harper property would do this, the added value of the land remaining would more than compensate him. The city could afford to pay the owners from the Harper property to Front street the cost of moving back their buildings, as their own holdings would greatly appreciate in value.

"It would surprise those not familiar with conditions to know how much Livery street is used these days, in comparison with former times, but if it were widened as I suggest it would become a very busy business street, and take part of the travel that is now burdening aMin street. The change may not be practicable just at this time, but I believe it is worth considering."

The same trouble seems to exist in Putnam about the payment of taxes as there is in Danielson only the collectors here are confronted with the failure to pay property as well as personal taxes. Property owners are neglecting payment in spite of the fact that interest at the rate of nine per cent. is being charged on all taxes unpaid on July 10, 1924.

Archie Macdonald, Jr., tax collecter of the town of Putnam, is sending out notices to more than 350 delinquents, calling attention to their failure to pay, reminding them that he has no option in the matter except to enforce collection and that he is not empowered to remit one cent of interest. Continued failure to pay will result in litigation and additional expense to the property owner.

All of these delinquents have received notices. If there is any reason why the property owner thinks that he does not owe the tax, or that the amount is not correct he can save trouble and expense for himself by calling on Mr. Macdonald.

Mrs. Alice M. Douty of Putnam died Tuesday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Keach in Danielson. Mrs. Douty went to Danielson to spend Thanksgiving with her daughter, was taken ill soon after her arrival and grew steadily worse. The body was brought to the home of her son-in-law, Dr. Harry C. Houghton, in this city. Mrs. Douty is the widow of Jerome Douty, who died about ten years ago. He was one of the best known of Putnam's retail merchants. Two children survive her, Mrs. Keach of Danielson, and Mrs. Houghton of Putnam.

There is to be a public hearing by the Public Utilities Commission at the City Hall in Putnam, Thursday, Dec. 17th, on the application of Abraham L. Weiner, owner of the Blue Ribbon Line of buses for a certificate to operate one or more jitneys.

Also to hear the application of the Farnum (Sage Lines, Inc.) of Worcester, Mass., to operate jitneys.

As far as is known the operation of buses on the proposed routes would not interfere or compete with or take away business from the railroad or trolley lines.

The installation will take place Sunday afternoon, Jan. 11, at the Community house. After the meeting Samuel Butterworth addressed the society, explaining why all societies and organizations should patronize the building. He spoke of the comforts of the building and benefits of the association. He told the society that at any time if they had any complaints or suggestions to offer on the clubhouse that they were invited to meet with the executive committee of the club and voice their views. He urged the members of the society to become members of the Community house, saying that it cost but one cent a day, and that if the employes of the mill wished 25c each week would be taken from their pay. The expense of running the Community house is $18,000 annually. He stated that it was through his idea the Community house was realized five years ago, and it was built so that Plainfield people could be as one big family, know one another, and to keep the younger set on the right path. He ended his address by urging more applications to swell the membership drive to 2,000 members.

JEWETT CITY

The following item by mistake was published in the Putnam column Tuesday morning, instead of in the Jewett City news where it belongs:

It is understood that an official visited the railroad station Sunday evening evidently in the interests of whether the platform is well lighted at night on Sunday. As it happened to be a moonlight night it was hardly the time to judge of the Egyptian blackness that prevails there nearly every Sunday night. The official was informed, so it was said, that it was light enough if anyone was sober. As a large majority of the passengers are women, one woman who boards a Sunday night car every week, says she hardly dares to set her bag down for fear she will not find it, that "sober" statement is rather flat. Also he was told, it was reported, that a light was always burning at the store at the other end of the platform. The traveling public does not come to or go from the station from that direction, or board or leave the car anywhere near that light.

WM. F. ANDERSON APPOINTED PRESIDENT OF BOSTON U.

Boston, Dec. 9.—The board of trustees of Boston university today announced the appointment of William F. Anderson, resident bishop of the Boston area of the Methodist Episcopal church as acting president of the university, to assume the duties on Jan. 1.

At the same time the board voted to comply with the request for relief at the date of President Lemuel H. Murlin, who will then take the presidency of De Pauw university, Green Castle, Ind., his alma mater, to which post he was elected last September. The board voted Dr. Murlin an honrarium of $5,000 for his service to the institution.

The committee on nomination of a permanent president reported progress and stated that after a careful survey some forty names were under consideration.

Dr. Murlin has been president of Boston university since in 1911 during which time the institution has had an enormous growth; its reclamation was accepted much deep regret when he asked to be relieved in order to undertake the leadership of the De Pauw.

Bishop Anderson's appointment to the Boston area was made at the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Springfield last spring, transferring him from Cincinnati. Previous to becoming a bishop in 1908, he had served as recorder and corresponding secretary of the board of education of the Methodist Episcopal church for 10 years. He is a trustee of several educational institutions and has had a varied service in Europe and Africa in the foreign mission field.

A STEADY INVESTMENT DEMAND FOR STOCKS

New York, Dec. 9.—(By The A. P.)—In response to a steady investment demand coming from all sections of the country and some of the specialties the average of twenty leading industrial stocks was lifted today to the highest level in several years. Railroad shares lost ground on profit-taking. Seventy-four issues, including motor and accessory and 13 public utility shares, attained new peak prices for the year, with total sales of all stocks slightly in excess of 1,500,000 shares.

One of the most remarkable features in the broad advance that has occurred since election day is the fact that it has been so supported by other relatively small increases in investors' loans. This is exhibited by investors being drawn therefrom that large blocks of stock are being purchased currently by large institutions and wealthy individuals.

U. S. Steel common crossed 118 today for a gain of more than one point in expectation that the monthly statement, to be issued tomorrow, will show an increase of at least 500,000 tons over the previous month.

The long list of new highs included American Telephone, American Water Works, Consolidated Gas, Jordan Motor, Maxwell Motors A and B, the three Pierce-Arrow issues, International Harvester, Pullman, Westinghouse Air Brake, Postum Cereal, Kennecott and Utah Coppers, Ludlum and Sloss-Sheffield Steels, Pure Oil, Commercial Solvents B and Western Union.

THE WORLD COURT.

As chairmen of the foreign relations committee of the senate the position of Senator Borah concerning the world court and legislation looking to our adherence thereto is interesting.

The Idaho senator's position concerning the league of nations is no secret. He has been decidedly outspoken against it and he still maintains that this country should not even join an international court which can be in any way subjected to the control of the league. He has made it clear that he intends to oppose any move that is made concerning the court that does not provide for such separation, even though there is quite a strong feeling to the effect that while the court may have been created by the league it is not under its domination. However that is a matter about which much more is likely to be learned, for there seems certain that the question of adherence to the court will be permitted in time to come up for a thorough discussion of its merits, when those who favor membership and those who oppose will have a chance to be heard.

That Senator Borah is opposed to action upon this matter at this session, or at least not until matters of domestic importance are disposed of, indicates the right stand. The short session of congress now underway has a limited life. There are matters which should be disposed of without delay, and the failure to act upon them should not be permitted to force a special session of congress. This is fully realized by Senator Borah. He knows what havoc could be caused by getting into a heated controversy at this time concerning the world court. Just such a situation has piled up business, clogged congress and held up appropriation bills on previous occasions. If, after the necessary legislation for the closing session of this congress has been adopted, there remains time for dealing with the world court there can be no serious objection. This congress will be obliged to step lively and go forward all of the time if such a development takes place.

THE DUKE AND EASTMAN GIFTS

What they consider the opportunities for doing the greatest good with the wealth they have amassed is displayed by the action of J. B. Duke and George Eastman in giving respectively $40,000,000 and $12,500,000 to educational institutions, hospitals and churches. The Eastman gift is solely for education and brings his total contributions to nearly $60,000,000.

Such philanthropy is bound to receive widespread commendation. It will be received with a deep feeling of gratitude by the organizations which have been designated to get and use it. It will mean the furtherance of the endeavors that are being made in educational lines among leading institutions in both the north and the south.

The Duke fund will be devoted chiefly to the betterment of conditions in the Carolinas but from the manner in which distribution has been provided for there exist conditions which require such aid as will be extended, and for that reason the people who will feel the direct benefit, as well as those who understand that such regional efforts contribute to the general good, are bound to be highly appreciative of the generous provisions.

Long since have there been admirable examples of just such philanthropies furnished. Having realized that it was from the public that the big fortunes were obtained through keen business insight it is a most commendable spirit that seeks to distribute them in a manner where the greatest good will be done to the greatest number. Certainly there are great opportunities through educational efforts to benefit mankind. Likewise there are big avenues for uplift and benefit through the other charities that have been designated.

These two new benefactions do not break any records in the manner of giving or the amounts contributed, but they indicate a high purpose and give endorsement to the laudable example which others have set and which more will feel justified in following. They disclose the bigness of the men.

FEDERAL BUILDINGS.

When it comes to making appropriations for public buildings there confronts congress a task that has many angles. Every state and every district represented in Washington has a jealousy in such legislation. It has always been so and it seems likely to continue for a long time to come.

In order to better handle the business of the government through its various departments, and to effect much needed economies, the public buildings commission at Washington has recommended the expenditure of $50,000,000 for new construction there, with the provision that it be extended over a period of five years and not more than $10,000,000 be spent any one year.

Can it be expected that the government requirements will get attention in Washington without a howl coming from all sections of the country for appropriations for new buildings, sites and additions?

Public building appropriations were shut off when the country required its funds for other purposes during the way. There has been no time since when it has been so flush that it could see its way to resuming the building activities that characterized the period prior to the war. The need of economy is still being emphasized, while the cry for lowered taxes will not cease until it has been appeased. Under the circumstances the prospects for the early return to the building programme cannot be regarded as having rosy prospects. There still remain many ways for the use of all funds that can be obtained.

When the time does come, however, that congress sees its way clear to resume building activities it can be expected that not only Washington but the entire country will of necessity receive consideration. In view of the fact that federal taxes are being exacted, the high cost of construction must continue to have its dampening effects, especially where demands are made for new buildings which are not actually required.

HOLIDAY DECORATIONS.

Appeals are being made at this season of the year for the saving of certain wild New England plants. It comes now because of the large amount of material that is demanded for Christmas decorations and particular stress is being laid upon the need of checking the inroads that are being made into the supply of laurel.

In this state a law already exists which provides a penalty for the taking from the land of another the whole or part of any pine, spruce, hemlock fir, or other evergreen tree without having obtained the permission of the owner, and it is also provided that any person who shall take mountain laurel, or ferns, vines or foliage, branches of trees or shrubs from the land of another to be sold without the permission of the owner, or his agent is subject to a fine of $50 to $100.

The raids that are made upon the countryside for purposes of obtaining decorations result in the removal of an enormous amount of property. It means the taking of the property of others in the great majority of cases without permission being sought, and in the case of laurel in particular it means the depletion of that much sought for greenery to the point where unless it is checked there will soon be no laurel at all.

Efforts to turn the demand for laurel into other channels for the preservative effect it will have upon the shrub is bound to get due commendation. It is a move that is timely and like the law for its preservation it is well to understand that whatever is done must be done before it is all gone.

PAROLES IN NEW YORK.

Can there be any wonder that there are those who believe that the paroling and pardoning authority in the Empire state should be placed in different hands? The Brindell case may prove to be the straw that breaks the camel's back. Because of the manner in which that case has been handled by the parole board and the conflict in opinion that exists among the board members as to its authority New York may well stop and dig into the activities of that board.

While the work of the parole board is supposed to depend upon the circumstances with which it has to deal, there are certain restrictions which it is supposed to observe and there is no small degree of responsibility which it owes to the public.

In the paroling of Brindell before he has served the minimum period of his sentence it now appears that no word was sent to the district attorney's office notifying him that the hearing on the parole was to be held and consequently there was no representation from that office.

It also develops that one member of the board claims that it has no power to impose restrictions upon those it paroles while another insists that it does.

Under such conditions it creates no surprise when charges of favoritism are made. Whether the reopening of the Brindell parole case will result in any change in the decision of the board remains to be seen. The criticism that has followed the board's decision to parole him and the resentment that has been displayed give indication that regardless of what is done in this instance there is reason enough for an overhauling of the conditions surrounding the parole board and its operations.

The democrats of Connecticut cannot develop much enthusiasm over trying to send a bolter to the United States senate. Certainly there's no attractions in such a possibility for republicans.

Connecticut's Senatorship

Leave National Policies to Other Than Holt.

In a letter to the Springfield Republican, Henry Parsons Jones of Bennington, Vt. writes:

Aside from all questions of politics, the news interest which has attended the candidacy of Hamilton Holt for the United States senate from Connecticut, while dwelling upon qualifications undoubtedly excellent in themselves, has seemed to ignore the record of his affiliations and activities during the early period of our country's recent war emergency.

The documentary records of the various associations and individuals who were thorns in the side of their country at the above critical period, will be found in Document 62 of the United States senate, 1918; also in the four-volume report of the "New York State Legislative Investigation of Seditious Activities," 1920; and in the late R. M. Whitney's book, "Reds in America," 1924, and in the index of each of the two latter works will be found a total of five specific page references to Hamilton Holt's activity.

Without impugning the motives or the sincerity which led Hamilton Holt to prominently associate himself with organizations which have been recorded as in reality furthering the aims of paid agents of the German government, it is submitted that future national policies and emergencies which may arise in the United States senate, may perhaps better be left in other hands.

The published extracts from correspondence in 1915 between Hamilton Holt and Lochner, of well-remembered pro-German activities and who is recently of record as established in Berlin and in close touch with the international propaganda bureau of the Communist International are of interest as showing that Holt, subsequently chairman of the neutral conference committee, together with Hillquit, and the notorious Rosika Schwimmer, recorded as undoubtedly a German agent, and subsequently as the first bolshevik ambassador from Hungary to Switzerland under Bela Kun, apparently spoke from the same platform, and were paid from a common source in this country. Holt then decrying all preparedness upon the part of his country as "mob hysteria."

Without discussing more recent and, in the minds of many, somewhat misdirected activities, the record indicates continued association with at least four organizations of well known pacifist and international tendencies. The volumes referenced should be found in any of the large public libraries; they were published so that the public might be informed and guard against the future. They will prove interesting reading to either democrat or republican. They mark the boundary where party politics should cease in the common interest of the nation.

E. O. Goss On the Senatorship.
(Waterbury American.)

A statement by Edward O. Goss on the senatorial question, made at the meeting of republicans Thursday night is so strang and sailiant an utterance that it ought to be kept before voters constantly until election day. Mr. Goss said:

"I shall support Hiram Bingham in this campaign and I hope that the state will see fit to give him an overwhelming majority. It is not half enough to elect Bingham, but we must make it our business to give Hamilton Holt and his friends such a sound thrashing that they will understand there is one thing that the voters of this state will not stand for and that is misrepresentation.

"Hamilton Holt's record and Hamilton Holt's public utterances show him to be an enemy of the protective tariff policy. Without proper protection to its industries, Connecticut would rapidly fall from its position of industrial importance and Connecticut's working people would feel the effects of inadequate protection directly in their pay envelopes and pocketbooks.

"I am thoroughly and unequivocally against the candidacy of Hamilton Holt and I believe that the voters who think before they vote and this means a tremendous majority of Connecticut's voters, will pass emphatically upon the Holt candidacy on the 18th.

"Connecticut citizens will make it their business to see that business and industrial conditions in Connecticut are not cast to the winds by the election of a man who holds such ideas."

As president of Scovill's and of the Citizens and Manufacturers bank, Mr. Goss has a high representative character in industry and finance. His democratic nature and friendship with thousands of his men enables him also to speak with a good understanding of their thoughts and feelings. His statement should have general approval and will have wide influence. It is no time for Connecticut republicans to take the risks involved in cutting down the narrow majority of their party in the senate on which President Coolidge depends.

Holt Decried Preparedness.
(Hartford Courant.)

Hamilton Holt, democratic nominee for United States senator, declined to say when questioned in this city Monday night, what his diary showed his activities to have been on February 27 and 28, 1915. The reason he gave was that he did not have his diary with him.

The dates are those upon which the Emergency Peace Federation held a two-day meeting at Chicago which was addressed by Holt, according to the Lusk committee's report of seditious activities. Under the heading "Socialist Propaganda in Educated Circles," the Lusk report discloses that Holt, taking the platform at that time with Madame Roskia Schwimmer, later first Bolshevik ambassador from Hungary to Switzerland under Bela Kun, Louis P. Lochner, prominent socialist and others, decried preparedness as "mob hysteria" and called upon the United States to lead the world in disarming.

Calvin Coolidge in Connecticut.
(Boston Transcript.)

One week from tomorrow, (Dec. 16), the republicans of Connecticut will, by their votes for United States senator, inform the nation whether all six New England states support President Coolidge today or only five of them. On election day, a little more than a month ago, all six states in this corner of the country gave their electoral votes to Coolidge and Dawes. The inference was that their peoples wished the president to have a real chance in the exalted office to which he acceded by virtue of the constitution. For the state of Connecticut to send to the senate of the United States in the following month a self-professing democrat, who is ardently in favor of getting the United States into the League of Nations at the earliest possible moment, would be for the people of Connecticut to desert their New England neighbors, reverse their verdict in the November referendum, repudiate President Coolidge and his programme before the world. The news would be received at Geneva, the capital of the League of Nations super-government, with great glee. London and Tokio would also find in the humiliation of Mr Coolidge a great deal of significance. It would encourage opposition there and elsewhere to the administration's foreign policy. Furthermore the election of Mr. Holt and the defeat of Colonel Bingham would be the most stinging rebuke ever administered to a president-elect in the annals of the presidency.

That the people of Massachusetts should find it hard to believe that any such humiliation is to be visited upon Calvin Coolidge at the hands of his Connecticut neighbors one week from tomorrow is natural, because Massachusetts boasts no better neighbor than Connecticut. And among the virtues of a good neighbor is the virtue of loyalty.

LIX AT HIGH CORNERS

"I suppose you had a rattling good time up there in the haunts of your early childhood," remarked Elizabeth's housemate when she returned from her two weeks' holiday in Wisconsin.

"Well, Marcia, there was quite a rattling of dry bones," answered Elizabeth with a wry smile. "This little ol' flat of ours, without any reminders of my lost youth looks pretty good to me. The next time I sally forth for a vacation it will be to parts where I'm unknown, my dear."

"Why, I thought you were longing to see all your old friends and relatives in High Corners."

"I admit I was. I felt that I had neglected them. Look here, tell me truly, have I aged any during my absence?"

"Of course not. Didn't you get a good rest up there?"

"Oh, I got plenty of rest. Everybody in High Corners was on the continual watch to see that I didn't overdo. Every few minutes I was reminded that I couldn't expect to be as active as I was when I left there sixteen years ago. Never was I allowed to forget for a moment that I was approaching the sere and yellow. The very first night Cousin Ben told me that it was a plumb wonder how well I held my own. 'Let me see, Liz,' he said, 'you're getting on. You were born the year the dam went out. That was back in 1890. The date's chipped into the stone wall that was put up then by the mill pond.'"

"I felt sure that if ever I visited High Corners again there would be no possibility of my forgetting my age, particularly if I saw much of Etta Smith 'as was.' She and I had been school fellows, and she was astonished not to find me as matronly and stodgy as herself.

"'Just to think, Liz, you're six months older than I am, and you've bobbed your hair,' she remarked. 'Mercy on us, what would my children think if I had my hair cut? I guess they'd think I was crazy. Well you surely don't look your age. But you'd better be careful, Liz, you may break at any time. I guess it's just as well to get old gradually, the way I'm doing. You see you'll probably just go all to pieces some day.' Don't you call that depressing?"

"I call it catty. She was jealous of your good looks."

"No, she wasn't catty. She was really kind, according to her lights. She had her offspring call me 'Aunt Lizzie,' and she told them they must love me a lot because I hadn't any little girls or boys. She is most thankful, Marcia, that she married at 18, notwithstanding that her life has been almost changeless drudgery, and that she looks about 55 or 60 now.

"Of course I couldn't tell her how sorry I felt for her. She wished me to pass a lot of time with her and enjoy her home, for she knew how hard it must be not to have a home and family. H'mmens, Marcia, I wish she could see the fun we have in this jolly little flat."

"Couldn't you make any one appreciate the fact that you are really young and really happy, Elizabeth."

"Well, yes, I do think that the doctor at High Corners began to get a glimmering idea of the fact that I wasn't necessarily decrepit at 54. He asked me one evening whether I would go with him to look on at a harvest dance, and I told him quite shortly that I would not. That if I went to the harvest dance with him it would be to dance.

"'By George, why not?' he asked. 'I guess we aren't too old to dance yet, Lizzie. Do you remember when we used to do the two-step?'

"'Of course, I do,' I replied. 'You could dance all around the other boys,' I wish you could have seen him grin, Marcia. He is really a dear. He's coming in here to see us soon."

"See us? Where do you get that us, Elizabeth? Why, you're blushing. You ought to be ashamed at your age. Do you mean to say that after all this tale of woe that you might consider going back to High Corners?"

"Um—umm, under some circumstances," admitted Elizabeth, "but the doctor and I have promised each other that we shall never, never, never be old."

"You fraud," said Marcia, kissing her.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Municipal Ownership Dream.

Mr. Editor: The letter by Citizen published Friday evening in regard to the foresight of the late Hon. Charles F. Thayer brings back old times when there was something doing along municipal lines.

Let us quote the above "foresight" from an address to the court of common council for the benefit of the taxpayer and voters on January 7, 1901. He said on this occasion, "I desire once again to place myself on record as favoring municipal ownership of public utilities. I believe this is the most direct means of raising the city from the ditch into which it has fallen and my dream of the 20th century, is a city without a tax list and without a taxpayer."

Twenty-four years have passed since that time. We have the gas plant that claims to be making $250,0000 a year, more or less, and a 22¾ mills city tax, and as it looks at the present time we have a gas plant to sell.

Of course the 20th century will continue 75 years more, and perhaps if we hold on and our gas plant makes as much progress in the next 75 years as it has in the past 24 years, and our tax rate shrinks in the same proportion, the taxpayer may realize on municipal ownership, but by that time it will not make much difference with most of us taxpayers whether we have a taxless city or any city at all, as we will all be with the rest of his so-called progressive citizens in Yantic or Maplewood cemeteries.

ANOTHER CITIZEN.
Norwich, December 9, 1924.

Trading Cove Brook Water.

Mr. Editor: Will you kindly grant me a little space in your valuable paper? The other day an article on the new water supply—from Trading Cove brook, included the petition of the city fathers to the superior court to allow them to use the new pump and direct-connected motor to force the water of that brook into the water main from Stony Brook reservoir and thus onward into the homes of the people of the Rose of New England. But the sample of that water analyzed by the state health department revealed excess nitrates; revealed excess chlorine; revealed colon bacilli. And that was found when the survey showed but two water closets on the watershed! And now with the new survey showing several times two water closets on the watershed the city fathers still petition Judge Hinman to let them pump that water into the city main. Two of the toilets represent an area greater than the watershed itself. Almost any physician will be ready to say that colon bacilli in water for drinking purposes are not plants to be trifled with, even if they are not seen by the naked eye. I think that almost any physician would agree that colon bacilli in the ducts of even robust humans would be a risk, a sort of hazard; while colon bacilli in the ducts of citizens not in really good health would quite surely induce illness. Our doctors would be eager to relieve such distresses that might arise from using water from Trading Cove brook, but no citizen believes they would want to promote their business in such a way as by encouraging the use of dangerous water in the homes of their possible patients.

The city fathers admit in their petition to Judge Hinman that there is a cemetery within a half mile of the new reservoir which they have built for $10,876.53. But the city fathers say the cemetery is only a small cemetery—just a little one. But the law doesn't say anything about the size of the cemetery. It says a reservoir shall not be located within one half mile of a cemetery. The size of the cemetery hasn't anything to do with the question. But in West Plain cemetery there have been 500 burials. And over on the backside of West Plain are still others "resting." It isn't such a very small cemetery after all. A half mile is 2,640 feet. West Plain is less than 600 feet from the new reservoir. The city fathers knew that fact before they started this job. They want us to think that chlorination will cure all of the seepage from the cemetery; will cure all of the things indicated by "excess nitrates;" "excess chlorine;" "colon bacilli."

Please let the city fathers read this line, "Chlorination is not a dependable agent for the purification of water. Torrington has had a typhoid siege with ten or twelve deaths." Those are the words of one who knows, one in a high and responsible position in this state. So, if the city fathers are determined to give us polluted water—and chlorinated—why couldn't they get it directly from the Thames river?

Divine Providence has taken a hand in the matter in last week's downpour of rain and by the promising clouds borne on the east wind assures more water for our old reservoirs. So perhaps we'll not have to drink from Trading Cove brook after all.

Mathewson Told His End Was Near

After climbing to the height of popularity just as he was preparing to win other laurels, Christopher Mathewson was told that he could not live another year.

Six feet tall, husky in build and weighing nearly 200 pounds, he had difficulty in comprehending the doctor's decision.

Born in the country town of Factoryville, Pa., he learned to curve flat stones when he was 11. At 12 he told his mother he was going to be a great pitcher some day. He was 14 when one Saturday the Factoryville team was short a pitcher and gave Christy his chance.

Winning the game in a contest of adults, he was put on the team permanently. Then he pitched for the academy and later for a neighboring town nine that paid him $1 a game, and he walked five miles to the town for each contest.

While attending Bucknell college, he played during the summer with Hinesdale, then with Norfolk in the Virginia league, and at 19 was earning $80 a month when he was sold to the New York Giants of the National League. In the next 17 years he became the greatest and most popular pitcher in the league.

At 36 he became manager of the Cincinnati team. Soon afterward he went to France with American Expeditionary Forces. There he had influenza and was slightly gassed. Returning at 39 he became assistant to John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants. A year later he was told he had tuberculosis, and could not live long.

Going immediately to Saranac Lake, he was refused admission to the sanitaria because his case was too serious. With his wife and son, he took a house and began to fight the disease. He lost in weight, suffered in the frigid out-of-doors, but refused to give in.

At the end of three years, his condition was so greatly improved that he went to Boston and managed the Braves. At the end of the season he went back to Saranac. Last spring he returned to Boston as head of the local organization, looking the picture of health and determined to give no quarter to the disease.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington, who has been chosen republican whip in the senate, entered the upper house of the national legislature in 1909, and he has title to his seat till 1927. Having had ten years' service in the house of representatives, Mr. Jones came to his duties as senator with accurate knowledge of conditions at the capitol that make for success or failure as a lawmaker. His early years were spent in southern Illinois, the state of his birth, and where he was educated and admitted to the bar. Some 35 years ago he emigrated to the then Territory of Washington to make his name and fortune. In the evolution of the region from a territory to a state he had a hand, and he showed the talent that he had displayed before leaving Illinois as a lawyer and politician. Within nine years after he had settled at North Yakima, he had become a leader of the republicans of his section, and been sent to congress.

NO PARDONS GRANTED BY STATE BOARD

None of those who made application Monday had pardons granted them by the state board of pardons.

It was the first time in several years the board had failed to grant at least one pardon, and the failure was considered the more remarkable because in two or three instances the state's attorneys did not oppose pardons at this time. The only clemency shown at all was to Louis Jaffman, who was sentenced April 27, 1923 at New Haven to 9 to 14 years for burglary committed in that city. His minimum sentence was reduced to three years which will make it possible for the board of parole to consider his case at the January session.

Registrars Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes will be in charge of the demonstration. WATER SHORTAGE DISCUSSED BY SCHOOL BOARD

The shortage of water in the city which is seriously felt at the Elizabeth street, which no city water reaches through the pines in the daytime, was discussed by the town school board at its December meeting Tuesday evening in Superintendent Graham's office at the court house. Superintendent Graham reported that the school was getting along by having its drinking water brought there by the water department in carts in the daytime. At night, when the draught of water is lighter in other parts of the city, there is a flow through the pipes to the Elizabeth street school building so that the place can be kept in a sanitary condition.

The board was informed that Mr. Deming, state Americanization agent, is to be here Friday and will address a meeting of the night school teachers at the Broadway schoolhouse at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

It was reported that the foundations at the new East Side school building are practically completed and that fine progress is being made there.

MORE APPRAISERS AT WORK AT CITY GAS & ELECTRIC PLANT

The stream of appraisers that has trooped through the Norwich gas and electric plant in the last few weeks was increased by one more party Monday and Tuesday, presumably at work for a possible additional bidder for the property. As has been the case in other visits of appraisers in the course of the discussions regarding sale of the property, great secrecy was maintained as to who this new body of experts was representing, and it is not known whether they will have a bid to present at the common council meeting this week when the special committee makes its report. This meeting, which it was thought might be held this (Wednesday) evening, has now been deferred till Thursday evening.

At that time there may be a bid presented through Putnam & Storer of Boston, investment brokers, whose representatives met Mayor M. R. Waters and the committee here last Sunday afternoon, but were told that the committee could receive no further bids, as the bids had closed last Friday, Dec. 5. The Boston brokers learned by telephone Tuesday that the common council meeting had been put over to Thursday, and it is believed they intend to have a bid here by then.

There is another group of financial interests, whose members have spent considerable money in making appraisals and inspections of the city gas and electric property, but from whom nothing has been heard yet, and it is not known whether they have abandoned the project of buying or are yet to present a bid.

Mayor Waters received a communication Tuesday from Alexander J. Campbell of Watertown, N. Y., president of the old Norwich Gas and Electric company, from which the city bought the property twenty years ago for about $700,000, of which $400,000 is represented by the bonds for that amount which are still outstanding.

President Campbell's letter was to the effect that his company thought it ought to be considered in the light of possible purchasers if any sale of the plant were to be made.

The common council's special committee, comprising Mayor Waters, Aldermen Henry Gebrath and Edward Crooks, held another meeting Tuesday evening in the mayor's office, which also was attended by Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., in which they discussed the report that they are to make at the council meeting Thursday evening.

In view of the $3,000,000 offer that is now the high bid for the gas and electric property, it is interesting at this time to know that this amount is about a million dollars more than the entire city debt, exclusive of the $400,000 of old bonds on the original gas and electric company. Outside of these bonds, the city debt is now approximately $2,000,000, Mayor Waters said Tuesday night, of which amount about $100,000 is in floating debt and the balance in several issues of bonds for various purposes.

The public utilities commission of the state gave out its annual report Tuesday night, in which it showed that the municipally owned gas and electric plant of Norwich had an investment of $532,732 in its gas department and $842,043 in its electrical department, a total of $1,374,826, for the year ending Dec. 31, 1923. There was a combined surplus of $162,533.

ART STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION HELD DECEMBER MEETING

The regular business meeting of the Art Students' association was held Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The names of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gilman and Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. White were presented for associate membership and they were unanimously elected.

The programme for the evening was in charge of Miss Audrey Gernon and Miss Helen Marshall. It was the second of a series of four evenings in European galleries. From sunny Italy. Miss Gernon transported her audience to the fog and gloom of London, but they forgot the weather, as she told in a most interesting style "Why and How the British Museum Came Into Existence." It originated in 1753 by the purchase of Sir Hans Sloan's library and collection of curiosities by the government, an act ridiculed by no less man than Pope. Later the Harley Manuscripts were added. In 1757 George II presented the manuscripts of Sir Robert Cotton together with the royal library and the government raised by lottery one hundred thousand pounds for the purchase of Montague House which was opened to the public Jan. 15, 1759. But the collection was destined to outgrow these quarters and in 1855 the splendid building on Great Russel street was begun. The library which is included in the vast structure is distinguished by a stately circular reading room designed by Sir Sydney Smirke.

Miss Marshall gave a delightful talk on the particular pieces of sculpture housed in this great institution, copies of which are contained in Slater hall. The Apotheosis of Homer was found in Italy not far from Rome. For the background of this remarkable group are the rocks of Parnassus. At the top is Zens while below are the Muses and Apollo. Below, Homer seated on a throne is crowned by Time. As a whole it gives the impression of a confused mixture.

The Demeter of Cnidos is one of the chief treasures of the British Museum. It represents the goddess sorrowing for her daughter Persephone, who has been carried off to Hades. It is the Mater dolorosa of ancient art. We have no external evidence as to the identity of the sculptor, but the head is clearly the work of a master, probably of the 4th cent. B. C.

The head of Asclepios or Asculapius was found at Melos, an island east of Greece. It is from the modelling of the hair and beard that we assign the work to the 4th century. He was the god of medicine and the features express mildness and beneficence rather than majesty and power

The original of the Hypnos was a bronze head found near Perugia, Italy, in 1855. It belongs to the 4th century B. C. and is probably by Scopas. There is no explanation why the wings start from the head of Hypnos. He had no occasion for speed. Silence was his gift.

The Drum of a Column was taken from the Temple of Diana at Ephesus. As a rule sculptural decoration may not be applied to those parts of a building which are essential to its structure or stability. Yet there are exceptions, notably in this temple where there were one hundred marble columns, six feet in diameter, thirty-six being carved round the lowest part. On this is carved a mysterious group of three figures which represent Alcestis, the devoted wife of Admetus, standing between Hermes and Death, who with beautiful wings and heavy sword stands quietly waiting to resign Alcestis to Hermes, the conductor of souls to the lower world. The beautiful conception of Death, wholly free from any association with horror is thoroughly characteristic of the Greek spirit. From the figure of Hermes it would seem the work of Praxiteles, but may have been by an associate of that master.

The Parthenon, which far surpasses all other Greek temples, stands on the Acropolis at Athens where even its ruins today, after more than two thousand years, inspires us with admiration and delight. It was erected at the instigation of Pericles when Athens was at the height of her power. The work was entrusted to Pheidias. Standing as it did on a hill it was necessary to consider the effect as seen from below and from a distance, so with the cunning skill of which the Greeks were past masters, not a straight line is to be found in the building, but the effect is of perfect symmetry and proportion. In conformity to the law that what needed strength should not be decorated, the sculptures were confined to the two pediments, the frieze within the colonade, and the metopes and triglyphs which cover the ends of the beams. In all of these were put sculptures that would glorify Athens and the great Panathenaic festival. Much of this sculpture, known as the Elgin Marbles, has been taken to London, where it is preserved and cherished as among the greatest treasures of the British Museum.

The December moon fulls tomorrow, the 11th, at 2.03 a. m.

RULES THAT SHERIFF IS COUNTY OFFICER

Attorney General Frank E. Healy gave an opinion Tuesday to Sheriff James Geddes of New Haven county on the status of the sheriff of a county. Mr. Healy says that a sheriff is a county officer and that his employment comes from the county. The opinion of the attorney general will have an interest for every sheriff in the eight counties of the state. The question came up in a communication from Sheriff Geddes to the attorney general in which the sheriff asked if he were a county or a state officer. The sheriff had asked the county commissioners of New Haven county for a typewriter, a filing cabinet, a drinking tank and other office supplies. The commissioners refused the request on the ground that the sheriff was not a county officer. The sheriff then applied to the clerk of the superior court and that official was under the impression that the sheriff was a county officer and not a state officer. The matter was then referred to the state comptroller.

In his opinion Attorney General Healy says:

"By an opinion of this department rendered May 20, 1919, a sheriff was declared to be a county officer by reason of his election, and that his employment comes from the county.

As this opinion was confirmed in the case cited, it is decisive of the question raised by you.

"In my judgment it is the duty of the county commissioners of New Haven county to provide you for the discharge of the duties of your office, not only an office where you can transact your official business, but also all the necessary expenses involved in carrying out your official duties. These expenses would necessarily include a telephone, typewriter, filing cabinets, postage, pens, pencils, stationery and other incidental office expenses.

As I construe the language of the statute, the state obligates itself to pay only those expenses of the sheriff which are incurred by order of the chief executive such as special elections or other emergency executive orders."

COURT SQUAD AT BULKELEY CUT TO FIFTEEN PLAYERS
(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 9.—After nearly two weeks of basketball practice, the first cut was made by Coach William R. Canty of Bulkeley candidates for the team. The axe descended suddenly and terminated hopes of nearly fifteen under classmen who were candidates for the quintet from the initial practice which was held soon after the football team disbanded for the year. Coach Canty has retained on the squad fifteen best players, and expects to start the season with this squad of players.

Another change was effected in the arrangements of the opening game for Bulkeley. With South Kingston High School already definitely on the programme and the opening date set for Saturday, December 13, the game has been moved ahead one day by mutual agreement between the two managements. The game will be played at the Y. M. C. A. on Friday afternoon and there is a possibility that a preliminary game between the Bulkeley seniors and a local team will be played. The main bout will get under way at 3.30 with the first contest starting at 2.30.

Preparations for the opening game has been faithful in every way, until now Coach William Canty is in a position to announce the lineup which will oppose the South Kingston quintet. Practice this week has been shortened down to but one afternoon and that session was held on Monday afternoon. The State Armory will not be the stamping ground of the Orange and Black and another suitable court where the Bulkeley five will be able to polish off the rough spots before the games with outside schools is being sought at present by the management. Plans are being extended that another court will be found soon as the further development of the five towards the finished state will be necessary if a fast team is expected to represent the school this year. The practice sessions held at present are promising although over confidence in the five to be wonders this season is not expected. The season will result in experience which will serve as a guiding mark for the development of next year's team.

Those to be retained on the squad who survived the cut made by Coach Canty are Rice, Sheflott, Watterson, Parisi, Dorophue, Harris, Graves, Grau, Yocky, Watelinsky, Pation, Brown, Granata, Collins and Pendleton. In the future the squad will be confined to these men named above.

Sulphur Stone

Sandstone is of little value as a building material as it will not stand pressure in excess of some 8,000 pounds per square inch. Recent experiments made by the United States Board of Standards indicate a cheap method of making sandstone as strong as granite. The stone is cut, then soaked in melted sulphur for several hours. The sulphur permeates the structure and, when cold, blocks will stand a pressure of 30,000 pounds, compression. Tests for weathering qualities are still in progress, but initial results are reported to be extremely favorable.

GIBBONS WINS OVER NORFOLK ON TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT IN SIXTH ROUND

New York, Dec. 9.—(By the A. P.)—Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul light heavyweight scored a technical knockout over Kid Norfolk of Baltimore in the sixth round of what was carded to be a 15-round match at Madison Square Garden here tonight. The end came after fifty-five seconds of fighting in the sixth round.

Gibbons made a quick job of his negro opponent, cutting him up badly and then delivering the finishing blow which rendered Norfolk too helpless to continue and the referee stopped the bout. Norfolk was on the floor three times before the fight ended. Except for a bloody nose, Gibbons showed no effects of the fight.

Flashing a dazzling exhibition of footwork and punching skill, the St. Louis fighter outclassed Norfolk before a crowd of 13,000 that filled the garden to capacity and paid a total of $107,599 to make up the "gate" for the Christmas fund raised by a New York newspaper.

Gibbons cut the negro to pieces with a relentless, driving attack that beat down Norfolk's rugged defense in short order. The Kid was on the verge of a knockout in the fourth round, was saved from a final count in the fifth round when a terrific right to the jaw sent him down for the count of two and lasted only fifty-five seconds of the sixth and last round.

Norfolk was dropped for a count of six in the last round with another smashing right to the jaw. He reeled backward as he got to his feet, staggered across the ring and fell to his knees before Gibbons could land another blow. Norfolk was palpably unable to continue and Referee Sheridan stepped between the fighters, waving Gibbons to his corner.

Gibbons' quick victory was a spectacular climax to the charity show, which kept the crowd in an uproar from start to finish. The St. Paul man's triumph caused little less sensation than the knockout of Johnny Wilson, former world's middleweight champion, at the hands of Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro, in the third round of a ten round match.

Flowers, swarming over Wilson with a two fisted, tireless assault, quickly weakened Wilson with a steady drive to head and body and the referee stopped the encounter, giving the negro a technical knockout, while Wilson, beaten into a corner of the ring, was obviously helpless to go on. Wilson apparently in poor condition, did not take a count but was literally "out on his feet."

Gibbons in superb condition, quickly demonstrated his mastery over Norfolk. The negro mixed willingly but he was unable to block Gibbons' shifty attack or penetrate the St. Paul man's defense with any effectiveness.

Gibbons cut Norfolk about the eyes and nose with a rattling fire of jabs and hooks in the second round and started fresh flow of blood from Norfolk's mouth in the third.

Norfolk's finish seemed imminent in the fourth when he was staggered by a solid left to the jaw and rocked a moment later by a right swing to the head. He weathered this gale, however although visibly groggy and rallied in the fifth round, forcing the fighting and starting blood from Gibbons' nose until a terrific right smash to the head sent him to the floor.

Up at count of two, Norfolk swayed toward Gibbons but the bell saved him from further punishment but he had only a brief respite before the finish in the sixth. Promoters announced that profits for the Christmas fund amounted to approximately $45,000 after the deduction from gross receipts of a state tax of $5,379.95 and $50,679.7' to pay the boxers. Of this Gibbons received thirty per cent. of the gross receipts or about $30,000.

The Fight in Detail.

Round One—They fell into a clinch at the bell. They hammered each other about the body, little damage being done, however. Gibbons landed a short left to the jaw as the negro leaned away. The referee warned Gibbons for using a backhand blow. Gibbons staggered Norfolk with a right but the negro only showed his white teeth and smiled. Gibbons scored heavily with long range punches but the negro was unhurt.

Gibbons landed a beautiful right to the jaw just before the bell.

Round Two—Gibbons was short with a right. They clinched. Norfolk was mild with a left. There was much punching at short range but the blows were weak. Norfolk was warned for hitting low. A well directed left to the negro's right eye brought blood. Gibbons continued to batter Norfolk about the face and the blood streamed down Norfolk's face. They were in a furious clinch at the bell.

Round Three—Norfolk continued his clinching tactics until Gibbons backed away and landed a solid right to Norfolk's head. It was the best blow of the fight thus far. Gibbons continued to play for Norfolk's bad eye, landing on the negro's head and face with a two-fisted attack. Gibbons was landing almost at will but they were not damaging punches, merely cutting blows. The referee stopped the fight and ordered Norfolk to bring his punches up higher just as the bell rang.

Round Four—They met in their usual clinch both firing rapidly in close. Gibbons landed a beautiful right to the face. He followed with a left and crossed well again with his right. The negro was standing up well, under the punishment. Norfolk landed his right to Gibbons' jaw and then landed to the body again. A fusillade of head and body punches had the negro groggy and Gibbons stepped back to administer the finishing blow. He was wild, however and Norfolk clinched until the bell ended the round.

Round Five—Gibbons continued his relentless jabbing on Norfolk and then rocked him with a right to the jaw as he stepped back. They wrestled about the ring. One of Norfolk's fast lefts brought blood to Gibbons' nose. The negro was boring in with Gibbons, swapping blow for blow. Twice Gibbons' right found Norfolk's jaw. The third one floored Norfolk for a count of two just before the bell.

Sixth Round—Norfolk came up apparently strong and swapped punches with Gibbons as they met in the center of the ring. Gibbons had the negro groggy soon and he went down flat on his face for a count. Norfolk got up and continued to fight but Gibbons landed solidly to the body and Norfolk went down again. The referee stepped in then and stopped the fight.

The Preliminaries

Johnny Darcy of Bayonne, N. J., won a judge's verdict over Juan Beiza, Chilean lightweight in a fast six round match, the first preliminary to the Tommy Gibbons-Kid Norfolk 15-round match. Beiza weighed 138; Darcy 135 1-4.

Tommy O'Brien, Milwaukee lightweight won a judges' decision over Eddie (Kid) Wagner of Philadelphia in a furious ten round match. The rangy O'Brien, employing long jabs and swings, cut the Philadelphia boy badly but Wagner was game through out and despite the defeat forced his share of the fighting. O'Brien weighed 134 1-4 against 141 for Wagner.

LAWRENCE DROPS THREE STRAIGHT TO PEERLESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 9.—Continuing their sensational bowling from last week when the Peerless five man bowling team shattered the team record in the Eastern Connecticut league, the Peerless were easy winners in the all-New London bowling battle which will occupy the bowling limelight in the city this week. With every man again hitting a mark of 300 or better for a three string total, it was an easy victory for the league leaders against the Lawrence bowlers to come out the winner in all three strings.

The Lawrence bowlers did not have a chance of coming out the victor in any one string, their bowling was lower than usual. While the Peerless bowlers were bowling consistently, not one bowler on the Lawrence five managed to hit a 100 mark until the third string. There were only three strings in the entire 15 which had but two numbers for that individual game. All the other strings the Peerless bowlers rolled a hundred or better.

Cooper and Frank Smith vied for high honors for the evening. However Cooper's high single of 121 in the last string was not only high for the evening but also gave him a total of 330, one pin better than Smith's total for three strings.

The scores:

CHARTER OAK CHAMPS BEAT AETNA FIVE

Hartford's Charter Oak Five, last year's state champion evened up the series with the Aetna bowling five on the Aetna alleys on Tuesday evening, winning the three string match 1506 to 1496. The Aetna Five which won the first match at Hartford last week was badly off form, especially Fillmore who was the mainstay of the team last week.

Orsini, Light and Duffie were in good form and rolled 334, 363 and 362 respectively completely outclassing their opponents. Mike Aldi was the only one on the Aetna team that showed anything like good bowling form by taking high single with 125 and piling up a total of 330. The visitors took the lead early in the match and held it throughout and were never in danger of being overtaken. The scores:

CHAPMAN TECH OPENS SEASON WITH VICTORY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 9—After a slow start, Chapman Technical High school basketball team broke through the defense of the Pratt High school players for several scores which finally gave the Red and Black their opening contest of the season by a 26 to 12 score. The representatives from Essex with a five man defense failed to hold the last year's Eastern Connecticut champions.

With a steady string of substitutes wending their way into the contest, the Chapman Tech players hit upon the right combination with the beginning of the second quarter and from then on Tech had little difficulty in penetrating the strong five man defense of the visitors. The opening quarter closed with each team having a like score, two points each, a result of a field basket by Andrews for Tech and a double decker by Calamarks for the Pratt five.

With two new faces in the lineup with the beginning of the second quarter Chapman Tech hit its winning stride and began to draw away from their rival. It was an even game up until this point, but the superiority of the Red and Black machine asserted itself in this next period and it was smooth sailing from that point on. The five man defense failed utterly to hold back the offense of the locals and the score mounted rapidly. New combinations were tried out throughout the game and this probably accounts for the low score Tech hung up against the Pratt High players.

Red Andrews was easily the individual star of the evening with six baskets from the field. Hewitt, pivot man and captain of the Tech five had two field baskets and six foul goals, showing remarkable ability in the latter basket shooting. Calamarks for the visitors played the best for that team.

New Haven, Dec. 9—Gold footballs will be given to the twenty five Yale football men who saw action against Harvard and Princeton, it was announced at a meeting of the Yale Athletic Association tonight. Head coach Jones his eight assistants, Manager Burns and Trainer Connors also will be given the emblems of victory.

Approval of major "Y's" for all first players was given and in addition twenty two scrubs were given the "Y" insignia as a reward for their faithful and conscientious work. Members of the championship freshman team were given silver footballs and minor numerals.

MacAuley Smith, of Louisville, Ky., the big track man who has won every cross country meet that Yale harriers have entered this fall, was awarded a major "Y". A. M. Briggs, of Oakham, Mass., who finished next to Smith in the intercollegiates was also given a major letter.

Orin Pine, captain of the Yale boxing team who participated in the Oxford games was given a "Y". For the first time bowling was recognized and four men who were on the team last year were awarded the BYA, now the established insignia for the bowling team.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO CELEBRATE GOLDEN JUBILEE

New York, Dec. 9.—(By The A. P.)—Every city in the National League will participate in the golden jubilee celebration of that organization next season, according to the program adopted at the annual meeting here today, to commemorate in 1925 the senior organization's half century of existence.

Boston, oldest city of the circuit, will have the first special day, Chicago the second, and the others will be hosts in order of seniority. First and second prizes will be awarded the schools for the best essays on the subject of baseball, the competitions to be in charge of the various superintendents.

The league will issue a special jubilee flag and calendar, containing the schedule. A history of the National league, written by Cullen Cain, will be distributed. There will be no special awards for batting and fielding, originally planned, but the winning club will receive a pennant of gold.

In February, 1925, the league will hold its mid-winter meeting at the old Broadway hotel where the first meeting took place half a century ago and on Feb. 2, 1926, the jubilee celebration will come to a close with a dinner at which baseball leaders will be guests.

If the proposed Pennsylvania State baseball league comes through as planned it will probably mean the scrapping of the New York-Pennsylvania league and the taking over of several of the latter's clubs by the new organization.

NATIONAL LEAGUE VOTES TO STAND BY LANDIS IN CONTROVERSY WITH JOHNSON

New York, Dec. 9.—(By The A. P.)—The opening skirmish of the baseball conflict in which Commissioner Landis and President Johnson of the American League are central figures was won today by the commissioner when National League club owners, at the opening session of their annual meeting, unanimously adopted resolutions giving a sweeping endorsement to the four-year administration of the veteran jurist.

Neither these resolutions nor a statement read to the meeting by John A. Heydler, president of the National League, mentioned Johnson by name but by implication they struck back at the criticism which the American League executive has levelled at the commissioner and his forces since the world's series and the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal.

The resolutions, adopted by the club owners after a three-hour conference, specifically congratulated Landis on his decision to "carry through the world series" in spite of the scandal, praised his entire course in banishing O'Connell and Dolan, from the game for all time, and also singled out for praise the prompt action taken by President Heydler and the "integrity and courage of Henry Sand" Philadelphia shortstop who revealed that he had been approached by O'Connell in a game between the Giants and Phillies near the close of the 1924 season.

Referring to the scandal, the resolutions declared that the "National League is positive the investigation of the charges has not ended and never will end, and that if anyone else was really connected with those dismissed the fact eventually will come to light."

Heydler Gets Increase.

President Heydler, who was re-elected by his club owners for a term of office increased from three to four years and voted an increase in salary as a mark of appreciation, denounced "unjust innuendoes and attacks" directed against the National League in his annual report, delivered prior to adoption of the resolutions. His statement pointing out that the older league was "scrumpulously avoided interfering in the affairs of other kindred organizations" was taken as another sally at Johnson.

With the National League's position thus clearly defined, interest in the mid-winter baseball conclave turned to speculation on what course the American League would take tomorrow at its annual session, but prospects that this would witness a final show-down in the conflict between Landis and Johnson was lessened by the announcement the commissioner would not attend the joint major league meeting scheduled for Thursday because of the illness of Mrs. Landis at Rochester, Minn.

President Heydler expressed his personal belief that the absence of Landis, an eleventh hour development, would mean postponement of the joint meeting and shifting of its scene to Chicago. Johnson, who reached New York tonight, refused to make any comment on this or any other phases of the situation in which he is involved and it was expected that the final fate of the joint gathering would not be known until after the American League men meet tomorrow. In some quarters it was believed the magnates would assemble briefly and then adjourn until such time as Landis can appear and take up the cudgels in his own behalf.

The failure of the National League's resolutions to mention Johnson by name or to refer directly to any of his attacks was seen by baseball men as a move to avoid fanning the flames of antagonism within baseball ranks. It was learned that several club owners favor singling out Johnson for criticism but this was turned down.

This phase of the older league's resolution was linked up with a proposal to endorse Landis which several American league owners are expected to introduce tomorrow in defiance of Johnson's position. Reports had gone to the extreme of suggesting that the American League might ask Johnson to retire but tonight, with the American League executive on the ground to rally his forces, this possibility was given little credence.

The National League's resolutions and discussion of the Johnson-Landis issues not only overshadowed all else today in the baseball gathering but had a deterrent effect on the trade market, which had nothing substantial to show for a day of endless dickering.

Postponed Games.

Among other developments of the National League meeting was a decision to suspend for 1925 the regulations governing postponed games to permit the home clubs to select any dates desirable for play-offs; discussion of a request by the St. Louis chapter of Baseball Writers for fuller publicity on the vote in the "most valuable player" contest, in which Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn pitcher, won the award over Rogers Hornsby, St. Louis second baseman; and receipt of a claim from the New York Giants for $15,000 from the league for the services of Pitcher Gerin, claimed by the Boston Braves over the waiver route.

The Giants claim was based on allegation of negligence by the National League offices in sending out the waiver notice but President Heydler took the position that since the New York club had already lost an appeal in the case to Commissioner Landis, it had consequently fortified further redress. The question, however, was to receive further consideration at the final session of magnates tomorrow.

The St. Louis player award protest was referred without recommendation to the Baseball Writers' Association of America, whose annual meeting also will be held tomorrow. The award was made by vote of a committee of baseball writers.

The league elected a new board of directors composed of Charles H. Ebbets of Brooklyn, William F. Baker of Philadelphia, August Herrmann of Cincinnati and Samuel Breadon of St. Louis.

It was a struggle at first. Capital was limited and competition keen, but the uniform excellence of the cigar steadily gained, and for fifty years has continued to gain friends.

Since 1874 the business has outgrown six factories and now occupies one of the largest and most hygienic cigar factories in the world. More than 1500 men and women are employed, with an annual payroll of two million dollars.

In 1923 the firm of R. G. Sullivan paid the United States Government $2,225,000 for import and stamp taxes.

Notwithstanding its enormous growth, the entire business was owned by Mr. Sullivan until his death, July 13, 1918. Since then it has been and is now owned exclusively by his family.

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION MAKES JITNEY RECOMMENDATIONS

Hartford, Dec. 9.—Railroading in Connecticut, both steam and electric, as well as the administration of concerns which furnish light, heat, power and water, and the toll of human life and loss of property in these branches of industry, during the fiscal year ending September 30, are analyzed in the annual report of the public utilities commission given to Governor Charles A. Templeton to day. Portions of the report, especially wherein it deals with operation of public service vehicles, popularly referred to as "jitneys" will probably receive attention from the incoming general assembly because of varied and specific recommendations on the heretofore much debated subject.

The report shows that in 6,016 accidents brought to the attention of the commission by public service corporations, 120 persons were killed, 6,029 hurt. Of the accident total 293 were directly connected with operation of motor vehicles and in them 28 persons were killed and 371 hurt. Fifty accidents were at railroad crossings and in these 12 persons were killed and 44 hurt. In the operation of street cars, 213 accidents involved cars and motor vehicles and 14 persons were killed and 227 hurt.

Supervision Over 178 Private Concerns

The commission has supervision over 178 private concerns, and accounting in 30 municipalities or departments is reported to it. The commission received 145 applications to authorize jitney service, and 63 certificates providing for operation of 242 vehicles were in force when the report closed.

The investment in telephone companies plant and equipment is $586,545,053 and the combined surplus for the year was $15,996,610 after taking out $82,311,819 in dividends. The investment in street railways road and equipment is $101,933,791, and combined surplus $1,878,989. The total investment in railroad companies, road and equipment is $342,001,450, and the combined deficit for the year $3,665,619. The total investment, plant and equipment, in gas departments of gas and electric companies is $5,719,257 and in electric departments $27,269,787. The combined surplus is $393,041 after paying $2,035,408 in dividends. The total investment, plant and equipment, in gas companies is $21,345,217 and combined surplus $565,852 after dividends of $1,162,790 is $565,852. The American Railway Express company's property is given at $40,038,840, and that of electric companies $39,119,475.

Investigation of Accidents

In part the report follows:

Special investigations were made in one hundred and twenty-seven accidents reported to the commission as to the causes or circumstances thereof, and in connection with such investigations it was found that it was desirable to make suggestions to the company involved in twenty-nine of such accidents, recommending certain changes in the operation of plant and equipment which might contribute to safer conditions.

Accidents Involving Automobiles

Among the accidents reported to the commission by utility companies 283 were directly connected with the operation of motor vehicles, resulting in 26 persons being killed and 271 injured. Sixty-seven accidents did not involve personal injury. Fifty of these accidents, occurred at railroad crossings in which 13 persons were killed and 44 injured. Two hundred and thirteen accidents involved the operation of street railway cars and motor vehicles in which 14 were killed and 227 injured.

Steam Railroad Inspection

The general improvement in the maintenance of the track of the steam railroads was very noticeable. Alignment, riding qualities and general appearance are better than for several years last past. The main lines are in the best condition, as they should be, but the branch lines have been greatly benefited by the laying of heavier new rail. This departure from the usual practice of using "part worn rail", has decreased the operating expense charges at the same time adding to the safety of trains.

The appearance of the track is better by reason of the application of "weed killer," a liquid preparation which when sprayed upon the track, from a tank car hauled slowly over the rails, kills the weeds and grass usually growing in the ballast and on the shoulders.

The stations are generally in a satisfactory condition. More attention, in some instances, should be paid to the cleanliness and sanitary conditions of toilets, as well as the better lighting of these places by natural means.

The bridges show good maintenance; many new decks have been laid; painting is being well attended to on most of the lines; catenary structures are being painted according to schedule.

Grade Crossings

The grade crossing situation has been given considerable attention in the past, and still presents a serious problem. In seeking some solution we have continued to stress this phase of our inspection, and this year added a large number of photographs of crossings to our records.

Several crossings have been eliminated by combination. There is still large opportunity to decrease the number of crossings at but slight expense per crossing by this simple method of combination, even if it involves the constructing of several hundred feet of new highway. Likewise eliminations by closure may be effected in the cases of those crossings which have been practically abandoned. Two eliminations by overhead highway crossings have been completed satisfactorily, and in their construction, two very dangerous crossings will no longer be found in the accident records.

Safety at grade crossings will be promoted by more general installation of electric flasher automatic signals. More than a dozen have been installed the last two years, and the companies should lay out and follow a programme of crossing protection by this means. In the original installations, the posts were striped black and white. This practice had been discontinued, apparently without justification.

The companies have met the increased wear of crossing plank due to increased traffic, by substituting bituminous macadam for plank at a number of grade crossings. The material used may be laid cold, is easily repaired, and is usually surfaced in such manner as to improve the riding qualities of the highway. The more widespread adoption of similar construction for highway crossings is desirable. The same material is well adopted for use as a surface for station platforms. Its utilization tends to reduce the accident hazard of broken or rotten plank and sills and the rusty nail above the platform surface.

Branch Line Abandoned.

On February 25, 1924, at a session of the interstate commerce commission a certificate was issued to the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company authorizing the abandonment by that company of that portion of its branch line of railroad extending from East Farms Station, Waterbury, to a point one thousand feet west of West Main Street Bridge, No. 2.49, Meriden, a distance of 11.78 miles, all in New Haven county, Connecticut. In the order of that commission it was stated that the construction of this portion of the New Haven system was commenced by the Meriden & Waterbury Railroad company in 1847 and completed in the following year, and acquired by the New Haven system in November, 1905. The estimated cost of this part of the branch abandoned was $35,229.

There have been no operations over this road between Meriden and Waterbury since June, 1917, and there has been no demand therefore.

Street Railway Inspection.

The track appears to be in good condition and rides well. Welding and grinding have contributed in large measure to this improvement. In some places, however, the rail is almost worn out, and the only sure cure of bad joints is relaying with new rail.

This year's inspection reflects a perceptible amount of improvement in the average condition of wires, poles, signals, etc., of the street railways. The largest company (The Connecticut Company), has improved its line conditions to a considerable extent; one or two of the financially embarrassed companies show a less satisfactory physical condition than in 1923. Even in the case of the largest company, conditions continue to be less satisfactory in the central area than in the eastern and western sections, although some noticeable improvement must be acknowledged in the southern half of the central area.

The problem of grade crossing protection on suburban lines is growing more and more important. The present windmill sign is not entirely suitable for all locations. There is increasing need for some form of warning sign or word to be placed on the surface of the highway in order to effectively convey the message to the mind of the motorist whose eyes are usually fixed upon the highway ahead of his automobile. The several street railways should make suitable studies and in co-operation with this commission and the authorities having jurisdiction over the highways, seek suitable solution of this question.

It is noted that the "Stop" signs for drawbridges are not located at uniform distances from the draw openings. The several street railway companies might properly be asked to make the necessary observations of traffic at the several draw bridges to determine the proper location for the Stop sign, taking into consideration grade, braking distance, and traffic delay, so as to promote free movement of traffic and insure adequate protection to the passengers on trolley cars.

Jitneys.

During the year 145 applications were filed with the commission for certificates authorizing the operation of jitney service. Hearings were held in different parts of the state on 118 of these applications with the result that 14 were granted, 98 were denied and 6 were withdrawn; 27 are still pending.

At the close of the fiscal year there were 63 certificates in force, authorizing the operation of 249 jitneys, 206 of the bus type and 43 of the touring car type, providing a registered seating capacity of 4,068 seats. The total distance covered by the 63 routes is 796 miles, an increase of 124 miles during the year.

Recommendations for Legislative Enactment.

The commission recommends:

1. For the purpose of more clearly defining the term "jitney," it is recommended that Section 1 of Chapter 77 of the Public Acts of 1921, be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 1. The term "public service motor vehicle" shall include all motor vehicles used for the transportation of passengers for hire. The term "jitney" shall include any public service motor vehicle operated in whole or in part upon any street or highway within the state of Connecticut in such manner as to afford a means of transportation by indiscriminately receiving or discharging passengers; or running on a regular route, or over any portion thereof; or between fixed termini.

2. That street railway companies be permitted to abandon non-paying lines or portions thereof, whether owned or leased, subject to the approval of the public utilities commission after public hearing had.

3. That street railway companies, on formal application to the public utilities commission, be authorized and permitted to substitute motor vehicle transportation service in lieu of existing electric street railway service on such line or lines as said commission may find that public convenience and necessity require such substitution.

4. That Chapter 287 of the Public Acts of 1921 be amended in part to provide that street railways, before being entitled to operate a motor vehicle on any line or route other than that over which they now operate street railways or have charter rights to operate street railways, shall first obtain a certificate of public convenience and necessity from the public utilities commission, after public hearing had.

5. That every person, association, or corporation, owning or operating a jitney, shall keep an account of their financial operations in accordance with a uniform system of accounting to be prescribed by the commission.

6. That every person, association, or corporation, owning or operating a jitney, shall report to the commission at least annually and oftener if required, on blank forms to be supplied by the commission, substantially as required of public service companies under the provisions of Section 3637 of the General Statutes.

then, and primarily because of the war, very large capital investments have been made in the state of Connecticut to take care of this country's all bearing requirements. Now that the war is over, the only protection we have against foreign invasion is a protective tariff. Therefore, it is almost of vital importance that we send to Washington from this state Mr. Bingham, a man who stands for a protective tariff—protection for our industries and protection for our employes."

UNEQUIVOCAL STATEMENT BY COL. HIRAM BINGHAM

New Haven, Dec. 9—Colonel Hiram Bingham, governor-elect of the state of Connecticut, and candidate for the United States senate, declared himself unalterably opposed to the league of nations in an address here tonight at a meeting of republican workers. He was equally emphatic in his declaration that he is a staunch supporter of the world court plan proposed by President Coolidge.

Congressman John Q. Tilson, also a speaker, said he would work for the election of Bingham until the final day of the campaign.

Reviewing his nomination, Colonel Bingham said:

"The day after the national election letters began to pour in upon me from misguided friends in all parts of the state, urging me to become a candidate for the senate. To these letters I replied that I was not a candidate for the office and was busily engaged at that time in outlining the plans of my administration of affairs in this state.

"Upon my return from a brief rest period, I mailed communications to 75 commissioners and heads of state institutions, asking them for reports of any suggestions they had which would be to the best interest of the institutions with which they were associated. I did this in order that I might prepare my inaugural message.

"I did not attend the senatorial convention on the day it opened, because I did not want my presence there to be misinterpreted. I talked with several republican leaders, explained to them that I did not want the senatorial nomination, and they assured me I had taken the correct position.

"The second day of the convention some close friends called me and stated that I would be placed in an embarrassing position if I did not attend the convention. I went to Hartford, took a room at a hotel and sat there until noon reading. Then the state committee entered my room and offered me their congratulations.

"They asked me to go with them to the convention and formally accept the nomination for the senate. This I did, but as I stood on the platform to address the convention, I could think only of the embarrassing hole in which the nomination placed me.

"However, I am a good soldier. I felt that I could not be a true citizen of this glorious state unless I accepted the call of duty. The same people who had called me to the highest office in the state were calling me to the senate. I could not refuse.

"I am opposed to the league of nations because I do not believe in the league. The United States is different from every other nation in the world. Germany is made up of Germans, England of Englishmen, France of Frenchmen, but this nation is made up of people from every country in the world.

"We have a league of nations of our own, if we approved a blockade against Italy, the Italians in this country would resent it. The same situation would obtain if a blockade was declared against any other nation, with our approval. This would very probably make for danger within this country. It would be impractical.

"I believe in America and America only, and in this same way I have implicit confidence in President Coolidge's plan for the world court. This measure I will back to the limit of my ability."

Prior to his address, Colonel Bingham read a telegram received soon after the convention nfrom Congressman Tilson, in which Mr. Tilson assured the senatorial candidate that he had his hearty endorsement and would come to this state to work for his election.

State Senator Golden of Meriden, toastmaster of the meeting, gave a brief address in which he urged the members of the republican party in this state to stick to the organization if they would back up President Coolidge.

Miss Betsy Edwards, of Indiana outlined the work done by women of other states in elections of this kind and urged the women here to launch an intensive campaign for the election of Colonel Bingham.

Congressman Tilson said in part:

"This is no time for oratory. We know what the country thinks of the issues confronting the nation today. This was clearly demonstrated in the recent election. The big issue before the voters of Connecticut today is whether they will vote next Tuesday to have their mandate carried out in Washington.

"I'm a believer in party government. The people are tired of groups and blocs in politics. In this state the republicans are now, and have been for a long time, in the ascendency. We must keep the party here intact to insure President Coolidge of a solid backing.

"Our only trouble today is to get the people to the polls. If this can be accomplished we have no doubt as to what their answer will be. I am a republican and stand for the party first, last and always. Colonel Bingham, I think, personally, politically, and as a republican, that you should be elected next Tuesday, and I will do everything in my power to make this possible."

Rev. Dr. Orville A. Petty, in a brief address, stressed the importance of party unity in the present campaign and urged the workers to get out every voter in the state next Tuesday.

PROTECTIVE LEGISLATION FOR MIGRATORY GAME

New York, Dec. 9—Enactment by the present congress of federal migratory game legislation favorably reported by house and senate committees in the last session, was predicted today by speakers at the eleventh annual convention of the American Game Protective Association.

The proposed measure would attempt to check the preemption of good shooting land by private clubs and wealthy individuals by establishing public preserves which would be so stocked as to insure a continuous yield from a permanent breeding stock.

The sportsman would receive from the proposed public reserves, after the payment of one dollar license fee, more advantages than English shooters receive for contributions of from $50 to $100 to private syndicates, said H. P. Sheldon, Vermont Fish and Game Commissioner.

W. B. Greely, chief of the United States Forest Service, suggested public ownership of forests as a means of perpetuating wild life, increasing outdoor recreation and conserving timber.

In the forests Mr. Greely estimated that there were even now 500,000 deer, 50,000 elk, 8,000 moose, 15,000 mountain goats and 13,000 mountain sheep.

The convention adopted a program declaring in favor of the preservation of property rights, establishment of refuge where game might find danger when in danger of extermination, and the preservation and upbuilding, not only of game but of non-game species beneficial to farmers.

NAVAL PROGRAM OUTLINED BY SECRETARY WILBUR

Washington, Dec. 9—Reconditioning of older battleships to keep them in fighting trim and inauguration of a continuing building program for auxiliary craft based on similar construction undertaken by other naval powers was the program outlined by Secretary Wilbur to the house sub-committee on naval appropriations as necessary to re-establish and maintain the navy at the 5-5-3 ratio provided for by the Washington naval limitation treaty.

The secretary's statement was made to the committee yesterday in response to a request from Chairman French of the committee for a detailed statement showing "in just what ways we have retrogressed" from the treaty ratio and what steps were necessary to "restore and maintain the navy at the treaty ratio."

With the statement, Secretary Wilbur presented recommendations of the general board for a continuing building program in light cruisers, fleet submarines and other auxiliary naval craft, and data as to the present status of other navies. The explanatory statement, as made public tonight by Mr. Wilbur under an agreement with Representative French, did not include either the board's building program or the foreign navy data.

The question of modernization of many battleships of the fleet was dealt with at length in the statement, with particular stress on the six ships which need new boilers to bring them back to normal speed.

"To postpone the modernization of these ships, is to gamble upon the chances of war during the next years and to increase the possibility of such war by that degree of unpreparedness," Mr. Wilbur declared.

Discussion of gun elevation proposals, which has not reached the committee for its consideration and involves possible international aspect, was deferred by the secretary.

Mr. Wilbur to some extent forecast the findings of the special naval board appointed at the direction of President Coolidge to consider relative value of aircraft, submarines and battleships.

The communication was maintained by radio telegraphy on 35 meters for the entire period of five and one half hours despite heavy static.

MAN AND WIFE BOTH CHARGED WITH BIGAMY

Hartford, Dec. 9—A man and his wife were in superior court here today both charged with bigamy. They were George Walter Cooper and Pearl Marion DeKnight, both negroes. Cooper was implicated in the hold-up and robbery of a trolley conductor on the Bloomfield line several years ago. He said that after serving a portion of his three to nine years sentence in state prison he was released and he heard that Pearl Marion had died during his incarceration. Later month he married Rose Alma Nash. Pearl Marion instead of dying had taken another husband. Her story was that she had heard George Walter had got a divorce from her, so last November 3 she married Horatio Smith. The court sentenced each to a year in jail, and suspended the sentence with the exception of thirty days, the balance of the year to be on probation.

WIZARD OF FINANCE AT LIBERTY IN $10,000 BAIL

Batavia, N. Y., Dec. 9—M. Earl Williams, Batavia's alleged insolvent young wizard of finance, was at liberty tonight in $10,000 bail after his arrest this afternoon on a warrant charging first degree grand larceny.

William surrendered, was arraigned pleaded not guilty and waived examination. His case will be presented to the Genesee county grand jury, which will meet in February.

Williams explained that his absence from Batavia after the warrant was issued against him yesterday, and which caused the authorities to believe that he might be attempting escape was for the purpose of engaging counsel.

Williams was arrested on a warrant sworn by B. W. Welch, an automobile dealer, who alleges that he lent Williams $1,200 on a short term note with a promise of 25 per cent. profit.

District Attorney Albert E. Waterman estimates that Williams liabilities aggregate $200,000, comprising 174 personal promisory notes.

STONINGTON

As told in The Bulletin, Tuesday, three persons were injured early Monday morning when a 60-gallon copper boiler in the annex to the boiler room of the plant of the American Velvet company, Stonington, exploded and crashed through the roof, causing $3,000 damage. The injured were Charles B. McCourt, a foreman, Burress of the borough and assistant chief of the Stonington fire department; Miss Stella Santos and Miss Rita Victoria, employed at the plant.

The boiler, used for furnishing hot water for washing, tore through the roof of the building and landed outside in the mill yard. So great was the concussion that the heavy concrete wall was ripped out the entire length of the boiler room. The brick wall between the annex and the mill proper was badly damaged. Steam pipes, in the boiler's path, were broken. No machinery was damaged. The noise of the explosion was heard for fully a quarter of a mile, rattled windows and scared residents.

Operations, which were suspended during the scare, were soon resumed, the damaged boiler having no part in the plant's running. A temporary roof was placed on the boiler room before night. McCourt's injuries consisted of cuts on the left side and legs and shock to the system. Misses Santos and Victoria were shocked. Dr. W. T. Veal rendered emergency aid, after which they were taken to their respective homes.

Foreman McCourt was standing near the boiler at the time of the explosion and his escape was considered miraculous. The girls were at the lower end of the room. Superintendent E J Simonson and Clarence C. Wemmelmer of New York, the company's president, who happened to be here on an inspection visit at the plant, were unable to account for the accident. How Chrysler Sweeps All Tradition Aside

No one need fear that he will not be rewarded who gives to the world something distinctively superior to that which has preceded it. And nowhere is recognition so swift and reward so munificent as in America. Chrysler Six came into a seemingly crowded motor car market and almost immediately swept its way into unprecedented acceptance as a quality product. That which ordinarily takes years to achieve was won almost over-night. Why? Because the Chrysler brushed aside outworn traditions in engineering, in design, and in performance, and gave to the world advantages it could instantly see and feel and experience. It squarely confronted problems of height and weight and size, solving them according to the crying needs of the moment rather than the needs of five years ago. It brought to bear both scientific exactness and artistry—endeavoring to embody in the new car elements of grace and elegance no one else had attained. That is why the Chrysler has taken the country by storm—why it still stands and will long stand alone—why if you want what the Chrysler gives, the Chrysler alone can satisfy you.

THEFT OF SEIZED LIQUOR DISCOVERED AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 9.—The thieving continues of liquor under seizure from rum-runners captured in the Sound and brought into port by revenue cutters or destroyers. This afternoon it developed that about 150 cases of Scotch whiskey that comprised a portion of the 2,000 cases of rye and Scotch found aboard the tug Underwriter yesterday, when that craft, captured for the fourth time within three months as a rum-runner, was brought into port and moored at the state pier, was discovered to have been stolen during the night, although the tug was supposed to be under naval guard.

This forenoon the local police received information that an express truck owned and driven by William S. Hills, of Vauxhall street, was on route to the state pier to convey whiskey from the Underwriter to a point to be designated by the man Hurlan Hills. This information was supplied the police by another expressman. Following the tip, Sergt. John Cavanaugh, and Patrolmen William Corcoran, William Graham and Clyde Murphy were detailed to hold up the driver and seize the truck if the truck was found to contain liquor. The truck was located driving from the pier and in charge of a representative of the owner of the craft. When it was searched it was found the regular provisions that had been aboard the tug and which were delivered to the trucks representative by the officers of the governing cutter Red Wing. There also was found two cases of White Horse cellar whiskey. No one on the truck would explain ownership of the liquor and professed to be ignorant of how the whiskey came to be erected among the foodstuffs except that it had been stolen and had been placed among the goods to be carted away. The liquor was held by the police. Hills was allowed his liberty upon his own recognizance as it was not apparent that he was transporting the liquor for purposes of sale.

In the police court this morning when Fred Scott, a lanky negro, was arraigned on a charge of theft from the person of Morris Rowe, it did not take but the statement of the assistant prosecutor to disclose that the police had no evidence upon which Scott could be convicted. Rowe and Scott were both drunk at the time it was alleged the crime was committed. Rowe was found down and out. When he resumed his normal condition he claimed he had been robbed of $13. He said he had a $5 bill and eight $1 bills, but he didn't have them when he awoke from his liquor stupor. No one saw the money taken and no one was aware that it was stolen except that Rowe said it had been taken from his pocket. Scott denied all knowledge of the money so the prosecutor asked that the case be nolled.

Matthew Sutara was found by Constable Dimmock hunting in the woods of Waterford yesterday. When the officer asked Sutara to produce a license that would permit him to seek game he could not do so. He had a gray squirrel that he had obviously shot, so he was arrested and was in court with the constable to see that all the evidence needed was produced but the case did not get to a hearing, going over till Friday next.

Marie D. Stoddard was charged with violation of the traffic rules of the city. She pleaded guilty, for she had been so heedless as to operate her car to the east side of North Bank street and to allow it to remain there while she was in the Union bank transacting business. She said she saw no restricting signs where she parked, though there were several within view. And when judgment was suspended she declared that on other occasions she had seen several cars parked in the same spot in which her car was left.

Three drunks were in the court, a good many, when it is realized that there is no liquor sold in New London. The accused men are Elmer Wright, who was all wrong on this occasion, for though he had work as a paper hanger and painter he messed with booze until he was laid out. He declared that he only took a couple of drinks, but Judge Prince looked at him suspiciously then, and since it not for the fact that he had never appeared in the court he would have been sent to jail for telling that sort of a story to one who was disposed to be lenient with him. As it was, judgment was suspended. The other drunks, Patrick Hanley and Lawrence Coleman, were fined $5 each, and that was a ticket for the county jail.

Mrs. Virginia Filipetti, 51, wife of Joseph Filipetti, of 31 Smith street, died this morning at her home, following several weeks' illness. Besides her husband, Mrs. Filipetti is survived by two sons, Enzo and Mario Filipetti, and by a daughter, Miss Ezio Bartolucci, all of this city. Mrs. Filipetti is a patient at Home Memorial hospital, having been removed to the institution several days ago for treatment.

Howard A. Edgcomb, Groton merchant, reported to the police late last night that while his automobile was parked in the rear of the Mercer building on State street, a thief stole a mounted rim, tire and tire cover.

Many residents of this city have received in the mail the past few days a half dozen Christmas postal cards, with the request of the sender, "R. La Houk," General Delivery, New London, that the cards be purchased, upon the representation that Houk is blinded and is selling the cards as a means of support. This morning Barney Newbury, of Providence police, stating that he had received a package of the envelopes, Newbury desiring to ascertain whether "Houk" is an imposter. "Houk" is not known here, nor does his name appear in the city directory, although a man answering that name has been receiving mail at the general delivery window. He is believed to be of the floating type of peddlars.

John Murphy, 36, son of Mrs. Catherine Murphy, of 11 Chappell street, died Sunday at the Norwich State Hospital, Preston, in which institution he had been under treatment several years. He is survived by two sisters, Misses Maude and Elizabeth Murphy, and a brother, George Murphy, all of this city, as well as by his mother.

The funeral of Mrs. Victoria Olbrys, wife of Louis Olbrys, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Peter and St. Paul's church, Main street. Burial was in the Polish National cemetery, Norwich.

The funeral of Joshua J. Enos, formerly a resident of New London, whose death occurred at Niantic, on Sunday, was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church and by W. W. Perkins Post, G. A. R., of which organization Mr. Enos had been a member many years. Members of the Sons of Veterans acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

A team owned and driven by Joseph Depona, a Waterford milkman, was struck and damaged by a Connecticut company trolley car on Montauk avenue this afternoon. The damage was to the wagon. Depona was delivering milk to customers and after delivery to a customer on Moore avenue, Depona drove his outfit to Montauk avenue, for the purpose of crossing the avenue to Orchard street. As the vehicle emerged from Moore avenue and was driven on the tracks of the trolley car, the car due to arrive at the State street term and came along at a rapid rate of speed and crashed against the wagon.

The electrically operated police signal that has been used as an experiment at the corner of State and Bank streets, is to be discontinued for this afternoon. City Manager William A. Holt issued instructions to Captain Charles A. Pinney that the signal is apparently impracticable and to cause traffic to be handled at that corner by the officers by hand signals, as was the case before the signal was used. The city recently caused a platform and enclosure for the officers and from which the signal was operated, to be erected at the southeast corner of the intersecting highways. In issuing this order for the discontinuance of the signal, City Manager Holt stated that he had received numerous complaints against the use of the signal by automobilists, who declared that the lettering on the signal was too small and the signal too high from the street surface.

Brainard lodge, F. and A. M., held its annual meeting this evening and advanced Cecil Caulkins to the place of master. All the other officers moved toward the east, each one station.

The other elective officers chosen are Charles F. Potter, S. W.; Richard P. Johns, J. W.; G. A. Sturdy, secretary; Malcolm M. Scott, treasurer; Edward Prentis, Carey Congdon and F. W. Edgerton, trustees.

Thursday evening, New London lodge of Elks will honor James Clarkson, of Hartford lodge, when he will be tendered a reception because of favors he bestowed upon the Elks in New London last summer in allowing them to have the former Plant ball field for their carnival free of any expense for rentals. A feast will be served and there will be vaudeville entertainers from out of town.

Fifteen days have elapsed since the body of Peter A. Toolin, Jr., was found with the skull crushed in the roadway near Station 15 1-2 on the line of the trolley road in Waterford. It was a mystery then how he met his death, and it is still just as much of a mystery. Every day, takes the authorities apparently farther away from a solution of the mystery. The state police and the county authorities undertook to discover the cause of death and the manner in which Toolin's life was crushed out. Their work has been in vain, so far as is known. The New London police have kept hands off in great degree, though they have rendered whatever assistance they believed they possessed. They are still working on the case. Residents of this city are asking whether the matter is to be dropped. A murder was committed, in the opinion of 19 of every 20 persons who talk of the case. The state police are supposed to be of the opinion that Toolin was pushed from an automobile and that he either struck his head on a rock and suffered the fracture of the skull that proved fatal or else that he was hit by a heavy truck that came over the road while he was lying in the highway. But there were no marks on the neck or the shoulders that would show he was struck by a truck. The driver of a truck who struck the body would have hastened to report what happened, that he might be cleared of any suspicion. No such report was made. Toolin was with companions during the evening and it is known that a quarrel took place. Whether that quarrel engendered hatred that would have led to a fight and to the fatal blows having been struck is not known.

A basketball contest was in progress at the Chapman Technical school this evening, and outside the building young rowdies became so boisterous that the police were called to preserve order and to drive the roisterers away.

Information has been received at Groton of the death at St. Augustine, Fla., yesterday of Mrs. Susan Spicer Meech, 83, widow of Noyes Billings Meech, formerly of Groton, and mother of Sanford Meech of Eastern Point. Mrs. Meech was spending the winter at St. Augustine.

Rev. Myron E. Genter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church here for seven years, will leave the pastorate next March, it became known here today. It is understood that "denomination principles" is the cause of the request of Rev. Mr. Genter to be relieved of his duties in New London. It has been known that there has been a dissension among members of the church and the pastor for some time, but it was not believed that the differences would result in Rev. Mr. Genter requesting to be relieved of his local charge.

City Manager William A. Holt and the special committee of the city council, consisting of Councilors John F. Murray, Edward L. Streeter and Lucius E. Whiton, appointed to conduct a probe to determine the efficiency of the police department because of reports being circulated that the rules and regulations are constantly being violated by members of the department, will start the probe within a few days. This afternoon from 2.30 until 4.30 o'clock City Manager Holt and Councilors Streeter and Murray and Director of Law McGuire were in conference at the municipal building formulating their form of procedure. Another meeting will take place tomorrow night and within another day or two hearings, which will be in chambers, will take place to ascertain whether the allegations made as a result of the rumors are true.

The matter of erecting a new flag pole and any necessary expense which might be incurred, was left with Mr. Beebe. Other members on the scout committee are Henry T. Frazier and Philip B. Whaley.

At a meeting held November 27th, the scout committee voted to take over the custody of the Meeting House Rocks, together with the flag as tendered by the Norwich Rural association.

At a meeting of the scout committee held December 2nd, at the home of Mr. Beebe, Scoutmaster Frederic H. Wyant gave a report covering the activities of Troop No. 26, of Norwich Town, and plans of the troop for the next year were discussed at length.

This committee desires that the Boy Scouts take over the custody of the flag and rocks, as soon as a new flag pole is put in position. The scoutmaster, Mr. Wyant, in speaking for the scouts, assured the committee that they would be very glad to do so; and it is believed that the public in general will assist the scouts to make it possible that the flag may be flown from the staff on the rocks every holiday throughout the year.

The 6x9 ft. flag is in very good condition and if those who are appointed to have it in their custody, care for it as others have, it will serve its purpose for considerable time.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STEADY

New York, Dec. 9—Stock prices moved steadily upward today in response to a heavy investment demand for the high grade issues. Approximately four score issues attained new peak prices for the year on total sales slightly in excess of 1,500,000 shares. The average of twenty leading industrial stocks touched a new 1924 high level.

Buying orders were spread over a large list but were effective in the Public Utility, motor and accessory and copper shares, which combined, contributed about one-third of the new highs.

United States Steel common was in active demand in expectation that the monthly tonnage statement, due tomorrow, will show an increase of at least 200,000 tons in unfilled orders. The stock closed 1 1-4 points higher at 118 1-8 after having sold as high as 118 3-4. Good buying also was noted in some of the independent issues, Sloss-Sheffield and Ludlam breaking through their previous 1924 maximum quotations.

A steady investment demand for American Telephone sent that stock to a new high at 133 1-4, up 1 1-4.

Other issues in the Public Utility group to be quoted at new high figures were American Water Works, West Penn Power, Western Union, Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Edison.

Buying of the motor issues centered largely in Jordan, Maxwell A and B and Pierce Arrow common and preferred, all of which were accumulated on reports of large current earnings.

High priced specialties continue to record good gains but the fluctuations were not so violent as in some of the previous sessions. General Electric advanced more than seven points to 280 3-4 and then eased to 278. Among the other issues to record net gains of 3 points or more were Case Threshing preferred, the Commercial Solvents issues, Emerson-Brantingham preferred, Fisk Rubber frist preferred, Iron Products, Metropolitan Edison preferred, Otis Elevator, United Fruit and Virginia Railway and Power.

Coppers responded to rising commodity prices Kennecott and Utah leading the advance in that group. Oils and Sugars were heavy on unfavorable trade news.

The railroad shares developed considerable irregularity although Southern Railway common and preferred, Baltimore and Ohio preferred, Lehigh Valley, Chicago and Northwestern preferred and Ann Arbor preferred sold at new peak prices. "Katy" common and most of the standard issues lost ground. Delaware and Hudson dropping 1 1-2 points.

General Baking broke 6 1-2 points while American Express, Cluett-Peabody, Philadelphia Company, United States Realty and Manhattan Shirt dropped 2 to 3 points, the last named touching a new low record for the year at 33.

Call money renewed at 3 1-4 per cent. and then advanced to 3 1-2. Time money held firm with business in moderate volume. Commercial Paper rates stiffened slightly, prime names being quoted at 3 1-2 to 3 3-4 instead of on a 3 1-2 per cent. basis.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the establishment of another high record by demand sterling at $4.71, or within 1 1-2 cents of the highest price touched since the war. Most of the day's gain was cancelled, however, before the close. Norwegian exchange jumped about 14 points to 15.15 cents, the other European rates fluctuating irregularly within narrow limits.

BOND MARKET

New York, Dec. 9—Bond prices churned about considerably today but showed little net change. Speculative rails continued to yield to profit taking, although several issues developed independent strength.

New financing again absorbed most of the attention in investment circles. The Central Leather Company is expected to enter the market within a few days with a $15,000,000 bond issue, giving present bondholders preference in subscriptions. The Republic Iron and Steel Company has sold $4,000,000 short term 5 per cent. notes to bankers who probably will make an early public offering. Considerable interest was shown in the $30,000,000 financing by the Canadian Pacific Railroad, although the offering will be confined to the Canadian market.

The prospective agreement on "Nickel Plate" lease terms appeared to have promoted a demand for bonds of the various railroads involved in the proposed merger. "Nickel Plate" 6s, Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s, Pere Marquette 5s and some of the Erie issues advanced in the early trading but later forfeited some of their gain.

Most of the other rails lost ground, including Frisco income and adjustment 6s, New York Central 6s, Northern Pacific 5s "D", Denver & Rio Grande refunding 5s, and Chicago Great Western 4s.

Liberty bonds were easy. United Kingdom 5 1-2s of 1929 reached a new 1924 peak at 113 3-4, following the rise in sterling to a new high.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—With intensified drought in Argentina and with Polar gales and snow west of here, corn and wheat today for the second time in 24 hours jumped beyond any high price record of either grain this season. The entire grain list finished strong, corn 1 1-4 to 2 3-8c up, May 128 3-8 to 128 1-2, wheat showing 1 1-8 to 2c rise, May 165 3-8 to 165 1-2 and July 146 1-8 to 146 1-4, with oats at 1-2 to 1 1-8c advance. In provisions the outcome was 13 to 37c gain.

Corn led the way in the ascent to new peak prices, every delivery of corn reaching a fresh top record almost as soon as trading began. Country offerings of corn were again light, receipts were small, and predictions current that arrivals would further diminish. News, however, that excessively dry hot weather continued in Argentina and that locusts were further damaging the crop there, attracted the lion's share of attention and led to a broadening of speculative buying especially as the day neared an end.

Wheat, although somewhat laggard at first, closed at the day's top and the season's top as well. The late stimulus to wheat values was word of 860,000 bushels having been bought for export, including a cargo of gulf wheat.

Oats and rye moved up with corn and wheat. Farm feeling of oats was said to have increased rapidly of late.

Provisions owed their advance to higher prices on hogs and to reports that lard production is inadequate.

CURB MARKET

New York, Dec. 9—Heavy selling of the oil shares, based on unfavorable trade developments, was the outstanding feature of today's curb market. Net losses of one to three points were recorded by Prairie Oil & Gas (new stock), Humble Oil and South Pennsylvania, most of the other active issues yielding fractionally.

Further accumulation of Thermocyne Radio, which sent it up to another record price at 16 1-2, and an extreme gain of two points in De Forest Radio, featured trading in the radio issues. Dubilier dropped 1 1-4 and the others moved within fractional limits.

Public Utilities bounded upward in sympathy with the strength of those issues in the "big board." Commonwealth Power touched a new high at 120 and then eased to 119 3-4, up 3 3-4 and American Power & Light, Lehigh Power securities and some of the inactive issues advanced a point or more.

Lehigh Valley Coal certificates and Continental Baking B, two of the most active industrial issues, each closed about a point lower.

NATIONAL LEAGUE HAS MOST SUCCESSFUL YEAR IN HISTORY

New York, Dec. 9.—(By The A. P.)—The National league of 1924 enjoyed the greatest patronage in its history, according to the annual report of president Heydler, showing a total paid attendance of 4,340,644 for the past season. This represented an increase of 220,827 paid admissions over the total for 1923, when the previous high record was made.

Despite the apparently general prosperity, however, President Heydler disclosed that the St. Louis and Boston clubs had met with financial losses and, with Cincinnati, has suffered defeat patronage as compared with 1923.

"We have just closed the best five years in our history," said Heydler, "yet we find that in every one of these years, one or more clubs lost money. While this has always been considered the fortune on the game, yet I believe this situation is becoming more acute as competitive expenses increase, and that this presents one of the problems confronting not only this league but all leagues."

In comparison with 1923, Brooklyn, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago all showed increased attendance with the figures grading downward in the other named.

Another part of the president's report disclosed that 43,224 baseballs were used during the season, an increase of 1,668 over 1923. New York purchased the greatest number 7,560, and Philadelphia the least 3,450.

NOTED FINN TRACK STAR ARRIVES FOR AMERICAN TOUR

New York, Dec. 9.—Paavo Nurmi, Finland's track champion and outstanding star in the 1924 Olympic games, arrived today on the Celtic to start a campaign against every American track record from the half mile up.

He was met down the bay by a group of his Finnish friends and at the dock by members of the New York A. C. and other athletic organizations under whose auspices he will race during his American visit.

Through an interpreter Nurmi said:

"Under ideal conditions and when I am ready, I may be able to lower my mile record from 4:10 2-4 to 4:06. The opponent whom I fear as my strongest competitors is Willie Ritola. In the middle distance I think my strongest competitors are Ray Bucker and Ray Watson. I have no favorite distances, but can run from 1800 metres or approximately half a mile to ten miles."

FABER'S DEMONS READY TO TACKLE COMBATANTS

Members of Faber's Demons, local indoor baseball team, noted with amusement Manager Leo Cimikoski's boastful challenge to indoor baseball teams. They also noted that he intimated that the Demons were almost as good as the Combat Train team, forgetting to mention that the Demons had trimmed the Combat team. If Mgr. Cimikoski and his team think they are good, The Demons say that he and his men should be willing to risk a little of their wealth of the outcome of a game between the two teams.

Faber's Demons stand ready to post $100 if the Combat Train team can raise an equal amount. There is only one stipulation that the Demons make and that is: That everyone not actively engaged in the game, either as a player or an umpire, keep off the floor.

The umpires of the game shall be strictly neutral, neither members of the Combat Train or the Demons, and shall be paid for their services by the winning team.

The Demons will use, the following lineup: Manchester, Faber, Coillard, Bean, Burns, West, Dennison, Murphy, Sank and Leffingwell. How about it Leo? Ask your capitain if you can play.

CONNECTICUT WILL SEE ECLIPSE OF SUN

The total eclipse of the sun on Saturday, January 24, 1925, will be visible in the eastern section of the United States, if the weather is favorable, in a shadow path stretching from Minnesota, just east of Red Lake, extending over Michigan, part of Canada, New York, Pennsylvania, to New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Naval observatory scientists say it will be the first time the east has been able to witness a total solar eclipse for many years. The central path of the eclipse will run very nearly through such centers of population as Buffalo, N. Y., and New Haven, Conn. The eclipse will terminate in the Atlantic Ocean, north of the British Isles. Communities outside the shadow path will witness the eclipse as partial.

In the Hudson River area the shadow path will be about 110 miles broad, the Naval observatory believes, while in Minnesota it will be about 85 miles.

The nautical almanac office of the observatory has compiled figures showing in eastern standard time, the time of beginning, middle and ending of the eclipse for a number of cities.

In New Haven the eclipse will begin at 3.01 a. m., will be at its middle point at 9.13 and end at 10.32.

Decision on Use of Shoddy.

The decision of the lower courts in construing the Pennsylvania statute prohibiting the use of shoddy in the manufacture of mattresses, pillows, bolsters and certain other articles of bedding, was affirmed Monday by the supreme court at Washington in a case brought by the Palmer Brothers company of Connecticut.

The newspaper of the future will be issued tomorrow.

Miss Mousie's Story

Up the sky climbed Mrs. Moon
Like a great big yellow round balloon.

That's what Little Jack Rabbit thought as he tugged at Uncle Lucky's sleeve to bring him over to the window.

"Dearest me," sighed the old gentleman rabbit, slipping his feet into his old carpet slippers. "What's the matter with Mrs. Moon tonight? I've seen her for nearly fifty years."

"She's wearing a man's face," shouted the bunny boy. "Look, look, Uncle Lucky!"

"Oh, that's the Man in the Moon peeking over her shoulder," laughed the dear funny old gentleman rabbit. "Or, maybe she's hiding behind him. Who knows?"

Just then the old owl went "Tooty fruity!"

"Lock the window and pull down the shade," advised cautious Uncle Lucky. "Some owls eat little rabbits. I don't know whether this is one of that kind, but if we find out first, it will be too late," and the old gentleman rabbit hopped back to his comfortable armchair and lit a fresh cabbage leaf cigar.

By and by, he fell asleep, so the bunny boy hopped out to talk to Little Miss Mousie who was busy sewing a yellow sunflower on a pink bonnet. Not a real sunflower, you know, —just a velvety one which she had bought at the Three-in-One-Cent Store.

"Sit down and I'll tell you a story," said the kind little mousie. "Uncle Lucky is tired, so let him doze awhile."

"Once upon a time," began Little Miss Mousie, "when lollypops grew on bushes and ice cream cones on pine trees, there lived in a tiny house in the woods a dwarf who made flying suits. Yes, he made wings to the coats so cleverly that people could fly like birds from one place to another. And when they wished to walk they simply folded the wings down the back.

Well, one day who should walk through the forest but a big tremendous giant. Dear me, he was as tall as the tall pine tree, and his feet were so wide and long that it took an every day, ordinary kind of bootmaker two years to finish a pair of boots to fit those big feet.

"What will you charge to make me a flying suit?" asked the giant in a thunder-like voice. Goodness me, how the trees shivered and shook when he spoke. One would think a wind storm was driving over the earth.

"Dear me," sighed the dwarf, looking up at the big giant. "It would take a billion stitches to put it together. Even then it would not fly. I never made so large a suit. I fear almost to try. Maybe you might fail. Who knows?"

"That's my lookout, little man," answered the giant gruffly. "make me the suit, and I'll call for it a year from today," and off he strode through the forest. And in the next story you shall hear the rest of Little Miss Mousie's story.

LEBANON WOMAN BRINGS SUIT FOR DIVORCE

On the ground of the habitual intemperance of her husband for more than a year and of intolerable cruelty since March 1, 1924, Mary Boertzel Barry of Lebanon has brought suit for divorce from Fred Barry, alias Ferdinand Barry of Lebanon. They were married Oct. 16, 1923. The suit is returnable on the first Tuesday in January.

STORRS HENS SHOW GAIN IN FIFTH WEEK

An increase of 44 eggs in the fifth week of the Storrs laying contest suggests that the pullets are recovering from the effects of midwinter weather in the middle of November. A week ago the birds eased off a little but now they are coming back with the prospect of more or less decided jumps in egg yield during the next few weeks. The total production for all pens in the fifth week was 3283 eggs or a yield of nearly 34 per cent.

A pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Pinecrest Orchards at Groton, Mass., and Hanson's pen of Leghorns from Corvallis, Ore., tied for first place with 53 eggs each. Two pens of Leghorns, owned by F. M. Johnson of Waldoboro, Me., and George B. Ferris at Grand Rapids, Mich., tied for second place for the week with 48 eggs each. Two pens of White Wyandottes entered by Thomas H. Matteson of Davisville, R. I., and A. B. Rice of Tekamah, Neb., tied for third place with Fernside Farm's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Attleboro, Mass. These three pens laid 47 eggs each. Acresbridge Farm's pen of Leghorns from Marlboro, Mass., made fourth place with a score of 46 eggs.

Priests who aided the local priests Rev. Fathers Keefe and Cohoian, with the Devotion were: Rev. Fathers Ludovic Paradis Voluntown; Frederick R. DesSaint, Moosup; Thomas O. Boilerose and Alexis L. Dugas, Taftville; William Kenney, South Coventry; and Myles Lenihan of Norwich.

TAFTVILLE

Superintendent Victor H. Davis presided at the Workers' conference held Monday evening in the parlors of the Congregational church. The report of the last meeting was read by the secretary, Miss Isabel Bergin and the report of the treasurer was given by Miss Ethelmer Houston. It was decided to continue the same system of lessons that have been in use in the church school for the past year, and a nominating committee consisting of Rev. Lavie G. Chandler, Miss Enid Rice and Allan Bogle was appointed to nominate the officers for the year. The committee agreed to be present at the school this week when the pupils practice their Christmas carols, as well as on the morning of a pageant, to be held the afternoon of the Sheppards. The Christmas tree and party at the vestry on Xmas Eve will be held as usual by the C. E.

Distemper, that dread scourge of feedom, has become quite prevalent among the dogs of the village. During the past few weeks scattered mild cases of the disease have been reported and quarantined, but the disease has reached epidemic form and many of the best animals in the town have been attacked. The term distemper, the literal meaning of which is derangement of condition of the animal anatomy, is particularly applied to animals of the brute creation, to the dog when afflicted with the disease, somewhat resembling typhus fever in the human race. Owing to the more or less inbreeding that has been indulged in to intensify certain forms and characteristics in dogs of almost all breeds, constitution has to some extent been sacrificed. Animals bred in this way are in consequence less able to resist or combat disease than those with less pretentious claim to family distinction.

The symptoms in the early stages are dullness, loss of appetite, sneezing, chills, fever, undue moisture of the nose, congestion of the eyes, nausea, a gagging cough, thirst, a desire to lie in a warm place, and rapid emaciation. This is quickly followed by muco-purulent discharge from the eyes and nose, later perhaps ulceration of either eyes or eyelids. Distemper sometimes attacks the skin of the animal, as has been noticed in several local cases, the skin peeling off in dry flakes. Like many human diseases, the victim often left in a much worse state than when the disease attacked him. Blindness, deafness, fits, or paralysis often result. Those who have dogs with the disease, should take care to keep them isolated so that they will not come in contact with other canines. Distemper is both infectious and contagious, and every owner should assist in trying to keep it down. Fortunately it does not spread to human beings.

The large catalpa trees on the grounds of the Sacred Heart church rectory are being trimmed this month.

Miss Victoria Misk of Lisbon has resigned her position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Alphonse Picard of South A street was injured Monday, when a large log which he was lifting fell on his foot, badly bruising his toes. He was attended by Dr. George M. Thompson of North Second avenue.

Many of the farmers and landowners about the town are agreeing not to give permission this year for the cutting of Christmas trees. In fact, they say, they have few trees on their land anyway, and do not feel like giving what they have away. Evergreen trees will not sprout again when once they are cut down, and are getting scarcer each year. Those who plan to have Christmas trees will probably have to buy them from dealers, which in the end will be more economical than being detected cutting down trees on peoples.' land without the owners' consent. Large branches of the evergreen can be used for decorating, and these can be removed from the tree without destroying its life.

JURY FINDS FOR PLAINTIFF IN WOMAN'S SUIT OVER FUR COAT

A verdict for the plaintiff, Mrs. Winifred Douglass of New London, was returned by the jury in the superior court here late Tuesday afternoon, giving her $486.55 in her suit against Sidney Hart of New London and Hartford over a Hudson seal fur coat.

Judge G. E. Hinman finished his charge to the jury just before the noon recess and the twelve men took up the case after they returned from lunch at 2 o'clock.

At 4.30 they returned and reported through Foreman Henry Gebrath that they could not agree on a verdict. Judge Hinman sent them back to the jury room after reading to them an extract from a supreme court decision upon the duties of a jury to try to reach a verdict. They were out an hour and ten minutes longer before they came in again and announced their verdict, which this time was accepted by the court after the clerk of the court, George E. Parsons, had prepared the verdict in proper form by direction of the judge.

It was apparent from the testimony in the case that the jury had allowed Mrs. Douglass $550, against which they had placed Mr. Hart's counterclaim of $83.95, which included $10.95 and $22.50 for two hats and a balance of $50 claimed due on the coat.

When court convened in the morning the attorneys and the principals spent about an hour and a half in an attempt to settle the case without it going to the jury, but the effort was unsuccessful, so that the trial was begun.

Attorney A. J. Welsman of [illegible] torney G. C. Morgan had brought the plaintiff's case. Attorney Morgan laid stress upon the attitude of Mrs. Douglass before and during the trial in refusing to try to make a satisfactory adjustment with Mr. Hart but insisting upon a trial in court as she believed she had great influence with a jury.

Attorney Morgan harked back to early Biblical times for an illustration in his argument and read the verses from a chapter in Genesis detailing the methods followed by Jacob when serving the flocks of Laban by which he arranged for a pre-natal influence that should insure a large percentage of spotted and brown animals among the new-born goats and sheep as Laban had promised to give Jacob all such animals. The attorney claimed that the sharp practices which he alleged the defendant firm had followed in handling Mrs. Douglas' coat were in line with some of the traditional characteristics of some of their remote ancestors.

While the jury was out in the case, Judge Hinman began the trial of the suit of Francis M. Roche of New London against John C. Robinson over a bill for work in 1922 on a large summer cottage at Hackett's Point, Old Lyme. The plaintiff claimed a balance of $10,117.55 still due, with interest from Oct. 3, 1922, while the defendant alleged that a payment of $9,000 that had been made on work which had been estimated to cost $5,000, had discharged the entire debt.

Mr. Roche was on the stand all the afternoon and the trial will be continued today (Wednesday). His attorneys are John Geary and Arthur T. Roche, while C. Hadlai Hull represents the defendant.

After the jury returned the verdict in the Douglass vs. Hart case, Judge Hinman excused them till 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

TEACHERS MEETING AT CANTERBURY SCHOOL

A very interesting meeting of the teachers from the [illegible]bou and Canterbury which are under the supervision of Edwin B. Floyd was held last week at the Baldwin School in Canterbury.

Excellent demonstrations in teaching pieces of literature were given by Miss Bessie Hock and Miss Grace Dawley. Interesting and instructive papers were read by Miss Esther Kimball and Miss Elizabeth Rosebrooks.

After the demonstrations and papers, a helpful discussion was carried on among the teachers regarding the best methods of teaching certain types of literature.

Mrs. Hansen, the Canterbury school nurse, was present and made an earnest appeal to the teachers to establish a permanent thing the serving of [illegible]nes to the children. Miss Lucy Larkin also gave an inspiring talk [illegible] the teachers to appreciate the [illegible] opportunity they have in helping the boys and girls to become better citizens.

Several visitors were present and expressed their interest in the meeting. At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed at the home of Mrs. Frank Smith. Several people in the Baldwin School district kenegously provided the refreshments. The teachers appreciated the co-operative spirit that manifested itself in the Baldwin district.

A vote was taken by which the teachers expressed their desire to continue the joint meetings during the winter months.

DATE SET FOR HEARING ON RING WILL APPEAL

A hearing on Dec. 16 in the superior court before Judge G. E. Hinman has been assigned in the appeal from probate of the will of Mrs. Mary T. Ring under which an estate said to be between $50,000 and $60,000 is involved. The appellants are three sons, Charles B. Ring of Springfield, Mass., Bernard and Joseph Ring of this city. The will was dated Jan. 29, 1924 and was admitted to probate on Sept. 15, 1924, with the daughter, Mary M. Ring, who is the chief beneficiary, as executrix.

The appellants in their appeal allege that they are sons and heirs at law of the decedent and that she never signed, sealed and published the "said pretended will" as and for her last will and testiment, and that for several years before the execution of the alleged will she was enfeebled in mind and body and was dominated by her daughter, Mary M. Ring, and that the said will was executed while the decedent was under the influence and control of her daughter, Mary M. Ring.

Brown & James of Norwich and Augustine Lonergan of Hartford, are counsel for the appellants, and Shields & Shields of Norwich are for the executor, in sustaining the will.

City Court Cases

Two men charged with breach of the peace were presented in the city court Tuesday morning. Their cases were continued until March 1st. Another local man charged with the same offense was given a suspended 10 day jail sentence.

Charged with non-support, Joseph Zdancewicz was ordered to pay his wife $8 a week for six months or go to jail for three months. It is understood that Zdancewicz will appeal the case.

Other women can't see how any man can be jealous of his wife.

ANNUAL ROLL CALL AT HOME CHAPTER MEETING

The December meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters, the last for this year, was held Monday afternoon at the Johnson Home, the leader, Mrs. William E. Manning presiding.

This also was the annual roll call for the chapter; but as many were unable to attend owing to illness and other causes which detained them at the home, less than forty were present. The average attendance is about seventy-five, as the membership is around 130.

Mrs. Robert W. Cochran acted as treasurer pro-tem in the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche and Mrs. Albert Boardman was musician in the absence of Mrs. Edward Briggs.

After the reports were submitted, the nominating committee presented the names of the new officers for the coming year.

The chapter voted $5 to the tuberculosis Sanatorium fund. The Christmas committee appointed by Mrs. Manning, comprises Mrs. William H. Whiteman, Mrs. Carrie Harbeck and Mrs. Frank Avery. The holiday calendars are still being turned in and to date $80 has been realized.

The annual meeting of the Home and Foreign Mission society of First Baptist church was held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. William G. Gilchrist, No. 54 Peck street, with a large attendance of the members. Mrs. Charles Burke presided in the absence of Mrs. E. C. Dunbar. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were heard and accepted and the election of officers took place as follows:

President, Mrs. Frank Lathrop; first vice president, Mrs. Edward C. Dunbar; second vice president, Mrs. Charles Burke; secretary, Mrs. A. W. Davis; treasurer, Mrs. George Rathbun; collectors, Mrs. William Gilchrist, Mrs. Minnie Amburn, Mrs. Emma Tyler, Mrs. John J. Parsons and Mrs. Walter M. Cowan.

The subject of the meeting was Mormonism and papers on this topic were read by Miss Marion Lathrop, Mrs. Grace Willey, Mrs. Walter Cowan, Mrs. Frank Church and Mrs. Louis Browning. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction and was followed by a social hour.

SHOP EARLY, MAIL EARLY, WILL HELP EVERYBODY

One of the important features in the shop early, mail early campaign, which is being put on throughout the country by the post office department, is the proper addressing and secure wrapping of Christmas packages. When you wrap your Christmas packages, wrap them securely, put your address in the upper left corner, so, if by any chance, it should go astray, it can be returned to you and not sent to the dead letter office. The good folks of our community last year helped to bring joy and happiness to hundreds of thousands of postmen and clerks. If we do our shopping early and mailing early again this year, we will again enable the postmen and the post office clerks to eat their Christmas dinners home with their families and at the same time assure ourselves of having our Christmas presents delivered to our friends in order that they may be opened on Christmas morning.

Yes, Clarence, there are workers and workers. One class make a specialy of working the other class.

FIFTH SEASON SUCCESSFUL AT CAMP TERREHEGAN

A report on the fifth season of Camp Terrehegan, the Y. M. C. A. camp for boys of New London county, has just been issued by the camp committee, which includes, George Bathgate, chairman, East Lyme; E. T. Bunyan, Colchester; W. G. Park, Hanover; Chas. E. White, E. E. Rogers, A. C. Woodruff, C. L. Williamson, all of New London.

The report follows:

For five years Camp Terrehegan has served the boys of New London county with more than 300 different boys in attendance from one to five weeks.

The camp not only helps to solve the vacation problem for the parents but at the same time gives to every boy new appreciation of Gods great out-of-doors and strengthens him for the life problems of every day which he faces on his return to school.

We have every year realized the great value of giving the boys at camp the opportunity to live close to strong Christian men during their stay at camp. This year has been no exception. At all times during the camp season we were able to have one adult leader in camp for every seven boys. This in itself is sufficient guarantee for any parents to trust their boy to our care, for one or more weeks.

C. S. Bailey who has been a director of the camp for five years was most ably assisted by A. B. Dawson, physical director, who has himself had more than 20 years' experience in conducting boys camps, and Ralph Fistere who acted as purchasing agent for the camp. Among the adult leaders who volunteered their services for one week or more were: Dr. H. W. Hulburt, Rev. George Atha, O. C. Fowler of Groton, Omar McCoy of New Market, N. H., Lawrence Brooks, Howard Koelb, Maurice Roux, Milton Koelb, John Chevalier of Stonington, Clifford Meli of Occum, Ellsworth Powers of Fitchville, Fletcher Dunn, Donald Prince of New London, Herbert Knight of Montclair, N. J., Rev. Carleton Hubbard of Brooklyn, N. Y. In addition to the above adult leaders the directors were most ably assisted by the large corps of assistant leaders who have been developed through the merit system used from year to year. Special mention must be given Harris Snow and Griswold Morgan who carried a large part of the time the obligations and duties of adult leaders. The other assistant leaders were Thomas Geer of Montclair, N. J., Hugh McKay, Albert Woodruff, William Reeves and Dwight Dennison. Too much credit cannot be given to the untiring services given by Mr. and Mrs. James Stivers of Stonington. For three weeks they conducted the woodcraft and handcraft work of the camp so that we are able to say that more was accomplished in this line than ece before in the history of our camp and a valuable foundation made for future building up of this valuable department of the camp life.

Activities

Our physical program was so conducted under the direction of Mr. Dawson that future campers will covet the opportunity to compete in the athletic and aquatic programs in an endeavor to break the record established this year in the various events. Prize ribbons were awarded to 45 boys, and the tennis cup was awarded to William Kip as the winner of the singles tournment.

Our campfire programs were greatly improved this year through the use of the main room of the lodge on cold or rainy nights. Every leader and boy volunteered his talents in providing pleasant evening hours for the entire camp period. The major event of the season was the annual minstrel show at which two hundred friends and parents of the campers assembled to be entertained by the colored actors assisted by Mr. George Warmsley, sleight- of-hand performer, of Versailles.

Mr. Stivers gave valuable personal and group instruction in carving, semaphore, fire lighting, cooking, knot-tying and boxing the compass. He was also in charge of the rifle range. Mrs. Stivers taught 25 boys now to make baskets and several boys learned leaf printing. Several boys were able to pass their Scout tests while in camp through the assistance of Mr. Stivers who is a commissioner for the New London council.

Rev. Hulburt taught astronomy and Indian lore as well as nature study and bird lore. Twelve boys earned the Wantonoit certificates and several learned belt making again this year.

Our morning chapel services were outlined early in the season by Rev. George Atha and he with the assistance of Dr. Hurlburt, Rev. Hubbard and the camp director made the first ten minutes following breakfast valuable to every camper with short talks on the lives of Bible characters and great men of ancient and modern times. The Sunday morning and the Sunday evening vespers were conducted by Howard Koelb, A. B. Dawson, O. C. Fowler, C. S. Bailey and H. W. Hubbard.

The regular camp emblem tests were entered into this year with much enthusiasm by the campers with the result that nine boys earned first degree, five earned second degree and six boys earned the third degree emblems.

The principle additions to the equipment this year was the twenty-two foot well with the water piped to the cook shack; and the tennis court which was built by the financial and physical aid of the campers. The court is undoubtedly one of the best clay courts to be found in any boys' camp and the need of it was full manifested by the constant use it received from the campers. The changing of the tent line to a higher elevation won the approval of both the campers and the parents. The camp improvement fund amounted to $150 at the end of the season.

Your committee agreed at its spring meeting to extend the season one week making five instead of four and to limit the attendance to fifty each week. The first two weeks found many of the old campers back to live for a week or more the joyous life out of doors and thus the full quota was in attendance. The records show eighty-six campers in attendance representing fifteen communities.

The best estimate of a camp is undoubtedly that made by the parents of the boys. Many were the words of praise given to the members of the committee and the directors. Also the return of the campers year after year until the camper becomes a leader is added proof that our camp is winning its way into the hearts of both parents and boys.

Respectfully submitted,
GEORGE BATHGATE
Chairman.

WHEN JEWETT CITY BOROUGH HAD A COLD WATER ARMY

An interesting bit of history is recalled in a letter from a native of Jewett City, David Hale Fanning, president of the Royal Worcester Corset company, now in his 95th year and unusually vigorous in mind and body. Referring to the benefits of a temperate life and abstemious habits generally, Mr. Fanning says:

"I signed a temperance pledge in the little old village of Jewett City when I was about ten or twelve years of age. At that time, they came around forming little Cold Water Armies and all the little boys and girls signed the pledge. I was one of them —and I have practically kept it from that day to this.

"I was elected one of the officials of the Cold Water Army. We had wooden swords and marched around the town like fierce soldiers. I was elected fourth corporal, which was the very lowest office in the company; but that did not make any difference as long as I was a member of the Cold Water Army.

"Another time we boys formed a military company, about a dozen or fifteen of us, and I was captain. I went home at night and told my brother about it, and he asked, 'And how did you become captain? Were you elected?' I said, 'No; I put myself in as captain.' He replied, 'That was not the right way to do.' Napoleon Bonaparte put himself in as emperor once—and what became of him? You should have been elected.' Boys at that time did not know much about election, captaincy, or fourth corporal. They were all little kids!"

POETRY

THE TUBERCULOSIS CHRISTMAS SEAL.

Oh happy folk, contented folk, and ye that go with gold
To seek within the noisy mart the gifts to mark the day,
Jolly toys and gems and lace and trinkets manifold,
Here be better wares to buy along the crowded way.

Buy a pair of red cheeks to give a little lad again,
Buy a pallid woman's face the bright eyes of health,
Buy a broken man a hope, buy the strength he had again,
Here are bargains wonderful awaiting on your wealth.

Oh happy folk and careless folk, the world's bazaar is piled
With lovely gifts and lasting gifts to mark a holiday,
You, who seek the fairest thing for lover, friend and child,
Surely ye shall pause a while and buy the while ye stay.

Buy a mother back her bairn, buy a man
his wife again,
Buy a lad the right to love, a child
the right to play,
Buy a wistful kindred all, home and health and life again,
And God be with you, gentlefolk, who purchase these today.

—Teodosia Garrison.

THE CAVALIER'S SONG.

A steed, a steed of matchless speed!
A sword of metal keen!
All else to noble hearts is dross,
All else on earth is mean.
The neighing of the war-horse proud,
The rolling of the drum,
The clangor of the trumpet loud,
Be sounds from heaven that come;
And oh! the thundering press of knights,
When as their war cries swell,
May tole from heaven an angel bright,
And rouse a fiend from hell.

Then mount! then mount, brave gallants
all,
And don your helms again;
Death's couriers, Fame and Honor, call
Us to the field again.
No shrewish fears shall fill our eye,
When the sword-hilt's in our hand—
Heart-whole we'll part, and no whit sigh
For the fairest of the land!
Let piping swain, and craven wight,
Thus weep and puling cry;
Our business is like men to fight,
And hero-like to die!

—William Motherwell.

Iron staircases in the British Museum were recently treated to a coat of rust to make them less slippery and thus protect the library workers. This is believed to be the first instance on record where rust, instead of being fought, was deliberately sought after. Long use had made the iron steps of the library stacks so slippery that shelf attendants carrying heavy loads of books up and down them were constantly risking their necks. The British office of works sent engineers to remedy the evil, and they did so by applying a chemical treatment that left a rough-surfaced coating of rust on the iron. After several months of use the objectionable slipperiness had not returned.

ALLIED DEBTS DEBATED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Chancellor Churchill Evaded Direct Answer on the Question of the Franco-American Debt—Declared He Was Anxious Not to Cause Offense to "Our Allies and Friends an the Continent Across the Atlantic"—Washington Officials Are Puzzled at the Attitude Displayed.

London, Dec. 10.—(By the A. P.)—Resumption of debate on the king's address to parliament tonight brought out in the house of commons a revival of the recent election campaign conflict over the Zinovieff letter, which urged revolutionary activity in England.

Prime Minister Baldwin previously had said that the cabinet sub-committee which examined the evidence placed before it in connection with the letter had concluded unanimously that the document was authentic.

John R. Clynes, who was lord privy seal in the late MacDonald cabinet, in a general attack on the program of the government of Stanley Baldwin, demanded that the house should be afforded a view of the evidence.

He said the Zinovieff document did so much to secure Mr. Baldwin his huge majority in the recent elections that the premier ought not to object to an indepent investigation.

Sir John Simon, a prominent liberal, raising the question of the Franco-American debt conversations, said it would be intolerable if Great Britain was to have no say in readjustment of the debt issue between the United States and France. He wanted to know how far Premier Baldwin regarded these allied debts as assets.

Other liberals having supported Sir John's invitation for a government statement, Winston Spencer Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, requested the house to have consideration for him, on the double ground that he was very new in the duties of the chancellorship and could not pretend to be versed in the details of finance, and that he was most anxious in dealing with such a delicate matter to avoid the use of any language likely to cause offense to "our allies and friends on the continent across the Atlantic."

Mr. Churchill said he was to attend the meeting of the allied finance ministers in Paris in January and he was sure every party in the house would wish that that meeting should not be marred by haggling, bargainings, recriminations or reproaches but should be animated by a sincere desire to find a practical path, fair to all concerned.

The chancellor then alluded to Great Britain's tremendous sacrifices and burdens in the war, which he said entitled her to respect from every quarter. Great Britain's financial burdens since the war had been incomparably greater than those of any other victorious power.

"We have not hitherto pressed any allied debtors to meet their obligations," Mr. Churchill continued, "and this policy has imposed great sacrifices on the British taxpayers."

Enlarging of those statement, the chancellor said: "It is as a nation, sacrificing, paying and sufferings, that we are bound to approach the grave issues connected with inter-allied debts and reparations." He then argued that whatever opinions might have since been expressed about the settlement of the debt funding agreement with the United States negotiated by Mr. Baldwin, it had been almost universally accepted at the time it was made. There could, however, be no dispute with regard to two points: First, that the settlement was an accomplished one and must be made good; it formed the starting point for all future discussions in the field of inter-allied debts, and second, it has placed Great Britain in an extraordinary strong position when we take our seat in the council of the allied powers."

"We have no need to seek indulgence in any quarter, having met all our obligations," the chancellor went on. "We can look everyone in the face. This debt settlement undoubtedly was the forerunning of that consolidation and increasing establishment of our credit throughout the worldwide trade depends, and it is the essential foundation of the maintenance of exchange with the United States, which is a vital factor in our whole national and international finance.

"The second great factor in the problem is the Balfour note of three years ago, which must play a most important part in further discussions this subject. The principle expressed in the Balfour note, which was written before the Baldwin settlement was arranged, was that Great Britain should ask as much and more from Europe than the United States might find it necessary to required from her. Speaking on behalf of his majectey's government, I may say that still forms the foundation of our policy.

"Nobody can say that is a selfish or grasping policy. This annual exportation of an immense sum across the Atlantic, which we are regularly and continually doing, is a prodigious effort. In our desire to help Europe we have taken no account of the 800,000,000 pounds sterling worth of dollar securities we sold before the United States entered the war to provide credits for ourselves and our allies. Our concern is solely with the external payments which we had to make, and in regard to these the Balfour note remains the stied policy of the government and is now affirmed for the third time in three successive administrations."

Here Mr. Churchill added a word of caution respecting the improved aspect of reparations from Germony under the Dawes plan.

"We might," he said "get 10,000,000 pounds sterling from Germany this year, and there is the possibility eventually of getting 25,000,000 yearly. Nobody, however, can say how far these hopes will be realized. Germany's recovery may be delayed and the hopes of the Dawes committee may remain infilled for many years.

"I must say that we do not feel able to make our efforts attain the position aimed at in the Balfour note. This demands upon the fruition of German reparations. The agreement we seek to meet with our European allies must be on such a basis as to safeguard us within the limbits of the Balfour note from the consequences of a German default or failure.

"But," Mr. Churchill declared, "speaking generally I would venture to say that we do not desire to hinder any arrangement for mutual benefit between friendly nations associated with us in the great war."

The chancellor then said the British government would consider it essential that any payments made by Grit Britain's creditors in Europe to their creditors in the United States should be accompanied simultaneously by proportionate payments to Great Britain. This statement evoked loud chering from the ministerial and liberal benches.

Mr. Churchill concluded that in pursuance of the policy thus outlined the government would be animated by a spirit of warmest comradeship toward friends and allies in the war "and we would seliuously avoid the use of TWO DEBT CONFER apy language or the indulgence in any move which possible could cause offence and lead to a disturbance of the harmony which ought to exist."

Philip Snowden, former chancellor the exchequer, said, he was sorry Mr. Churchill had committed himself ... the Balfour policy, because circumstances had changed since the letter was written. It would have been better if Mr. Churchill had regarded the Balfour document as a dead letter and gone into the Paris conference with free hands. He hoped, however, there would be no acrimonious debate, and that the house would give Mr. Churchill its general support.

PUZZLED BY ATTITUDE OF BRITAIN ON ALLIED DEBTS

Washington, Dec. 10.—Uneasiness was aroused in some official circles here by the statements attributed today to Winstone Churchill, the chancellor of the British exchequer, that his government would insist on pro portionate payments to it on occasion of a common creditor making payments to the United States.

The treasury was silent on the Chudchill remark, but it gave evidence of surprise at the turn taken in the events because of a likelihood that such a declaration might cause delay in the prospective settlement with France.

Officials who would talk about the situation created by the Churchill pronouncement were loathe to believe that it correctly represented the attitude of the British government.

Some thought it might have been intended to meet some particular political situation, while others were inclined to accept it as the forerunner of a more definite expression concerning the Franco-American discussions.

The situation seemed to bode difficulty for this government in any attempts to reasch agreements with other debtor nationals. Few of them would suggest negotiations, in the view of officials here, if they knew Great Britain would demand a settlement at the same time.

Another phase of the situation which was suggested here was the possibility that the Churchill remark later be employed as the foundation for an inter-allied debt conference. The United States has refused to participate in meeting of this sort in the past, but some officials believe that another attempt would be made to induce this government to join in discussions of the whole debt subjects.

ATTACK IN THE SENATE ON MUSCLE SHOALS BILL

Washington, Dec. 10.—The Underwood Muscle Shoals bill was a target for attack in the senate today and its author, Senator Underwood democrat, Alabama, was compelled to defend his measure vigorously.

The sharpest assault was made by a member of the Alabama senator's own party, Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, who charged that the Underwood bill virtually "would give Muscle Shoals over to the Alabama Power company."

Chairman Norris, of the senate agriculture committee, who has fought the bill all along, also attempted to amend the Underwood measure, which is before the chamber as an amendment to a bill by Senator Norris reported at the last session by the committee. In a compromise with him, Senator Underwood accepted part of the Norris amendment, which struck out a qualifying phrase of the fertilizer clause. As amended the bill requires the conversion into fertilizer of nitrogen not needed for national defense.

Senator Underwood challenged the statement of Senator McKellar and demanded proof of his charges.

UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT TO AVOID RECOGNITION

New York, Dec. 10.—Mme. Roger Sudreau, daughter of the late Jacques Lebaudy, "Emperor of the Sahara," sailed for home on the steamship Paris today after an unsuccessful attempt to avoid recognition.

Her husband, a Paris detective, kept newspapermen from getting interviews. It was learned that the Sudreaus came here by way of Quebec several weeks ago.

The former Miss Lebaundy inherited two-thirds of the $50,000,000 estate of her father, who was shot to death by her mother in their Long Island home a few years ago as the climax of Lebaundy's sensational career which aroused world-wide attention when he attempted to set up a government in the Sahara, with himself as emperor.

THE GERMAN CABINET HAS DECIDED TO RESIGN

Berlin, Dec. 10 (By the A. P.)—The cabinet at a meeting today decided to resign. The date of its resignation will be fixed by agreement between Chancellor Mark and President Ebert.

Unless Ebert requests the Marx-Stresmann cabinet to continue in office until after the holidays, it is probable that the affairs of Germany will in the course of next week be entrusted to a new ministry. This would be composed of bourgeois parties, in which the German nationalists, by virtue of their preponderance of reichstag mandates, will play a decisive role.

In requesting President Ebert to relieve of further responsibility the cabinet explains that it is merely a minority ministry and is not representative of the party line-up resulting from Sunday's election.

As the socialists, clerjcals and democrats failed to elect a sufficient majority of deputies it is believed that Chancellor Marx will decline to form a new government, as his attitude throughout the recent campaign pledged him to a ministry composed exclusively of the three constitutional parties.

Political gossip tonight names Stressman as the man whom President Ebert will authorize to proceed with inter-party negotiations. The present foreign minister will in all probability head the next government as chancellor.

Elect Bingham to Protect Industries

Advice of Vice President Bullard of the Bullard Machine Tool Company.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Dec. 10. — Stanley H. Bullard, vice president of the Bullard Machine Tool company of Bridgeport, came out today in a statement endorsing Hiram Bingham, republican nominee for United States senator, laying particular stress upon the strong part played by Connecticut senators in previous tariff discussions.

"We must maintain our republican representation," says Mr. Bullard, "and a change in the combination now would be the utmost folly."

"Connecticut's interest in the tariff question," he says, "is continuous, whether or not it is one of the problems before any given session of congress. This is a natural corrolary of our position in the national structure. We must be always alert and forward-looking.

"The welfare of our entire population is closely interwoven with the fortunes good or ill—of our industries, the products of which are so widely diversified that, if catalogued would be found to cover the ... of manufactured goods.

"Our capital is largely invested in manufacture. Our people are, in the great majority, employed in the plants and mills which our wealth have built; and our railroad is chiefly employed in transporting the goods produced therein.

"Under these conditions, we must watch our step and keep in line with that which has been to our advantage in the past, and will be again, should need arise in the future. We must maintain our republican representation in both the house and senate.

"The strong part played by Connecticut's senators in the last tariff battle is widely known and appreciated by those who have the welfare of our people at heart, and a change in the combination now would be the utmost folly."

NEED OF CONSTRUCTION OF 10,000 TON TYPE CRUISERS

Washington, Dec. 10.—Stress laid by Senator Wilbur on the immediate need for construction of 10,000 ton type cruisers to bring the navy up to a 5-5-3 ratio compared with other treaty powers attracted attention today to the probable size and power of these post-treaty craft as planned by American navy designers.

The naval secretary revealed the highly significant detail in his statement Monday to the house sub-committee. He disclosed that navy ordnance experts have already developed a new type of eight inch rifle, that being the limit of size of guns for auxiliary craft set by the treaty.

"By increasing the initial velocity of the eight inch shell the striking power can be and has been greatly increased," he said.

Increased velocity could be obtained either by improved explosives or increased length of gun. The number of guns each of the ten thousand tonners is to mount has not been disclosed. Intimations have come from abroad, however, that the British post-treaty cruisers will carry eight or ten 8-inch guns or possibly nine, mounted in trios under light housing. The size of the ship presumably would permit such armament without radical loss of speed. It is to be expected that the plans of both services contemplate maximum gun power consistent with high speed and full capacity for 10,000 or 12,000 miles without refueling.

GUILTY OF VIOLATION OF MICHIGAN SYNDICALISM LAW

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 10 (By the A. P.)—Charles E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the workers' party ... held guilty of violation of the Michigan syndicalism law by the state supreme court today.

Ruthenberg was originally convicted in the Detroit county courts, following his arrest in the raid of federal and local officers on the secret ... [illegible] ... in Auburn ... [illegible] ... from the decision of the circuit court, and was been at liberty under bond. Ruthenberg is now in Chicago ... [illegible] ... Ohio ... [illegible] ... ers among those arrested in the Berrien ... Foster was tried, but the jury disagreed. He probably will be re-tried, and Gitlow, Rose Pastor Stokes, and many other communists who were indicted following the raid but never tried may be brought into court as a result of today's decision.

The opinion upholding the circuit court decision was written by Justice Howell West and concurred in unanimously by the entire bench.

It held that the state has the rizht to enact such laws as the syndicalism as to defend itself: ... he act is consitutional and that Ruthenberg's plea that he was arrested and his documents were seized illegally, were incorrect. The court rules that the officers who raided the Bridgeman meeting were within their rights in seizing the portfolios and barrels of documents offered in evidence, because they were directly related to the commission of crime by Ruthenberg.

The decision described Ruthenberg and the communist party as the "red thread of Russian communism" and accused them of trying to hide behind the laws of the government they seek to overthrow.

"Their doctrines teach ultimate insurrection and civil war. Their tactics involve the cowardly purpose of injuring until they can destroy. The decision reads: "They plan the looting of the nation and invoke its laws to protect them while instilling their doctrines. The freebooters and pirates of old were small fry compared to their modern brothers. Their hope is to find opportunity to commit crimes; their creed is that of terrorism and violence; they are the red thread of Russian communism ... and their avowed purpose is the restruction of the government of the United States by force."

GRAVE MATTERS BEFORE COUNCIL OF THE L. OF N.

Rome, Dec. 10.—(By The A. P.)—A grave discussion arose in a secret session of the council of the League of Nations tonight concerning what action, if any, the council can take in case of future investigation of the armament situation in Germany, or other former enemy states, discloses flagrant violations of the conditions laid down in the treaty of Versailles. The council was confronted by the fact that the Versailles treaty, through authorizing investigations, is silent regarding resultant steps.

M. Briand, Austen Chamberlain and Dr. Benes, admitted that the omission left a disturbing situation. The council ruled that a majority vote was sufficient when the council is deciding on the composition of commissions of investigations.

The next question was whether the majority or unanimity rule should be observed in taking action on the reports of investigators.

Alluding to Germany's prospective admission to the league with a place on the council, Mr. Chamberlain remarked that it was quite conceivable that the council of the league would eventually be enlarged, and it was reasonable to suppose that any state affected by future reports would refuse to agree to any drastic action.

M. Briand said that the question of the council's power to act was a serious one, because states affected could go on ceaselessly building up war armaments unless a way was found to check this.

M. Unden, of Sweden, suggested as a solution that in case former enemy countries were declared to be preparing for war the problem could come before the league in the regular channels under the terms of the covenant as a condition threatening peace. But this suggestion did not seem to satisfy the other members.

Eventually it was decided to adjourn the entire discussion until the March meeting of the council in the meantime the official minutes of tonight's debate will be forwarded to all the governments having seats on the council.

TWO NAVAL MEASURES PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Washington, Dec. 10.—Two bills, one carrying a number of varied navy department recommendations and the other authorizing reorganization of the naval and marine corps reserve, were passed today by the house and sent to the senate.

Enlistments would be affected by both measures, the general bill authorizing six-year terms as well as the present two three and four-year periods, and the other requiring men, upon joining the navy, to obligate themselves to serve an additional four years in a fleet naval reserve. The six-year enlistments were recommended by the navy department on the ground that short terms are not economical due to the frequent necessity of training recruits.

The omnibus bill also would authorize purchase of four existing naval air stations, and, in an amendment by Representative Jones, democrat, Texas, provides that any man under 21 years of age, who enlisted before July 1, 1924, without the consent of his parents or guardian, may be released from the service upon application within six months of his enlistment.

The naval air stations which would be purchased under the bill, are those at Galveston, Texas, for $13,000; Lakehurst, N. J., for $18,000; Quantico, Va., $58,335; and Chatham, Mass., for $58,335.

POISON MURDER TRIAL OF DEPOSED CLERGYMAN

Mount Vernon, Ill., Dec. 10.—The poison murder trial of Lawrence M. Hight, deposed clergyman, and Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, jointly charged with the death of her husband, centered this afternoon around Hight, who admitted he had signed a confession of his guilt when questioned by a committee of Methodist ministers, who visited him in jail after his arrest.

Hight made this statement to the court when he was placed on the stand during a long contest over the question of the admission of this signed confession as evidence. The jury had been sent from the room.

With adjournment for the day, the matter was still being argued. Judge Kern ruled that confessions made by Hight were not admissable as against Mrs. Sweetin but had not passed on the question of whether the confession shall be admitted against Hight.

Rev. Otto Horsley of Marion, one of the ministers called to tell of the jail visit, quoted Hight as saying: "Boys I'm guilty. I was in the church at Ina and met Mrs. Sweetin. She came down the aisle. A power came over me that I could not resist." Then he said that he had felt he had been forgiven.

"I have wrestled with the Lord all night," Hight was quoted as saying. "I know now he has forgiven me."

The conference terminated without result and Judge Foss was appointed a committee of one to hear the evidence and arrange the items, which included sums of money loaned defendant by plaintiff and various bills paid for him. Mrs. Vertefeuille occupied the stand most of the day Wednesday. She is represented by Attorney Harvey and Attorney Gaucher appeared for the defendant. The outcome of Wednesday's hearing will be reported before Judge Maltbie, at the next sitting of the superior court.

Fred Woodworth announced his indignation in police court Wednesday when charged with the theft of cider from a barrel at the home of Simon Skavron, in the Warner district of South Windham. The alleged theft was committed Tuesday forenoon. Woodworth denounced Skavron and his neighbor, Kasma Sodra, as peddlers of hard cider and moonshine. Sodra had discovered Woodworth coming out of Skavron's cellar in the old Griffin farm house and had taken the man to the owner who was working out in the woods at the time. Felix Lezsiniak who was working with the plaintiff at the time corroborated this testimony. Nothing was found missing in the house but although Woodworth carried no containers it was evident that he had carried off a quantity of cider in his stomach.

Woodworth offered as an exhibit in the case a quart of cider which his mother had purchased from Skavron a few days ago. Woodworth said that he had been invited into plaintiff's cellar by a little boy who had answered the door and offered him a drink of cider. He said that an old man who lives on the Jordan Road and drives a gray horse has been laid up for some time from drinking moonshine sold to him by Skavron. Judge Foss decided that if a theft was committed it was a technical one and he could only impose a sentence which would prevent defendant from again accepting invitations to drink from four year old boys. A ten day suspended jail sentence was imposed and Woodworth was placed in charge of Probation Officer S. A. Peckham.

It was noted in state newspapers recently that Miss Viola Green of Willimantic had received honorable mention in a country-wide prize essay contest on the subject of Good Roads inaugurated by the Firestone Company. In securing honorable mention in this contest Miss Green incidentally established an enviable record in essay writing for herself and did honor to Windham High school from which she was graduated last spring. Information given out by Principal Egbert A. Case of Windham High revealed the fact that Miss Green had displayed remarkable ability in prize essay writing at least as far as the subject of good roads is concerned. In the state contest conducted in 1923 throughout the high schools Miss Green, then a junior, was awarded first prize and she duplicated this honor in the 1924 contest. Pythons Sold by Yard

When shows and museums find it necessary to replenish their stock of pythons and boas they usually have to buy them by the yard, according to Popular Mechanics. New York forms the center of the snake-importing industry in America, and each year men go from there to Africa, India, Sumatra and South America, returning in the Spring with hundreds of the big reptiles. A seven foot python can be had for about $20, according to snake dealers, while a length of 25 feet—found in the regal specimens from Sumatra—runs the price to $600 or $700. Boas come smaller. Sixteen feet is said to be the maximum at an age of 8 or 10 years. In price these also start at about $20 and run as high as $200.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

A physician says that whisky drinking weakens the eyes. Perhaps it does, but consider how it strengthens the amite building, where the nitroglycerin is soaked up by porous clay and cut in convenient sticks for mine use. The dynamite when pressed into shape is tested out by the explosion of a small amount on a ballistic pendulum. This device has a heavy lead ball mounted on the end of a swinging arm, which is set in motion by the force of the small explosion. The gage tells the amount of motion and from this the power of the dynamite is calculated.

Rainiest Spot

At Cherrapunji, champion rainy spot of the earth, in the Himalayas, the average yearly rainfall is 466 inches. In 1861 it is recorded that 918 inches, or 76 1-2 feet, actually descended at Cherrapunji. More than a third of this, or 372 inches, fell in July alone, and 42 1-2 inches—more than most Americans experience in a year—came down in a single day.

How to Stop Dangers of High Blood Pressure

Quick Relief Follows Use of Noted Physician's Prescription.

Thousands are in danger of sudden death because of high blood pressure and don't realize it. If you suffer from dizzy spells, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath on exertion, ringing in the ears or frequent headaches, you should do something at once, for these are signs that your blood pressure has reached the danger point.

High blood pressure is mainly caused by poisons that clog the blood vessels and thus overtax the heart. Most sudden deaths due to apoplexy are caused by high blood pressure and failure to correct the symptoms outlined above.

One of the most reliable and quickest methods to get relief from the dangerous symptoms of high blood pressure is through the use of Bi-a-lin, a noted doctor's prescription. It tends immediately to stop the formation of poisons that cause the pressure on the overstrained blood vessels, and acts as a system cleanser and regulator. Bi-a-lin is harmless, easy to take and may be had at The Lee & Osgood Co.'s.

government would pay $11,500,000 for the waterway, which was constructed just before the war. It was taken over by the government after hostilities started and retained until early in 1921.

TRACING THE HISTORY OF THE CAPE COD CANAL

Washington, Dec. 10.—The financial affairs of the Boston, Cape Cod and New York Canal company, operating the Cape Cod canal, were inquired into today by the senate commerce sub-committee at the renewal of hearings on the house bill for purchase by the government of the Cape Cod waterway.

H. L. Colbeth, operating manager of the canal, was the witness. Tracing the history of the waterway, he said it was originally from 100 to 300 feet wide on the bottom, with a minimum depth of 25 feet at mean low water. When the government took the canal over there were only two shoal places, and these were removed subsequently, he said.

The depth has been well maintained, Colbeth said, adding that some dredging is necessary almost every year in order to remove sand worked in through the entrances by the swift tides. Last year this dredging cost $53,155, the witness said. The annual maintenance charges, including caring for wharf structures, power lines, lights and buildings, Colbeth estimated at $50,000.

Responding to further questions by Senator Fletcher, democrat, Florida, Colbeth said there would be no necessity for purchasing additional land unless the canal were "enlarged beyond present human conception." The gross value of vessels and cargoes passing through the canal was $1,129,-060,000, the witness said. In 1923 the number of passengers going through the waterway was 116,000, while up to Nov. 1 this year the number was 136,000.

Eastern Steamship company boats, averaging 5,000 tons, pay $750 for each passage through the canal, Colbeth said. On coal barges and craft the charge is 10 cents per cargo ton on the cargo. The passenger charge is 15 cents per gross ton on passenger steamers and yachts. The canal is not now handling all traffic it could, Colbeth said.

"Have you raised tolls since you took charge after the government turned the canal back?" asked Senator Fletcher.

"Yes, they have been raised upwards twice," was the reply. "In some instances as much as 50 per cent."

Profits since the government relinquished control were given by Colbeth as follows:

1920, $136,446; 1921, $122,433; 1922, $204,073; 1923, $277,700; 1924 (to Nov. 1), $268,029.

Colbeth said to make the canal give maximum benefit to all classes of shipping, including large craft, the canal should be 200 feet wide at the bottom and 35 feet deep at mean low water. He said this would not increase maintenance costs. Comparing traffic through th canal with that on the outward course, Colbeth said 8,000,000 tons of coal, the principal item, passed around Cape Cod, while only 2,000,000,000 went through the canal. "It is physically impossible to get that traffic through the canal," he said, "because the ships cannot get into into the canal." Referring to reports of the "unsafe" condition of the canal, Colbeth said he had passed 8,000 ships through the canal each year without an accident of "moment." Senator Fletcher suggested that local interests might put up part of the cost of enlarging the canal. The witness said that the counties bordering it were required to raise $37,500 each for the construction of a wharf for which the state appropriated $150,000. Colbeth said the principal question was a humanitarian one: that the government should take over the canal and operate and enlarge it as a means of saving the lives of those who follow the sea in traffic along the New England coast.

J. J. Coakley, treasurer of the canal company, testified that the idea of constructing the canal was that of DeWitt Flannigan, who acquired the land from the Quincy Shaw estate.

Interest on the $6,000,000 in bonds was paid up to 1918 out of funds of the compan, earned or borrowed.

Questioned by Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, Coakley said that the company issued $6,000,000 in bonds and $1,800,000 in stock.

The canal company awarded the contract for building th canal to the Cape Cod Construction company. This company, Coakley said, is practically the same as the Cape Cod Canal company.

The total issue of stocks and bonds was $12,000,000, divided 50-50. The construction company spent nearly $9,000,000 in building the waterway, the witness said, besides paying $4,-650,00 in securities for franchise, land and right of way.

Replying to Couzens, Coakley said if the government did not take over the canal, the company would continue to operate it, since it is paying its way. "Had it not been for the war," he said, "I am satisfied the soundness of investment in the canal would have been demonstrated." He told of the dislocation of coastwise commerce and the slowness of its return to normal as one reason why the canal has not been a paying concern.

"Stockholders will not get a cent if the government buys the canal," he said. "The purchase price will go to take care of bonds and pay off loans to the company."

The board of directors of the company is now: August Belmont, president; DeWitt Flannigan, W. A. Harriman, L. L. Loree, T. R. Appleton, H. P. Wilson, F. D. Underwood, C. C. Fegethoff and Eugene Klapp.

Pneumonia for Moths

From England comes a new way of getting rid of moths. Give them pneumonia. When it is found that moths are in one's best coat, that article should at once be placed in a refrigerator and left there several days, then suddenly exposed for a short time in a temperature of about 50 degrees and then again refrigerated. After this treatment it is said that the clothes will be entirely free of moths.

ATOM HOUSE LIGHTING NEXT STEP IN SCIENCE

J. B. Kramer, a scientist of Birmingham England, says that he is now hard at work on an instrument through which he will demonstrate the practicability of his recent discovery, which, briefly, is that if radio-active substances are sandwiched between two plates of differing metals electrical energy is at once generated.

"I can foresee," says Mr. Kramer, "electronic batteries built up with metal plates an acre or more in area. There seems no reason why every house should not have in an outhouse at the back a battery of cells of this kind to provide power and lighting.

"Such batteries would require no attention and there would be no maintenance cost whatever."

Testing Dynamite

When one approaches a factory where dynamite is made everything seems half asleep. Here and there among the scattered buildings a man may be seen slowly wheeling a rubber-tired vehicle that looks not unlike a baby carriage. He exercises the greatest care, for his load is nitroglycerin, which does not allow mistakes to happen twice. The workmen and these strange carts are used to take the nitroglycerin from the mixing room to the refinery for the alternate straining and testing it must undergo until its detonating qualities are perfected. When the dynamite has been strained and the sulphuric acid removed from it the foreman takes half a teaspoonful of the liquid, spreads it thin on a metal surface and then strikes it with a hammer. When he is satisfied the product is shipped along to the dy-

Mr. Greene, one of Danielson's best known residents was taken suddenly ill Monday morning and is still confined to his bed.

Police of Northampton, Mass., have been making inquiries in this vicinity with a view to locating two young women, who about two years ago, were subjected to what approximated a kidnapping experience when they were invited out for an automobile ride with two young men who are now in the custody of the police of Northampton. It appears that the officers of the Massachusetts city are without the names of the young women they are seeking, presumably for the purpost of obtaining infomation on which to base action against the young men.

As in the national and state election last month, Killingly will vote by liigriets in the special election next Tuesday to name a United States senator from Connecticut. Voters resident in the first district will cast their ballots at the town hall. In the second district the voting will be at the usual place at Dayville and in the third district the voters will cast their ballots at East Killingly. The polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. A special effort will be made to get out a heavy vote in the town of Killingly.

No action was taken Tuesday even- ing at the meeting of the warden and court of burgesses, on a communication from the chamber of commerce relative to allowing a 10-minute parking privilege between the Main street crossing and the Phoenix block. The matter was tabled until further information on the proposal is obtained. It is known, however, that there will be opposition to the plan among the burgesses when it does come up for consideration.

Another matter that claimed the consideration of the meeting has to do with the location of the front of the new Longo block for which excavations are now under way at the Long property on Main street. It is understood that the plans for this building call for its front to stand out approximately two feet beyond the line on which the adjoining Hyde and Evans blocks stand. It is set forth by the owners of the property that in setting the building out two feet that they will be merely building out to their property line, part of which has been in use as a sidewalk. The matter was referred to the sidewalk committee of the burgesses and it is understood that they will inquire into the borough's legal rights in the premises.

Appreciations were received for additional street lights from citizens who feel that the installation of such lights would be desirable. These applications were referred to the committee on street lights. The usual routine business was transacted.

At a hearing in the town court, at which he was charged with reckless driving, Charles Lavalley of Plainfield pleaded not guilty, but was found guilty and a fine of $25 and costs imposed. Mr. Lavalley, who was represented by Attorney Neremiah Desmond of Norwich as counsel, took an appeal. The case grew out of a collision in the northern section of this town on November 26 of a car operated by Mr. Lavalley and another machine operated by William R. Chandler of Putnam. At the hearing of the case Attorney Eric H. Johnson acted as stenographer and Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam was in attendance, these facts being taken as indicating that there will be further developments in the matter.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis D. Crowell on South street, Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock, funeral services for Miss Mahala Fuller, sister of Mrs. Crowell, was conducted by Rev. A. E. Gallup. WARRANTS ISSUED FOR TAX DELINQUENTS

Danielson, Dec. 10.—On Wednesday 36 warrants issued in the regular way through officials of the town court of Killingly were placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer with instructions to serve them on delinquent personal taxpayors. This is the first batch of such warrants to be issued and will be followed by others until between 350 and 400 residents of the town who owe back personal taxes have been ordered to appear in court.

It was anticipated Wednesday that Sheriff Ayer will begin service of the warrants at his earliest convenience, so it is not all improbable that the first of the long string of those who will appear before the court on the personal tax issue will come in Thursday. Clearing up of the delinquent personal tax accounts is going to impose a heavy burden of labor upon the town court. The actions will involve regular court procedure and the long and arduous task of entering each case on the court records of the town.

Numbers have taken heed of the warning of the impending action and have settled their accounts with Collector Attorney Louis A. Woisard. Attorney Woisard said Wednesday afternoon that he had received about $100 since Monday morning, when publicity was first given in this column of the action to be taken by the town.

PUTNAM

There seems to be considerable interest in the hearing to be held in the City Hall in Putnam on the application for a charter to operate a jitney from West Gloucester, R. I., to Putnam, and the one to operate a jitney from the "Rhode Island state line over the main highway to the Massachusetts state line through Putnam, Woodstock and Quinebaug en route to Springfield, Mass."

It is said that there will be opposition to the granting of such permission.

At a meeting of the members of the First Baptist church five weks ago, a resolution was passed asking that Rev. John C. Stoddard retire from the pastorate of the church at a date approximately three months later. There was opposition to the proposition but it was adopted by a majority vote.

In the church news published Wednesday appears the following:

"On Thursday, Dec. 11, at 8.30 p. m., the membership of the First Baptist church is called to meet and vote on giving Mr. Stoddard a recommendation as to irreproachable Christian character, straightforwardness in business conduct and ministerial standing, and that it be published in such papers as the report was printed in about a month ago and which was not refuted, which those present voted unanimously to do when the State Ministerial Standing Committee met here at the Pastor's Call."

Woodstock lodge, No. 46, A. F. & A. M. of Woodstock at its annual all-day meeting, elected officers as follows: Worshipful Master, George Young, senior warden, Henry Joy; junior warden, J. Fred Ash; treasurer, George M. Sampson; secretary, Robert E. Harris; senior deacon, Dr. James H. Hitchins; junior deacon, FitzHenry Paine; chaplain, John Ash; marshal, George Butts, Sr., tyler, Clarence Taber. This is the first all-day meeting and election that Putnam lodge has held in its new temple. This is one of the oldest Masonic lodges of the state, instituted October 2, 1801.

Byron D. Bugbee, president of the Cargill Trust Co., Putnam's new state bank, was president of the citizens' committee which bought the land opposite Cargill Falls and converted it into the beautiful little park of the same name. In all New England there is no more beautiful or picturesque spot than Cargill Falls. A newcomer to Putnam after viewing the falls remarked that if it were possible to measure scenery in money value the city of New York would give about ten million dollars if it could locate Cargill Falls in Central Park.

In connection with the purchase of the park-land Mr. Bugbee has a little pamphlet, undoubtedly the only one in existence, asking for contributions from citizens to such a fund. It will interest those who remember Putnam twenty years ago as well as present day residents.

The original board of trustees consisted of Byron D. Bugbee, Charles H. Brown, E. L. Skelly, E. M. Wheaton and George E. Shaw. Mr. Kelley and Mr. Shaw are dead. A portion of the pamphlet reads:

To all loyal citizens of the commonwealth, to all loyal friends of Putnam, the Citizens' Committee sends greeting: Situated near the centre of the town of Putnam on the Quinebaug river are the Cargill Falls, justly renowned and famous in the history of this section. No more beautiful or picturesque falls are to be found in New England, a Mecca for lovers of scenery and a favorite subject for artists.

A tract of land, lying just east, bordering on the river and Pomfret St., has recently been offered for sale; fearing the encroachment of business upon this wonderful bit of nature and realizing that immediate action is necessary in order to preserve the grand old trees and provide a breathing space for those who wish to enjoy the delights of this beautiful spot, a committee of citizens has secured an option on the property and hope to raise $3,000 with which to purchase the same and making the necessary improvements, making this the beginning of a system of parks for this city. Many have responded generously; it is nevertheless our earnest wish to make the subscription list a broad one. Accordingly we are bringing our work to the attention of a large number in the hope that it will meet with their approval and induce them to contribute something to its success. All contributions sent to Charles H. Brown, treasurer, will be duly credited and publicly acknowledged. (Signed) Byron D. Bugbee, chairman and Mrs. Mary Medbury, secretary.

Other interesting excerpts from the pamphlet are:

John Sabin of Pomfret built the first bridge in 1772, just below the Falls, at a cost of $600.

David Howe in 1730 erected the first grist mill.

In 1787 Captain Benjamin Cargill built a new mill house and set up three complete sets of grist-mills together with a bolting mill, a blacksmith shop, two trip hammers, a mill to grind scythes, a fulling mill and a mill to churn butter.

In January, 1806 Ozias Wilkinson with his sons, Abraham, Isaac, David, Daniel and Smith, and several others came here from Pawtucket, where they had worked on the first cotton mill in Connecticut and organized as The Pomfret Mfg. Co., this being the third cotton mill in the United States. A deed of the mill privilege and about 1,000 acres of land what is now the site of the city of Putnam was secured for $25,000. Previous to 1849, this was known as Pomfret Factory. It was then proposed to incorporate a new township from parts of the towns of Thompson, Killingly, Pomfret and Woodstock. These towns refused to part with their territory. Woodstock was finally omitted from the list but the fight was kept up with the other three and was finally won. This pamphlet quotes from a document of that date: "The fight with one wolf that Gen. Putnam waged and won was surpassed by that with the three old towns. In July, 1855, the new town was incorporated and Putnam celebrated her victory on the anniversary of our national independence."

She Threw Away Calomel and took Beecham's Pills

"I felt so miserable," said the young woman cashier in a fashionable New Jersey hotel. "A friend suggested calomel and I was about to take it.

"Another friend noticed the calomel on my desk and cautioned me against it. She said her sister took calomel and ate some fruit and the combination 'salivated' her—loosened some of her teeth and made her very sick.

"Fearing that my stomach might be in an acid condition, I bought a 25c box of Beecham's Pills and took a dose. The next day I felt fine and I haven't needed anything during the three weeks since.

"I wouldn't take anything but Beecham's now. Some of the other girls here take Beecham's and all say they are wonderful."

Other gifts have been added making possible the installation of a font in keeping with the architecture and furnishings of the church. If the font does not arrive in time for Christmas—and the supply house does not promise it—the dedication will probably be delayed until Family Sunday, Feb. 1. Whether the new font is here or not, however, there will be a service for the baptism of children and adults, Sunday, December 21.

Work was started Tuesday on filling the iron piping into the holes on the edge of the new cement sidewalk adjacent to and over the cove in Industrial Place preparatory to putting up a permanent railing at this point. Those who have to pass this way frequently are pleased that this work has been started for the temporary railing at this point was apparently a very insecure affair and made it seem very dangerous, considering the number of children who passed over the bridge daily to and from school. Until the work is completed this point should be lighted with lanterns at night so that pedestrians, unfamiliar with this locality would have warning of the danger as they aproach it. Excavating is also going on at the foot of Denison avenue for the extension of the cement sidewalk at this point.

MIKE DIBOLA SET FIRE TO BOWLING ALLEY

Stafford Springs, Dec. 10.—Mike Dibola was bound over to the superior court by Deputy Judge Teft, in the borough court Wednesday morning, after pleading guilty to setting fire to his bowling alley equipment, also setting fire to the building of Joseph Wood. Judge Taft fixed the bond at $2,000 and in default Dibola was committed to jail to await trial at the April term of the superior court.

Mr. Dibola made a complete confession to Officer Hardistey of the state police. He told the officer that he had bought the bowling alleys of Joseph Plonk about a year ago and that business was good for a little while but that recently his receipts had been falling off. The day of the fire he had taken in only $5 and he was discouraged. He said that after he closed his place of business Tuesday night he began reflecting on the condition of business and decided to set the fire. He took a lot of papers and old rubbish and piled them in the middle of the floor. He then piled the bowling alley pins and a barrel on top of this. He went down cellar and got five gallons of crude oil and saturated the pile and lighted it with a match. He then covered the pile with canvas and went home, but he could not sleep. He got up about 3 o'clock Wednesday morning and was not surprised when he heard of the fire. The fire alarm was sounded soon after 2 o'clock Wednesday morning and the firemen responded promptly. The blaze was in the middle of the floor and had run along the floor several feet. After an hour's work the fire was under control.

The building is owned by Joseph Wood and besides the bowling alleys on the first floor which were conducted by Mr. Dibola, there was a barber shop in the west end of the building. The barber shop was conducted by Joseph Paradiso. The entire second floor is occupied by the Paramount theatre. The damage to the theatre is mostly from smoke and water.

The damage to the bowling alleys is estimated at $500 and the damage to the building is approximately $1,000. Mr. Paradiso's barber shop has slight damage from smoke and water. All of the property damaged is covered by insurance. Dibola carried $2,500 insurance on the bowling alleys and equipment.

OUR NAVAL STRENGTH.

No war is anticipated and none is desired. The demand is for peace. If it were possible to so read the future as to know that there would be no use for our first line of defense during the next century or two there might be no harm in neglecting it. Instead of pouring millions into it for the sake of spending money or for show purposes it might well be employed otherwise.

The hope is that there will be no occasion whatever to bring our navy into action. It is to be hoped that steps taken to insure peace will be followed by others which will increase the surety. But there is a danger in failing to lock the door, or in the failure to take ordinary precautions.

We have a naval agreement with the leading nations. That fixes the strength of the navies. If we permit our navy to drop below the ratio fixed we are taking chances for which no one is responsible except ourselves. If we live up to the treaty terms we are simply doing what we expect the others to do and no more.

This situation is brought to attention by the recommendations which Secretary Wilbur of the navy department makes before a congressional committee on naval appropriations, when he urges a building programme that will maintain our navy on a par with the British without exceeding the treaty terms, and by modernizing our present vessels so that they can perform the service expected of them and have the protection which modern warfare calls for.

There is nothing unreasonable about such a programme. That the secretary of the navy should urge it is to be expected. It is a matter in which he should be particularly concerned, but even to the same extent congress must display an interest that is called for by conditions. It is to our first line of defense that we look for security, and the kind of protection we get is dependent upon the efficiency and effectiveness of our navy.

LOANING GENERAL BUTLER.

When the services of General Smedley D. Butler of the marine corps were sought to clean up Philadelphia it was represented that an emergency existed there, and from subsequent developments there's no question but what the situation was correctly described.

General Butler as director of public safety has had his hands full. He has unquestionably been the man for the job even though there have been times when he seemed to clash even with the mayor. But harmony now prevails and the work that has been so well undertaken needs to be carried to completion. Naturally there is a desire to have Butler do it. There is an unwillingness to change horses while crossing the stream.

In granting a second year's leave of absence to General Butler, President Coolidge plainly indicates that he recognizes the detrimental features connected with the loaning of officials to cities, and it is easily understood that if the impression gets abroad that the government is willing there will be no end of appeals. The city of Syracuse is looking for a man to do the same kind of work for that community that Butler is doing for Philadelphia. It seems probable that it will find someone within New York state in whom full confidence can be placed, but if it were so that the government was ready to provide officers at the call of municipalities there is no question but what it would have its hands full not only in making the assignments but in helping to straighten out such tangles as accompanied such service.

Having gotten into the task of meeting the Philadelphia emergency it will be regarded as a wise decision on the part of the president in permitting General Butler to remain another year, but as he clearly states the job of cleaning up that city cannot be expected to require more than two years. It will not be to the credit of Philadelphia if it does, though conditions are of long standing, but whether it is or not a successor for General Butler should and must be obtained by that time.

THE COAST GUARD.

Most impressive evidence of its readiness to serve is given by the annual report of the activities of the coast guard. This is a part of the government service that has figured more prominently in the news of the day in the past year because of the part it has been obliged to play in connection with the enforcement of the dry law with particular reference to the rum runners. But that is not the only service it renders and it most certainly is not the only one expected of it.

By the report it is shown that there were 2462 persons who were rescued from places of peril during the year. That of course in itself warrants the maintenance of such a service, but in answering the calls for aid that resulted in such rescues the coast guard men were only doing their duty and only doing part of it. They not only are ready and willing to answer such calls, and the calls invariably come under the worst of conditions, but they are obliged to maintain a lookout for it and to anticipate, because of weather conditions, the possibility of disasters. Whether they are patrolling the beaches or whether they are facing gales and the roughest of weather, they are prepared to minister to those in distress. It is because of the possibility of someone being in trouble and requiring their aid that they are on duty.

The coast guard represents a combination of services, that of the life saving service and the revenue cutter service. Both are necessary and it has been most effectively demonstrated that the bringing of them together has had good results. But it is not all milk and honey. There are hardships and dangers involved, and along with the saving of life there is also the saving of vast sums in shipping and cargoes, and the scope of the service has been greatly increased in recent years by the radio. Too much credit cannot be given to the real service that is rendered by the coast guard.

FIGHTING OPIUM.

Bishop Brent is disgusted with the developments which have accompanied the opium conference at Geneva. He has refused to have anything more to do with the conference and has left for home. He has voiced his feelings in no uncertain terms and has been frank to express his lack of confidence in the good which the league of nations is doing in this direction.

Evidently Bishop Brent went to Geneva with the expectation of having a prompt stop put to the traffic in opium. Could such a thing have been accomplished it would have been the cause for international rejoicing. But it was too much of a job to complete in such a short time.

There are those who are in the business of producing and distributing opium for the money that is in it. They give slight consideration to the detrimental and demoralizing effects of the habit forming drugs. So long as they get the handsome returns financially they are satisfied. Clearly it would be a remarkable thing if such could be made to see the wisdom of abandoning the business. That is what is needed and it is to be hoped it is what can be brought about, but it is going to call for a persistent and determined fight. The Geneva conferences haven't furnished much encouragement. Rather have they been disposed to discourage, as Bishop Brent's attitude fully shows. But it will never do to capitulate to the forces back of the evil. Great determination must characterize the struggle to limit the production of opium to medical and scientific uses. That is the goal for which a greater fight than ever needs to be waged. The Geneva conference discloses that if it has never been realized before.

FINISH THE JOB.

Because there was a congressional committee that had been named to keep tabs on the contributions to political parties, advantage was taken of the opportunity to keep it busy prior to election in an endeavor to have the benefit accrue to the campaign from charges of a "slush" fund.

As is invariably the case in such cases there was the expectation that the more making of the charges would have been sufficient poison to the minds of the voters to accomplish the defeat of the president, even though there was no proof presented. Reliance was placed upon the fact that a correction never catches up entirely with the misstatement.

The election shows that the slush fund charges failed. They amounted to no more than they did when made by Candidate Cox, but there were accusations which the committee believes should not be allowed to remain unexplored. Apparently there is a disposition on the part of the senate committee to hold those making such accusations responsible, and by the statement from Senator Borah that he proposes to call them before the committee to make good, and to disclose whether they were actuated by forged telegrams, there will be a feeling that the committee is out to finish its job as it should instead of leaving it half done.

In two elections just such tactics have been employed without any foundation for the charges being established. It is time that it should be understood that those who indulge in such practices can be called to account for their acts.

Connecticut's Senatorship

Bingham the Man.

(New London Globe)

Next Wednesday Hamilton Holt will have discovered that Hiram Bingham is to succeed Frank B. Brandegee as a senator of the United States from Connecticut. He and George P. McLean will represent this state as well as it has ever been represented in the national senate.

Voters Know Own Minds

(Torrington Register)

The Waterbury Republican, which is perpetually harping on the "machine" bugaboo, solemnly refers to the nomination of Bingham as "the worst in a series of insults to the thinking public-spirited members of the republican party." In our opinion, however, it is a far greater insult to suppose that the voters of Connecticut do not know their own minds, and to intimate that after having elected a republican president by an overwhelming majority and after having gone on record as being unalterably opposed to the league of nations, these voters are going to completely reverse themselves and send to the United States senate a man who is the representative of the party opposed to the president and whose chief aim in life is to push this country into the league of nations.

Hiram Bingham we predict is going to be the senator from Connecticut.

Strongly Endorses Bingham

"Any man who does not support the party and its candidate is an enemy to the prosperity of the state," was the statement of De Ver H. Warner, President of Warner Brothers Company, Bridgeport, one of the largest manufacturers of Connecticut, who issued Wednesday a strong endorsement of Hiram Bingham, republican candidate for United States senator.

"This attack," says Mr. Warner, "against Governor-elect Bingham and the coming election for the United States senate is absolutely ridiculous. There will never be a time when Connecticut will need a strong representation more than it will in the next four years of the Coolidge administration. From the standpoint of every quality and equipment there is no better man than Bingham to represent us. His election as governor was incidental, not fundamental, to the senatorial situation. He has been duly nominated by delegates that are free, and twenty-one; and any man who does not support the party and its candidate, in my opinion, is a traitor to the cause and an enemy to the prosperity of the state."

"Next Summer" at Woodstock.

(Manchester Herald.)

On Saturday evening the Honorable Hamilton Holt invited his scanty Manchester audience 127 by actual count, to take tea with him "next summer" at his Connecticut vacation home at Woodstock. Ribald cynics present carefully noted that the invitation did not extend to "this winter." Possibly, though, if political winter should, inconceivably and unfortunately, come to Connecticut, an international samovar might sing and bubble alluringly at Woodstock, say, sometime around Christmas and the bright New Year.

Doesn't Impress Democrats.

(New Haven Times-Leader.)

There are those who think, meaning, of course, the dyed-in-the-wool democrats, that Holt harps too much on the league of nations subject in his addresses for his own good. He has adverted to his advocacy of the world court in support of the renunciation of Presidents Harding and Coolidge but he has had, as Anthony Carroll had, a habit of saying, "Now gentlemen, we will go one step further."

Some of the democrats of prominence in the party can't see why the league of nations with all its baggage should be brought into the election and its preceding campaign, but they are not inclined to deprecate the proceedings so as to influence the directions of those who are managing the Holt campaign.

Has War Been Declared?

(Bristol Press.)

When the late Thomas M. Waller of New London was governor of Connecticut, one of the handsomest young men appointed to his staff was Norris G. Osborn of New Haven. Thus did Editor Osborn legitimately earn the title of colonel which has adorned him during all the years.

The young colonel was obliged early in his "colonelcy" career to make a trip to New London for an interview with his chief. He was in doubt what regalia to wear, whether to go in citizen's clothes or in full uniform. He finally decided that the best way to meet his chief was in full uniform of a member of the governor's staff. Therefore, decked out with all the fuss and feathers he appeared before Governor Waller to deliver his message. The first word from Governor Waller was this: "Good heavens, Ned, has war been declared?"

As we read the fulminations day by day on the editorial pages of the "Journal-Courier" in regard to a New Haven citizen whom Colonel Osborn well knows is entirely worthy to be United States senator from Connecticut, we feel like saying to Ned again, "Good heavens, Ned, has war been declared?" What ails you anyway?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Child Labor Amendment

Mr. Editor: I wonder how many of your readers fully realize the motive of the adroit politicians who, in the guise of educators, are seeking to bring about the ratification of the so-called child labor amendment. Would some of your readers like to know what a man who has made a study of the thing from the beginning and whose business with school boards and school teachers takes him into twelve different states, has been able to learn about it?

These same politicians have, all over the country, a whole army of aiders and abettors who are telling the people that congress has no intention of legislating against labor when performed under proper and wholesome conditions. Many of these political agents have splendid gifts which can be used to fool people. Will some of them explain this?

When the said politicians in the guise of educators, were steering the thing through the lower house of congress, Representative Rogers of New Hampshire proposed an amendment which would reduce the age limit from 18 to 16. This was promptly rejected as was also every proposal to exempt farm and home employment. Now will some one please tell us why, if congress does not intend to exercise this power, it was so determined to have it?

It is very doubtful indeed whether the proponents of this so called child labor amendment really care very much for the welfare of our children except as they are necessary for the upbuilding of a mighty organization, the proposed federal bureau of education. The real end and aim of the proponents of the amendment is to prepare the way for a nationalized system of public school control. Once let the 20th amendment become a fact and the said politicians, always in the guise of educators, have all the necessary machinery for getting absolute control of our public school system by refusing to permit any pupil to work until he has passed certain tests to be devised and inspected by federal authority.

One thing has impressed this writer as he has traveled in different states this past summer, and come in contact with different people. Each of our states has a state department of education and most of them have a bureau of child welfare. Invariably it is the officials interested in education rather than those actually engaged in welfare work who are anxious to see the amendment become a fact. If the object is protection from unwholesome working conditions alone, why are our professional educators so anxious and determined to have the amendment put over? The truth seems to be that the proponents of the so-called child labor amendment are wilfully and deliberately deceiving the people and that the real motive is not protection of children but complete standardization of public school education.

In closing may I suggest a test? Not rising to the dignity of a standardized test but as a measure of the sincerity of the advocates of the scheme? We all agree, I believe, that the great majority of Connecticut children work when they do work, under wholesome and sanitary conditions. We have or can have, without amendment, sufficient laws to compel their attendance at school. Now if our state board of education when the amendment comes before the state legislature for ratification tries to move heaven and earth in order to secure the necessary votes for ratification, shall we not be justified in believing that child labor per se is just about the last thing they would be likely to consider?

THE FRACAS COMES

"I don't see what's come over the women!" declared the man with a long nose. "I understand them less and less!" Here's a lady writing in to the lost-and-found hearts department requesting information as to what she shall do. It seems that her husband has not worked for a year or so and she has to go out into the busy marts of trade to earn the family living, as well as do the housework and wait on him when home, and that he amuses himself knocking her down, kicking her shins and hurling the crockery at her; meanwhile telling her in vivid language his opinion of her, which isn't much.

"It really does seem that any woman who really knew enough to come home when it rains should know what to do with the gentleman—maybe she merely wanted to have her opinion and ultimate decision confirmed by some sympathetic soul before rolling her sleeves and proceeding to action—"

"Shucks," interrupted the man who always knew all about everything. "A woman as undecided as that deserves her misery! And she couldn't get up any action unless propelled by dynamite. Husbands like her know this and trade on it. You never heard of a husband married to a militant lady wearing common-sense shoes who was anything but a perfectly polite gentleman around the home corral, saying 'yes, dear' when spoken to and coming immediately when called.

"He knows that if he kicked her only one tiny little kick his friends would be calling up the florist and hoping that the hour set for the services wouldn't interfere with keeping their golf engagements.

"I suppose the other lady who meekly accepts the kicks would claim that the second one was no true woman, and thanking heaven she herself was different and quite unable to stand up for herself.

"Almost every man has had occasion to wish that he dared kick his wife, but the majority of them realize that this is one of the submerged dreams which are never to come true, and they lay away the wish tenderly with a sprig of lavender, dragging it out to moon over at the times when their better halves become too utterly trying, knowing well that no judge will be anything but horrified at a black-and-blue ankle.

"What!" the judge would cry in deep, sarcastic tones. 'You call yourself a man?' He says it just like that, no matter if the wretched husband weighs ninety-six and his wife is a three-hundred-pounder.

"Why, it really is a mark of a feeble mind and complete lack of logic when a man begins kicking, biting and thrashing around in his matrimonial chains! Waste motion and emotion! It just isn't done and got away with.

"Usually when some blundering pacificator steps in and roars hard at the kicker or proceeds to give him a taste of his own treatment the sweet little wife will grab his arm and wail, 'Oh, sir, desist! Cease! You do not understand, dearie! He is different than other men and you have to make allowances! When he knocked out three of my teeth just as you came in it was because his hand slipped! Not another soul on earth knows it, but he really loves me madly! Hit him again and I'll bash you over the head with the wooden potato masher!'

"No, it is a most unsatisfactory business talking common sense to the kind of woman who stays married to that kind of a man, and if the person written to has ordinary intelligence the answer will be one of those sweetness-and-light bits of advice telling the wife to go right on applying arnica to her bruises and to bear up, knowing that all her well-wishers are putting forth mental vibrations that will eventually cause her husband to see the light and become a gentle, reformed character.

"It's really all the lady wanted to be told when she wrote in. She's enjoying it. If a woman doesn't like what's going on about her I've noticed that nobody has to offer advice as to her method of produre. She betrays surprise agility in removing herself from the surroundings. Where a lady sticks, there is where she actually wants to be, and I have no doubt that this particular one would furiously resent anybody's trying to take her away from her scene of anguish. I don't see why she should puzzle you!"

"Oh, I was just talking!" said the long-nosed man, very much abashed. —Exchange.

Schiff Went Back to Learn

After he had ventured from home and had made a way for himself in business, Jacob H. Schiff found himself in a strange country and with incomplete education—so he went back and studied.

In Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, where he was born, his parents were in only comfortable circumstances. He attended public school and later was given an opportunity in the bank of a relative.

Tiring of the work, he came to this country when 18 years old. Obtaining a position in a bank in New York, he learned the ways of the country but soon found that the work was restraining. He next became junior partner of the brokerage firm of Budge Schiff & Company.

By hard work and study he won some recognition as a financier. Then he realized that he needed a more broadening education than he had received. Going back to Frankfort, he studied finance, then visited other European cities in quest of knowledge.

Returning to New York, he obtained a position with Kuhn, Loeb and Company. A year later, at 28 he was married to Theresa, daughter of Solomon Loeb, senior partner of the firm. Continued success as a financier brought him greater recognition and when Solomon Loeb retired, Schiff was named his successor.

Taking an active part in the financing operations of E. H. Harriman, the Pennsylvania Railroad and other large organizations and in floating a large loan for Japan Schiff became a prominent figure in banking circles.

Early taking an interest in charity, he became one of the leading philanthropists in the country. Giving time and money generously, he took an active interest in many movements for the Jews and others. Then came the Zionist movement, which he opposed because he believed the Jews should identify themselves politically with the countries in which they lived. This brought a storm of criticism from many Jews that cut deeply. Later many turned to his idea and at the time of his death, he was honored as one of the greatest Jews of the world.

Stories That Recall Others

Payment Still Acceptable.

A friend had lost an election bet and had failed to see John afterward. John met him on the street and the victim casually remarked:

"Say, I haven't seen you to pay that bet?"

"You don't need to worry," said John. "It isn't outlawed."

On the Gallery.

A southern woman was spending the summer in the north and had many expressions that puzzled. One evening she went down town and remembering that she had left her fountain pen on the front porch, telephoned back and asked if someone would bring her pen in from the "gallery."

The girl at the house was dumbfounded and asked, "Where did you say it was?" "Why? I can't understand you. Oh, yes, on the gallery, all right," but her voice had a good deal of doubt in it.

When she returned home she found her pen still on the porch. The girl who had answered the phone explained that no one knew what she could possibly have meant by the "gallery," as they had not been able to find it.

HUMANE SOCIETY DIRECTORS MEMORIALIZE JUDGE PRENTICE

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Connecticut Humane society held at headquarters on Washington street, Hartford, Tuesday, a minute on the death of Judge Samuel Prentice president of the society since his retirement from the bench, was adopted. It voiced the special significance to the history of the society which Judge Prentice's connection with it had, and mentioned that in 1921 he came to the rescue of the child welfare legislation in the general assembly and his steady support, backed by his great prestige, helped mightily both in council and before the committee. The law upon the statute books was largely of his writing and it is most fitting that the first juvenile court under it should have been established in the house on Washington street where the society now meets.

The treasurer's report for November shows the society expended $5,522.43 for the maintenance of headquarters in Hartford and the branches in New Haven, Bridgeport, Stamford and Norwich. Under the will of the late Laure E. Brown of New Hartford the society received as a residue of her estate $826.60 and 16 shares of the capital stock of the Farmington Valley Telephone company. Another payment of $250, making a total of $1,250 altogether has been received from Mrs. E. T. Simondetti, treasurer of the Stamford-Greenwich branch.

According to the reports the society has provided care in some way for a greater number of stray and homeless animals than in any other year. In the Hartford district food, water or shelter was provided for 41 farm animals and 27 horses and other animals being unfit for further service were mercifully destroyed, also 20 horses, dogs and cats provided for at the shelter on Washington street and 182 sick or unwanted small animals were collected and humanely disposed of. An unusually large number of stray animals were located in both the New Haven and Bridgeport districts and either provided with shelter and care or mercifully put to sleep. More than two thousand horses and farm animals and in excess of three thousand crates of live poultry were inspected.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Flying Suit

Now let me think a minute or two before I begin this story. Where did we leave off yesterday? Oh, yes, now I remember. Little Miss Mousie was telling a story to Little Jack Rabbit in Uncle Lucky's kitchen. Yes, so she was. It was about a tiny dwarf who made flying suits, and a great big giant had just ordered one for himself.

"Dear me," sighed the dwarf as the big giant strode away. "I have never made so large a suit. I hope it will fly. I must make the wings strong. That's one thing certain. And I must sew on tight the buttons and stitch well the seams. Oh yes, I must take great pains with this suit," and he set to work at once, fearing to waste even a minute or so great a task.

But, oh dear me. At the end of a week, all the thread was used up, and the little dwarf was at his wits' end to know where to get more. As he sat down on his bench pondering what to do, a little black spider called down from her web in the corner of the room. "If you'll promise never to disturb me, I will spin you enough thread to finish the coat."

Of course the dwarf promised. He crossed his heart and promised three times that he would never brush her web from the wall. But, gracious me. In less than a week he was all out of buttons. "What shall I do?" he sighed looking in vain in all the boxes.

Just then a squirrel hopped up to his front door and said, "I'll bring you nuts for buttons. With my sharp teeth I will cut the shell in half. These halves will make fine buttons strong and tight."

"Bring them quickly," answered the anxious dwarf. "What will they cost?"

"Only a promise," answered the squirrel. "Promise never to cut down the tree in which I have my home."

"I promise," answered the dwarf, crossing his heart.

Then away skipped the nimble squirrel and every day he returned with buttons made from nice smooth nuts.

But, Oh dear me, more trouble for the poor little dwarf! When he came to line the great flying suit, he found he had not enough silk. "What shall I do?" he sighed. "It is almost a year since the great giant was here, and now I have no more silk with which to line the suit." What was he to do? Going to the door he looked up and down the glen. Then he laughed sadly to himself, for what use was there to gaze anxiously about. Silk didn't grow on bushes any more than buttons on trees.

"Gracious me," again sighed the dwarf taking off his high peaked hat to scratch his head. "Now I am in a pickle. Wish some kind fairy would come along. I believe in fairies, yes I do. And I believe that dreams come true. Maybe I'll shut my eyes for a minute. I can't find what I want with my eyes open." And closing his eyes, he stood still until, all of a sudden, a little voice whispered, "I'll help you." And in the next story I'll tell you what happened after that.

BERT LUCAS MADE HAZARDOUS AUTOMOBILE TRIP TO MIAMI

Herbert W. Lucas, of this city, who left Newport, R. I., Nov. 17th for an automobile trip to Miami, Fla., reached there Sunday afternoon, Nov. 30th, having covered 2,500 miles. Mr. Lucas writes back that he has had enough of that kind of traveling, having encountered freezing cold weather in Rhode Island, peril from bootleggers in the Blue Ridge mountains and terrible driving conditions at points along the way.

Mr. Lucas was a passenger in a machine driven by one of his Newport friends and he writes of the trip as follows:

We left Newport, Nov. 17th at 7 a. m. with the thermometer around zero and the wind blowing a gale. We were to catch the eight o'clock ferry from Jamestown and Saunderstown but owing to the extreme cold and wind one ferry boat was disabled, so we couldn't take it. There was no other way but to go around by Fall River to Providence. It was a bitter cold day, so cold that when we reached Providence we had to put up there, arriving at 11 a. m., and staying for the day and evening. On our way we saw many automobiles frozen and busted up. It was the coldest ride I ever took in an auto and one I shall never forget. Forty miles was our first day's trip.

Nov. 18—We arose with it still cold and left Providence at 9 a. m., for Terrytown, N. Y. We met many machines stalled along the highway, frozen up. We travelled all day, till we reached Portchester, N. Y., where we put up for the night, having covered 127 miles. The hotel, the only one of any account, was very amusing to me. A man and woman ran the hotel and they were the whole show. The man acted as clerk, bell boy, waiter and porter, the lady was cook, maid, etc. a very odd affair, but we got very good meals, although rather slow. The thermometer was 10 above zero.

Nov. 19—We left Porchester at 9.15 a. m. via White Plains to Yonkers, where we took the ferry. It was below zero. It was a most beautiful drive down the Hudson by the Palisades, going through Rahway, Newark and many towns. We stopped and saw Princeton University and other places of interest. We arrived in Philadelphia at 5 p. m., covering 179 miles.

Nov. 20—We left Philadelphia at 9.30 via the Capitol route to Frederick, Md., through Baltimore. Frederick, a city of 15,000, was a nice little town. We saw the grave of Barbara Freitchie and several places of interest. Here there were two or three inches of snow, the first we had seen. The roads so far were fine and very beautiful scenery all along.

Nov. 21—We left Frederick at 9 a. m., for Hagerstown, then down the Shenandoah Valley pike through Winchester. We put up at Grenville, Va., a very small town. One hotel, but a good one, as far as eats went, fine old southern cooking. Here we met two hunters from Pennsylvania who had been here for a week. They had 100 rabbits, several wild turkeys, quail and squirrels. We put up our car a mile from the hotel. We arrived just in time as it rained terribly one hour afterwards and rained hard all night but the next morning was clear. We made 185 miles today. Gas 19 cents a gallon.

Nov. 22—Saturday—We left at 9 a. m., headed for Roanoke, Va. We stopped and saw Gen Jackson's monument and the office he had in 1865 with the furniture and relics. It is a beautiful marble statue as a tomb. At Lexington we saw the great natural bridge and at Roanoke where we stayed until the next morning, only covering 100 miles this day. I was entertained by a friend and took a ride up Bear Mountain, 3,000 feet high. This was on a car run by cable, an electric hoist up the incline, almost straight up. We stopped at the Ponce De Leon hotel. One night in a paradise and the next in a humble spot.

Nov. 23, Sunday—We left Roanoke at 9 a. m., up through the Blue Ridge route to Rocky Mount. This was a terrible climb, up and up, winding in and out, over the Blue Ridge, then down. There was a detour as they are building a new road up over the mountains and no other route from here. We had to keep stopping to cool off the engine. We had to get right into the brook and travel in it for half a mile at a stretch, crossing banks, the water being three feet deep. I never saw anything like it before. It was 24 miles through the mountains but we went 40 miles and it took us four hours to make it. We finally reached the other side, called Rocky Mount, the home of the bootleggers after a most thrilling experience. After getting filled up with gas and oil we started out again. It was between here and Ridgeway where we came near being killed. A very high powered car came along at 75 miles an hour and hit our car nearly knocking us over an embankment. It tore our hub, broke our mudguard and came near tipping us over. If it had we would have gone down a 900 foot embankment. He was a bootlegger as we met a machine that told us he nearly tipped them over. They told us he went through here everyday the same way. We reached Greensboro, N. C., at 8 p. m. Sunday after a most nerve-racking day, and retired early.

Nov. 24—Monday—We left in a fine rain at 9.30 a. m., being the first rain we travelled in but it didn't rain very long. We made Charlotte at 1 p. m., 90 miles, and then on to Chester where we put up for the night, a small town of 6,000. There are lots of cotton mills all around this section. At 5 a. m., the big whistle blows for five minutes, to wake the help up, I guess. I thought the whole town was afire.

Nov. 25—Tuesday—We arose at 7 a. m. and left at 8.30. There was a heavy frost and very cool. We saw skunks, dead cats and dogs all along the road through here, a funny sight, got struck by autos I presume. We saw several autos that had been wrecked along the line and went through many cotton fields and met many loads of cotton drawn by mules with darkies driving. We arrived in Augusta at 6.30 p. m., after going 250 miles. Augusta we found was a nice city, fine stores and up to date, fine monuments, one especially dedicated to the Confederate soldiers situated right in the center of the boulevard. Eats were reasonable.

Nov. 26—Wednesday—A heavy white frost was on the ground when we left at 8.30 and roads very poor all the way to Savannah. We had two blowouts and awful washboard roads. Finally we reached Savannah and put up for the night. Being Thanksgiving eve the stores were all open. Savannah is

SAYS HEALTH DEPARTMENT WATCHING NORWICH WATER

With President Hugh B. Campbell presiding and Rev. Alexander T. Abbott acting as song leader the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary Club was held at the Wauregan hotel on Wednesday noon. The meeting was exceptionally well attended there being only four absentees. Rev. Mr. Abbott as song leader instilled a large amount of pep into the meeting and the singing was spirited and enthusiastic. Included in the musical features of the luncheon was a delightful solo by Bert Gager, "Why Did I Kiss That Girl," and a number of quartette selections by various groups of club members and guests.

F. Russell Smith, chairman of the committee in charge of the concert that the Brown Glee Club will give in Norwich under the auspices of the Rotary Club, made the announcement of the date in January.

The speaker on Current Events was Shepard B. Palmer who took for his topic the new pumping station on Trading Cove brook. Mr. Palmer said that the pump was being installed and would be ready for use as soon as the superior court gave the city permission to use the brook. Getting this permission is necessary because the pump is located within half a mile of a cemetery. The pump is located opposite the Gallup home on Salem turnpike at a point where the main from Stony Brook reservoir crosses Trading Cove brook. A brick pump house 20x30 ft. has been erected and a high speed centrifugal pump with a 150 h. p. motor has been installed. The pump when in operation will be able to pump 2,000,000 gallons into the city mains every 24 hours. A large pumping basin has been also built in and will be filled from the brook.

Mr. Palmer said that the city was working in conjunction with the State Board of Health in cleaning up the water shed and that the state health department had sent a man here to supervise the cleanup work and to make an analysis of the water and see that there was no danger in having it pumped into the city mains.

President Campbell then turned the meeting over to Lucius Briggs, chairman of the Rotary Educational committee, who said that the topic for the day was "Rotary recognition of worthiness in all vocations." He called on Rev. Mr. Abbott who said that fellowship and friendship played large parts in the subject under discussion. Fellowship, said Mr. Abbott, is not manufactured, it is the result of antecedent action. We can only get it as a result of things that have gone into it and one of these is tolerance. Tolerance for our fellow man, tolerance for his views, his likes and his dislikes. All of us have divergent views although two may be working toward the same end, so we must put ourselves in the other man's place and try and consider his viewpoint. Another thing that makes for fellowship and friendship is cooperation.

Edward G. Jewett was the next speaker and he spoke on the relationship between the buyer and the seller. He said in part:

The subject "The Relationship Between Buyer and Seller" is a very broad subject and one could talk almost indefinitely on it, but we will only hit the high spots and by pointing out one or two of the countless abuses and rotten methods used in buying and selling in order that you may start thinking along the lines of an improvement in business methods in our own little town.

In a few cities, Providence and Hartford for instance, I believe there is a committee on fair dealing in business. It is working out very well and perhaps at some future date John O'Rourke can explain their plan and system to us. Norwich needs some action along these lines.

One of the most common abuses in business is to quote a price on a piece of merchandise hoping the customer will fall for it. There was a young lady whose father put her on an allowance sufficient to enable her to buy her clothes, etc. Shortly after this she needed a simple dress so she went shopping. She went into a store and saw a dress that she liked and would answer her needs but, upon inquiring the price, she realized it was more than she cared to pay for a dress of that kind and so told the clerk and said she would look elsewhere. The clerk asked her to wait a minute and soon a lower price was quoted her. To make a long story short, she bought the dress at about 30 per cent. below the original price quoted and as she told her father afterwards, she might have bought it even at a still lower price had she waited a little longer. Now what has that first transaction done for that young girl? It has made her feel that perhaps she was "Stung" after all and secondly she is wondering if she has got to go through this same procedure with every merchant she comes in contact with. It is just such abuse that is making the buying public lose confidence in our merchants and driving them to the larger towns where the merchants have a code of ethics of fair dealing and live up to them. That was not salesmanship on the part of that clerk who sold the dress. Far from it for anybody can give away merchandise. In other words, why not do this: Figure the cost on the merchandist you are selling, add a good fair legitimate profit and then stick to your price. Also study the articles or articles you are handling and know them. Instruct your employees along the same lines and that will enable you to use real salesmanship.

Another point, after you have sold a man an article and his money is in your cash register how he has left your place of business, don't heave a sigh and say you hope you never see him again for if you do your conscience is bothering you either as to the quality of the goods you sold him or your price was wrong. How much better for your own feelings if you feel that you would like to have him come in again even if he does come in to kick, because if you can render him a service and make him go out feeling satisfied that you are trying to be honest and square he is coming again and may bring a friend with him. True service rendered well is worth all the advertising in the world.

One other common abuse is that of advertising. Advertising in itself is a wonderful and necessary thing to business but if wrongly used will do a lot toward spoiling the confidence the buying public has toward the advertiser. I had an experience along these lines not long ago that will perhaps illustrate the abuse in some advertising. A certain household article was advertised in the local papers. There was a picture of it and the specifications down in black and white. The price was printed in large figures. After reading it all through I thought that here was a chance to get that article for the house at a very reasonable price so I went around to the merchant over whose name the ad appeared and as I went in the door several of the articles were right there. I stood looking at them and examined them and found them to be just as the advertisement read. Very soon the proprietor came up and I asked him how he could sell an article like this at such a price and I mentioned the figure as it had appeared in the papers. "Oh," he said, "there is the piece we are selling at that price. These that you are looking at are," and he named a price that was more than twice as much as what had appeared in the papers. I then looked at the piece he said they were selling at the price in the paper and it was not at all like the ad as to specifications, etc. I told him of the ad and he got a paper and read it over and then excused himself by saying that the ads were sent out by the manufacturers of the article and this was the first time he had read it. In other words advertise honestly. Don't put a catch in them. You will lose more than you will gain by it. Also don't knock. If you can't say anything good about your competitor don't say anything at all.

Now, just a few words for the buyer. Be shrewd in your buying but be shrewd and honest at the same time. For instance, don't tell a dealer you can buy an article from his competitor at a lower price when you know you can't. And there to me, is the most important one of all, pay your bill by the 10th of the month anyway, unless of course you have an understanding or an arrangement with the merchant of whom you are asking credit. Good credit and good service are two things which do more to create a friendly feeling among business men than anything else I know of. In every line of business each of us is our brother's keeper, at least of his reputation, for if I am a dealer and conduct my business on such a low plane as to bring it into disrepute in my community, I not only do hurting myself, but am injuring every other dealer in the same line and bringing reproach on that business. Then, also, to render true service and bring about a friendly feeling between buyer and seller, a man must first of all, set his own business house in order. He must know his own business and strive always to learn more about it; how to improve his methods so that he can give his customers a better quality of service and at a lower cost to them and a fair profit to himself.

And so, gentlemen, if in all your dealings, whether with your employes, your competitor, the man you buy from, the man you sell to, you will be guided by the thought "service above self" you will create for yourself the most valuable assets any business man can have—confidence and good will.

Frank P. Welch spoke on the better feeling between employer and employe, between competitors and between the business man and the public.

First comes the spirit of cooperation between employers and employes represented by a fair day's wage for a fair day's work with health and welfare obligations, all embodying the Rotary spirit. The second point is that we take no unfair advantage of our competitors, while the third is the duty of Rotarians to the public in quantity, quality and service, the last being the most important for true value. The real object of any business is service, which brings profit. In short, "he profits most who serves best."

Hon. William G. Park was the last speaker, stressing service first, the object of Rotary being to spread abroad the principle of service and good will in the community. The Rotarian must practice what he preaches, and the man of two or more talents must learn how to deal properly with the man of one talent. International Rotary, brings about a better feeling throughout the world in educating the people in the spirit of service and good will.

The year began with a balance on hand of $18,199.87 and there were receipts of $88,676.20, of which $50,000 was in the county tax, making the total of $106,876.07 on the receipt side of the account.

Receipts at the jail were $7,835.83, which was $1,131.28 more than a year ago, but the earnings of prisoners were about $300 less this year than last. For the county home the commissioners received from the state $12,725.50, which was $1,634 less than a year ago, and the receipts from theatre admission tax were $16,078.87 as compared with $19,771.18 in the preceding year.

On the expense side, the jail expenses were $16,221.89 this year, where they were $15,346.79 a year ago. The principal items in which there were increases were provisions, which cost $5,612.39, an increase of about $640, and building and repair, which cost $2,650.08, an increase of about $600. Fuel cost $330 less this year than a year ago.

Courthouse expenses showed an additional salary item of $110 for an engineer, with the other expenses about the same, but the expenses at the county home were $16,544.44, where they were $19,023.05 for the same item in the preceding year.

Expenditures under other general items were about the same this year as last year.

There will be a small county tax called for next year.

NATIONAL LEAGUE APPROVES WORLD'S SERIES AMENDMENT AT LAST SESSION

New York, Dec. 10.—(By The A. P.)—The National league club owners concluded their annual meeting today by unanimously approving an amendment to the world's series rules, which will be considered at the joint session with the American league, and tabling four other matters of business for consideration at the schedule meeting in February.

The amendment, dealing with the world series schedule of games, was proposed by Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn club, and submitted to Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who in turn sent it back to the National league for adoption by that league as a committee of the whole.

The substance of the amendment follows:

"For 1925, games 1, 2, 6 and 7 shall be scheduled in the city of the pennant winning club of the National league, and games 3, 4, 5 in the city of the pennant winning club of the American league: Then reverse annually thereafter."

Further consideration of the most valuable players award, including the two-fold plan to name a pitcher and a regular playing performer, was tabled until the 1925 meeting, together with the claim of the New York Giants against the league for reimbursement for loss alleged to have been sustained in waiving of Pitcher Gearin, obtained by the Boston Braves. The Giants seek to recover $11,000, the difference between the purchase price of Gearin from Milwaukee and the waiver price of $4,000, on the ground that the league headquarters negligently failed to make clear regulation covering such cases in sending out the waiver notice. Boston, on the other hand, refused to pay the difference. President Heydler requested additional time to consider the evidence and the case was tabled.

The following committees were announced by President Heydler:

50th anniversary committee: Charles H. Ebbets, Brooklyn; Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh; William Veeck, Chicago, and Christopher Matthewson, Boston.

Schedule Committee: President Heydler and Dreyfuss.

Constitutional committee: August Herrmann, Cincinnati; William F. Baker, Philadelphia; Charles A. Stoneham, New York.

Playing rules committee: Samuel Breadon, St. Louis, and Veeck.

Telegraph committee: Baker and Ebbets.

DINNER GIVEN POND BY TORRINGTON ADMIRERS

Torrington, Dec. 10.-Torrington honored its leading citizen, from a football standpoint, last night when a testimonial dinner was given at the Elks' home to Raymond "Ducky" Pond, star halfback on this year's undefeated Yale football team. Pond was accompanied to his home town by many of his teammates at Yale including Captain Winslow Lovejoy, "Shep" Bingham, captain of the 1925 team; Fred Hart, J. Joss, Harry Scott, Ben Butterworth and "Shad" Osborne. The party was met at the railroad station by a reception committee and a band and escorted to the Elks' home.

During the dinner that followed, Pond was presented a diamond ring on behalf of the citizens of Torrington, and addresses were given by Henry G. Ellis, a former Yale man and postmaster; Mayor Charles S. Newton, J. Clinton Roraback, of Canaan, coaches Monahan and Qualle of Hotchkiss school, where Pond prepared; John O'Rourke, chairman of the arrangements committee; Judge Gideon H. Welch, one of the oldest living Yale graduates of the Naugatuck valley, Winslow Lovejoy and several other members of the football team.

President James R. Angell, of Yale university, in a message read at the dinner congratulated Torrington for producing "the amphibious Mr. Pond." Coach T. A. D. Jones of the football squad, predicted that Pond would go down in history as "one of the finest lads and one of the best athletes that ever graced a blue jersey."

LETTERS GIVEN TO 27 PLAYERS AT BROWN

Providence, R. I., Dec. 10.—Twenty-seven members of the Brown football squad were this afternoon awarded "varsity" letters by the Brown University Athletic association. The award is the largest in the history of Brown football. Those who received letters are: Jackson Keefer, Dayton O.; Orland Smith, Brockton; Adolph Eckstein, Elizabeth, N. J.; Parkman Sayward, Wayland, Mass.; James M. Stiffler, Jr., Evanston, Ill.; Harold Broda, Canton, O.; John T. Pohlman, New Haven; Rudolph Payor, Brooklyn, N. Y.; C. C. Myers, Ardmore, Pa.; Benjamin Roman, Hyde Park, Mass.; Homer Metzger, Asbury Park, N. J.; Jack Richardson, Cincinnati; Edgar McCrillis, Providence; James H. Sheldon, Auburn, N. Y.; Fred Sweet, Ardmore; Charles Klump, Cleveland; John Talbot, South Weymouth, Mass.; Charles Provonchee, Cambridge, Mass.; Thomas Johnson, Lansford, Pa.; Sam Metzger, Asbury Park, N. J.; Charles Dixon, Rutherford, N. J.; Carleton Staples, Taunton, Mass.; Harold Neubauer, Hoboken, N. J.; Laurence McDermott, William Stephens, Brooklyn; Paul Higgins, Quincy, Mass.; and Theodore Ferry, Wayne, Pa.

The award to Ferry was voted as a reward of merit as he broke his ankle in mid-season after four years of faithful service on the squad.

SIXTEEN AWARDED LETTERS IN BULKELEY FOOTBALL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 10.—Sixteen football players including Manager Herbert F. Fern received their football letter at Bulkeley High school this afternoon. The letters were awarded to the following players, Captain George H. Sheffott, Walter Rice, Edward Collins, Edward R. Henkle, Jeremiah Dillon, Alexander Brown, Horace Wilson, Joseph Watterson, Buck Gavitt, Tillotson Daniels, Carl Graves, Walter J. Barry, James Latham, Thomas Davis and Harold Hutchison.

The players who were awarded their letters had to participate in 16 or more quarters. No special games allowed the player who participated in the one contest to entitle him to wear the letter. This was a custom which was prevalent for several years past at the local institution. The requisites to entitle a player to wear his letter which had been a custom in the past was the participation in the game or games with either Norwich Free Academy or Chapman Tech. This custom was abolished this year, and in its stead those who really earned their letter received the award. It was decided to award both James Latham and Walter J. Barry their school letters in view of the fact that they would have undoubtedly been regulars on the team until unfortunate accidents entered into their football careers.

James Latham received a broken bone in his left ankle during one of the Ansonia High school games, and it was his last contest of the year. He failed to recover from the effects of the painful injury in time to take part in any of the other games played by Bulkeley.

Walter J. Barry who suffered a broken leg in the game with Springfield Technical High school of Massachusetts, recovered in time for the last two games. Although he did not start either contest he played at least half the game against the Torrington High and Western A. C. teams. Like Latham, Barry was a victim of circumstances and it robbed both these players of performing all year. Latham was an end while Barry's position was at fullback.

The election of a team captain will be made at the auditorium on this (Thursday) noon. It is expected that the football manager for the coming year will also be announced before the meeting adjourns. A picture of the team and squad will be taken.

Bulkeley will lose practically the entire team by graduation and it will terminate a brilliant career both on the gridiron and diamond for several of the students. Bulkeley has fought against the overwhelming odds of larger numbers to pick from in opposing some of the larger high schools of the state such as Crosby High of Waterbury, Stamford High, New Britain High, Naugatuck High and Springfield High. Yet the Orange and Black managed to hold their own against these seemingly overwhelming numbers. Until now the local school reposes on the top with the other leading teams of the state. It will be a sad day for Bulkeley when the present brilliant athletes make their departure, elevated to higher planes of athletic endeavor. The team of 1924 will never be forgotten, as a team which was certainly the best ever turned out at the local school.

TO ROOF-IN PRESS STAND AT YALE BOWL

New Haven, Dec. 10. — Although weather records show that a rainy day for the Harvard football game at New Haven is a rare occurrence the Yale athletic association has called for bids for erection of a covering over the press stand at the Yale bowl to protect newspapermen at all games in case of bad weather. The distressing conditions at the last Harvard game brought matters to a climax and what has been an idea in the minds of the football management for several years will become a substantial covering of wood over three tiers of seats.

H. R. Woodcock, general manager of the association, stated today that bids for the construction have been called for, and the work will be done before the opening game next fall. The covering, he says, will not mar the symmetry or beauty of the bowl. It will give overhead protection and also shut off wind and rain from the sides and ends. The management voted to make the changes after its members had dried out from their soaking at the game on November 22.

Examination of weather records shows that the last heavy storm on Harvard day here was in the late nineties when Burr Chamberlain's team lost to Harvard. That day was not so damp as the recent one.

PHILLIES NEGOTIATE FOUR TRADES WITH MINORS

New York, Dec. 10.—The Philadelphia National League Baseball club, in four deals announced today by Manager Arthur Fletcher, obtained Infielder Walter Kimmick of the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast league, Chick Hawks, a first baseman, from Nashville of the Southern association; Pitchers Fillingim and O'Neill and Third Baseman Huber from Beaumont of the Texas league.

Cash and players were given in exchange. For Kimmick the Vernon club received Pitcher Lefty Weinert. Nashville obtained Infielder Parkinson and a cash consideration for Hawks, a former Yankee. Beaumont exchanged Huber for Infielder Woehrs and Pitcher Pinto in one deal and in another traded Finningim and O'Neill for a cash bounty and three Philly players who will be named later.

JOINT MEETING TO BE ADJOURNED TO CHICAGO

New York, Dec. 10.—(By the A. P.)—It was officially announced today that the joint major league meeting will be held tomorrow as scheduled despite the absence of Commissioner Landis. President Ban Johnson of the American League, President John Heydler of the National league and the club owners of both leagues will attend.

The meeting is necessary, it was explained, to conform to baseball law, but it is thought its nature will be perfunctory and that adjournment will be taken until a date when Commissioner Landis will be able to attend. It is predicted that the next meeting will be held in Chicago some time during January.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION WILL NUMBER THE PLAYERS

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Numbering of baseball players, similar to the system used by football players, will become effective in the American association next season, Thomas J. Hickey, president of the organization, said tonight.

Mr. Hickey said he has requested his club owners to button five-inch figures on the arms of the players so that the fans can readily identify the men as they take the field. These figures will appear on the printed lists in the score cards and will help the fans in following the stars and favorites.

HUGGINS DICKERING WITH MANAGERS FOR PLAYERS

New York, Dec. 10.—(By The A. P.)—Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, negotiated with four rival American League clubs today in an effort to bolster the former world's champions for 1925.

Huggins did not disclose the details of his negotiations but it was said he renewed his bid to St. Louis for Urban Shocker, veteran spitball pitcher, and dickered with Connie Mack of the Athletics for Jimmy Dykes, second-baseman of the Mackmen. He also conferred with Managers Lee Fohl of the Boston and Tris Speaker of Cleveland on possible deals.

Huggins was said to be willing to trade Sam Jones, veteran right-hander for Shocker. He rejected a St. Louis deman for Waite Hoyt.

Joe Boley, Baltimore shortstop sought by the majors for several seasons, was said to have been offered to Huggins for $75,000 by Jack Dunn, Oriole manager, but the Yankee manager turned down the proposal as too high.

AMERICAN LEAGUE OWNERS VOTE TO SUPPORT LANDIS AND HIS JUDGMENT

New York, Dec. 10.—(By The A. P.)—The American league today lined up beside the National league in support of the administration of commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, and took steps toward effecting a conciliation in the feud between its president, aBn Johnson, and the commissioner.

Taking action interpreted by baseball men as the sternest rebuke ever delivered to Johnson, who wielded czar-like authority in baseball until the regime of aLndis, the American league club owners unanimously adopted resolutions declaring their "confidence in the intregrity and ability" of the commissioner and pledging "fullest and unqualified support and endorsement" to him in his "methods of conduct and leadership."

At the same time, however, the American league men also followed the example of the senior circuit's magnates in refraining from personal reference to Johnston's attacks upon Landis. It also was pointed out that today's resolutions, while amounting practically to a vote of confidence in Landis, failed to endorse specifically, as the National league had done, the decisions of the commissioner in handling the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal and ordering the world's series played in spite of its disclosures, on both of these points Johnson had severely arraigned Landis.

Baseball men interpreted a second setback for Johnson when his club owners, in the only other important issue before them, tabled his charges that gambling existed in connection with the Pacific coast league.

Details of these allegations, it was learned, were laid before the board of directors by Johnson and referred later to the league meeting as a whole but no official action was taken as a result of feeling that conclusive proof was not apparent and that the matter was outside the leagues jurisdiction.

After the meeting Johnson refused to comment on any of its developments, but it was said on his behalf that he would pursue personality his dealing with the gambling accusations. Harry Williams, president of the Pacific coast league, who cancelled his plans to return at once to the coast, announced he would attempt to obtain all available facts in Johnson's possession in an effort to force the issue to a show down.

Club owners of both leagues, now on record as united in backing Landis, will gather in joint session tomorrow afternoon, in spite of the absence of the commissioner, caused by the illness of his wife, but it was considered likely that the meeting would be merely perfunctory. Landis, it was said, had requested that an adjournment be taken until Saturday and the meeting held in Chicago, to permit a final show down in the Major league's winter game but this was viewed as impractical by club owners of both leagues, a majority of whom seemed to favor postponing the session until early in January at Chicago.

Leslie O'Connor, secretary to Landis, left Chicago today to represent the commissioner at the joint meeting and there was speculation as to whether he might bear a message from the veteran jurist influencing its deliberations.

The American league's move to conciliate Johnson and Landis took the form of appointing a committee authorized to interview the commissioner in the interests of restoring "full harmony and cooperation" between baseball's governing forces. This committee composed of Colonel Jacob Ruppert of New York, E. S. Barnard of Cleveland and Thomas Sibe of Philadelphia, will confer with Landis at the earliest practicable date. It was said.

"The whole situation has resolved itself into a personal war between Johnson and Landis," one of the magnates declared after the meeting. "We feel that Johnson has been unjustified in some of his attacks upon Landis but that the latter also has laid himself open to some criticism. I am convinced Johnson is willing to go half way and we hope to bring about a reconciliation that will put an end to endless bickering."

The only other business transacted by the American league comprised re-election of Frank Navin of Detroit as vice president and election of a board of directors composed of club owners representing Detroit, Cleveland, Washington and Philadelphia.

The text of the American league resolution:

"Resolved, that we take this occasion to reaffirm publicly our continued faith and confidence in the integrity and ability of Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who was drafted from a high and honorable position in the federal government in the services of baseball."

"And, be it resolved further that firmly believing the game's greatest security and safeguard for the future lies in the fullest cooperation between the two major leagues and commissioner Landis, be it resolved further that the American league gives its fullest and unqualified support and endorsement to Commissioner Landis in his methods of conduct and leadership in organized baseball."

"And resolved further that a committee of three consisting of Messrs. Rupport, Barnard and Sibe is hereby apointed by the American league to wait upon Judge Landis to the end of that full harmony may be restored and full cooperation obtained under the present agreement under which major and minor leagues are now operating."

Middies Win

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 10.—The United States Naval Academy's basketball team opened its 1924-25 season here this afternoon by downing University of Maryland quintet 28 to 16.

Tryon Colgate Captain.

Hamilton, N. Y., Dec. 10. — Eddie Tryon, for two years backfield mainstay of the Colgate university eleven, today was elected captain of the Maroon team for 1925. Regarded as the greatest halfback ever to wear a Maroon uniform, Tryon has been on the varsity team three years and during that time has made thirty-nine touchdowns and 234 points.

Up in Mechanicsville a basketball team has been organized and the upstate boys are out to clean up any and all basketball teams in this section. The Mechanicsville team will play either amateur or professional rules and will guarantee a fast game under either code. The Mechanicsville team would like to bouk a number of out of town games for the season. For games write to Manager Lester Herlihy, Mechanicsville.

Army-Navy Wins.

The Army-Navy club added its second victory of the season to the list on Tuesday evening when the Hartford Crescents were betaen 47 to 17. The Army-Navy Seconds beat the Norwich Crescents 50 to 18.

SPORTING NOTES

The Western Intercollegiate Conference will start its basketball season January 5.

The Brown University eleven will play all of its games next season on the home gridiron.

January 15 is the date fixed for beginning the initial race meeting of the new Miami Jockey Club, at Miami, Fla.

"Red" Grange, the Illinois star, will be remembered as the outstanding gridiron performer of the 1924 football season.

Landing a first baseman capable of filling the shoes of the late Jake Daubert is the chief concern of the Cincinnati Reds just at present.

Hub Perdue, the old major league pitcher is among those mentioned for the job of managing the Springfield Western Association team next season.

Whether the Eastern Shore League shall expand to an eight-club circuit will probably be decided at the league's annual meeting to be held at Salisbury, Md., early in January.

The Stanford-Notre Dame contest at Pasadena on New Year's day should prove a brilliant finale to a banner season of football.

Sid Terris, the fast New York lightweight, is booked to go ten rounds with Whitey Fitzgerald at Philadelphia on the night of December 15.

What's in a (pugilistic) name? Eddie Shea and Tommy Ryan, who exchanged wallops in Louisville the other night, are both Italians.

The first oarsman to be acknowledged as the professional sculling champion of America was Joshua Ward, who annexed the title in 1859.

In the early eighties Canada boasted of a touring professional baseball team made up of fat men—none tipping the beam at less than 200 pounds.

Having pinned every opponent to the mat on this side of the big pond, Ed "Strangler" Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, plans to make a tour of Europe this winter.

The rule of decorating the different teams with different colored stockings as a distinguishing mark was adopted by the National Baseball League at its annual meeting in 1881.

William T. Tilden, the veteran national tennis champion and holder of innumerable other titles, has the remarkable record of having lost only two matches during the past three years.

The Canadians of Montreal have started on their season with the evident intention of doing their best to retain the Stanley Cup and the world's professional hockey championship.

It is said that in the early games between the football teams of Annapolis and West Point the uniforms of the army players were made by the hands of the officers' wives. The days of elaborate defense armor had not yet arrived.

An association planned to develop organized swimming among the women of New England has been formed in Boston. The association is to be patterned after that in New York, which has developed many of the greatest women swimmers in America.

The great wooden arena which a well-known Brooklyn fight promoter is erecting in Long Island City is designed to seat 100,000 spectators. It will be used for all kinds of sporting and athletic events.

Believe it or not. Two hunters in New Brunswick are reported to have killed a deer which was equipped with eight legs, by means of which the animal could propel itself both forwards and backwards, and it had a head which in the normal position faced towards its hind quarters.

The Toledo American Association team which got into condition this year at Gainesville, Fla., has decided to go farther south next spring and will pitch its training camp in the city of Deland.

Paavo Nurmi, the great Finnish runner who won four Olympic championships at Paris last summer, has arrived in America and will make his debut at the indoor games of the Finnish-American A. C. in New York on January 6.

The twentieth annual National Motor Boat Show, which is to hold forth in the Grand Central Palace, New York, during the first week of January, is expected to be the most complete and comprehensive exhibition of its kind ever held.

Present indications are that at least four and possibly five of the eight clubs in the Western League will start the 1925 season with new pilots at the helm. Right now the only managers who appear sure of holding down their jobs are Berger and Clarke of Lincoln.

This is the season when the football captains are being chosen for the campaigns of 1925, and seldom a day goes by without the announcement being made of several elections. In many instances the player chosen earned the honor by his brilliant work during the season just closed, while others get the call because they are extremely popular or impress their fellow-players as being of the type required for leadership. Many of the teams have yet to elect a captain for 1925.

D'ANNUNZIO MEMORIAL MEETS STUMBLING BLOCK

Capt Host Venturi, the Fiume legionary and former president of the Ex-Service Men's Association, has had the idea of founding a travelers' refuge on Monte Nevoso in the name of Gabriele D'Annunzio, Prince of Monte Nevoso, a title he accepted from the hands of the king, without a fief, as being a spiritual affirmation of his efforts toward the vindication of Italy's rights.

The necessary land having been bought, an unexpected difficulty now arises. The mountain summit, forming part of the village of Masum, in the district of Bisterza on the Fiume-San Pietro line, is part of the fief of Prince Schoenburg-Waldenburg an ex-Austrian, and there is no prospect at present of the main idea of Capt. Host Venturi being realized.

Radio for the Blind

Dr. Gustav Gaertner, a German professor, has conceived the idea that the early hours of the morning might well be devoted to radio broadcasting for the blind exclusively. A single speaker could thus reach the blind and those with defective vision throughout a very large area. He suggests finding out what such persons would like to hear through a round robin addressed to the blind themselves. He himself suggests a program of important political and current events, followed by an hour of reading from good literature, both fiction and more serious works, and possibly a third hour of simple scientific information.

Nature as a Box Maker

Few persons have any notion that Brazil nuts grow in spherical boxes somewhat resembling cocoanuts in shape and size. Such a box, contrived by nature, as it hangs on the tree, will contain a considerable number of the three-cornered nuts, packed so skillfully that if once removed nobody can ever get them back into the receptacle. The substance in which the latter is made resembles wood and it is so hard that it can scarcely be cut with the sharpest knife.

Scenes reminiscent of royal receptions

In the palaces of Europe were enacted at Sherry's, New York, where the Monday night Opera club gave a reception and dance in honor of the Grand Duchess Cyril, whose husband hopes eventually to be returned to the throne of the Russian czars.

WESTERLY

Alarm No. 33 was sounded on the bell of the Westerly fire department about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for a brush fire at Pleasant View which started near where workmen have been taking up rails on the old trolley roadbed along Saunders lane. The fire was noticed by John Kenyon of the Shore road, who got in touch with the Watch Hill department, and the truck with Engineer Peck and men responded to fight the flames. Through Hugh Fraser, Pleasant View Fire Chief Lamb in Westerly was notified and he directed that an alarm be given on the Westerly fire bell and Chief Esger and a truck of the Westerly department started for the fire.

Because of the high wind the blaze spread quickly and crossing Saunders lane burned to the edge of Brightman's pond. The firemen and beach cottagers, armed with mops and brooms, were successful in keeping the fire within control, but not until it had closely approached the cottage of Mrs. C. D. Chapman and a small cottage recently built by New Britain owners.

Westerly and Washington county members and delegates are attending the state meeting of the Rhode Island grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of which C. Palmer Chapman of Avondale is state master. The sessions are being held in Providence, beginning Wednesday and continuing today (Thursday) and Friday. It may be that Mr. Chapman will be elected state master for a two-year term, which will make his third term of office. The national convention next year will b eheld in Pasadena, Calif., and state masters of granges are among those who will attend. There has been talk of an attempt to have a national convention held at the Rhode Island State college at Kingston.

Battery E, 243d Coast Artillery corps, is having inspection of equipment at the state armory on Dixon street. This was begun Wednesday morning by Major Horace L. Manchester, quartermaster general of the Rhode Island National guard, assisted by Capt. H. A. Johnson of the inspector general's department, R. I. N. G.; Capt. J. C. Murphy, U. S. army; Staff Sergt. H. E. Roy, D. E. M. L., and Sergt. A. H. Nedow, D. E. M. L., and Capt. John Datson, commanding officer of the local battery.

A determined effort is to be made to check up equipment, as there is a reported shortage of over $30,000 worth in Rhode Island. The state armory was a busy place all day Wednesday. This is the first inspection of the dozen or fifteen in Rhode Island. Late Wednesday afternoon Major Manchester stated that the Westerly check-up was most favorable to that outfit and indicated the careful supervision of Sergt. George W. Dowding, in charge of the local supply, and that the sergeant impressed the state officer as one who thoroughly understood his business. Questioned further, the quartermaster general was convinced that before the statewide inspection was completed a quite different story would be told.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TREE PLANNED FOR WILCOX PARK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Dec. 10.—For a community Christmas in Wilcox park, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 21, plans were proposed at a meeting Wednesday evening in the Wilcox Memorial and Public Library. There were present representatives from the Westerly Men's Community club, Lorraine Community club and Thompson's Corner Community club. The Westerly Women's Community club has signified its intention of joining in the observance. Plans to be perfected include an observance similar to the one held last year in which a natural pine tree will be decorated with colored electric lights and under it Christmas carols will be given by singers generally from the Westerly community, who, it is hoped can meet for preliminary rehearsal in one of the churches. A stereopticon is planned for to throw the words of the carols and Christmas songs upon a screen in the park, so they can be seen readily. The public will be invited to attend and to participate in the community Christmas observance.

He says the coppers in the city he has just visited don't know much some ways but are wonderful contriving. A horse died one night on Quinebiac avenue. Next morning the patrolman on duty, in making out his report for the night couldn't spell the name of the avenue, so he buckled in and drew the dead horse over onto Chappell street, which he could spell all right.

As he began to announce the names of the recipients, he called first the name of Georgina Campbell, and the next name the same, and behold, every package was showered upon Miss Campbell, to her great astonishment. Miss Campbell is soon to be married, and resigned as president of the guild. Florence Quimby was elected to fill the office. Mrs. Brown was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. E. E. AMERICANS PROGRESSING IN FIGHT ON HEROIN

Geneva, Dec. 10.—(By The A. P.)—The American fight on heroin was partially successful before the subcommittee of the international opium conference today, but Dr. Rupert Blue of the United States delegation, in accepting the report recommending that a medical prescription be required for any preparation containing heroin, reserved the right to speak later at a plenary session in favor of the United States contention that the drug should be made an international law.

Other delegates, in opposing the stand taken by Dr. Blue, said that unlike most American doctors, the medical authorities of many countries still considered heroin a valuable remedy.

The plan of Mrs. Hamilton Wright of the American delegation, to have an international commission determine what crops could be profitably grown instead of opium in the producing countries, although sidetracked today through her verbal tilt with H. M. Clayton of Indiana, will be reconsidered tomorrow. The plan received unexpected support from the Persian and Turkish delegates who said they asked nothing better than to educate their people to produce other crops.

NEW LONDON NEAR-YELLOW CAB PEEVES RIVAL, WHO STARTS SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 10.—For a long time the relations between the operators of the Yellow Cab Co., and the public service automobiles at the union station, have been greatly strained, principally because of the Yellow Cab Co. being given the privilege of establishing a stand close to the depot platform and maintaining an office there, besides soliciting patronage from passengers as they alight from the trains, while the operators of the public service cars are compelled to park their cars on the west side of the station and the drivers are prohibited by ordinance from soliciting patronage while standing at a distance greater than 10 feet from their respective cars. The feud existing between the two sets of operators was further deepened last night, when Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin served a temporary injunction on Joseph Syracusa, familiarly known as "Joe Plant," restraining Syracusa from operating his cab, which greatly resembles the type of cab operated by the Yellow Cab Co. Besides the injunction process, which was instituted by Meyer Rubin, manager of the local Yellow Cab Co., and signed by Judge George E. Hinman, of the superior court, Rubin also caused a process to be served on Syracusa for $2,000 damages.

Syracusa recently purchased a Hupmobile cab and a few days ago he caused the cab to be painted yellow, with a dark colored checkered border around the body, making the car resemble the type of cab of the suing company. When the car appeared at the union station Rubin instituted the injunctions against Syracusa.

Members of New London lodge of Elks are anticipating an enjoyable assemblage Thursday evening when James Clarkson of Hartford is to be their guest. Mr. Clarkson bought Plant field, which was the home of the New London ball nine when Commodore Morton F. Plant was paying the bills (more than the receipts by a good many hundred dollars every season) and the national game had a following in this city that was as enthusiastic as in any city in the state. So Mr. Clarkson, when the Elks sought his field for a carnival gave it to them without money and without price. That meant a considerable saving for the Elks and to show their appreciation of that generous act they are to entertain Mr. Clarkson with vaudeville, regale him with a feast and to make him feel that his kindness is fully appreciated. There will be several candidates initiated during the evening.

Opinion is shaping up against the rebuilding of Alewife Cove bridge at the expense wholly of the city of New London. The bridge is within the territory of New London, but it is largely an accommodation to the town of Waterford and the people who own show places on the border between the two towns. For that reason the citizens of New London are disposed to look to Waterford to assist in the maintenance of the bridge. To repair the present structure with wood would involve an expense of something like $2,000 while if a steel structure replaces it the cost of that would approach $10,000. The structure that should be placed there would be of cement, and that would entail an expenditure of something like $15,000. There seems no probability that the city of New London will contract for a cement structure, if it has to pay the bills of the work alone. The possibility looms that the city may abandon the bridge and make use of two other ways of reaching Waterford and coming from that town to New London.

Observant citizens have pointed out today that the prolongation of North Bank street to Main street, as the council has voted will necessitate considerable change of grade at the point where the street is to be extended. There will be much filling and cutting to bring a grade that will be easily accessible for automobiles and other vehicles. The expense is a matter that has not yet been seriously considered by citizens generally, but they will take that matter up when announcement is made that the work is to begin. That is not likely to be till next spring.

An automobile owned by the New London News Company, Bank street, and driven by Samuel Polinsky, 43 Linden street, got beyond control of the driver this afternoon, running across a section of flagging at the corner of Truman street, smashing the gutter covering and then crashing against a tree. The automobile was damaged considerably. The accident occurred when the machine was approaching the intersection of Truman and Colt streets. As the car approached Colt street Polinsky attempted to apply his brakes, but instead stepped on the accelerator, resulting in the machine plunging to the side of the highway and against the tree.

Cecil P. Caulkins, 18 Garfield avenue, treasurer of the Beneficial Loan company, 6 State street, was so anxious to gain admission to the building where the loan company has its quarters early this morning that he smashed the glass in the building entrance when his key failed to manipulate the lock. The crash of the falling glass was heard by Patrolman George McCaskey, who investigated the breaking of the glass and then reported Caulkins' deed at the police station. Caulkins explained his act by stating that he was in a hurry to go to the union station to take a train for Hartford and that as his key failed to unlock the door the only way that he could get into the place was to smash the door.

Patrick Kennedy was the only accused person in the police court this morning when the session was opened. He was charged with intoxication, an offense that is not a new one for him. The accused said he was guilty, and that he just took a little and it overcame him. He went to jail, for his record of convictions of intoxication is a long one.

There is talk that if the city should buy the so-called Goddard property at Main and Douglass streets it should be made use of for a police station and garage instead of being used for a children's playground. The argument is advanced that the city is itself one vast playground and that there is absolutely no need of other places of recreation for the children. About the school buildings there are ample grounds, there are several parks that can be reached in a walk of ten minutes or so from any point. It is claimed that the police property has already been outgrown. The Goddard property was at one time sought for a public parking station but the projectors never carried their plans to consummation so the place is still in the market. The property is valuable only as a site for some building, for the house that was located upon it is tumbling down almost. It is in the center of the city and for that reason is valuable.

The Learned Mission is to vacate the property which it has so long occupied on North Bank street and soon after the first of the year will go to the former Lawrence property on Main street, which the Mission society recently acquired. The premises which the mission is to vacate has been the location of religious revivals that exceeded in interest almost any that ever have been held elsewhere in this city. At the height of religious awakenings here the building was known as the Bradley Street Chapel. There some of the famous evangelists of the country were heard. The late Augustus Brandegee became interested in the services there and many times he was on his knees in that little chapel imploring the unconverted to abandon their ways of life and to seek the consolation that religion would bring. The late J. N. Harris was also much interested in the meetings held at the chapel. The services were then held on Sunday evenings and there was a great demand for sittings. No exhorter who ever was heard in the chapel could equal Mr. Brandegee in his exposition of the Bible or the eloquence of his appeals to the people. He was intensely in earnest, and the fact that he was to be heard crowded the building. Then the chapel became known as the Learned Mission because of the interest manifested in it by the late Billings Learned. He contributed largely to its support and finally bought it and gave it to the society that bears his name.

The funeral of John Murphy, son of Mrs. Catherine Murphy, 11 Chappell street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. Requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. The bearers were John Flanagan, A. A. Ruddy, F. Edwards and E. Murphy. Burial was in St Mary's cemetery.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sophie H. Burgess, widow of Benjamin W Burgess, formerly of New London, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 64 Latham street, Groton. Rev. Frederick W. Haist, rector of Seabury Memorial church, Groton, officiated. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Harold Fitch and infant son, of Crystal avenue; Miss Frances Lewis, Raymond street; Mrs. Harry Bell, Prest street and George and Rodney Ward, George street, Groton, patients at Lawrence hospital were dismissed today.

There is no change today in the condition of John Tosca of Westerly, who suffered a fractured skull Sunday afternoon when the automobile he was driving, overturned near Trail's Corner, Poquonnoc. Mrs. Tosca, with their daughter, Anna, and Miss Hilda Burnan, also of Westerly, is resting comfortably at Home Memorial hospital, she having suffered internal injuries. The other patients will be able to return to their homes within a few days.

Dr. Charles B. Graves of this city, and Silas B. Wheeler, of Stonington, executors of the estate of Ralph Wheeler, have sold a house and lot on Hempstead street to Thomas H. and Margaret G. Kiley.

The funeral of Joseph C. Bailey, former employe of the Robert Gair company, Montville, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 62 Washington street, the services being conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Burial was in Starr cemetery, Groton.

The funeral of John C. Bliss, whose death occurred in Waterford Sunday, took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the residence of his sister, Mrs. George L. Sherman. Sherman court, and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church and by W. W. Perkins post, G. A. R., of which organization Mr. Bliss was a member for many years. Members of patriotic organizations acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Dr. John N. Dimon, of Thames View, Waterford, was arrested early this evening when found intoxicated on State street. Dr. Dimon, who has been arrested three times for intoxication recently, was observed in a condition that placed his safety in jeopardy and he was taken to the police station by Patrolman William Babcock.

Mrs. David Nason, of Stonington, late this afternoon appeared at the police station and stated that she desired the assistance of the police in locating her Studebaker sedan. Mrs. Nason stated that she had parked the car on a street, but she could not remember the thoroughfare where she had left the machine. Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky accompanied Mrs. Nason about the city in the police automobile and after a half hour's search Mrs. Nason's car was found on Tilley street where she had parked it.

The registrars of voters are taking the annual poll of the city, the task being undertaken today. Andrew J. Collins, who is engaged in taking the enrollment in the Italian districts, accompanied by Patrolman Frank Philopena that the officer may act as interpreter.

Mrs. Selina Glode Farnsworth, 58, widow of Lewis Farnsworth, died last night at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. James Southworth, 880 Bank street, after a brief illness. Mrs. Farnsworth besides her daughter, is survived by a son, John Farnsworth, of Westerly, a brother, Luke Glode, of Hudson, N. Y., and by three sisters.

Andrew Miller has sold a house and lot on Ledyard street to Luther Creswell.

Elden Rolfs, of Wightman street; Mrs. Edward Sullivan and infant son, Groton; Baby Geraldine Schwartz of Montauk avenue; Samuel Cherkasky, Shaw street; Donald Frasier, Salem; Mildred Faulkner, Groton; Morris Diatcky, Main street, and William Maloney, Westerly, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The New London police were requested this evening by the state police at Centerbrook to be on the lookout for a young couple who eloped from Pond Meadow, near Westbrook, late this afternoon. They are Matthew Piscatello, 23, and Mildred L. Hall, 16. It was believed that the elopers would come to New London and take passage on the New London line steamer for New York. The girl is described as weighing about 140 pounds, tall, light hair and wore a brown suit, patent leather shoes and blue crepe blouse.

There is further evidence that sailors attached to the fleet of craft stationed at this port to put an end to rum-running in the sound, are guilty of theft of liquor from boats seized with rum cargoes and brought into port. An employe of the tug Underwriter, seized by the destroyer Cassin, off Block Island, earlier in the week was brought to the state pier, together with her rum cargo. Before the craft had been tied up a half day whiskey estimated at 150 cases was stolen. Today a member of the crew of the tug declared that not only did the sailors steal the liquor, but that they became drunk, also stole a quantity of the ship's stores. Some of the sailors, the tug boat employe declared, had attempted to sell some of the liquor and in order to convert the whiskey into money, the liquor was offered for sale as low as $2 per quart.

a swell city, wonderful stores, fine markets and boulevards and everything here so reasonable. The finest city we struck since leaving Baltimore. The place is full of historic interest and we visited many points of attraction which we shall always remember.

Nov. 27—Thanksgiving Day—We left Savannah at 9 a. m., and all this day we put in a most trying time as the roads were terrible. We passed through Recebaro, Darien, Brockman and White Oak, finally reaching the small town of Woodbine, Ga., and putting up at the Proctor House. We had very fine meals here with old southern cooking. We had venison and possum if you wanted it. The boys this night caught four possums in their traps and sold them the next morning for two dollars a piece. We didn't get our good old fashioned Thanksgiving dinner today, but had a good supper. At noon when we should have been eating our Thanksgiving dinner we were ploughing through the sandy detours, the worst we had struck up to here. I said no more autoing to Florida for me until they have a straight concrete road right to Miami.

Nov. 28—We left Woodbine at 9 a. m., and still found very bad roads. Fifty two miles from here lies Jackson road. The roads are made of small round pieces of wood and after the dust gets worn off it is like a washboard. These we found just before we crossed St. Mary river. We were ferried across the river on a barge drawn by a motor boat at the side and guided all the way across by a big cable.

The river separates the states of Georgia and Florida. At 11.30 we arrived at Jacksonville, went right through the city, crossed the St. John's river toll bridge towards Daytona. We thought the Jacksonville roads were good till we reached Daytona. We stopped at the Highland House and went all over the town. A very amusing sign to me was on this hotel. It read: "The only difference between this place and your own home is the address. We say it with cleanliness instead of flowers," in big letters.

Nov. 29—We left here at 9 a. m. Oh, boy! From here to Miami was our worst riding of all our trip. As they are building a new road from here to Miami we had to take detour after detour in this Florida sand, and believe me it was terrible. Ruts and curves and so crooked it shook the daylights right out of a person. We got stuck once but with a little help we got out O. K. We had a great machine or we would never have made it. We met machines from New York, New Jersey, Ontario, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana and everywhere all stuck in the sand. A rut three feet deep was common. After struggling all day through these terrible roads we finally reached a very swell hotel called Bay Crest. A lot of bridges were swept away by the great rain they had in October this fall. The following towns we passed through today: Port Orange, Oak Hill, Indiana River City and Rock Ledge. We met a fellow and a girl on a motorcycle. The girl had to walk for miles as they couldn't make it through the sand. The hotel at Rock Ledge is a wonderful place owned by a Chicago man and a great fishing place. He had his place all fixed up with beautiful dishes, pictures and everything you could think of, and had alligators outside in a big body of water. We retired at 8 very much used up from the bumps and shaking we got from the poor roads.

Nov. 30—Sunday—We started for Miami at 9 and had very fair roads from here. We crossed the Indian river by a bridge and then through Sebastian, Fort Pierce, Stuart, Del Ray, Dufield and Ft. Lauderdale, finally reaching Miami at 4.30 Sunday afternoon after a most strenuous ride. The only trouble we had with our machine was two punctures. Very good considering the awful poor roads. We found it very nice here, not so hot as usual, but people wearing straw hats and bathing. Plenty of work here especially for carpenters and painters. Painters get nine and ten dollars a day. We covered in all 2,500 miles as we went out of our way so many times on detours, but had only one rainy day on our trip, but never again by auto for me.

AN ERA OF PROSPERITY IS PRESAGED IN REPORT OF U. S. STEEL CORPORATION

New York, Dec. 10.—The U. S. Steel Corporation today reported an increase of 506,699 tons in unfilled tonnage last month, the largest increase since September, 1923, when a gain of more than 600,000 tons was reported over the preceding month. Unfilled orders on the books of the company on November 30 last amounted to 4,031,969 tons, compared with 3,525,270 on October 31 last, and 4,369,594 on November 30 last year.

This increase, the fourth successive one reported by the corporation, largely exceeded the preliminary estimates of the trade, which were conservatively placed at 300,000 tons.

The published figures of unfilled orders, showing an increase of 506,699 tons, are gratifying but should cause no surprise," said E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of the corporation. "Business generally is good and is growing better.

"The fact is that since the election of November 4 there has been shown a decide dchange in general sentiment concerning prospects. When business is depressed, we are too apt to become despondent and discouraged. We consider the present, and fail to remember the past, or to look forward to the future.

"Business is so good at the present time that if I were to venture words of advice I would say: 'Let us proceed steadily, naturally, with a view of preventing the inevitable result of recklessness, extravagance or greed.'

"If we are careful and conscientious we may prosper, assist in maintaining stability and secure reasonable profits, without increasing costs of living, which we all know in some lines and directions are excessive."

Trade authorities believe that the large increase in orders reflects, to a large extent, the release of orders which had been held back because of the apprehension which characterized business generally prior to the election. Despite the necessity of keeping down inventory for the year end, iron and steel consumers appear to be restocking in anticipation of a marked revival of trade.

Steel mills operations, which had fallen to about 40 per cent. of capacity in July, are now estimated at close to 80 per cent., a scale unlooked for a month ago. Ingot production, which averaged 71.6 per cent. of capacity in November, has since increased to between 75 and 80 per cent.

Much of the recent demand for steel has been the result of heavy orders for railroad equipment. Five western roads alone are known to have inquiries pending for 100,000 tons of steel rails, while inquiries are out for thousands of cars and other rolling stock.

Shipments of the United States Steel Corporation during November are estimated between 900,000 and 1,000,000 tons with incoming business during the month of close to 1,500,000 tons, or substantially more than finished capacity.

TESTIMONY IN SHIPPING BOARD INVESTIGATION

Washington, Dec. 10.—Denying that the policy of the Emergency Fleet corporation was directed toward a reduction in the number of vessels in operation, Sidney M. Henry, vice president in charge of finances, today told the house committee investigating the shipping board that it was not beneficial to the American merchant marine to operate vessels to ports if the loss per vessel exceeded $20,000 or $30,000 per voyage.

The corporation, Mr. Henry explained, is handicapped in operating ships to ports which private American and foreign companies do not find profitable. He added that he did not know of any government subsidized foreign cargo lines competing with American lines, but that some competing passenger lines did receive large sums for carrying mails.

FRENCH PROTEST AGAINST AMERICAN FILM COMPANIES

Paris, Dec. 10—Influence of the strongest sort is being brought to bear upon the government to induce it to refuse any further authorizations for American moving picture companies to make films with French historical buildings as backgrounds. Foremost in this movement are the biggest French daily newspapers which have certain connections with the French film concerns.

The reasons given for this movement are that the American companies buy no French-made films. Although American firms make immense sums out of moving pictures made by them on French soil.

REPORT OF CONDITIONS AT UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 10—A university should be slow to dismiss any professor "when that dismissal may be even remotely attributed to outside, pernicious influence," the Association of University Professors declared today in making public its report on an investigation of conditions at the University of Arizona, covering the two years of President Cloyd Marvin's administration. The institution, the report adds, "should prefer to retain a mediocre professor rather than to give an appearance of molesting academic independence and freedom."

The report is concerned chiefly with the dismissal of A. E. Vinson, professor of agricultural chemistry, the dismissal of Professor De Rosette Thomas of the department of home economics, and the resignation of Professor C. A. Turrell of the department of Spanish.

Charges that the copper interests of Arizona, which are said to pay a large proportion of the state taxes, were instrumental in bringing about the dismissal of Professor Vinson, were investigated by the association. Testimony which Professor Vinson gave in a suit arising from the alleged injury of smelter fumes to agricultural crops was said to have adverse to the copper mines.

In regard to Professor Vinson the investigating committee expressed the belief that his shortcomings in carrying through his experimental station projects—the chief cause alleged for his dismissal—"were not sufficient to offset his long and honorable period of service to the institution and the state."

Professor Thomas' dismissal and Professor Turrell's resignation came after long terms of service and were caused by the sudden appointment of new department heads and the reorganization of departments, the committee found, adding:

"The committee recognizes that no infringement of academic tenure or freedom is involved in the administrative shifting of the headship of a department from one person to another, but they believe that President Marvin's decision, taken after a very short term in office, was untactful and ill advised, and that it is largely responsible for the disquiet and disaffection at present prevailing among the faculty. Less drastic changes and the sort of consultation with a faculty judicial committee which would leave no doubt that whatever changes were made were made solely in the interests of the university would have produced the desired raising of standards more slowly but without the present unfortunate results."

SHARP REACTION IN THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

New York, Dec. 10 (By the A. P.)—Marking up of the call money rate to 4 per cent today precipitated the sharpest reaction that has occurred in the stock market since the "bull" movement started six weeks ago. Net losses of 1 to 5 1-2 points took place in the active issues with total sales in excess of two million shares for the seventeenth time since election day.

The selling originated with profit takers, who acted on the theory that the recent advance has been overdone. The stiffening of money rates provided an excuse for bear attacks, which increased in fury when the steel stocks failed to respond to the announcement of an unexpectedly large increase of more than 500,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel corporation last month and the rail shares disregarded the publication of statistics showing that car loadings during Thanksgiving week were more than 5 per cent above the corresponding period last year.

The decline was accentuated by an unusually heavy volume of profit-taking and, the touching-off of many spot loss orders placed just below the market. The sharpest break took place in the high-priced industrial specialties.

Bullish demonstrations earlier in the session had sent 33 issues to new peak prices for the year, the list including Utah Copper, American Telephone, Jordan Motors, Maxwell Motors "A," Postum Cereal, Ludlam Steel, Advance-Rumley common and preferred and May Department Stores, the last named closing more than five points higher at 109.

Thousands of people already have been benefited by SAN-GRI-NA, and are sending in most gratifying reports. These cases vary in reducing from 10 to 70 pounds in a remarkably short time, and many say that "almost immediately after taking SAN-GRI-NA they felt 100 per cent. better."

Mrs. Koster, of Brooklyn, writes: "With SAN-GRI-NA, in six weeks I lost 30 pounds of ugly fat, and after years of suffering I was relieved from heart trouble. I now can climb the stairs without puffing, and I have found wonderful relief. You can use my letter, as well as my name, as I am grateful, and wish to help as many of my sisters as I can."

"When I first sent for SAN-GRI-NA I had been under the Doctor's care for heart trouble and high blood pressure. After I used SAN-GRI-NA for two weeks I was much better."—Mrs. Fongerney.

"SAN-GRI-NA is a great help to me. I have reduced 20 pounds since I first started to use it."—Mrs. Wm. Parker.

SAN-GRI-NA is now sold at Lee & Osgood's, McLaughlin's, ro Bray's drug stores.

$500,000 FOR DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY

Washington, Dec. 10.—It was announced here today that the New York Times, as a gift to the nation, has agreed to advance $500,000 for the preparation of a dictionary of American biography under the auspices and direction of the American Council of Learned Societies. The work, it was stated, will stand upon a unique level of authority, scholarship and literary quality comparable with the British "Dictionary of National Biography" and the German "Allegemeine Deutsche Biographie."

No book publisher was willing to advance the necessary sum for the biographical research and preparation of such a work, but, it was announced, the New York Times will not be either maker or publisher of the dictionary and will assume no control over it the function of the Times being simply that of making possible, through the action of its publisher, Adolph S. Ochs, such a book of reference.

A permanent committee of management has been constituted, consisting of J. F. Jameson, chairman; John H. Finley, Frederick L. Paxton, Ighigene Ochs Sulzberger, Carl Van Doren and Charles Warren. It is expected that the first volume will appear within four years, and that sixteen volumes, completing one edition, will be produced at the rate of three volumes annually thereafter.

TESTIMONY OPENED IN M'COY TRIAL FOR MURDER

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 10.—A bullet in the left temple, fired from a pistol at "very close range," killed Mrs. Theresa Mors, with whom Kid McCoy, ex-pugilist, was living last August, according to testimony today at McCoy's trial for the murder, given by Dr. A. F. Wagner, county autopsy surgeon.

Dr. Wagner testified that he found no traces of alcohol in the woman's stomach.

McCoy sobbed as the prosecution introduced in evidence the robe with which Mrs. Mors' body was covered when it was found in her apartment.

Shortly after the display of the robe, the woman's husband and heir, Albert A. Mors, who returned last night from New York entered the court room and was seated among the witnesses.

PERSHING AT CELEBRATION OF PERU'S INDEPENDENCE

Lima, Peru, Dec. 10.—General John J. Pershing, head of the official delegation from the United States attending the hundredth anniversary of the battle of Ayacucho and the celebration of Peru's independence, in a speech yesterday, declared that the historic battle had enabled the people of South America to realize the ideals of democratic government which, half a century before, had inspired the people of North America.

Foley Pills Reached the Sore Spot.

If people only knew the facts about their skin

THE real cause of skin trouble—rashes, blackheads, excessive oiliness, etc.—is way down in the lower layers of the skin. It cannot be expected therefore that mere surface remedies can reach the disorder.

Thousands of physicians are daily prescribing Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. They know this gentle, yet effective treatment does sink deep, and will often soothe away in a few days the most stubborn rash as well as a trifling blemish. No home should be without these products—the soap for general toilet use—the ointment to check the first bit of skin eruption. At all druggists.

RESINOL

FAVORS INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS AS A POLITICAL ISSUE

New York, Dec. 10.—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland voiced tonight, at the annual dinner of the Southern Society of New York, a conviction that the time has come for the republican and democratic parties "to rekindle some of the beliefs which vitalized them in the part and to provide once again win on principle."

Traditional differences between the major parties have quite disappeared, said Governor Ritchie, adding that there never were more than two—the tariff and states' rights. All others, he said, were minor issues created for campaign purposes only distantly related to fundamental party platforms.

Governor Ritchie did not believe there was anyone who thought that if the democrats had won the 1924 election there would be a tariff for revenue only. He said the democratic platform made no such promise, for a party leaders knew that strict fulfillment would be impractical.

As for states' rights, the speaker contended that both parties had come to champion or combat certain measures which effected the principle of local self-government and "both parties include persons who want to make an exception in the case of something in which they are interested—child labor or federal control over education or prohibition or health or state aid for internal improvements or something else."

Governor Ritchie believed he voiced the conviction of millions of American citizens when he said the time was ripe for the re-kindling of traditional beliefs and he realignment of parties according to basic principles.

"The most cherished feature of our constitution is the immunity it gives the individual against governmental interference. Milions of people think that this immunity is not only being invaded, but that it is being destroyed.

"They think it when congress, in enforcing the 18th amendment declares that to be a fact which everyone knows is not a fact; when the states are permitted to punish a person for an act fro which the federal government already has punished him.

"They think it is being invaded by subterfuges which substitute contempt proceedings for a jury trial; they think it received a blow during the World war when congress made it crime even to say anything calculated to bring out form of government into to scorn or disrepute.'

Individual rights could be another issue for the 1928 campaign, said Governor Ritchie, for "we must admit that never before has law restricted the freedom of the individual as much as now."

METHODS OF SOCIETY FOR PROTECTION OF CHILDREN

New York, Dec. 10—Agents of the society for the prevention of cruelty to children assumed police powers and carried revolvers and blackjacks, Alphonsus C. Fitzpatrick, a former investigator, testified today at an inquiry into the methods of the society before Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield.

Mortimer L. Schiff, banker, testified that he had resigned from the board of directors of the society after serving 15 years because it was "too much of a one-man affair" and because the directors, entertaining doubts as to the methods of Ernest K. Coulter, general superintendent, found it difficult to get information from Mr Coulter.

COUPLE ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF LARCENY

New York, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Blanche Belanger of Harrisville, R. I., and Vilmor Sorcier of Phoenix, R. I., were arrested as they arrived today on the steamship Plymouth from Providence, and were held in $5,000 bail each as fugitives from West Warwick, R. I., the charge was larceny.

Police reported that Mrs. Belanger's husband would be here from Rhode Island to attend the hearing on Friday.

Audits of postal and customs offices in various parts of Newfoundland have disclosed shortages aggregating $16,000.

Six expert bakers used all their skill and the baking secrets of years of experience to create this ideal loaf—White Rose.

Made only of the pure ingredients the best housewives use in their own kitchens. A crisp-crusted loaf—rich, wholesome and satisfying.

FIVE ARMY MEN KILLED IN AERIAL TARGET PRACTICE

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 10.—Five officers and enlisted men attacked to Squadron No. 2, of the battle fleet, air squadrons, were killed and three others probably fatally injured when the huge twin motored H-16 type seaplane in which they were engaging in aerial target practice nosedived 1,200 feet into the sea this morning. The accident was the worst in the history of naval aviation. The dead:

Lieutenant Glochino Varini, pilot of the plane; survived by widow, Mrs. Minnie May Varini, Pensacola, Fla., body recovered.

Lieutenant Kilburn H. Roby, assistant pilot; widow lives in San Diego; body unrecovered.

Lieutenant Arthur P. Thurston, assistant pilot, mother, Mrs. C. E. Thurston, Orange, N. J.; body recovered.

Fred D. Cruell, aviation chief machinist mate, widow resides in San Diego; body recovered.

J. Wieczk, radio man, first class, mother resides at 309 West Eighth street, Oswego, N. Y., body not recovered.

Seriously injured:

Hayter R. Davenport, aviation machinist mate, first class, mother lives in Bristol, Va.

J. D. Massingill, aviation rigger, first class, mother, Mrs. Tarrole Massingill, Knoxville, Tenn.

R. Pautz, aviation machinist mate, first class, wife, Mrs. Lavina Puntz, San Diego.

Although aviation officials believe that the exact cause of the tragedy probably will never be known, a fairly accurate idea of what happened was obtained from Lieutenant Joseph H. Gowan, pilot of the seaplane towing the target for the wrecked plane.

The H-16 plane was flying about 85 miles an hour when Lieutenant Varini attempted a right vertical turn. The ship was about 1200 feet above the ocean and about half a mile southwest of Point Loma.

Either the controls jammed or one or more of the wires running to the rudder and ailerons snapped. The plane, weighing more than a ton, went into a spin and plunged into the sea.

Splinters from the wrecked plane covered the sea for several hundred feet.

MORTIMER CROSS-EXAMINED IN FORBES CONSPIRACY CASE

Chicago, Dec. 10 (By the A. P.)—Hours of intense cross-examination today developed several flaws in the story of Elias H. Mortimer, chief government witness in the Forbes conspiracy trial. Concerning his attempts to secure Veterans' Bureau hospital contracts through corrupt acts.

"That was my recollection at the time," Mortimer said when confronted with exhibits of his testimony before the senate committee which differed substantially from his direct testimony at the present trial.

"I don't remember," he answered several times during the day when asked to explain to the jury these apparent inconsistencies in his story.

Mortimer was on the witness stand today for his third day of cross-examination in the trial of Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' Bureau, and John W. Thompson, Chicago and St. Louis contractor, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government in hospital construction awards during Forbes' administration.

James S. Easby-Smith, chief counsel for Forbes, completing his cross-examination at the morning session, centered on Mortimer's indictment in New York in May, 1923, for violation of the Volstead act, and the settlement of the case "without a trial," after Mortimer had explained the circumstances of the indictment to Mrs. Mabel G. Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition cases.

COOLIDGE IN CONFERENCE WITH SENATOR CURTIS

Washington, Dec. 10.—President Coolidge discussed the senate legislative situation at a dinner conference tonight with Senator Curtis of Kansas, republican leader of the senate.

The republican steering committee of the senate yesterday adopted a legislative program for the session, and it was understood that this was the subject of tonight's conference.

Has He Found a Cure for Asthma?

Simple Prescription Gives Instant Relief. Makes Breathing Easy.

In New England, where bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other diseases of the throat and lungs are so prevalent, remarkably successful results are being reported following the use of a new form of treatment known as Oxidase, a physician's prescription.

Oxidase is a harmless but powerful combination of curative essential oils concentrated and compressed into a small tablet. One of these tablets slowly dissolved before going to bed seems to have the effect of releasing the muscular constriction of the bronchial tubes, opening up the air passages and regulating spasmodic lung action. This enables the patient to breathe easily and naturally while lying down and to get a comfortable night's sleep.

So much interest has been shown that local druggists, including Lee & Osgood Co., have secured a small supply and state that they are authorized to refund the money paid for the first package if in any case this new treatment fails to give relief. Oxidase is pleasant to take, contains no harmful, habit-forming drugs and is not expensive. This makes their test an easy matter.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY.

New York, Dec. 10.—The stock market today experienced the sharpest reaction witnessed since election day, net losses of 1 to 5 1-2 points being scattered throughout the list.

Marking up of the call money rate to 4 per cent., the highest figure reached in the last six months, precipitated the decline which was conducted in the face of such favorable trade news as an unexpected increase of more than 500,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation, and publication of a report showing that freight car loadings for the week ended Nov. 29 totaled 878,631 cars, an increase of 43,550 cars, or 5.1 per cent. above the corresponding week last year.

Professional traders initiated the selling movement, the stiffening of the call money rate having given rise to speculative reports that the local federal reserve bank planned to increase its rediscount rate. Heavy profit-taking then swelled the tide of selling with the result that scores of stop loss orders were touched off. Total sales ran above 2,000,000 shares for the seventh time since election day.

Except for the renewed selling of the oil shares, which was based on the expectation of a large increase in production by some of the new Texas pools, opening prices were relatively firm. Bullish demonstrations were conducted throughout the morning, particularly in the copper and motor shares. Thirty-three issues were lifted to new peak prices for the year, the list including Anaconda, Kennecott and Utah Coppers, Jordan Motor, Maxwell A., General Motors debenture and six per cent preferred, Ludlam Steel, American Water Works common and 7 per cent preferred, American Telephone, Advance-Rumely common and preferred, but many of the earlier gains were lost.

Failure of United States Steel common to respond to the big increase in orders stated another wave of selling in the early afternoon, which was only temporarily interrupted by sporadic bullish demonstrations in a few motors and merchandising issues. United States Steel common closed 1 3-8 lower at 116 3-4 on total transactions of approximately 100,000 shares. Net losses of one to two points also were recorded by American Can, American Locomotive, American Woolen, Allied Chemical, Baldwin, Du Pont, United States Industrial Alcohol, United States Rubber and Westinghouse Manufacturing.

General Electric was hammered down five points to 275 and then rallied slightly. Other weak stocks included Allis-Chalmers, General Baking, Kelsey Wheel, Manhattan Modified Guaranteed Certificates, United Railways Realty common and preferred, and Westinghouse Air Brake, all of which closed from 2 1-4 to 3 1-2 points lower.

Independent strength was shown, however, by several issues. May department Stores was run up over five points to a new high at 109 while American Bosch Magneto, American Water Works, Sears-Roebuck, American Tyne Foundry, Phillips-Jones and Postum Cereal showed gains of [illegible] at the close.

[illegible] ened at 3 1-2 per [illegible] vanced to 4 closing [illegible] money and commodities held firm.

Foreign exchanges opened [illegible] reactionary. Demand sterling sold off more than a cent to around $4.80 and moderate recessions took place in most of the other principal European rates

CURB MARKET

New York, Dec. 10.—Reactionary tendencies predominated in trading on the New York curb market today. Prices drifted irregularly lower in sympathy with the trend on the "big board."

Prices of oil shares crumbled under heavy selling pressure, which was influenced by reports of expanding production in some of the new Texas pools. Most of the active issues, including Standard Oils of Indiana, Kansas, New York and Kentucky, Ohio Oil and International Petroleum, dropped [illegible] to two points. Standard Oil of Ohio broke eight points and Standard of Nebraska and Illinois Pipe Line, 3 each, on small turnovers.

Weakness of the oil shares and the general reaction on the stock exchange depressed prices in other sections of the market. Buying support was lacking for many of the industrial issues which had shown recent strength and these stocks yielded readily on small offerings.

Commonwealth Power fell back 3 1-4 points, leading most of the public utilities lower. Baking issues lost ground with Ward Baking preferred [illegible] point. Radio issues moved irregularly lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Dec. 10—In the face of immense selling to realize profits, wheat, corn and oats today all established new high records for the season. It was the third successive day of record-breaking advances in wheat and corn. A new upturn in wheat quotations at Liverpool and a decrease of 6,011,000 bushels in the world's available supply of wheat were among the stimulating factors. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 1-8c higher, May 1.66 1-8 to 1.66 3-8 and July 1.46 1-8 to 1.46 1-4, corn 1-4 to 3-4c up, oats unchanged to 1-4c off and provisions varying from 12c decline to 20c gain.

Throughout the day, fluctuations were rapid in the wheat market, breaks as well as bulges of a cent or more being unusually frequent. Trade was of such large volume that individual operations counted for little. It was current gossip, however, that Europeans were active buyers of future deliveries here and there were also estimates that new export business had been done amounting to 1,000,000 bushels.

At the highest point today, wheat showed 7 3-4c to 12c gain compared with last week's lowest level. In some quarters, this fact was taken as explaining a reactionary trend apparent in the late dealings. Earlier, the huge selling to realize profits had been readily absorbed by new sets of buyers. But toward the last the volume of offerings acted as something of a weight on the market.

Hot dry weather in Argentine continuing to injure the corn crop there was largely responsible for the upward swing of values here for corn and oats. Rural offerings of corn remained small.

Provisions, like grain, reached new peak prices for the season, but later gave way under increased selling, especially of lard.

RECEIVER FOR RENTS IN FORECLOSURE SUIT

Upon an application from Meyer H. Hollandersky of New London, who has brought a foreclosure suit against Antonio and Rosie Grippo on property on Truman street, Judge G. E. Hinman of the superior court has appointed the Union Bank & Trust Co. to be receiver of rents of the property under a bond of $1,000, with power to pay necessary carrying charges.

The foreclosure is brought on a mortgage for $7,500, dated May 21, 1923, payable on demand. It is alleged the defendants owe the city of New London, $676.76 taxes and interest on the 1923 tax, $826.99 taxes and interest on the 1924 tax, $900 interest to the Savings Bank of New London, on a mortgage from Dec. 1, 1924 to Dec. 1, 1924; $900 interest to the same bank on a mortgage from Dec. 1, 1924 to June 1, 1925, $525 to the Union Bank & Trust Co., as a fee for collecting rents and for services, $36 interest on a mortgage to the Union Bank & Trust Co., and $850 to the plaintiff for insurance. The balance on hand is $54.86, and it is claimed the value of the property is deteriorating.

Universality

UNIVERSAL telephone service must be universal in scope—it must reach anyone, anywhere. But it must be universal also in cost—it must be within the financial reach of everyone, everywhere.

Years of research have been required to provide the telephone instruments, switchboards, wire and supplementary apparatus which afford inter-communication between housewives, shopkeepers, farmers and millions of other American telephone users.

But these facilities do not in themselves make America's telephone service a universal service. Telephone engineers have spent years of additional study in order to build, maintain and operate this nation-wide system so economically that the cost of service may be kept at all times well below its value to the telephone user.

Upon the two fundamentals of extensiveness in scope and economy in cost the Bell System has built the most universal telephone service in the world.

DEMONSTRATES RESUSCITATION TO RADIO CLUB MEN

At the weekly meeting of the Norwich Radio club held Wednesday evening Joseph A. French gave a very interesting talk to the members and also a demonstration of resuscitation after electrical shock. The method demonstrated by Mr. French is that used by the Red Cross and recommended by other first aid authorities.

One new member, Timothy C. Crouch, was initiated at the meeting. A new initiation committee was appointed with Vincent Welch, chairman, Jewett, Scanlan and Otis. There was an informal discussion of various problems in radio that are puzzling to the amateur.

Water Pipe Leaked.

Workmen of the water department were busy nearly all night in Franklin square because of a leak in the service pipe to the Mohegan restaurant. The men had to break through the vitrified brick pavement in the middle of Main street, nearly opposite Ferry street, and dig down several feet to get at the leak.

BANQUET AMERICAN WOOLEN MEN TO SIGNALIZE THEIR PROMOTIONS

Over 60 superintendents, overseers and assistants gathered at the Wauregan Hotel Wednesday evening in honor of Thomas A. Grieve, agent of the Norwich and Winchester mills of the American Woolen Co., and wish him God speed in his new work for the company, which has rewarded his efforts by selecting him for the superintendent of the eastern division of the American Woolen Company, which includes mills in Maine and New Hampshire.

Incidently, the men of the Winchester and Norwich plants welcomed back into their fold, James Morton, agent of the Yantic mills, while the men of the Yantic Mills paid farewell respects to Mr. Morton and in turn welcomed their new agent, Charles Moulter, who had been superintendent of the Moosup mills of the company.

The appointment of Mr. Grieve as superintendent of the eastern division of the American Woolen Co., with offices at Shawsheen Village, Andover, Mass., becomes effective on December 15th. The appointment of Mr. Morton as agent of the Norwich and Winchester mills takes effect on the same day and Mr. Moulter, who has been superintendent at the Moosup Mills, becomes agent at the Yantic Mills on December 15th; a triple shift and advancement of men who have served their company most faithfully, and, who will have, in their new positions, the confidence, respect and best wishes of the men beneath them.

The program of the evening began at 6.30 o'clock when the men and their guests enjoyed a bountiful repast. The song program opened with America, following which a grave and silent memorial was paid to John Hattenbrun, styler of the Norwich and Yantic plants of the American Woolen company, whose death occurred last Sunday.

Toastmaster L. B. Sampson then called upon everyone to rise and a toast was drunk to Thomas A. Grieve, James Morton and Charles Moulter, the three honor guests of the evening.

During the banquet many song numbers were enjoyed and the Yantic men pulled their song stunt and yell, given to the tune of the Battle Cry of Freedom.

Toastmaster Sampson next introduced the guests of the evening each being given a cheer as they responded to their names—Raymond S. Bartlett, superintendent of the central division of the American Woolen Company; Emanuel Kaplan, representing the E. D. Kaplan Company of New York, former owners of the Yantic mills; Charles Moulter, former superintendent of the Moosup Mills, now selected as agent of the Yantic mills; Hon. Herman A. Gibbs of Yantic; Rev. Robert B. Day, pastor of Grace church, Yantic; Thomas A. Grieve, former agent of the Norwich and Winchester mills promoted to superintendent of the eastern division of the American Woolen Company; James M. Morton, former agent of the Yantic Mills, now appointed agent of the Norwich and Winchester mills and John White of Madison, Me.

The first speaker of the evening was R. S. Bartlett who spoke briefly telling of the difference of old time methods over the present day methods. Only going back 15 years, he said, we can remember when overseers as a group resisted suggestions and the management played a hands-off game. Today this is not so. We are not only interested in our own department, we are interested in the other man's department, in the success of our mills and of the company as a whole. In the old days many an overseer had to change his position through lack of cooperation of management and of the overseers of other departments. Now we are all co-workers, working for the success of our mill, cooperating as a whole to do the best we may, not jealous, but happy in the promotion of one of our number and ready to back him on to further heights of success.

To "Tom" Grieve let me say that his promotion is merited coming as it does through hard work and consistent effort. I wish him God speed. I bid Jim Morton the same in his work in Norwich and I am sure that "Charlie" Moulter will find the men at the Yantic and Norwich mills ready to welcome him and work with him.

Perhaps you men at Yantic, when the mills changed hands, had a feeling of anxiety, a wonder if conditions would remain as tranquil as under the management of the Kaplans. Today after this demonstration I am sure you know the answer and have learned to work with and for the great company of which you are a part.

Toastmaster Sampson next read a telegram from Samuel Kaplan of the E. D. Kaplan Company, who although unable to attend, sent best wishes to his many friends in Norwich, especially to those at the Yantic mill with whom he had worked and expressed his best wishes to the three men who had received promotions for work well done.

Hon. Herman A. Gibbs of Yantic spoke briefly of the early history of "Tom" Grieve and showed how a chance for promotion awaited the man found capable. You are working for a wonderful organization, he said, and it is a fine thing to see the fellowship shown here tonight.

A treat of the evening came when Emanuel Kaplan, formerly of Norwich, was asked to speak. In part Mr. Kaplan said as follows: Boys, don't forget that there are three mills in Norwich. It was always my policy to carry my problems out with you boys for that's the only way I got pleasure out of my work. To you who have been honored let me say that success in your work will come if you help your men when they are in trouble and praise them when they keep out of it.

Mr. Wood could not buy brains and muscle coupled with loyalty, with mere money. Always bear in mind that the Norwich mills do not belong to the American Woolen company but that the American Woolen company cannot do without the Norwich mills. Praise your men in public, give them the public credit they deserve, and, above all, don't worry. Worry kills initiative, happiness and breaks the courage of a man. Men should be allowed a right to be creative and in picking men for leaders we must have men who make quick decisions, and, decisions that are right. After you have picked your men—back them up—don't let them be hindered or you'll kill their initiative. We have passed the day of small efforts. Men are not so much changed but we simply do things on a much larger scale. Hearty, honest effort, working together, all make for success and the American Woolen company couldn't replace the loyalty that there is stored up in these three local mills. Three cheers for William M. Wood. (Applause).

Interesting speeches were made along the lines of congratulation and promises of loyal support by several other officials, among them being David Morton, superintendent of the Norwich mill; S. C. Deane, superintendent of the Winchester mill; Charles Harvey, superintendent of the Yantic mill; John Weller, master mechanic of the Norwich and Winchester mills; Herman Steizner, overseer of dyeing, Norwich mills; and Richard Beeman, yardmaster, Yantic mill.

Surprise Gifts Made.

The first surprise of the evening for James Morton, came when Robert Lyons, on behalf of the men of the Yantic mill, presented him a handsome wrist watch. Mr. Morton responded, thanking the men for the gift and for their loyalty to him while agent of the Yantic mill during the past 13 months.

As an additional surprise, Archie H. Perry, on behalf of the men of the Norwich and Winchester mills, presented Thomas A. Grieve a beautiful Hamilton watch. The splendid tribute to Mr. Grieve affected him strongly and he was heartily cheered after he had viewed his appreciation of the gift and the loyalty of the men of Norwich.

A fine musical program was rendered during the evening and Scully & Caplin favored with several song and dance numbers which were greatly enjoyed, the affair being a most enjoyable one for all.

Among those attending the complimentary dinner were men from the following mills:

MY GRANDMOTHER'S TURKEY-TAIL FAN.

It owned not a color that vanity fans
Or slender wrists choose for display;
Its beautiful tint was a delicate bronze,
A brown softly blended with gray.
From her waist to her chin, spreading out without break,
'Twas built on a generous plan;
The pride of the forest was slaughtered to make
My grandmother's turkey-tail fan.

For common occasions it never was meant;
In a chest between two silken cloths
'Twas kept safely hidden with careful intent
In camphor to keep out the moths.
'Twas famed far and wide through the whole country side,
From Beersheba e'en unto Dan;
And often at meeting, with envy 'twas eyed,
My grandmother's turkey-tail fan.

Camp-meetings, indeed, were its chiefest delight,
Like a crook unto sheep gone astray
It beckoned backsliders to reseek the right,
And exhorted the sinners to pray.
It always beat time when the choir went wrong,
In psalmody leading the van.
Old Hundred, I know, was its favorite song—
My grandmother's turkey-tail fan.

A fig for the fans that are made nowadays,
Suited only to frivolous mirth!
A different thing is the fan that I praise,
Yet it scorned not the good things of earth.
At bees and at quiltings 'twas aye to be seen,
The best of the gossip began
When at the doorway had entered serene
My grandmother's turkey-tail fan.

Tradition relates of its wonderful tales,
Its handle of leather was buff;
Though shorn of its glory, e'en now it exhales
An odor of hymnbooks and snuff.
Its primeval grace, if you like, you can trace;
'Twas picked for the future to scan.
Just made; a smiling, gold-spectacled lass
My grandmother's turkey-tail fan.

—Samuel Minturn Peck.

SWEET AND SOUR.

Sweet is the rose, but grows upon a brier;
Sweet is the juniper, but sharp his bough;
Sweet is the eglantine, but pricketh near;
Sweet is the fir-bloom, but his branches rough;
Sweet is the cypress, but his rind is tough;
Sweet is the nut, but bitter is his pill;
Sweet is the broom-flower, but yet sour enough;
And sweet is moly, but his root is ill;
So every sweet with sour is tempered still,
That maketh it be coveted the more;
For easy things, that may be got at will,
Most sorts of men do set but little store.
Why then should I account of little pain,
That endless pleasure shall unto me gain?

—Edmund Spenser.

COMPLEX PROBLEMS FOR THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

League Activities Are Constantly Increasing, With A Large Number of Important Matters—Austen Chamberlain Succeeds in Having Discussions of Egyptian Controversy Deferred Until the March Session—Egypt Has Not Given Up Hope of Forcing an Examination of the Problem—France is Concerned Over Regulations For Future Supervision of German Armaments.

Rome, Dec. 11.— By the A. P.)—"I go back to England with increased confidence in the future of the league of nations," was the valedictory declaration of Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, delivered tonight at an impressive public session of the league's council.

While the council probably will continue to sit two days more, Mr. Chamberlain will start back for London tomorrow. He expects to have a hurried conversation with Premier Herriott of France as he passes through Paris.

The head of the British foreign office apparently is immensely satisfied with his trip to Italy. He has succeeded in putting off a discussion by the council of the Geneva peace protocol until the March session so that England may have time to consult her dominions on its cardinal feature, he has sidetracked up to the moment of his leavetaking at least, all attempts to secure the council's intervention in the Anglo-Egyptian conflict, and he has had satisfactory conversations with Premier Mussolini relative to closer co-operation between Great Britain and Italy on Mediterranean problems.

Finally, Mr. Chamberlain has pleased the pope by assurances of consistent collaboration on matter affecting the vatican and the British empire.

But if the British foreign minister has officially left the council board, with an apparently happy ending to the various issues in which he was interested, Senator Fanous of Egypt has not abandoned hope of some eleventh move in the council calculated to force an examination of the Egyptian problem.

The Egyptian senator took a new lead tonight by impressing on all members of the council, that the recent English note to the league was really written before the assassination of Sir Lee Stack, the Egyptian sirdar. Hence the senator insisted that England did not formally question that council's privilege of ordering an investigation of the Egyptian affair under article 11 of the league covenant, which authorizes any member to request an inquiry if it is deemed that a situation threatens international peace.

Senator Fanous argued to the members of the council that the Egyptian situation is growing worse. He announced tonight that he was pinning his chief hopes on President Mello Franco and Delegate Guani, representing Latin-America, on the council.

Notwithstanding Mr. Chamberlain's expression of faith in the league, it was believed that recent developments indicate an accentuation of influence in the league of European and continental powers under the leadership of France, with perhaps a slight tendency to shrink from the league of world problems by the new English government. This increased continental attachment is described as being closely seconded by countries of Latin-America.

The record shows that the league activities are constantly increasing, with a large number of important matters, including the peace protocol itself and questions touching the league's future supervision of German armaments, definitely placed on the agenda of the March session.

France, through former Premier Briand, today insistered on carefully defined regulations which would protect future league investigations in Germany and assure commissions on opportunity to conduct serious inquiries without being subjected to difficulties.

In addition M. Briand had a long conversation with Premier Mussolini today, and, according to French circles, discussed the question of Italy's right of entrance into any new conference over Morocco and North Africa generally. This suggestion of a possible conference is an outgrowth of the possibility that Spain may further retire from Morocco, thus making a new adjustment necessary.

The council appointed William Rappard of Switzerland, formerly professor of economics at Harvard university, as an extra member of the league's permanent mandate commission. Prof. Rappard has just resigned as the league's secretariat director of the mandate section.

Americans figure in the list of names for the proposed arbitration boards which will settle disputes among European powers.

STRANGE DISEASE AMONG POULTRY PROVING FATAL

Chicago, Dec. 11.—The strange disease, which today caused the New York city health department to decline an embargo on live chickens from North Dakota, South Dakota, Missouri, Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Nebraska has spread throughout many sections of the United States but is especially prevalent in the middle west, poultry men attending the national poultry show here said tonight.

The cause of the ailment, which is almost every case proves fatal, is not known, according to A. G. Phillips, professor of poultry husbandry at Purdue university. The disease is contracted when the chickens are in transit or while they are being fattened for sale in poultry market feeding batteries. The disorder has been variously termed "flu," "diphtheria" and "pneumonia," said Mr. Phillips.

The ailment will have little effect on the poultry market as a whole, declared F. Platt, editor of the American Poultry Journal, although it has made great inroads into the live chicken trade. It was first discovered in the Canadian poultry shows three years ago and spread into New York state, New Jersey and New England. Losses reaching $7,000 a day have been sustained by individual dealers in the east, he said, while losses of $4,000 a day by Chicago live chicken shippers have not been uncommon. The disease is not communicable to humans, he said.

AMERICANS WIN POINT AT OPIUM CONFERENCE

Geneva, Dec. 11.—(By The A. P.)—The American delegation to the international opium conference today won a point in their favor by securing an agreement for the holding of a plenary session on the conference at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. At this session, the second section of the American proposals, dealing with prepared opium will be considered.

Mrs. Hamilton Wright of the American delegation, and William D. Norris, assistant solicitor of the United States department, agreed to bring Mrs. Wright's proposal to determine what crops could be profitably grown in the producing countries instead of opium, to a concrete form by tomorrow in order that the delegates of the producing powers might communicate with their governments and receive replies before the termination of the conference.

The possibility that Japan will not sign the agreement and protocol concluding the work of the first opium conference loomed today when it became known that Delegate Sugimura had cabled Tokio for fresh instructions.

COMMUNISTS PLANNED DEMONSTRATION IN PARIS

Paris, Dec. 11.—(By the A. P.)—The threat of the communists to hold a great demonstration tonight to protest against the expulsion of foreign communists, brought about 3,000 policemen, troops and republican guards to the vicinity of the St. Lazare station, where the demonstration was to have been held, while only about 1,000 communists answered the call of their leader.

The demonstration was limited to the singing of the "Internationale" and shouts of "amnesty." The police did not interfere with the demonstrators until they attempted to form a procession. The communists offered no resistance when the police ordered them to disperse, but said they would gather again a block or two aways. This they did and again were dispersed. After about 90 minutes of this hide-and-seek game the communists went to their homes.

Berlin, Dec. 11.—The Federation of German Women's clubs with more than a million members has appealed to the German press to cease publishing the details of the trial at Hanover of FritzHaarmann, accused of killing more than a score of young men.

The federation asked that city the verdict be made public.

Hanover, Germany, Dec. 11.—Every day of the trial of Fritz Haarmann, accused of murdering more than a score of men and boys, brings new and revolting details of this vampire slayer's methods. The court room resembles a medical clinic with its exhibits. The parents of some of the murdered boys present a pathetic picture on the witness stand as they are compelled to identify the remnants of clothing and other traces of lost sons.

MORTIMER CONTINUES UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION

Chicago, Dec. 11.—(By The A. P.)—An intense fire of cross-examination by defense counsel today wrung from Ellas H. Mortimer, the government's principal witness in the Veterans' Bureau conspiracy trial, flat repudiation of proportions of Mortimer's story to the senate committee which investigated the bureau in 1923.

"If that's in the book, its a mistake," he reflected to a question based on a portion of his senate committee testimony at variance with his story in the present trial. "I have had my recollections refreshed on that point since the investigation," he said, relative to another discrepancy.

Mortimer, on the witness stand for the fourth day of cross-examination in the trial of Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' Bureau, and J. W. Thompson, building contractor, for conspiracy to defraud the government through hospital contracts answered affirmatively a question as to whether his testimony before the senate committee, out of which eventually came the indictments in the present trial, have been motivated by a "hostility towards Forbes."

ENGLAND ENVELOPED IN DENSE FOG THREE DAYS

London, Dec. 11 (By the A. P.)—The weather forecast tonight holds out the prospect that tomorrow will see a lifting of the dense fog which has enveloped the country for three days.

The fog has caused inconvenience in delays to or the stopping of shipping on all the transport lines except the underground systems. The only persons who have appeared to derive some small comfort out of the situation have been American and other foreign tourists. To them sightseeing under such novel conditions, in the darkness and the soot-laden atmosphere, has proved interesting.

Intense anxiety was caused tonight by a report that the steamer Arcadian, laden with pleasure seekers from a Mediterranean cruise, had grounded off the dangerous spot known as "The Needles" in the English channel. The vessel, however, was refloated with the rising tide and had anchored tonight in a place of safety. None of the passengers are Americans.

Bingham Answers Challenge of Holt

Declares He Stands With President Coolidge in His Attitude on Foreign Relations.

New Haven, Dec. 11.—Hamilton Holt, democratic nominee for United States senator, having challenged Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Bingham, his republican opponent, to state his attitude towards the world's court, the following statement was issued tonight by Mr. Bingham:

"I favor the adherence of the United States to the permanent court of international justice as recommended by President Coolidge and endorsed by the republican party in its national platform.

"If it should turn to be impossible to get the senate to adopt his proposal I should be inclined to vote for the best form of world court which could be passed by the senate and approved by the president.

"I stand with President Coolidge in his attitude toward foreign relations and the world court and in case of my election to the senate would vote to support his proposal."

BINGHAM THE CHOICE OF REV. ORVILLE A. PETTY

Hartford, Dec. 11.—Rev. Orville A. Petty, of New Haven, well known in both church and military circles in Connecticut, says that Bingham is "an easy choice for him, when he votes net Tuesday. Mr. Petty is a colonel in the national guard and is extremely popular both in New Haven and Hartford, where his military activities take him. He was the chsplain of the 102nd regiment during the World war.

"President Coolidge wants Bingham for senator from Connecticut," says Colonel Petty. "I voted for Coolidge only a month ago, and I shall not forsake him now.

"Holt voted against Coolidge only a month ago, and now bids for republican votes by calling himself a Coolidge supporter. Holt came to Connecticut as a voter less than 30 days ago, and now 40 days and nights after Davis' political funeral, he tries to slip into the republican camp by the back way.

"Hiram Bingham is an easy choice for me."

ELECTION OF BINGHAM MEANS HELP TO COOLIDGE

Washington, Dec. 11.—Senator Butler, of Massachusetts, chairman of the republican national committee, in a statement given out tonight in connection with the Connecticut senatorial convention December 16, says that the people of that state will be called on not only to reaffirm their support of President Coolidge's policies, but to select a United States senator who can best assist in the execution of the program they already have endorsed.

"One election is the natural supplement of the other," the statement said, "under the circumstances I have every confidence that Hiram Bingham, the republican senatorial nominee, will be elected to succeed the late Frank B. Brandegee.

"This election is national and will be judged from a national viewpoint."

The election of a republican is necessary, he said, because President Coolidge had enunciated the republican program which the people have endorsed, and execution of such a program is only possible with republican votes.

"In view of the conditions as they exist, Connecticut voters are today in a position to render the president valuable assistance by the election of Hiram Bingham."

Replying to a resolution of inquiry Mr. Mellon said numerous complaints had been received prior to the raid, that Owens had treated persons he arrested brutally and had otherwise misused his office.

Owens, the secretary related, appeared before United States Commissioner Boyle to ask for a warrant to search a building at 142 West 54th street, New York, two floors of which he claimed were used as an all-night restaurant, telling the commissioner he had positive knowledge that liquor was being sold there.

PUBLIC TO PAY ANY INCREASE MADE IN POSTAL SALARIES

Postmaster General New Will Advise Congress to Increase Rates in Practically All Classes of Postal Service Except Letters—Increase Would Involve Newspapers and Periodicals—Object is to Have Rates so Distributed That the Raise in Pay Would Be Absorbed by the Public Generally.

Washington, Dec. 11 (By the A. P.).—Postmaster General New will advise congress that the way to raise enough revenue to meet proposed increases in postal pay is to increase the rates on practically all classes of postal service except letter mail.

Such increases would involve more postage on newspapers and periodicals, a subject of many heated fights in congress through many administrations, and also would be distributed throughout the fabric of the postal service, so that, under the plan, they would be absorbed by the public generally.

In the senate today a futile attempt was made to obtain an agreement to postpone until February a vote on repassing the vetoed bill. It already had been repassed over the veto in the house. There was a sharp debate which left the status of the bill unchanged, and it is not subject to a motion for repassage until after the senate has disposed of the Muscle Shoals legislation.

Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, in charge of the bill, explained that the delay was sought in order to give time for consideration of increasing the rates on other mail. Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, objected, and Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, declared that if he wanted to have the president's veto sustained he would like nothing better than to have the vote connected with a proposal to increase the mailing rates on newspapers.

"You will then have every newspaper in the country, or practically all of them, here fighting the proposition to override the veto," said he.

Senator Edge told the senate he considered the increase bill "fair and justified," but that every means should be taken to meet a shown deficit in carrying second, third and fourth class mail. Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, wanted to know how Senators Edge and Curtis would vote on increasing the rates on newspapers. Senator Curtis, the republican leader, replied he would meet the issue when it came before the senate. Senator Couzens, objecting to the postponement of action, said he wanted to see the newspaper and periodical rates increased. Senator Reed argued that the proposals should be treated separately.

"We have recently had an example of the disciplinary measures employed against those who disobey the wishes of the president," said the Missouri senator, referring to the action of the republican conference in voting to exclude Sen. LaFollette, Frazier, Ladd and Brookhart. "I believe Senator Edge was a leader in enforcing the discipline against these republicans. I am wondering what will be his disciplining if this veto is overridden."

Senator Sterling, republican, South Dakota, gave it is his view today that the outline of the postal field where increases could be applied would include, besides newspapers and periodicals, the third and fourth classes, which include parcel post and direct advertising such as mailed circulars, as well as probably postcards, may be suggested as another means of overcoming the deficit.

The survey, as the postmaster general will lay it before President Coolidge, will suggest a distribution of the increases through all these classes, finding its way ultimately to the public.

REACTION IN STOCK MARKET WAS CHECKED BY "BULLS"

New York, Dec. 11.—(By the A. P.)—Bullish demonstrations in a few specialties, which were marked up four to nine points, temporarily checked the reaction which has been under way in the stock market for the last two days. Announcement after the market closed that the local federal reserve rediscount rate remained unchanged set at rest rumors which are believed to have been responsible for such of the selling.

Spectacular advances too place in the final hour in the commercial solvents and West Penn Power issues and May Department Stores, all of which established new peak prices for the year, together with nearly a score of other issues. The day's sales fell just short of 1,350,000 shares.

The general average of railroad shares showed a slight gain on the day, with a brisk demand for the stocks of the roads to become a part of the Nickel Plate system.

The records of the grand jury of August 13 which indicted McCoy, disclosed a direct question to Mrs. Thomas:

"You did not believe your brother when he told you that he had killed a woman, did you?"

"Certainly not," she replied.

To a question from the defense asking whether her brother had told her that he had killed a woman, she answered negatively.

Once during the day there flashed before the jury a handful of sparkling jewels which the prosecution contends and according to testimony, was worn daily by Mrs. Mora and is alleged to have been taken from the body by McCoy, after the woman was slain.

Mrs. Thomas, the sister, said McCoy gave her the jewelry on the night he visited her house, made the will and announced his intention of "ending it all" because Theresa was dead.

WOODEN BRIDGE IN CENTER OF NASHUA, N. H., BURNING

Nashua, N. H., Dec. 11.—The bridge over the Nashua river, nearly in the center of the city and the only artery for Main street and the Daniel Webster highway, caught fire tonight. Traffic was blocked while the entire resources of the city were utilized to fight the flames from both ends. The structure is old and entirely wooden.

The bridge, beside carrying automobile, foot and trolley traffic, hold telephone cables, including many toll lines to the south. Several of these are out of commission. Gas mains also cross the bridge and service to many household has been suspended.

At 8.30 the fire was reported to be making rapid headway, getting a strong hold in the wooden blocks which pave the bridge. Occupants of places of business adjoining the bridgehead were driven out by the dense smoke and there was danger that some of these buildings might be ignited.

DUG UP WORD "OPS" FOR CROSS WORD PUZZLE ADDICT

Washington, Dec. 11.—The Goddess of Agriculture—in three letters—is "Ops".

The department of agriculture made this announcement to the country today for the benefit of cross-word puzzlers, but refrained from any intimation that the action was to be considered a precedent.

"Ops" got into the correspondence of the department when the Philadelphia office obligingly searched a dictionary to please a young woman puzzle addict.

INJURIES CAUSE DEATH OF JOHN W. ROSE, AGED 90

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Dec. 11.—John W. Rose, 90, died about five o'clock Thursday afternoon at St. Joseph's hospital from heart disease. Mr. Rose reached his ninetieth birthday three weeks ago. November 18 he fell down the stone steps leading to the front entrance to the town hall building and part of his body became paralyzed as a result. In descending the stairs he had reached out for the hand railing but the staircase is not equipped with one and he pitched forward. He was taken to his boarding place in the Merrill house by First Selectman Russell A. Andrews and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton and it was at first thought that his injuries were not of a serious nature. He remained in bed and as his condition grew worse, some ten days after the mishap, he was removed to the hospital. He leaves a sister, Lucy A. Rose, 80, of Worcester, Mass., a brother, who resides in New York, and who is 86, and a nephew, Noyes R. Bailey, of Milford.

Mr. Rose was unusually vigorous for a man of his years. A man of wide experience, he was often led to relate incidents of his life which offered delightful entertainment to friends. He was born in New London, the son of a thrifty father engaged in the whaling business. As a boy Mr. Rose followed the example of his father and he spent his boyhood as a sailor on a whaling vessel. When he was about twenty other pursuits took his fancy and he became a carpenter. For many years he was a boss of a bridge building crew in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company and supervised the building of many of the bridges over which the road passes. He left the railroad and at the time of his death was the only surviving carpenter who worked on the No. 1 Mill of the present American Thread company, then the Willimantic Linen company. He had also contributed his skill at his trade in placing the interior woodwork of the town building, here. Later he was employed at the Smith & Winchester Manufacturing Company plant in South Windham and he made his home in that community. He was a resident there when his wife died, some six years ago. They had no children and shortly after the death he sold the home and went to live in Boston, where he was employed as janitor in a large department store. The proceeds from the sale of his home in South Windham had been converted into a trust fund with Charles A. Gates as administrator. Less than one year ago Mr. Rose returned to this city and took rooms at the Merrill house.

He was a member of Natchaug lodge, No. 22, Knights of Pythias and held the record of being the oldest member of the organization in Connecticut. Mr. Rose had a wide reputation in these parts as a musician. He was the first bass-viol player to play in the historic Loomer Opera house block in this city. For over forty years he played bass-viol at the annual Camp Meeting services at Willimantic Camp Ground and in years past he was connected with some of the leading orchestras in New Haven. He was also a talented pianist and excelled on the church organ. He was the organist for a time in the Methodist churches of New London and New Haven. In addition to these activities Mr. Rose took up bicycle riding in his youth and was famous as a skilled bicyclist. His adventurous spirit led him recently to issue a challenge to any man of his years to engage in a bicycle race.

ROBT. S. BROWNING ROBBED BY BOBBED-HAIR GIRLS

Willimantic, Dec. 11.—State policemen from the Danielson barracks have been working quietly since Monday evening to land the culprits responsible for the sandbagging of Robert S. Browning, 30, of Scotland that evening, while he was milking the cows at his home. Two blows were struck, one at the base of the skull and the other on the face, and Browning's back was bruised. In addition to this the attakers held a sponge against the young man's nostrils forcing him to inhale some kin dof drug. The persons then went through his pockets and secured a five dollar bill and some small change. Browning has been receiving treatment from Dr. F. M. Smith in this city and he still retains traces of the dazed condition which followed the brutal attack.

Suspects in the case are three bobbed haired young women, one of whom wore a khaki uniform at the time the three stopped at the home of Byron E. Wilson, at two o'clock in the morning of the day that the assault was committed on Browning. The girls claimed that they came from Providence and they questioned the Bryon household about the locality. The evening of the sandbagging incident they were seen in this city in a car which bore a Rhode Island registry number plate. Monday afternoon Browning and his wife came to this city and he received a check of one hundred dollars for his shipment of milk to Providence and collected another fifty dollars while in town. It is believed that whoever did the sandbagging was aware eof the money he had collected and figured that it would be found on his person. Browning said that he had heard no suspicious noise in the barn previous to the attack. He believed that at least two persons perpetrated the assault. The blows knocked him into a semi-conscious state and he remembered that some one went through his pockets. The sponge was then applied to his nose as he lay on the barn floor, but he recovered enough within a few minutes to stagger into the house and tell his wife about the experience. State Policeman Merrill F. Keith of the Danielson barracks has the sponge in his possession, and is investigating the case. There were no footprints left about the barn and the weapon with which Browning was struck was apparently taken along by the assailants.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Thursday morning the town court began to grind out what promises to be a long drawn out grist of cases originating through the fact that several hundred Killingly men and women have failed to pay overdue personal taxes. There were 12 cases before the court Thursday morning, most of them on residents of the village of Goodyear.

Of the dozen men and women who appeared, nine were found guilty and required not only to pay the overdue taxes but court costs and officers' fees amounting to $10.34. The $10.34, be it understood, was assessed in addition to the taxes due. Attorney Louis A. Woisard was on hand to receive the taxes, while the court officials took the cost.

Suggestions of neglect, indifference and tragedy were developed relative to non-payments in the consideration of the cases. One man was called upon to pay a tax for his wife who is now dead. It so happened, however, that she did not die until a very considerable time after the tax in question was due. Another woman said she had not paid because she was in poor financial circumstances, her lot in life recently more heavily burdened by the death of one of her flock of small children, whose father has passed to a world where, it may be hoped, there is no taxation. In another case a man 73 years of age submitted that he was beyond the age at which he is liable for taxation, and, in addition, had done military service. Still another submitted that he was exempt from taxation on account of having served the requisite number of years in the fire department. These were the cases that aroused sympathy.

Such cases, it may be expected, will run all through the prosecution of the tax delinquents, but the majority of them are not and will not prove to be of that nature. They are cited here as exceptions.

In the nine other cases heard Thursday no attempt was made at explaining or in an attempt to evade responsibility or gain leniency. They were delinquents and they paid.

During Thursday another large batch of warrants were issued. Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer is completing service of them as rapidly as his time will permit, so daily sessions of the court may be anticipated for a long time to come.

Likely some people will be cited into court who may have been illegally assessed, as in the case of the 75 year old man who appeared Thursday, but such cases will be the exception rather than the rule.

In considering the delinquent personal tax cases it appears strange that up to the time that actual prosecutions for collection began Thursday there were numbers who scoffed at the publicity given the plan to collect and characterized it as just another bluff. Apparently there are some people who still believe that the press is given to a practice of bluffing people.

Following a meeting Wednesday evening at the high school of a score of members of the Alumni association, Miss Marjorie L. Gaffney, president, presiding, plans were taken to aid the gymnasium fund of the school. The first effort in this direction will be a Tag day to be held here on Dec. 20. Later a dance will be held, and still later, probably in February, there will be a week of sustained effort toward an end in which all members of the alumni will have a direct interest and in which the citizenship of the town, thinking of the high school and all it means to those who are studying there, and who will study there later.

No better evidence of the interest of the student body of the school can be presented than to mention that $1,600 already has been raised as a nucleus for a gymnasium fund. This sum, not large in itself, represents a tremendous amount of work when it is considered that it has been accumulated a few dollars at a time through entertainments and various devices evolved by the students. In raising this money they have pointed the way to the townspeople. Now the Alumni association is taking a hand and hopes to interest everyone in what really is an important proposition.

The school is beginning to experience shortage of accommodations as the result of increased registration. It is nearly 18 years since the school was built and it has come to pass that there is now need of more study rooms and of added courses, such as domestic science. An addition, including a gymnasium, would meet all these requirements. Possibly the movement by the Alumni association will serve to made these needs realities.

This week Saturday evening at the state armory the Service battery basketball team is to play the Crescent A. C. team of Providence. The visitors will have a time measuring up to the standard of the other teams that have played the Service battery to date.

At the state armory Wednesday evening a whist party arranged in the interest of the athletic fund of the American Legion attracted a very satisfactory attendance. First honors for the gentlemen were won by Attorney Louis A. Woisard.

Sunday evening Rose of Lima council, K. of C., is to confer the first and second degrees on a class of candidates at the council headquarters here.

Erwin Bennett of Woonsocket, formerly engaged in business in Danielson, is spending a few days with friends in town.

At the postoffice the first surge of the Christmas rush is being felt, but the volume of business is not such as yet to warrant asserting that the holiday drive is on. Stamp sales, however, are very heavy.

Arthur C. Gordon of Fall River was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Thursday.

As evidence that tourists do not limit their coming here to the summer months was a car bearing a Virginia registration at a local filling station Thursday morning.

Day by day the contributions for Christmas presentations to the needy of Danielson are growing, but the fund can stand a lot of giving yet without growing out of proportion to the requirements it is intended to meet.

Pupils in Killingly's schools will tell you offhand, and without any mental strain, that they have only a week more of study before the coming of the Christmas vacation.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich will come here Tuesday next to hold a regular monthly clinic at the health station in the town hall building in the interest of those who are afflicted with pulmonary troubles. Dr. Campbell comes here under the auspices of the Civic federation.

Jones, poultry specialist; 12 noon, box lunch; 1 p. m., Bacteria and Sanitation in Poultry Work, Dr. J. D. Clark, Abington; 1.45 p. m., Why Chickens Should Be Grown on Clean Ground, illustrated, R. Mrs. C. Russell Bowen and Mrs. W. F. Rafferty of the Thanksgiving day offering committee of the Day Kimball hospital, have acknowledged the following donations: Beachmont Worsted Co., of Putnam $50, H. K. H. Silo Co., Putnam, $25; Connecticut Mills, Danielson, $25; Goodyear Cotton Co., Goodyear, $25; Attawaugan Mills, $15, through Susan Young of Danielson $25; Christ church, Pomfret, $16.74; Bible class, M. E. church, Attawaugan, $15; St. Philip's church, Putnam, $8.16. The committee also expressed obligation to E. C. Rogers, of the Putnam Inn, for the use of a room in which to receive the offerings.

Mayor Victor Chapdelaine was 70 years old Wednesday. He doesn't look it, and he is in just as good health and just as active as he was ten years ago. He is making an excellent chief executive of the city. He has good business judgment, is not swept off his feet by sudden impulses, is fair and impartial and non-partisan in matters that affect the city. This was shown in his appointment of Alex Gilman, a democrat, to succeed G. H. Gilpatric, a republican, as a trustee of the water works department. There is no man in the city better qualified for the office than Mr. Gilman, and Mayor Chandelaine evidently did not let the question of politics influence this judgment at all in this important appointment.

G. Lawrence Perkins, president of the Patriot company, is somewhere on the Pacific on his way home from a visit of several weeks in China. Mr. Perkins had expected to spend the winter there but the internal disorders existing there caused him to change his plans. John J. Whitehead, editor of the Patriot, expects to leave next week for San Francisco to meet Mr. Perkins. They will stop at Chicago on their way east.

Miss Elizabeth Byrne has been confined to her home by an attack of grip. There are many cases here.

Putnam grange entertained Quinnitisset grange, of Thomuson, and Wolf Den grange of Abington at its last meeting. The visiting granges furnished the entertainment consisting of musical numbers, readings and the presentation of a comedy. Getting Ready for a Visit. Refreshments were served and dancing followed.

The Baptist church of South Woodstock which owned $500 of stock in the First National bank of Putnam has raised the money and paid its assessment of the face value of the stock to the receiver of the bank. A generous sized check was received from former Governor Everett E. Lake, whose family were members of the church years ago.

Miss Ruth Perry, daughter of Dr. E. F. Perry, is a student at Bridgewater Normal school which sustained a loss by fire amounting to $750,000 Wednesday. Mrs. Charles W. Bixby, a sister of Mrs. Perry, is matron of the school which has the distinction of being the oldest girls' normal school in the United States.

Mrs. Silas M. Wheelock spent Wednesday in Boston.

The news of the sudden death of Charles B. Fox at Willimantic Wednesday was a surprise to his friends in Putnam and Woodstock as it was not known that he was seriously ill. His family resides at Woodstock and Mr. Fox had been employed on a building contract at Willimantic for the past three months, coming home each week end. The body was brought to Woodstock for burial.

Among those who attended the funeral of Rev. Ignatius V. Maciejewski, pastor of St. Joseph's church at Norwich, was Rev. Charles H. Bedard, pastor, and Rev. N. A. Rothier, curate, of St. Mary's church, Putnam, and Rev. George J. Donahue, of Holy Trinity church at Pomfret, Rev. John Quinn of Grosvenordale, Rev. Bernard M. Donnelly of North Grosvenordale.

Dr. A. H. Strahan, who was in Boston Wednesday, said that it was the mildest December weather he had ever encountered in that city. Ordinarily the breeze that blows in from Boston bay requires a topcoat to keep one comfortable in the mildest of weather.

In the first basketball game of the season Woodstock Academy defeated Putnam High at Woodstock Wednesday evening, 20 to 18. P. Cody starred for Putnam getting 9 of its 18 points, and for Woodstock W. Anderson scored 11 out of 20.

The first annual military ball of Headquarters company, 43rd Division, Connecticut National Guard, will be held at the armory early in January.

Ralph W. Bowen, assistant secretary of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co., of Providence, spent Thursday in Putnam.

BANK CHECKS MAY BE LATE, BUT DIVIDEND SURE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Dec. 11.—When Judge M. H. Geissler visited Washington two months ago, at the request of Henry M. Dawes, comptroller of the treasury, to consult with him about matters relating to the issuance of a charter to the Citizens' National Bank of Putnam, he authorized Judge Geissler to make an official announcement that a dividend of not less than 20 per cent. and probably 25 per cent of the money of the depositors of the First National bank, now in a receiver's hands, would be paid before Christmas. The announcement was so made.

While there is no question that the payment of the dividend will be authorized soon and probably for a greater amount than 25 per cent., it will be a physical impossibility for these checks to be distributed before Dec. 25.

The time for filing claims against the bank does not expire until Dec. 18. Then when the dividend is authorized, 2,500 individual checks will have to be made out here under the direction of Receiver George M. Coffin, forwarded to Washington to be countersigned, and then returned to Putnam. This cannot be done in the seven days between Dec. 18th and Dec. 25th. Because it is the Christmas season the clerical part of the work will take longer than usual as the clerks of the treasury department will be having their vacation.

A man in a position to judge said that if the payment of the dividend is authorized on Dec. 18th, the day after the expiration of the time for filing claims, in his opinion it would be late in January before the checks were countersigned and returned to Putnam.

While it is a matter of regret that this money cannot be used before Christmas, the payment is sure and it is only a matter of a little more delay.

It has been rumored that the amount of the first dividend would be 40 per cent instead of 20 or 25. Mr. Coffin said Thursday that he had not been authorized to state the amount, but that it would be a substantial dividend. He added that he would do everything in his power to expedite the making out and the distribution of the checks.

At 15,000 feet elevation the mere turning of the body to look around may aggravate breathlessness enormously.

PLAINFIELD

The teachers of the local schools are rehearsing their pupils in Christmas folk song and playlets.

Santa Claus is due to arrive at a local department store within the next few days.

At the Parent-Teacher meeting Wednesday night at the Community house Mrs. Wooster Webster, president of the Parent-Teachers' association of this state, gave an address before the Plainfield chapter. The children from Miss Cecile Israel's and Miss Elizabeth Dodge's room gave an interesting entertainment with songs and recitations. A light lunch was served by the committee. Mrs. Eva Smith sang and Miss Isabelle Flynn gave a piano number.

The crew from the electric company are still working hard on the wires of the town. New poles have been put in and work is being pushed ahead.

Leo Vincent, swimming instructor at the Community house, states that arrangements for two swimming meets monthly for all youths under 19 have been completed. Prizes will be awarded the winners of the different events. The first meets to take place the third Monday of this month.

The Buddies are holding regular practice at the Community house every evening this week and will be ready for the opening game on the 19th.

The membership drive of the Community association is moving steadily ahead; it is hoped that this drive will go 100 per cent. in this town.

Now that the sport fans have tucked away the pigskin, all interest is toward the fast town team of the A. & N.

Miss Julia Lee and Mrs. William Cantwell were visitors in Providence Thursday.

Sea Survey Planned

Several allied institutions, co-operating with the United States government are projecting the most complete survey ever made of the oceans of the earth. One or more ships fitted with latest scientific equipment will not only map the bottom of the ocean but will study the composition of the water, its density, temperature and map out currents which affect the distribution of marine plant and animal life. Five-sevenths of the earth's surface is covered with water and this water area can produce more food than all the land can ever be made to yield, it is said.

"Love Tap" Brings a Fine

Arthur Gibson of Iron Mountain, Mich., was fined $10 in a justice court for having slapped the face of his sweetheart. He argued to the court that the slap was meant as a sign of affection, but neither the girl nor the court believed him.

A novel loan scholarship is provided at the Mississippi State Teachers' college. One hundred and twenty-five dollars of the proceeds from the college moving-picture shows held during the year is set aside for this purpose. Several such scholarships have thus far been provided.

ARTHUR FOURNIER HELD FOR BALLOUVILLE BREAK

Danielson, Dec. 11.—Arthur Fournier, a Putnam young man, was bound over under bonds of $2,500 after a hearing in the town court Thursday, to answer later in the superior court to having been implicated some months ago in burglary at the Ballouville store, operated by the Attawaugan company. Fournier was brought to Danielson from Troy, N. Y., by State Officer Arthur W. Williams. Henry Breault of Putnam, an associate of Fournier's, has been held for some time since on charges of breaking and entering, following the recovery at his home in Putnam of a miscellaneous assortment of goods of value estimated by some as high as $2,000. These goods represented, it has since been established, the loot from raids in various breaks in Connecticut and Rhode Island. No charge has been placed against Fournier, however, excepting the allegation that he was involved in the break at the Ballouville store.

PUTTING CONGRESS TO WORK.

Congress is settling down to business in a manner to indicate that it has heard from the country at large, that it recognizes the disfavor into which it has brought itself and that it is disposed to make some amends by tending to business. There is plenty of time for ructions before the fourth of March, but if a good start is any augury the short session should not only pass the appropriation bills but sandwich in some useful legislation.

In the picking out of certain measures upon which to concentrate in the next several weeks it is to be expected that the steering committee has not selected those which can be depended upon to produce prolonged controversies. If it has endeavored to keep away from those which would bring up the bad feelings manifested in the previous session there can be no surprise. If so apparent that its aim is to make the session count for something instead of trying to tie up into knots and though filibusters and blocs force an extra session of congress upon the country.

Short sessions are bound to be limited in their accomplishments. The important work is to give the needed attention to the appropriation measures and provide for the requirements of the several departments. Beyond that it is expected to give conscientious consideration to whatever legislation is required. The steering committee is endeavoring to do what is expected of it. It has placed its cards on the table and if congress is really anxious to fill the collar there should be no difficulty in putting through the programme.

If the committee has picked bills that are expected to go through without serious trouble it is to be realized that it is a matter of good judgment. Molasses catches more flies than vinegar. The committee understands what it is doing when it aims at accomplishing something, rather than getting nowhere on trying to do the impossible. The committee has measured the congress by what it is and seeks production accordingly.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS.

Because of the persistency with which he has insisted upon better respect for the laws in the interest of safety, and the better enforcement on the part of the courts Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin of Massachusetts is well known beyond the limits of his state by name if not personally. He was emphatic in his plea for increasing highway protection. He has received some cooperation, but not all that he has deserved.

In making a report for his department during the year ending with November Registrar Goodwin points to the fact that the 14,154 licenses revoked were 2561 more than in the previous year, and of that number 4295 were cancelled because operators who were driving cars were intoxicated. That means that nearly one-third of those losing their right to drive cars were actually providing one of the worst menaces to the highways. They were not only subjecting themselves and those with them to serious danger but making the use of the roads by others increasingly dangerous.

Registrar Goodwin has pointed at the futility of slapping the wrist of such persons as a means of punishment. He has called for the imposition of jail sentences in order to decrease the number of drunken drivers. He has failed to get what he sought and the result is that where there are two and a half times as many automobiles this year as in 1919 the number of drunken drivers convicted in court is six times as large. While the courts may have clung to their own methods of disposing of such cases it becomes evident that it has not served to decrease the number. Leniency in this instance, as well as in too many others, has done just what the registrar maintained that it was doing and would continue to do.

The registrar of motor vehicles of Massachusetts has the satisfaction in knowing that he urged the proper remedy, which if adopted would have made a different report possible, but his report cannot be regarded as giving much consolation to those courts which have turned a deaf ear to any such suggestion.

TRAFFIC IN ARMS.

Next spring there is to be an international conference for the purpose of restricting the traffic in arms, munitions and implements of war. This will not be the first of its kind, or the first in which this country has participated. But it is the first since this country refused to adhere to the arrangement planned at St. Germain back in 1919.

We participated in that conference and refused to sign the agreement. Not so long ago when this country was sounded on the possibility of attending another conference a favorable response was made. Thus in actually inviting this country to participate next year with the league of nations it was well understood in advance what the answer of this government would be.

According to the St. Germain convention there would have been no restriction on the traffic in arms between the powers that signed, but it would be impossible for them to sell such goods to other nations. We would not be permitted to aid a neighboring country in putting down a revolution, and we would not be able to sell such goods to nations which depend upon us for their supplies. The result was that we declined to ratify and the other nations would not sign unless the United States did.

After a study of the position taken by this government there is to be another effort made to bring about some regulation of this traffic. Our participation does not necessarily require but it is likely to mean the presentation of such a plan for dealing with the restriction of the traffic in such goods as could get the sanction of this government.

The desire still is for the participation of the United States, and the willingness displayed by this government to cooperate with the league is no more than is to be expected. The new conference should open with the other countries having a better idea of the attitude and the foreign policy of Uncle Sam concerning the question of arms distribution. It may help to a solution.

GAS CARS ON RAILS.

It became necessary to reduce the train schedule on the Norwich & Worcester branch the trying out of the gasoline car has been anticipated. On the west side of the Thames the Central Vermont is operating successfully its electrically driven car. On the east side the New Haven road has just put into operation its car operated by an internal combustion engine, gasoline being the fuel.

These cars scooting along the rails are in marked contrast to the string of several cars making up an ordinary railroad train, but it is clearly evident that they are being run at much less expense and it is this lowered cost that makes it possible to maintain service under the decreased revenue resulting from the resort to other forms of transportation. There is also an elimination of the dirt from car smoke, and the bathersome cinders.

In connection with the test of these new cars on the New Haven road, Norwich has hopes of not only maintaining its existing train service but of possibly regaining some that was lost.

When the reduction of train service became necessary there was lopped off among the first the train bringing the New York mail about 9 o'clock. The train would have been maintained had the patronage warranted it. Inasmuch as it didn't the removal was inevitable. But with the reduction in the cost of operation, the clean method of travel and the chance for quick transportation it is not improbable that there can be a restoration at a profit of a service that had to be abandoned under former conditions.

THE "HORATIO ALLEN."

Improvements and betterments in locomotives are not at a standstill. It may be that electric engines are able to outpull the steam driven type, but that doesn't mean that the latter are to go to the junk heap immediately. What the future will require it is impossible to say far in advance, but the new locomotive which the Delaware & Hudson has secured after a score of years of experimentation indicates that steam is still an important factor and that steam driven locomotives can be employed and yet permit reduction in the cost of operation.

A huge locomotive, differing in looks somewhat from some of the other big ones, and named the Horatio Allen, in honor of the first engineer to make a trip in a locomotive, has now been put into operation which permits the cutting the coal bill a third and reducing the amount of water used.

Through the expansion of the steam in a high pressure cylinder and a second expansion in a low pressure cylinder after it has been once used, the Horatio Allen makes it possible to use the steam twice, reduces the work of the fireman and has a similar effect upon the coal bill.

This is one of the important advances that has been made in locomotive construction. Much is to be expected of it. Certainly these are the days when efficiency and economy are insisted upon in many directions and there is need for such factors in connection with the operation of transportation lines. The first engine of this type has cost much money. The benefits of this outlay should be felt over a considerable period of time, and of course more than those interested in the railroad testing this engine are concerned in its accomplishments.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Have you been sounded concerning your Christmas present?

With the estimate that there is 15 gallons of hot water used per capita daily throughout the country, is there any wonder some people can never keep out of it?

When one of the bidders for our gas and electric plant declares there is no thought of changing the rates in any way, does it consider that we are perfectly satisfied with the high rates that prevail at the present time?

Now that it has been found that 10,000 cars of quicksilver would be required to yield a grain of gold, it will probably be more profitable to develop the Wauwecus hill gold mine.

The public spirited acts of men of wealth should have their good effects upon those with smaller fortunes which they know they cannot carry with them.

The Pennsylvania coal tax has been declared legal, but with the coal operators complaining over the use of substitutes it shows what the consumers think of it.

Connecticut's Senatorship

Democrats or League Advocates

(Waterbury American)

Hamilton Holt's press bureau is sending out many letters of indorsement from prominent men and women, all highly complimentary and well deserved. But they are for the most part from democrats or from peace advocates or league of nations propagandists. There is still lacking assurances from republican believers in the impracticable theory that he can support Coolidge and be honest with the democrats who nominated him.

As to Support of Coolidge

(Worcester Telegram)

Hamilton Holt wants to "stand by Coolidge." This is a good doctrine for republicans, but a democrat who uses this as a campaign cry seems to lack fighting qualities. The democratic party can hardly be considered as dead merely because it was so overwhelmingly defeated last month. It is all right for republicans to try to win elections by identifying themselves with Mr. Coolidge, but when democrats try it, they are going pretty far. It can hardly be assumed that Mr. Holt has instruction from Mr. Coolidge to do his best to beat Col. Bingham.

Voted for Lonergan

(Hartford Courant)

Mrs. Henry H. Townshend, vice chairman of the republican town committee of New Haven who issued a statement Wednesday declaring for Hamilton Holt, democratic candidate for United States senator, frankly admitted Wednesday that she voted four years ago for Augustine Lonergan democratic senatorial nominee as against the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee, republican.

"We got his number," Mrs. Townshend said of Senator Brandegee, "and went out to defeat him." She was referring to a group of women in the Connecticut Women Suffrage Association, of which she was a member, she said, which waged a vigorous campaign in support of the democratic candidate, running big newspaper advertisements and issuing considerable publicity directed against the republican nominee.

Service Men are for Bingham

A large number of prominent ex-service men in Connecticut are working for the election of Hiram Bingham for United States senator. They have distributed an interesting leaflet covering Colonel Bingham's service record.

"Where was Holt in 1917 and 1918" asks the leaflet. "In the spring of 1918 when Hamilton Holt, as guest of the allied governments was inspecting the battle fronts, Colonel Bingham, wearing the uniform of the United States army, was in the service of his country helping to make safe the tour of inspection by the 'distinguished' visitor." The leaflet also covers Hamilton Holt's activities with the socialists and pacifists, which came to light during the Lusk investigation in New York. Holt is termed a "parlor patriot."

Bingham's service record, starting from his enlistment as a private in the Connecticut national guard in 1916, and ending with his being the commanding officer of the aviation center at Issoudon, France, is offered for comparison.

The leaflet is entitled "Does Service with the Colors Mean Anything to You?"

The ex-service men who are acting as a committee in interesting the ex-service men in the election of the republican nominee are:

Major J. W. Gilson, Field Artillery, A. E. F.; Thomas S. MacLagan, 3rd Army Corps, A. E. F.; Harry Schwolski, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. A.; Lieutenant Francis P. Pallotti, U. S. A.; Raymond J. Wright, the Poor and Sickly Minister

After many vain attempts to interest publishers in his writings, Harold Bell Wright, obscure and penniless minister in a small town faced disappointment, poverty and sickness.

Almost from the time he was a baby, in Rome, N. Y., he had tried to achieve. After attending public school he entered Hiram College, Ohio, and obtained work in a bookstore at 15. He also became a painter and decorator.

Fired by the story of Ruskin, he decided to be a great painter and went to the Ozarks where he began to paint pictures. The minister of the local church did not appear at a meeting. Wright was asked to preach and although he had no theological training, he was requested to fill the pulpit regularly. He was his own janitor and paid for the lights.

Next pastor of the Christian church at Pierce City, Mo., at $8 a week, he received the best offer he had ever had for commercial work as an artist just when a call came from the church of Pittsburg, Kas.

Deciding to follow the ministry, he spent five years in Pittsburgh. In his spare time he wrote stories, but none satisfied him. In Pittsburg, at 27, he was married. At 31 he became pastor in Kansas City, and two years later went to little Lebanon, Kans.

Having written "That Printer of Udells," he tried to interest publishers, but without avail. His salary was small and his health bad, so the outlook was clouded. Finally the family doctor took him to Chicago and interested an obscure publisher in his book.

It soon became popular. Wright, now 32, went to the Ozarks and built a cabin, where he worked and mended his health. There he wrote The Shepherd of the Hills. A year later he became pastor in Redlands, Calif., but resigned from the ministry at 36 and went to El Centro, and while living in a tent wrote The Calling of Dan Mathews, and The Winning of Barbara Worth. The demand for his writings grew and many of his novels passed the three million mark of circulation.

Wright is still writing novels, and at 52 has made more than a million dollars from his literary work.

BY THE HORNS

"I'd like to lay hands on him!" fervently growled Timbertail, flopping over in the porch hammock, where he had just started a beautiful nap. Low down over the trees thrummed and roared the airplane which for days had disturbed the peaceful quiet of the cottagers at Purple lake.

Timbertail actually shook a fist at the airplane tail flirting away over the tallest pine. "From daylight till dark," he declared irately to Jessie Timbertail, who had just come out onto the porch, "that chap roars around here about six feet from the ground, and if it wouldn't mess up the woods so I wish he'd have engine trouble and crash down! What's he acting so for?"

"For $10 every twenty minutes," Jessie informed him instantly. "Why, he's the best-looking thing you ever laid eyes on and all the girls are crazy about going up with him and he's doing it to get the cash to start in business himself this fall manufacturing airplane accessories."

"Well, well!" said Timbertail, sitting up and visually abandoning his nap. He eyed his daughter with interest.

"He staying at the inn and everybody dances with him!" defended Jessie hotly. "He—he's perfectly all right!"

"Oh, of course if he's a good dancer that's sufficient," said Timbertail.

Timbertail strolled down to that evening's dance a bit worried. He wanted to look this chap over. Neither Jessie nor a strange young man were among the gay dancers on the floor and he was a trifle comforted by the fact. The reason was that at the moment the two were speeding along the concrete highway in Jessie's roadster beneath the full moon.

"I can't believe it!" the best looking young man was murmuring in the girl's ear. "Here just two weeks and—Tell me again it's true, Jessie!"

"It's true, Dick," she said soberly looking at him with that in her eyes which a man does not see often.

"We'll have so little to start out on," he told her. "I'm afraid you'll be unhappy after having everything all your life! You'll be sorry—"

She answered him the way girls always answer that plea.

"I don't know how we're ever going to tell father," Jessie worried. "He says—"

"Never mind," sighed the young man. I have a good imagination."

Timbertail continued to threaten apoplexy every time the airplane roared across the place. Nobody seemed to know anything definite about this irritating young man. Sparks flew at any mention of him.

Half a mile out of the woods that night on Timbertail's way to catch the train for Chicago, where important business needed him in the morning the Timbertail car broke down. It refused to budge and nobody drove by to rescue him.

"I'd give a thousand dollars sooner'n miss that train," fumed Timbertail. Jessie rose up in the driver's seat and yoo-hooed shrilly in the direction of the vacant field to the left. Under the moon Timbertail saw a figure detach itself from a gray shadow and vault the fence.

"Hello, Dick," she said. "Tau can earn a clear thousand dollars this minute if your plane is ready to get dad to the station in the village. You can land across the tracks in that big vacant space. This way, father!"

Timbertail is very likely these days to break into any topic of conversation to expatiate on the guit and cleverness of his son-in-law, the lad who answered big father's blurt about not being able to earn his salt by raking in five thousand in three months running a Jiney airplane last summer. "His father is Tom Grogatress," Timbertail explains. "One of my best friends in business, keen old codger! You bet Dick collected from him From me, too, darn him! Say, you can't keep that boy down! He'n Jessie insisted on starting out on just what he makes, too! Knew the minute I saw him he was the sort I wanted for a son-in-law!"

Maybe it is just as well Timbertail never knew that when Jessie got back to the Timbertail car that night after the breakdown when Dick came to the rescue with his airplane the car seemed to have repaired itself during her absence. Anyhow, she and Dick drove back to the lake contentedly in it after they had parked the plane for the night in the field close by.

"Why, I just knew he'd like you if he once had a chance to look at you without having apoplexy!" Jessie said. "Especially since you seem to have picked out a friend of his for a father, you smart thing!"—Chicago News.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

ANTIOCH

The ancient city of Antioch, in Syria, which already has yielded rich treasures of antiquity, is the scene of explorations which have just disclosed an early church on a site where Paul and Barnabas are believed to have preached.

A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society, based on a communication by William H. Hall, says:

"For a thousand years Antioch was the capital city that ruled the industries, trade, and commerce of the Euphrates and Tigris valleys. And now the turn of Fortune's wheel has again directed the stream of trade past her doors.

"She has become the natural outlet for the wealth of cotton, corn, and dates produced in the Valley of Mesopotamia.

"In the days of its glory the people of Antioch were gathered in the great theater listening to a famous actress while the Persians were besieging the city. They trusted to their splendid fortifications and feared naught. At a point in the play the actress paused, while, with arm outstretched toward the mountain above the city she exclaimed, 'Behold, the Persians are come!' There was great applause, the audience thinking it a fine bit of stage play; but as a shower of arrows darkened the sky, the people turned to behold that instead of play it was reality. The enemy was within the walls, and plunder and destruction had already begun.

"When we read the story of Ben Hur and follow him about the streets of that splendid city or enter with him the palaces of the rich, or see Messala gaming with his friends in the magnificent palace on the island in the Orontes, or watch with breathless interest as the hero guides the four fleet Arab steeds through the maze of the chariot race, Antioch seems a fabled city of ancient times, living in story only.

"It is hard to come to reality and think of American Fords and Italian Fiats rushing along the roads where Ben Hur guided his matchless Arab steeds, or of great motor lorries trundling across the plain where the long trains of camels brought their caravans of riches from the east. The hippodrome where Ben Hur, the Jew, contested with Messala, the Roman, is in ruins, but the east and the west are just as surely in conflict today.

"According to the Roman poet and satirist, Juvenal, from Antioch also, 'the waters of the Orontes overflowed into the Tiber,' and thence came superstitutions and indulgences and excesses that caused the corruption of Rome. This may be true, but also it was in Antioch that the disciples were first called Christians.'

"The most magnificent splendor of Antioch was its great street. This ran straight through the city from east to west. At each end there was an impressive gate. The eastern gate was later known as the 'Gate of St. Paul.' It was still standing forty-five years ago, almost complete; but now even the foundations have been removed for buildings in the modern city. The western, or Daphne gate, was called the 'Gate of the Cherubim,' for over this gate it is said the golden cherubim he had taken from the temple in Jerusalem.

"These two gates were about four miles apart. Between them was a grand boulevard.

"On each side of the street was a double row of columns. The outside aisle in each case was roofed over, furnishing a shady walk in summer and a dry and sheltered way during the winter storms. Between the inner rows of columns was a broad highway for chariots and horsemen. It has been estimated that if these columns were the same distance from each other as those still standing in the street of Palmyra, there would have been 8,800 in all.

"This street was lined with magnificent public buildings, temples, shrines, and palaces of the nobles.

"Imagine, then, this grand highway, with its long vista of granite, marble, and porphyry columns, its covered promenade rich in statues and carvings, its marble pavements, its beautiful Grecian architecture, and, terminating all, the golden decorations of the western gate blazing in the light of the setting sun.

"Fill this street with its busy throngs of men and women; Here a religious procession, the priests clad in the many-colored vestments of their office, the animal for sacrifice decked with wreaths and garlands of flowers, and the company of singers chanting the solemn processional there a gay throng of revelers in wedding procession, escorting the bridal pair to the beautiful Nymphaeum, near the river side, a great circular, dome-covered building, rich in columns and statues, and with cool, plashing fountains—and institution with special accomodations for the celebration of nuptials; or, again, down the great street there might come some victorious general, returning triumph from his foreign campaign—slaves, soldiers, sovereigns, all following his triumphal car. Thus came the great Caesar himself, while the city resounded again and again to cries of loyalty and adoration.

"Many other streets crossed the great street, always at right angles, and at every intersection arches were erected, called 'tetrapyli.'

"About the middle of the city another broad street, also colonnaded, extended from the river to the mountain. In this street, near the river, was located the Nymphaeum, mentioned previously, and where it crossed the great street was created the 'Omphalos.'

"This altar was the center of the city and was devised in imitation of that at Delphi, which had been erected by the ancient Greeks, supposing Delphi to be the center of the world. Here was a sitting statue of Apollo, the patron god of the Seleucids.

"Outside the eastern gate for a distance of two miles King Herod of the Jews built a continuation of the great street.

"Herod's street also had a row of columns and was paved with marble. It traversed the portion of the city known as Herod's suburb.

"From the western or Daphne gate, a great highway extended for some six or eight miles through the suburb of Heraclea to the noted Grove of Daphne. This road skirted the low foothills. At frequent intervals there were fountains, and on both sides were the magnificent villas of the nobility of Antioch."

CHILD TRAINING

Experiences In Thrift

A trainman on a western railroad recently recited his experiences in thrift, and they are given here because they constitute an excellent lesson in the science of personal economics.

"I had never learned to save money," he said, "but one day the thought suddenly came to me that I was just drifting along from year to year without anything to show for my work. So I determined to save. It was hard at first to change my habits of life, but as I went along and my savings grew they proved a real inspiration to me. I soon learned that thrift brings more happiness than any of the superficial joys and pleasures of life.

"Within three years I had saved about $1000, and then came an opportunity to buy a building lot in the outskirts of the city where I live for $300, which later proved to be a great bargain. Slowly and carefully my wife and I proceeded with plans for building our home, and in the course of time it was completed. It now represents an outlay of $6,100 with a mortgage of $2,200, but the city where I live has grown rapidly and I recently was offered $8,000 cash for my equity, which I decided not to accept as I thought it best to let well enough alone.

My practices of thrift have revolutionized my life. I feel more self-respect, more self-confidence, and I am happier than ever was the case before I began saving money. Furthermore, I realize that I have a different mental viewpoint. I feel myself more in harmony with my employers. I am more ambitious to serve them to the utmost of my ability, for I fully realize that after all it is said and done, we are all partners in our work."

Here is a chapter from real life—an annal in thrift typical of the experiences of those upon whom the progress of the nation rests.

No illuminating words are needed to make plain the golden lesson of such recitals.—American Society for Thrift.

A Horse Laugh.

Robert, age 4, was on the porch intently watching a horse, which was left standing at the curb.

The horse raised its head and nickered. Robert ran, in great fright to his mother, exclaiming "That horse laughed at me!"

The small boys played their usual pranks Hallowe'en and in this particular locality they parked the porch furniture in trees and other unexpected places. The police took the trail of the mischief makers and finally they were all rounded up.

To one little fellow who had been caught red handed the policeman said: "I believe I'll have to put you in jail tonight."

Tears filled the boy's eyes and he replied:

"I don't know whether I can stay or not. I don't think my mamma will let me."

COUNCIL 7 TO 5 FOR CLEARING WAY FOR CITIZENS TO VOTE ON G. & E. SALE

By a 7 to 5 vote the court of common council at a special meeting Thursday evening approved the $3,000,000 offer of A. E. Fitkin & Co. of New York for the purchase of the city's gas and electric plant on North Main street, and adopted a resolution approving the petition of the Fitkin interests to the general assembly of the state asking that they be granted a charter with permission to acquire the plant through a referendum vote. While the council's special gas and electric committee approved the Fitkin offer, it expressed no opinion as to whether or not the plant should be sold, but recommended that the entire matter be submitted to the voters of the city for their approval or disapproval on either a ballot or machine vote.

The meeting was called to order about 8.30 o'clock by His Honor Mayor Milo R. Waters with one absentee, Councilman F. Russell Smith. The minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading, according to custom, and the council then took up the report of the special gas and electric committee appointed to consider the offers for the plant. The offers made by the three bidders, Central Connecticut Power and Light Co., the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. and A. E. Fitkin & Co. of New York, were read by City Clerk Weston R. Pullen, following which the clerk read a letter received by Mayor Waters Tuesday from the old Norwich Gas and Electric company. The letter, which was dated Dec. 8, at Watertown, Conn., and signed by Alex J. Campbell, president of the company, stated that it had come to the attention of the company that the sale of the G. and E. plant was contemplated by the city, and calling attention to the fact that the Norwich Gas and Electric company, original owners of the plant, have franchise rights to sell power here. The letter stated that it was felt the company should have an opportunity to submit an offer. There were no other new offers.

Report of Committee.

The report of the council committee was then read as follows:

To the Honorable Court of Common Council of the City of Norwich:

Your committee appointed to investigate the offer of Bodell & Co. for the property of the gas and electrical department of the city beg leave to report:

1. That Bodell & Co. have since the appointment of the committee presented a new offer substantially the same as that presented to the council except that it is made in the name of the Central Connecticut Power and Light company.

2. That in addition to the offer of the Central Connecticut Power and Light company your committee has received two other offers for the property of the gas and electrical department of the city, one from the Eastern Connecticut Power company, which is substantially the same as that submitted by them earlier in the year, and the other from A. E. Fitkin & Co. of New York, both of which, together with the offer of the Central Connecticut Power and Light company, accompany this report.

3. That your committee have thoroughly considered all these offers and are of the opinion that if the property of the gas and electrical department of the city is to be sold, it should be sold only for the highest price obtainable.

4. That your committee is further of the opinion that the city should not dispose of its gas and electrical department without the consent of a majority of its electors voting, either by ballot or upon machines in the same manner as the mayor and court of common council of the city are elected.

5. That the offer of A. E. Fitkin & company is the highest offer received by your committee for the gas and electrical department of the city and the one that, in the opinion of your committee, should be submitted to the electors of the city.

6. That your committee expresses no opinion as to whether or not the gas and electrical department should be sold, but believe that the offer of A. E. Fitkin & company should be submitted to the voters of the city.

7. That your committee have taken legal opinion and find that the offer of A. E. Fitkin & company cannot now be accepted by the city, but that action by the legislature of the state of Connecticut will be necessary for the proper and legal presentation of this offer to the electors of the city; that A. E. Fitkin and others have prepared a petition for such action upon the part of the legislature of the state of Connecticut, a copy of which accompanies this report; and that your committee, believing the offer of A. E. Fitkin & company should be properly presented to the voters of the city, recommend that the mayor and court of common council join with A. E. Fitkin and others in said petition.

Your committee therefore recommends the adoption of the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the mayor and court of common council of the city of Norwich approve of the petition of A. E. Fitkin and others, dated Dec. 9, 1924, a copy of which was submitted to this meeting and is now on file with the clerk, and said court of common council requests that the general assembly grant said petition; and the mayor and clerk on behalf of said court of common council are hereby authorized to join with said petitioners in signing said petition, and are further authorized to appear before the general assembly in favor of the granting of said petition.

Resolved, That the clerk transmit to A. E. Fitkin & company, the Central Connecticut Power and Light company and the Eastern Connecticut Power company, each, a copy of this report together with a notice of the action of the council thereon.

Dated at Norwich, Conn., Dec. 11, 1924.

EDWARD CROOKS,
Committee.

Following the reading of the committee's report the Fitkin petition to the general assembly, signed by A. E. Fitkin, J. J. Desmond and Angus Park was read by the clerk as follows:

To the honorable general assembly of the state of Connecticut at its session to be held at Hartford on the first Wednesday following the first Monday of January, A. D. 1925.

The undersigned respectfully request that they, with their associates and assigns, be granted a charter so that they may be authorized to acquire from the city of Norwich its gas and electrical department, including all the assets of said department, its buildings, real estate, plants, machinery, equipment, generators, pipes, mains, meters, gas holders, also its electric generating and transforming stations, distributing wires and systems, poles, feeders, transformers, and all assets of said department including its accounts receivable and cash on hand and in banks and all other property of said department, excepting such assets of said department as have been set aside for a sinking fund on account of certain bonds of the city issued in aid of the Gas and Electrical Department and due in 1951, amounting to approximately $16,000, including in the property to be acquired all property acquired from the Norwich Gas and Electric company now owned or enjoyed by the city in respect to the said department; the property to be transferred subject only to the current liabilities of the department, which are to be assumed, and to bonds issued by the Norwich Gas and Electric Company of $400,000 face value, due in 1927, which will remain outstanding. Such charter to provide for the assumption by the petitioners or the company to be chartered of all contractual obligations of the city on account of said department, existing at the date of transfer in the ordinary course of business, excepting all obligations on account of money borrowed by said city.

The undersigned further petition that the city of Norwich may be empowered to make such sale of its gas and electrical department and assets as stated in this petition upon such terms and upon such conditions as may be approved by the mayor and court of common council of the city of Norwich, subject to the approval of said city by a majority of its electors voting thereon, said vote to be taken either by ballot or on machine in the same manner as in the election of city officers, as determined by the mayor and court of common council of said city.

The undersigned further respectfully petition that when they have so acquired from said city of Norwich the gas and electric properties of its said department, the company be granted a proper franchise to operate the gas and electric properties so acquired and that at such time they be further authorized to manufacture, purchase, sell and distribute gas and electricity in the city and town of Norwich and adjoining towns, except in the town of Montville.

Dater at Norwich, Conn., this 9th day of December, 1924.

A. E. FITKIN.
J. J. DESMOND,
ANGUS PARK.

The resolution approving the petition was as follows:

Resolved, That the mayor and court of common council of the city of Norwich approve of the petition of A. E. Fitkin and others dated December 9th, 1924, a copy of which was submitted to this meeting and is now on file with the clerk and said court of common council requests that the general assembly grant said petition; and the mayor and clerk on behalf of said court of common council are hereby authorized to join with said petitioners in signing said petition and are further authorized to appear before the general assembly in favor of the granting of said petition.

Alderman Henry Gebrath moved that the committee's report be accepted and the resolution adopted. The vote was as follows: In favor: Mayor Milo R. Waters, Alderman Henry Gebrath, Alderman Edward Crooks, Alderman E. LaRue Bliven, Councilman Lee Clegg, Councilman A. E. Lillibridge and Councilman Martin Rozycki. Voting against: Councilman Patrick F. Sweeney, Councilman Frank L. Rinella, Councilman Nicholas J. Spellman, Councilman William Aldrich and Councilman Frank H. Quinley. Absent, Councilman F. Russell Smith. Result —For the resolution, 7; against the resolution 5. Resolution was declared adopted. The vote showed the republican members of the council supporting Mayor Waters and Alderman Gebrath and the democratic members voting against them.

The council, having disposed of the gas and electric matter, then took up several other matters that came before them for action. The sum of $300 was voted to be paid to Michael Lapu, guardian of John Lapu, in full settlement of his claim against the city for injuries received by John Lapu when he was struck by an automobile of the fire department last March.

The police committee reported that they had granted the petition for an electric light at the foot of the stairs leading to the Elizabeth street school house.

A deed from John Kohwalsky and Joseph Glowacki of land on South street, the land to be used as a highway to be known as Rose street was accepted by the council, as was also a deed from Herman A. Wolf of a strip of land on Laurel Hill to be used for highway purposes. The sum of $400 was voted to be paid to Mr. Wolf for the land. Alderman Gebrath explained that the matter was necessary due to the widening of Laurel Hill.

As there was no other business to come before the council adjournment was taken shortly after 9 o'clock.

FOLLOWED TIRE MARK TO CATCH THIEF

Following the peculiar mark left by a tire, County Detective William Lewis, Constables Riley of Colchester and Hoxie of Lebanon, arrested Joseph Shurly at his home across the Colchester depot late Wednesday afternoon for theft of 11 bags of coal and early Thursday morning arrested him a second time for theft of automobile parts.

The arrest is believed to solve the mystery of who has been stealing parts from automobiles in the Lebanon, Bozrah and Colchester section for some time past. Batteries, tires, carburetors, headlight rigs and other parts have been disappearing from machines. A great quantity of automobile accessories were found at Shurly's place, among which were two batteries which have been identified by Starr Sullivan and a man named Beswick. Shurley showed the officers where he had two batteries buried in the ground.

The officers learned that Shurly made a trip to Hartford with a truck load of parts between the time of the two arrests and the man was loading up his truck again when the officers reached his place to make the second arrest.

STATE BOYS' SECRETARY AT NORWICH Y. M. C. A.

At the weekly session of the Y. M. C. A. Employed Boys Brotherhood on Thursday evening, a large number of the members were present at the supper meeting and there was plenty of enthusiasm manifested.

During the supper period lively songs were sung with the efficient pianist of the club, Robert Otis, furnishing the music. After supper President Albert Leffingwell made a few remarks and then called for the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting after which he introduced E. A. Stanley of New Haven, the Y. M. C. A. boys' secretary, who is always a welcome visitor at the local "Y." Mr. Stanley made an informal but very impressive address and held the closest possible attention of the boys. He told of some of his experiences in Europe last year, and of a man from India who told an intensely interesting story on cooperation. The speaker emphasized the thought that no boy can become the man he should be unless he cultivates the various sides of his nature. Every boy should develop his body and keep it fit, but that alone is not enough. He must train and develop his mind as well. Any boy who ceases to study even after he leaves school is a piker. The boys of today have many more opportunities than the boys of past generations.

If you boys are to become the men you should be, said Mr. Stanley, you must have a place for religion in your lives. The really great men of the ages were men who took God into their lives. The question is, do you pray, not in a make-believe way, but do you really talk with God, just as you would talk to father and mother? Unless you pray, you cannot be the man you should become.

After the talk the boys heartily applauded the speaker, and the meeting was brought to a close by the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

"UNCLE JOHN" CLARK AT FOUR SCORE AND FIVE

John T. Clark, (Uncle John) will celebrate his 85th birthday today (Friday) and hundred of his friends in Norwich and vicinity will call upon him during the day or wish him many more years of happy life.

During the day "Uncle John" will be at home to his many friends in his suite of rooms in the Wauregan hotel, where he has made his home for the past 62 years, a record unequalled in the annals of hotel history in this country.

Mr. Clark was born at East Great Plain, December 12, 1839 and has always made his home in Norwich. A successful business man, his judgment of furs is still among the best in the country, and, as a sportsman, Mr. Clark is remembered by many a horseman, hunter and fisherman of the days of some years ago.

Mr. Clark continues to enjoy his usual good health and it is the sincere wish of friends everywhere that he continue to do so for many years to come and that his 85 years young may be only a start of other years to follow.

Mr. Clark is the senior member of the Arcanum club and daily visits the club rooms on Main street to visit with friends and acquaintances.

RARE TRUMBULL LETTERS IN NEW YORK COLLECTION

The Charles Allen Munn collection of rare manuscripts, on view in New York this week, contains the following of Norwich and Lebanon interest:

Jonathan Trumbull's revised manuscript of the "description of the four pictures . . . in the rotunda of the Capitol"; letterbook of John Trumbull, copies made by him in 1818 of letters written from Feb. 22, 1777, to June 11, 1789; letterbook of John Trumbull from Jan. 3, 1808, to Nov. 5, 1810; account book of John Trumbull containing an inventory of prints made by him remaining in his possession.

Also John Trumbull's unsigned letters written to the prince regent of Great Britain and to Louis XVIII, of France on behalf of the American Academy of Fine Arts 1819; autographed letter addressed to Washington, dated Lebanon, March 18, 1776.

THE NORTH POLE—AND FIVE OTHERS

The earth has at least six well-known poles, in three groups of twins, only one of which The Shenandoah or the ZR-3, if they blaze an air trail across the Arctic, will probably cross—the North Pole. The others of the polar family are the 'poles of cold,' the South Pole and the North and South Magnetic Poles," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The most talked of member of the family is the North Pole. Enthroned at the top of the earth where latitude becomes 90 degrees and the meridians of longitude converge, it has received only one visit in all time. Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary with his retinue of Eskimo attendants, spent a few hours in its frigid presence and took notes on its refrigerating system.

"Scientists tell us that this refrigerating plant, installed and operated solely by Nature, never fails to register below the freezing point of fresh water even during July, and that its mean temperature in winter is about that of some of the Montana cold snaps.

"Even Old Sol, when he returns to the North has been unsuccessful in breaking up the plant, though at the summer solstice he pours out larger amounts of his rays there than at any other part of the earth's surface except at the corresponding point in the south. If he didn't have to keep moving he soon would make the Arctic ice-cap the hottest region on the earth's surface, but he only succeeds in melting the surface ice. In honor, or defiance, of his visit, daylight lasts for six months, but humidity, cloudiness and precipitation mar the beauty of his rays on the crystals of the snow palace.

"When he leaves and night sets in, fantastic lighting effects, which shame those of New York's Great White Way, are brought into play. The northern part of the sky is illuminated by an arch of whitish, greenish, or rosy light from which streamers of white or colored light go trailing across the heavens. This effect is called the aurora borealis.

"Though the North Pole can never leave its kingdom and has been rigidly bound down by Nature, it does manage to shift about in a circle about 50 feet in diameter. This restlessness causes a corresponding variability in terrestrial latitudes.

"When Admiral Peary stood on the top point of the earth, he was actually being turned around only once in 24 hours with the rotation of the earth. As he simply lingered for a few hours he made only a small part of a revolution—a pace which is not conducive to dizziness. A man in the city of Quito, Ecuador, on the Equator, during that same time, was being whirled along through an immense circle at the rate of about 1,000 miles an hour.

"The other monarch of the world's ice lands is the South Pole twin of the North Pole. Though there is all the distance in the world between them, in the main, the surroundings are duplicated. The arrangement of land and water in their respective spheres of influence is somewhat different; the southern, a land zone surrounded by a wide belt of open sea, and the northern, a water body surrounded by continental land masses. The southern monarch likes his summers colder; in fact so cold are the summers and so regular the winds that there is practically no plant life of even the most insignificant kind on the Antarctic Continent. He is also less exclusive than his brother of the North, having received two earthly travelers within his portals—Captain Roald Amundsen and Captain Robert F. Scott, but from the latter he exacted a death penalty.

"The North and South Magnetic poles lie more than a thousand miles from the true North and South Poles toward Hudson Bay and New Zealand, are the elusive members of the polar family. The North Magnetic Pole makes the compass needle stand up straight on its point and the South Magnetic Pole makes it stand on its feet, and they both play tricks with all sorts of metal instruments by magnetizing or demagnetizing their parts.

"When John Jones travels through the northern Wisconsin or Minnesota woods solely with the aid of his compass, he cannot go directly north unless he travels just a little west of the direction in which his compass points because of its affinity for the North Magnetic Pole.

"The explanation of the magnetic poles is that the earth itself is a magnet, made so probably by the electric currents passing around it in an east-west direction. Both these poles also are wanderers within a prescribed area.

"The Poles of Cold are the Ishmaels and Hagars of the polar family—outcasts, both erratic and disagreeable. They reside in the places where the cold is most intense, usually in the interior of a continent. Though the North Pole has the coldest mean annual temperature, there is a desert of ice in the interior of Greenland which is the coldest part of the northern hemisphere in July. Verkhoyansk, in northeastern Siberia, on the fringe of the Arctic Circle is colder in January than the North Pole itself. It even boasts a record of 94 degrees Fahrenheit below zero, but its mean temperature for January is about minus 60 degrees Fahrenheit. During February Fort Conger, Grinnell Land, on Ellesmere Island in the Arctic, claims the honor, with a mean temperature for February of about minus 40 degrees Fahrenheit."

Interesting if True

The Tokyo telephone bureau has issued detailed statistics that are interesting. When a woman is talking to a woman, it is asserted, 26.4 per cent of the talk is idle and unnecessary; when a woman calls a man the waste is 13.3 per cent; when a man calls a woman, it is only 9.7 per cent; when two men talk, 10.6 per cent.

Theodore Chalkadi, who has been the Winsted representative of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. for a number of years, was arrested in that place last night on complaint of the company.

Rather Muddled

The absent-minded professor, who had been attending a lecture all the evening, returned home very late and rather muddled. On entering his bedroom, he thought he heard some one move under the bed. "Who's under there?" he called out. "No one," replied the burglar. "Funny!" said the professor. "I could have sworn I heard some one there!"

COVELESKI AND M'NALLY SECURED BY WASHINGTON IN TWO TRADES

New York, Dec. 11.—(By The A. P.)—Two important deals, in both of which the world's champion Washington Senators figured, emerged from a maze of negotiations today making the final gathering of baseball claims here.

The Senators obtained Stanley Coveleski, veteran Cleveland pitcher, and strengthened their infield reserve forces by getting Mike McNally, utility man traded only yesterday to Boston by the New York Yankees for Howard Shanks.

Washington gave J. T. Prothro, third baseman called back last season from Memphis, in exchange for McNally, while Cleveland gets Byron Speece, submarine ball pitcher, and Carl Smith, outfielder farmed to Memphis last season, for Coveleski.

Prothro, a .300 hitter, will play regular at third for the Red Sox, according to Bob Quinn, president of the club. McNally will give the Senators an understudy for third base and shortstop, where re-inforcements were badly needed during the last world's series.

Progress was made by the Yankees in their efforts to obtain Urban Shocker, veteran spitball pitcher, and it was reported two St. Louis and three Yankee players would figure in the deal now under consideration, with either Joe Bush or Bob Shawkey going to the Browns. According to Miller Huggin, manager of the Yankees, however, nothing definite will be done for several days.

St. Louis and Boston National league officials discussed a deal the details of which were not disclosed, while the efforts of Cincinnati to obtain Bill Terry, first baseman, from the Giants, were declared off when the Giants refused to take Adolfo Luque, Cuban pitcher, in exchange for Terry and insisted on either Pete or Eppa Rixey, other members of the Red mound staff.

DAVIS ELECTED CAPTAIN OF BULKELEY ELEVEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 11.—Eleven Bulkeley football players who have made history while at the local institution have discarded their football uniforms for the last time here this afternoon. Being donned temporarily for the purpose of having a picture taken of the team the moleskins ed for the last time this has assembled. Their nd ability on the gridiron won the Bulkeley iable reputation in the ew England states, and at the same time giving Bulkeley the most successful season this school team has enjoyed from the time this school was in existence.

Out of fifteen letter men who assembled here this noon, only four will be available for the football team next fall. They are Alexander Brown, Thomas Davis, Horace Wilson and Edward Collins. Before adjourning, the squad met for the purpose of electing a captain for the 1925 team and Thomas Davis, a member of the present junior class, was elected as captain over Alexander Brown by an 8 to 6 vote. Those who voted were Captain George H. Sheffott, Walter Tice, Alexander Brown, Thomas Davis, Edward Collins, Edward Hendle, Walter J. Barry, Jeremiah Dillon, Horace Wilson, Buck Garritt, Joseph Watterson, Tillotson Daniels, Carl Graves and James Latham. Harold Hutchison was absent from the meeting.

Thomas Davis, who was elected as captain for next year, did not hold a regular position on the eleven this year. He substituted at guard, tackle and end, alternating at these positions as the occasion demanded. Where he will play regularly next year is a problem undecided as yet.

KAPLAN AND LOMBARDO MEET AT GARDEN TONIGHT

New York, Dec. 11.—Louis (Kid) Meriden, Conn., and Jose of Panama, two of the ivors in the weatherweight tournament, will meet tonight in a 12-round match at Madison Square Garden in the semi-final round of the tournament to determine a successor to Johnny Dundee, retired king of the 126-pound division. Danny Kramer, Philadelphia portsider, the other survivor, will meet the winner in a 15-round bout three weeks from tomorrow night.

Lombardo won from Lou Paluso, of Salt Lake City in the first round of the tournament while Kaplan defeated Bobby Garcia, the doughty Mexican from Camp Holabird, Md. Kramer advanced automatically to the final round by drawing a bye.

Garcia and Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill., who were eliminated in the first round, will meet in the semi-final match tomorrow night but this match has no status in the titular tournament.

BULKELEY OPENS BASKETBALL SEASON THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 11.—After a lapse of two years, basketball will be formally welcomed at Bulkeley this (Friday) afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. court where the wearers of the Orange and Black will open their present season opposing South Kingston High from Peace Dale, R. I. The game will get under way at 2.30 promptly, and the contest will mark the return of basketball at the local institution after an absence of two years.

South Kingston is an unknown quantity as far as her ability to do things on the marked court is concerned. Considering what South Kingston has accomplished on the marked court against Bulkeley in the past years, it looks as though the Bulkeley five will have its hands full in coming out a victor in the initial game of the year.

With the eligibility rules robbing Coach William R. Canty of his best player in Huek Taylor, an attempt to meet the invasion of their little Rhody rivals with a makeshift quintet will be made. After considerable preliminary workouts, which have extended over a period of three weeks, although not keyed up for an opening game as yet, the Bulkeley team is anxious to emerge a winner.

Unless some last minute change is made, the Bulkeley team will lineup as follows today: Forwards, Donohue and Parigi; center, Sheffott; guards, Watterson and Rice. Rice is the only man who really saw service with the team two years ago. He was at first tried out at forward at the beginning of the season due to the scarcity of forwards of the right type. Rice failed to have the necessary requirements that go to make up a forward and he was changed to his more natural position at guard. Rice was inactive last season and this may have an effect upon his playing this year.

Watterson, who will occupy the other guard position fills the bill satisfactorily it seems. He is a heavier type of guard, and will be used more to protect the scoring area from invasion by the rival hoopsters. George Sheffott at center is the best that seems to be at the school. But his type is not of the right sort, as he is rather more bulky than elongated as a center, to hold down the position as it should be.

Parisi and Donohue will be placed in the forward berths. This pair has not found their best possible form as yet. There seems to be no coordination between the pair, but as they have never teamed up together before it is most likely that they will improve as the season gets older. Parisi seems to be the most accurate basket shooter of the entire squad and most of the bones are pinned on his ability to come through on Friday.

The basketball jerseys have arrived and were distributed among the players today.

WILLIAMS TO MAKE JOHNSON PROVE STATEMENT

New York, Dec. 11.—(By The A. P.)—The issue brought about by the charges of Ban Johnson that gambling existed in Pacific Coast league circles, of which he asserted the league was cognizant, will not be closed in spite of the refusal of the American league to act yesterday on the evidence produced by its president.

The announcement was made today by Harry A. Williams, president of the Pacific Coast league, who attacked Johnson in a statement and declared that, failing in attempts to obtain the evidence in Johnson's possession, he would carry the matter to Commissioner Landis.

Before leaving this afternoon Williams said he would seek a conference in Chicago tomorrow with Landis. Reports from Rochester, Minn., however, quoted Landis as saying he would be unable to meet Williams as early as that.

Williams, backed by club owners of his circuit, said he would insist that Johnson, under terms of a resolution adopted at Hartford, Conn., last week, prove before Landis that "the Coast League is "shot through with crookedness," as he charged in the newspapers."

Johnson tonight declined to comment on Williams' statement but his secretary, William Harridge, said the American league president considered the affair a personal issue, which he would pursue at the proper time.

M'GRAW SLAMS JOHNSON IN SPEECH AT NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 11.—(By The A. P.)—John J. McGraw, veteran manager of the New York Giants, who was the target of criticism by Ban Johnson at the time of the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal, has hit back at the American league president. Relations were made today of an attack by McGraw delivered last night at a banquet of National league club owners, before whom the Giant leaders accused Johnson of making "base charges and insinuations" against the New York club.

"It is war to the finish against enemies of the National league," said McGraw in reference to Johnson. This statement was echoed at the banquet by William F. Baker, president of the Philadelphia club.

This belligerent attitude, it was said tonight, was characteristic of the feeling which National league magnates would carry into the joint meeting at Chicago next week in contrast to the conciliatory stand taken by American league men.

JOINT BASEBALL MEETING IS PUT OVER UNTIL NEXT WEDNESDAY AT CHICAGO

New York, Dec. 11 (By the A. P.)—The last scene in the 1924 drama centering about baseball's governing forces will be enacted at Chicago next Wednesday when Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis will preside over a joint major league meeting which is expected to produce a final "show-down" in his war with Ban Johnson, president of the American league.

The decision to shift the meeting to Chicago was reached this afternoon by major league club owners who compromised on the date for their adjourned session. The meeting is slated for 11 a. m., at Congress Hotel.

National league men, it was understood, insisted upon an early date for the meeting with Landis because of a desire to press the advantage conceded to have been gained by the commissioner's supporters in obtaining endorsement from both leagues at their annual meetings within the past few days. American leaguers, Johnson, were said to desire further time to solidify their ranks.

Commissioner Landis was considered to be solidly entrenched for the final act next week but there were strong indications that club owners, particularly in American league ranks, would seek a compromise that would settle the feud between the two warring officials.

The first move in this direction will be made by the special committee appointed by the American league yesterday to confer with Landis in an attempt to bring about "full harmony."

Colonel Jacob Rupert, president of the New York Yankees and spokesman for this committee, announced that its members intended to meet Landis early next Wednesday at Chicago in an effort to pave the way for peace at the joint general session. E. S. Barnard of Cleveland and Thomas Shibe of Philadelphia are the other members of the committee.

Johnson, who attended the meeting today, as did President Heydler of the National league, refused to break the silence he has maintained ever since his arrival. His friends, however, said he had accepted the rebuke of his own club owners yesterday without outward show of bitterness. They predicted he would make no move to obstruct the attempts to restore tranquility to major league ranks.

Landis, on the other hand, was represented as desiring a complete vindication of his policies and administration. As proof of the advantage he has gained so far, it was said authoritatively that he had practically dictated the action of the majors within the past few days, keeping in touch with the situation daily by telephone. He was said, however, to have told associates that he would not continue at the head of organized baseball unless assured no further criticism would be directed at him.

The commissioner has claimed that Johnson violated the agreement, drawn up when Landis took office three years ago, that no criticism of him was to be made publicly by any league official or club owner.

Today's meeting considered no matters outside the adjournment date, embodied in the following resolutions of sympathy to the commissioner:

"Whereas, since the calling of the joint meeting, sadness has crept into the household of our chief, preventing his presence here today; and whereas, it is the sense of this body that his counsel and advice are beneficial, be it resolved, first, that we extend our heartfelt sympathy to Judge Kenesaw M. Landis in his loss of a beloved relative and offer to him our sincere hope and prayer that his inspiring and gracious helpmate, Mrs. Landis, be soon returned completely recovered in good health, and be it further resolved that further business of this meeting be transacted at and we now adjourn to meet in the Congress hotel at Chicago, Dec. 17 at 11 a. m."

EDDIE COLLINS APPOINTED MANAGER OF WHITE SOX

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Eddie Collins, second baseman of the Chicago American league club, has been appointed manager of the White Sox for the 1925 season, succeeding Johnny Evers, according to word received here tonight from Charles Comiskey, president of the Sox, who is in New York attending the major league meeting.

Collins, long considered the greatest second baseman of the American league, if not of both major aggregations, has been an outstanding star of the game for many years.

He came to the White Sox in 1915 when he was purchased from the Philadelphia Athletics for $50,000, at that time considered a tremendous figure for a ball player to command.

He joined the Athletics in 1906 coming from Columbia university where he was a college star.

It was reported here that Evers who became manager of the 1924 team when the late Frank Chance became ill, will be a member of the N. Y. Giants taking the place of Coach Dolan, who was barred from professional baseball when he became involved in the scandal previous to the last world's series.

Collins for several years, has acted as field captain for the Sox, and also as manager when former Manager Kid Gleason was absent.

"CHUCK" DARLING IS ALSO A SCHOLASTIC WONDER

Boston, Dec. 11.—Charles E. "Chuck" Darling, Boston College two-letter athletic, baseball hero and former grid captain, is also a star in the classroom, it was revealed today when Rev. Patrick J. McHugh, dean of the College, publicly commended Darling for his scholastic standing. Commendation forwarded to Dean McHugh from Darling's five professors resulted in the public announcement that the football star had a general standing of 89, the maximum grade being 100. His marks were the highest in the senior class of 175 men.

Landis To Go To Chicago

Rochester, Minnesota, Dec. 11.—K. M. Landis, baseball Commissioner, may leave for Chicago tomorrow or Saturday, he said late today after Mrs. Landis had undergone a minor dental operation at the Mayo Clinic here.

Paris, Dec. 11.—Jack Taylor, an American negro light heavyweight, tonight defeated Marcouget, a French heavyweight in a bout here. The Frenchman quit in the second round under the punishment of the American.

The Kurds, a Long-lived People.

A resident of Constantinople who has just celebrated his one hundred and fiftieth birthday anniversary and who is believed to be the oldest man in the world, is a Kurd. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society tells something of this long-lived people.

"Like the Bulgarians, also noted for their long lives, the Kurds are largely a pastoral people," says the bulletin. "They live far from encroaching lowlands, in the rugged hills about the headwaters of the (Tigris and Euphrates) rivers. They are an old people racially and live much as they do now in the days when Assyria and Babylon were in power. They were marauders then as they are under the proper conditions today, and over and over again the Assyrian and Babylonian armies took the field against them. But they merely retired to still higher lands until their enemies had gone and then took up their old ways.

"It was the Kurds—then known as the Carduchi—who gave Zenophon's marchers their greatest trouble, rolling great stones down on them from the mountains.

"Today the Kurds are still the unsubdued scourge of the people of the plains. They are distant cousins of Europeans and Americans, strong-featured Aryans, allied to the Persians and the Armenians. In addition to the plateau region near the source of the Tigris and Euphrates, their homeland includes the Zagros mountains, which run southeastward from Lake Van to the Persian Gulf and form the boundary between Turkey and Persia.

"Although most of the Kurds possess villages, composed of clusters of low, flat-roofed houses of stone or mud, all the tribes are more or less nomadic. The majority live in dark-brown, movable tents of goats' hair during the summer, not wandering far from home, but merely going up into the high mountains, where it is too cold and snowy to dwell in winter.

"A considerable number, however, live a purely nomadic life, wandering hundreds of miles along regular routes between the warm plains of Mesopotamia in winter and the cool, grassy uplands in summer. Among the more nomads society is organized upon a half-patriarchal system, while the semi-nomadic Kurds are rather divided into tribes or clans, like those of medieval Scotland, or are ruled by feudal lords, whose power is often absolute.

"Poverty is the rule among the Kurds; their mountain fastnesses are difficult of access, and they themselves are strong and hardy by reason of their life. The people of the neighboring fertile lowlands, on the other hand, are relatively well-to-do, and are also comparatively unprotected and averse to war. All these factors combine to make the Kurds a race of plunderers. 'No race,' says the famous geographer Reclus, 'neither Baluch, Bedouin, nor Apache, has developed the maurading instinct to a higher degree than the warlike Kurd tribes.'

"Whether living in Turkey, Persia or the new state of Iraq, the Kurds are Mohammedans. But they are not as serious or fanatical in religious matters as the Arabs and the Turks. Nominally they belong to the Shiah sect of Mohammedans. Some of them, however, are very cosmopolitan in their religious observances, and when away from home readily join in prayers in either Shiah or Sunni mosque. They have even been known, when in Armenian villages, to join in the Christian service of the Armenian church, kneeling and bowing with the congregation."

Ambiguous

On the door of a small laundry is a Massachusetts town the following notice to patrons was posted. Passersby read it and laughed, or sympathetically refrained from doing so, according to their individual natures: "Closed on account of sickness till Monday, or possibly Wednesday. I am not expected to live. Shall be unable to deliver for at least a week, in any case."—Boston Transcript.

Cotton in the Sudan

The entire valley of the Nile in the Sudan is very rich and, most important, it has first chance at the water that comes down the long channel of the White Nile from Africa's great lakes and down the Blue Nile from the Abyssinian highlands. More and more cotton is being grown in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and the country may one day prove a rival to the land of Dixie.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At the Armory

The Great White Fleet orchestra which was formerly the Leviathan orchestra will be the super-attraction at the state armory, Norwich on this Saturday, Dec. 13. This band has been recently re-organized and is appearing here for the first time as the Great White fleet orchestra under the direction and leadership of Mr. Charles Mazzetti, who will be remembered as the wonderful trumpet player of the Leviathan. It openedat one of the Olympia theaters in Boston Sunday night in vaudeville and put over one of the finest entertainments there ever staged by any dance band and have been reengaged indefinitely for this chain of theaters for Sunday nights.

This band is composed of eleven men all alive, full of novelties and action is the watchword all through the evening. Furthermore this band unlike many New York bands gives the public plenty of music and does not take long intermissions. Action and more action as the crown warms up to this band is what gives the zip and pep which the public craves in a band today.

Besides Mr. Mazzetti super-trumpeter and leader, the band contains several specialists of great merit. Frank Mouzzo, violinist, can make his instrument run the whole gamut of the emotions, besides doing continuous bits of clowning. The acrobatic drummer, Harry Odell, will be remembered wherever he has appeared once as the man who just can't keep still and whose crazy antics keep a crowd about him all the evening. Russ Carlson, the wonderful pianist is also responsible for most of the special arrangements which add so much to the work of the band. a most pleasing saxaphone section, two musical dancers, Ellis and Sedergren make up the personnel of the most pleasing band which will invade Norwich this season.

The armory communites who have been instrumental in bringing the band here extect another large crowd from Norwich and surrounding towns like the one on Armistice night to hear the Leviathans.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL BY FAMILY WELFARE DEPT.

The following Christmas appeal for the children is made by the family welfare department of the United Workers:

It seems but a short time ago that we made another appeal to the public—the one for Thanksgiving dinners for our needy families. The response to that was most gratifying to all. To the Family Welfare Workers because they have never before been able to send such baskets, brimful and running over with good things; never before could they remember so many families. The F. W. D. wishes to assure every giver that his gift of money or food was appreciated most fully and that hearty thanks were given for it, both by the workers and by the recipients.

Now comes the time for another appeal following close upon the earlier one—an appeal that touches the heart of everyone—an appeal for the children's Christmas.

This means, in the first place a generous supply of "used" toys. We are all especially familiar with this word in these days in connection with automobiles. If you were looking at a "used" car with the idea of buying one, wouldn't you see to it that it was not only in good condition as to appearance, but durable and strong enough for some pretty hard usage? Just so for the Christmas toys we are asking for the boys and girls. Please remember not to send us any playthings either trouble or easily broken—but in good enough condition to afford a lot of happiness and pleasure to the children. Then we do need some money to supplement the toys that are given so there will surely be enough to go around; and of course we want every child to have some Christmas candy; and we always want some apples and oranges with which to remember the children of an older growth. Miss Cocorane tells us she has 100 boys and more than 100 girls on her list for toys. Will you not make your gifts more generous even than they were for Thanksgiving, so that no one need be left out? Send all donations to F. W. D., 9 Washington street, and have your gift in please by Dec. 18th, as it is important to know early what we can count on.

Slater Hall Musical Course.

Lambert Murphy, the famous Irish tenor, and Marcel Grandjany, the great harpist, will appear this (Friday) evening, Dec. 12th, in Slater Hall.

This is the opening concert of the Slater Hall musical course, given under the auspices of the Norwich Free Academy.

Tickets $2.00; tax exempt. Tickets on sale at The Cranston company. Mail or 'phone orders will be given careful attention.

Broadway Theater

James Cruze, noted Paramount producer, who jumped into the directorial limelight with The Covered Wagon, Merton and other screen successes, recently finished a new Paramount picture which is being hailed as another screen masterpiece.

The City That Never Sleeps is his latest of cinema thrillers, and local fans will soon have the opportunity of judging its worth because it is due Sunday at the Broadway for one night only.

The story is an adaptation of Mother O'Day, by Leroy Scott, which ran serially in McCall's Magazine. It has New York for its background—that portion of New York which has made the city so famous. The night life of New York of today is constrasted with that of a decade ago when the Bowery was in the heyday of its glory.

Briefly the story deals with a mother's sacrifice for her only daughter her efforts to protect the child from the Tenderloin environment in which she herself was brought up. Later she comes face to face with the bitter realization that despite all she has done to prevent it, her daughter is traveling too fast a pace. The manner in which she saves her daughter by making the supreme sacrifice provides real thrill and leads to a mighty climax.

With a cast that includes such likeable players as Louise Dresser, Virginia Lee Corbin, Kathlyn Williams, Ricardo Cortez and Pierre Gendron there is no lack of acting talent. The entire production was done in typical Cruze fashion and you know what that means!

By all means see this picture.

Broadway Theater Monday

Undoubtedly Jackie Coogan is the movie's best known juvenile player. Mickey Bennett however is making great progress and he is frequently called Jackie's only rival. Quite regardless of the comparison the Bennett boy has firmly established himself both as an actor and as a popular favorite.

This big little star created a positive furore in the picture Big Brother. Like many of his full grown associates he is in vaudeville for a brief period. Here he presents a comedy with a touch of pathos called Mickey's Christmas Eve. This is the story of two little orphans, their yuletide expectations and a practical Santa Claus.

Mickey Bennett is of course one of the orphans. His performance demonstrates that he is not merely a moving picture actor as he scores equally heavily on the spoken stage.

Don't fail to see this juvenile star on the stage and on the screen in the picture Big Brother by Rex Beach, which will be shown in conjunction with the young star's personal appearance.

Breed Theater

A capacity house saw the first showing of Tom Mix in The Last of the Duanes at the Breed theater yesterday. This production, with the famous William Fox star, is a picturization of Zane Grey's tale of the same name with scenes laid in Texas in the days of border outlawry. Tom Mix never has been seen to better advantage in a western character role than in his portrayal of Buck Duane, son of a feudist. This young Texan refuses to fight until forced to kill a man in self-defense. He then becomes an outlaw until, through the love of a girl, he receives a pardon on condition that he help clean up a leading band of cattle thieves.

Marian Nixon, as the girl, is fine, both as an actress and as a feast for one's eyes. Tom Mix should keep this leading lady in his pictures, for she is a splendid complement to the Western star.

Lynn Reynolds has done a neat bit of directing.

The Last of the Duanes will be shown for the remainder of the week and other pictures on the bill include Days of 49, the Pathe news and a Mermaid comedy.

Coming Sunday, Norma Talmadge in Secrets.

Palace Theater

The Speed Spook with Johnny Hines in a feature role which is the current attraction at this theater today and tomorrow is chock full of racing atmosphere. Four of the worlds most famous drivers are shown and one world's record broken.

Jimmy Murphy who recently was killed in a race trying to establish a new worlds record, Tommy Milton who has won no less than three hundred races, Earl Cooper who finished second in the Indianapolis race, Harry Hartz who holds the worlds record of 128 miles per hour, Ira Vail the dirt track champion furnish a part of the racing sequences so it is no wonder the Speed Spook boast of the greatest racing scenes ever shown in a picture.

What is of more interest is the fact that Johnny Hines himself entered a special match race with these drivers on the day after the race to secure the proper continuity for his story.

The picture has all the elements of pathos, pep and rolikics and the manner in which Hines, as the hero helps his sweetheart succeed and aids in the election of her father for sheriff, is hilariously and effectively done. The Speed Spook is a real tonic. The picture starts right out with a bang and keeps up a rapid pace until the finish.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Helped by the Fairy

Did a little voice whisper to the dwarf "I'll help you," just as I finished the last story? Of course a little voice did, and when the astonished, anxious dwarf opened his eyes, he saw a tiny fairy standing before him. Like a flower she seemed, a strange kind of flying flower, the gauzy wings on her shoulders swaying in the breeze like the petals of a lovely rose.

"I promise" said the dwarf.

"Will you help me find silk enough that I may finish the lining to the giant's coat?" asked the dwarf in a whisper. Indeed, he was so anxious for the silk that he almost forgot his manners. But the next moment he added. "I thank you for your kindness"

"You must first promise me that you will always believe in fairies," answered the little person, swaying her wings to and fro like a lovely butterfly.

"I believe without promising, but I promise," answered the dwarf.

"I will return tomorrow," she answered and away she flew to a silk worm in a distant land. From him and his many friends she got enough to spin into a long piece of beautiful silk.

The following afternoon as the anxious dwarf sat in his hut looking mournfully at the unfinished suit for the giant, a gentle tap came at the door. The next minute, it opened itself and in flew many fairies bearing a package of silk.

"There, my good man," said the Fairy Queen, "here is your silk. Now you may finish the giant's coat," and away she flew without another word, although the delighted little dwarf seemed to hear a song in the air.

"Fairies bring the dreams to you,
Deeds from dreams have oft come true."

At once he set to work with his scissors to cut the silk and fit the lining to the great coat. As the days wore by, and the time drew near for the giant's return, the tiny spider called down from her web:

"Keep up a brave heart, you will finish in time."

"Thank you, little spider," replied the dwarf, and he set to work and made his needle fly faster than ever. But the minutes almost flew by, and although the dwarf worked all night, the suit was still unfinished.

"Whistle at your work," cried the nimble little squirrel who had given him the nuts for buttons in the great coat. "Whistle and be merry Life runs smoother with music. You will finish the suit in time. Worry no more."

So the dwarf puckered up his lips and began to whistle. And his needle kept time to the music and the coat was soon nearly finished. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Week's New Music

Vigorous, deep-throated melodies of the Old Russia are chosen by Feodor Challapin for his records this week. Down the Petersky is a Moscow street song which begins dramatically, finally developing in a vigorous, thick-booted dance. Dubin-ushla, a Russian laborers' song, is a variation on the Song of the Volga Boatmen, heavily harmonized, with a terrible refrain.

Heifetz chooses two melodies by living composers for his records this week—Stimmung, (An Impression,) is just that a modern bit of violin melody with new and unusual harmonies. Godowsky's Waltz in D Major is a beautiful number in powerfully individual style.

A new record issued this week pairs Mme. Schumann-Heink's lovely singing of two old German folk-songs. The ever-beloved Der Tannenbaum (The Christmas Tree) has a companion the gently tender Du, Du liegst Mir Im Herzen, (You Live in My Heart,) two simple and rich songs appropriate to the season.

The grandeur of the pipe-organ contributes two splendid recordings of Christmas hymns—the Portuguese and the perennially glorious Silent Night. The full range of this versatile instrument is employed by Mark Andrews in presenting them to us through these records.

If you can imagine something like a slow, dreamy fox-trot you can anticipate Elsie Baker's new record of Sleepy Hollow Tune. It is drowsily beautiful. Her second is When Love Dies, the waltz once known as Vienna, Vanishing Fair City, recently heard on a schrammel orchestra record.

Wendell Hall continues to check up on the weather man. This week he sings a second installment of It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo', sung to his own ukelele, to which he offers the contradictory observation that We're Gonna Have Weather.

George Olsen and His Music lead off this week with Slave of Love, a soft-ly barbaric fox-trot. Paired with it is Because They All Love You, by Barney Rapp and His Orchestra, a steady, full-harmonized dance.

Ted Weems and Jan Garber take sides on a new record the first offering Traveling Blues with the new quick interlude before the close. If You Don't Want Me, by the Garber organization is a wild Afric fox-trot with apparently a bit of the jazz at the wind-up.

Song numbers now in the dance column this week are All Alone With You In a Little Rendezvous, by International Novelty orchestra, and The Pal That I Loved Stole the Gal That I Loved by Charles Dornberger and His Orchestra. If the latter is subjectively somewhat lachrymose, it nevertheless makes an excellent slow waltz. The first is a brisk fox-trot.

VERDICT FOR COUREY FOR DAMAGE TO TRUCK

A verdict for $282.95 damages, with costs in favor of Shahdan and Elias Courey, Norwich grocers, was handed down in the superior court Thursday by Judge G. E. Hinman in the Courey suit against William M. Eastwood of this city in the Courey claim for damages because of an automobile collision. The Eastwood touring car, which was driven by W. Manley Eastwood, was in collision with Courey's motor truck on June 17, 1923 on the Norwich-Westerly road at its intersection with the Ledyard Center road. The suit was brought for $1,500 and treble damages. Attorney J. J. Desmond appeared for the plaintiff and E. W. Perkins for the defendant.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Hinman says:

Whatever might have been the conclusion as to the conduct of the defendant's driver, judged by the general rules as to reasonable care, violation by him of that provision of Section 1, of Chapter 246 Public Acts of 1923 which relates to intersecting highways constitutes negligence on his part proximately resulting in collision with and damage to the plaintiff's truck. It is clear that the plaintiff's vehicle arrived at the intersection well in advance of that of the defendant and was entitled to the right of way. The defendant's driver, by approaching the intersection under such conditions as to operation of his car that he could not stop or otherwise grant the plaintiff his right of way, did so at his peril and, since the plaintiff's driver was free from contributory negligence, the defendant must bear the consequences of his failure, to measure up to the standard of due care set by the statutory rules.

As to damages, the repair bill of $62.95 is undisputed. It is found that after repair the truck was diminished in value to the extent of $200. Aside from the item of $20 paid for use of another truck to go to Providence, the plaintiff's offer no legitimate evidence of damage from loss of use of such but attempt to prove a loss of business in general, and of the sale of the strawberries with which the truck was loaded at the time of the collision, in particular, by reason of lack of use of the truck while it was awaiting and undergoing repairs. Even were consideration of general loss of business permissible, under the allegations of the complaint, that presented is too speculative and uncertain to form basis for an award, and the claim that the strawberries were lost "in direct consequence of the collision" is not adopted. It is quite evident that failure to sell these berries was due, in large measure if not entirely, to lack of proper effort by the plaintiffs to dispose of them and to changed marketing conditions in no way connected with the subject of this action.

Judgment is that the plaintiffs recover of the defendant $282.95 and their costs.

NEW YORKER'S STOLEN LIBERTY BOND IS SAFE IN A NEW LONDON BANK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 11.—Jean La Bloas, 505 Fifth avenue, New York, has communicated with the New London police, requesting that he be given assistance in the identity of the depositor of temporary coupon, 351,341, fourth Liberty bond issue for $500, which was stolen from him Nov. 23, 1918, and which is deposited in the Mariners Savings bank, this city. At the banking institution it was stated that the coupon was in the custody of the bank, but that the identity of the depositor was not known and it would be a difficult matter to determine the identity of the depositor.

Harold Branch, of Blackhall street; Miss Josephine O'Connor, Bulkeley place; Kuigenzo Oris, Poquonoc road, Groton, and Mrs. Frederick Beebe, Boredell place, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

J. F. O'Connor, 81 Ocean avenue, reported to the police late last night that while his automobile was parked on Masonic street earlier in the night some thief stole a spare tire.

Patrolman William Manice, in making his rounds through Blinman street early this morning discovered the entrance to the M. C. Candy company open, the door having been divested of its lock since a fire occurred there a few days ago. Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney and Patrolman Augustus Ray went to the store armed with hammer and nails and made the entrance secure against intruders. Nothing has been reported to the police as having been taken from the place.

The committee of the city council, consisting of Councillors Edward L. Streeter, Jr., John F. Murray and Lucius F. Whiton, appointed to make a probe into the efficiency of the New London police department will probably not comence investigations until next week. It was planned to start the probe this week, but it is not probable that the committee will be ready to conduct sessions until next week. At a meeting of the committee last evening when plans were formulated as to the method of procedure that will be adopted at the probe, City Manager William A. Holt and Director of Law Frank L. McGuire were present. During the evening Captain Charles A. Pinney was instructed to appear before the committee and to bring with him the record books now in use at the police station. The books were inspected thoroughly by the committee. This morning Captain Pinney was again before City Manager Holt supplying the city manager with facts for use when the investigation gets under way.

The probe will be conducted at the office of City Manager Holt and will be in chambers for it is announced by Councilor Streeter, chairman of the committee, that the sessions will be absolutely secret and that the public and taxpayers will not be supplied with what transpires at the investigations to determine whether the rules and regulations of the department have been frequently violated. However, if any member of the department is claimed to be guilty of the rules and regulations, the committee will find that a further conduct of secret sessions will not be tolerated, for there are several of the officers who will engage counsel to take care of their interests, in the case of allegations being made against the officers; and attorneys declare that such counsel as the respective officers employ cannot be denied admission to the hearings. Captain Charles A. Pinney, against whom, it is understood the greatest drive will be made, has already engaged counsel in John C. Geary, of the firm of Geary, Davis & Keefe.

It is known that one sergeant has stated that he is in possession of data, which he compiled himself, showing that frequent violations occurred and that an irregular handling of some of the officers was a common occurrence. It is also understood that the sergeant has provided the committee with this information.

The committee late this afternoon summoned two of the desk sergeants before them. James C. Sullivan and James D. Gaffney, the latter now acting lieutenant and in charge of the night force. The officers were in the committee room about three-quarters of an hour each.

It developed this evening that the reason the sessions are being conducted in chambers is because of the wish of Councilors Whiton and Streeter, who are behind the probe and who desire that the information they glean from the witnesses will not become public. Councilor Murray, the third member of the committee, is in favor of the probe being conducted in public.

Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy had some difficulty in arresting a woman this morning when the woman, a Polish resident of North Bank street, and who was intoxicated, was lying on the sidewalk. To make matters more difficult for the officer a dog, which the woman carried in her arms attacked the officer several times.

The woman was observed in a maze of automobiles on State street, between Main and North Bank streets and in danger of being run down. She was taken into custody and proceeded through North Bank street until the police station was reached, when she began crying loudly and lay flat on the walk. When the officer attempted to carry his prisoner to the station house the dog made several bites at Officer Murphy, but the animal was not successful in fastening its teeth in the flesh. Desk Sergeant James C. O'Sullivan observed the predicament of the officer and went to the assistance of his associate officer, the woman being lodged in a cell, to await a court hearing tomorrow morning.

It is understood that the price asked for the property known as the Goddard place at the corner of Main and Douglass streets which the Saturday club has petitioned the city council to purchase that a children's playground may be established there, is $40,000. Whew! That price will make some of the councilors open their eyes when they tackle the proposition, if The Bulletin's correspondent is accurately informed. The suggestion is said to have been made to the planning board, but there it was turned down—face down—and has not been suggested since. Speculators had in view the purchase of the lot some time ago, last summer, when there was a congestion of traffic in the business center, with a view to making a public parking place there for automobiles. The price mentioned then was something like $20,000, but that figure so frightened the prospective speculators that they abandoned the scheme as soon as it was conceived. Now it seems the owners or the agents of the property have approached the Saturday club and the suggestion to purchase at about $40,000 is brought forward.

According to rumor, the motion to extend Bradley street to Main street was made in the planning board to the committee on public works of the city council by the woman member, Mrs. Emily Speirs and that Councilor Woodruff, the public works committee, was very much in favor of the plan. Now the matter has gone back to the planning board, that that body of three members may decide upon a plan of grading and filling, so that the rise to Main street shall not be a bad one. The property on the east side of North Bank street at Federal is lower than the grade of the street, so that means must be adopted not to divert the shed of water from the street to that property. The task of extending North Bank street is no simple one. It may involve the widening of the southern half of the street also. There the sidewalk could be narrowed a considerable bit, so that there would easily be running space for another line of automobiles, but when the upper end of North Bank street is reached, a different scheme will confront the board. That street was in the years long past the site of the homes of well to do people. There resided Parker Smith and family, Samuel Caulkins and James Caulkins and their families and the Ashby family. Now the street has deteriorated. A wooden block of some two dozen tenements is at the corner of Douglass and North Bank streets and above there are a lot of houses that are not desirable as places of residence.

Billy Ward, a well known character about New London, a vagrant many years, was today sent to the workhouse for a stay of six months. Ward has seen better days, but not in recent years. He worked about saloons for many years in late life. Recently he has been sleeping wherever he could, has become very much neglected in person and is without means. It was an act of charity to commit him to an institution where he will be well fed, clothed and kept warm.

John N. Dimon was in the police court for the third time within a year on a complaint alleging intoxication. He declared he had no excuse to offer, so he was ordered to pay a fine of $10. This order was complied with.

A big garage is in course of erection on Howard street, just north of the bridge. It will house a great many machines and is handy to business places of the city. It is understood that B. L. Armstrong is the owner of the structure.

Adelbert L. Burr has sold a dwelling on Lincoln avenue extension, to James Cody.

Edward T. Leary, 54 Fremont street, has returned home, having been under treatment several days at St. Francis' hospital, Hartford, for an affection of the throat.

Mrs. Martha Cudney, about 50, wife of Christopher W. Cudney, died last night at her residence, 12 Cutler street, following a brief illness. Mrs. Cudney was a native of England where all her relatives except her husband reside.

The funeral of Virginia, wife of Joseph Filipetti, 21 Smith street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by many mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. Relatives of Mrs. Filipetti acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Selina Glode, widow of Lewis Farnsworth, was held at 9.30 o'clock this morning from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. James Southworth, 330 Bank street. Services were conducted at St. Joseph's church at 10 o'clock by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, Westerly.

Miss Mildred Saunders, 14 Whittlesey street, employed at the Winthrop Trust company, is spending a week with friends in Philadelphia.

Miss Sylvia Caponia, about 35, is today recovering from poisoning, self-administered, at her home, 69 Blinman street. While her condition is regarded as serious, her recovery is anticipated. Miss Caponia, it is stated was ill and procured from a cabinet a bottle of lysol, which she believed was medicine. She swallowed the greater part of the contents of the bottle, but in doing so her mistake was quickly realized because of the burning of her lips and mouth. A physician was hurriedly summoned, and the treatment resorted to probably saved the woman's life.

JEWETT CITY

The meeting of Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., was held at the home of Miss Adelaide Burdick Wednesday afternoon. In the absence of the regent, the vice regent, Mrs. E. C. Bliss, presided. The programme consisted of the reading of three poems of historic interest. Mrs. E. A. Faust read "The Wedding of Priscilla and John Alden," Miss Alice A. Brown read "The Bull Frog Fight," and Mrs. Arthur M. Brown read Rhoda Farrand's Ride." The last two poems were from the Daughters of the American Revolution Series presented to The Unbound Anthology by the chapters in Willimantic and Collinsville respectively. This series of poems was published in honor of Mrs. George Maynard Minor, of Waterford, president-general of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution from 1920 to 1923. A most pleasing feature of the afternoon was the beautifully decorated Christmas tree which bore gifts from the members to be used by the immigrants at Ellis Island. These gifts consisted of gingham, cotton cloth, dress material, crochet and embroidery cottons, dolls and materials to be embroidered. The hostesses, Miss Burdick and Mrs. Ida B. Ladd, served delicious refreshments, the favors being Christmas cards. It was voted that each member of the chapter contribute the sum of ten cents to be forwarded to the state treasurer to be used in the purchase of books.

President Norman B. Parkhurst, Secretary and Treasurer Prentice W. Chase, Louis M. Gingras, Charles Anderson, George H. Prior and John Perkins were in Plainfield Thursday evening to attend the meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Mills Association held at the Community house. In connection with the business session, and as a fitting part of the evening's education-al remarks along textile lines, a turkey dinner offered its attractions to the large company present.

Jewett City people went down to the station Thursday to gaze upon the first word in travel accommodations, which the New Haven road has handed out to local patrons of the system. It runs by gasoline, at about 11 cents per gallon. It passes north at 9.03 and south at 2.32 p. m. and if one isn't there when it leaves it is useless to try to catch it, for it goes like a kite. It has an engine driver and a conductor, so it doesn't need the services of a pilot, as the trolleys do. The car will accommodate close to fifty passengers. It is altogether likely that the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company officials know what they are doing; yet the advent of a gasolene car doing the business heretofore requiring a regular train, suggests many things to the discerning eye.

Dr. George H. Jennings is having one of his big maples near his office window removed. The doctor dislikes to see a fine tree go, yet, too much shade necessitated its being cut.

The appearance of a dressed pig in a local market, was noted Thursday as somewhat of a novelty. Today the borough laws forbid the keeping of swine within its limits, yet it is not so long ago that hundreds of them were fattened here, a large percent of which went to the family pork barrel.

A man recalled the time when the veal and beef buyers used to visit this section. They could look over a pair of oxen and estimate to within a few pounds of what they would dress off. Beef buyers come no more but the veal handlers do, and they can look over a calf and tell pretty well how many chicken sandwiches he will make!

Dog Warden William R. Palmer made an official visit to Voluntown Thursday. Numerous complaints in reference to stray and unregistered dogs caused the state department of domestic animals to authorize Mr. Palmer's visit. It is probable that a number of the stray dogs will be subject to the dog catcher's activities. They are kept 72 hours, if there is no tags or collar or clue as to the owner. Then, according to law, they must be mercifully despatched.

Thursday in the borough was like a day in early fall. The mercury climbed to 36, people doing business on the streets finding little inconvenience without overcoats or wraps. One man remarked that a green Christmas made a fat grave yard, his friend called his attention to the possibilities weatherwise in two weeks.

In relation to the death of Mrs. Peter Cooper Jewett City people were much interested to learn that, after close to twenty years in a sanatorium, Mrs. Cooper, at the time of her death was normal in every way, having entirely recovered.

JEPTHA GEER BILL, 101, BURIED AT GRISWOLD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, Dec. 11.—The funeral services for Jeptha Geer Bill, 101, Griswold's oldest resident, were held at the Bethel Methodist church Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There was a large attendance of friends and relatives, among them Mr. Bill's son, Dr. Benjamin J. Bill of Genoa City, Wisconsin, and the doctor's son, Benjamin, Jr. The father, who is dead, was 101, the doctor is 74, and the grandson about 40.

The funeral discourse was by Rev. J. W. Carter of Jewett City, he speaking from the text found in Job. 23-10. But He knoweth the way that I take, when He hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold. During the services Byron Kinnie sang Abide With Me and Home Land. He was accompanied by Mrs. Kinnie. The bearers were Merton A. Bartlett, A. C. Burdick, Sterry Kinnie and T. J. Gustafson.

RELIEF CORPS PRESENTS FLAG TO LIONS' CLUB

The regular meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with a large attendance of members and several guests, among the latter being Mrs. E. Grace Fowler, patriotic instructor, and Mrs. Charles S. Burke president of Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps, and John T. Clark, who will celebrate his 84th birthday today (Friday), also the 62nd anniversary of his being a resident of the Wauregan hotel.

The meeting was in charge of President C. E. Carpenter with Tyler Stanton as song leader features being rendered by Ed Connie's Nugget Maddens, Kopie Marinoff and Ty himself.

Immediately following the luncheon President Carpenter introduced Mrs. Fowler who presented the club a new American flag on behalf of the Relief corps, giving a brief outline of the history of the emblem as she made the presentation, urging the Lions to let their watchword be "God and Our Country."

President Carpenter accepted the flag on behalf of the Lions club and Rev. Robert B. Day gave a brief address on the history, ideals and principles of the American flag.

A feature of the meeting was the Lions' roar, given in honor of the birthday of Mr. Clark.

It was voted that the club make a donation to the Travelers' Aid fund and back this worthy organization in its work.

The entertainment committee reported that the meeting next week would be held in the evening, at which a dinner and dance would be given to the participants of the show given recently by the Lions.

It was also announced that a Christmas tree celebration would be held at the Palace theatre for the children, to be given through the courtesy of the management of the theatre and the Lions club, on Saturday, Dec. 20th, at 10.30 o'clock. All children of Norwich and vicinity are invited to attend free of charge and six prizes are to be awarded the three lucky boys and three lucky girls occupying the six lucky seats in the theatre. These prizes are to be placed on exhibition in the window of the Talking Machine Shop on Franklin Square. Each child attending the event is to receive a prize from the Lions club.

The transportation committee, Lions Bogue, Kieffer and Henschel, are to provide cars for the kiddies, call for them at their homes, if necessary, and see that they return home safely after the theatre party.

The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner, following the transaction of routine business and the reading of the secretary's report.

40-Carat Diamond Located

It has been learned that near Murfreesboro, Arkansas, a 40-carat blue white diamond was unearthed in the Pike county mine of a diamond mining corporation there. The heaviest diamond previously found in those mines weighed 20 carats and was sold for $2,500. The weight of the new diamond is 6.48 ounces.

This Horse Took Offensive

In most cases of accidents between automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles, the power vehicle gets blamed for the offensive, but at Glasgow, Ky., Sidney Holman was seriously hurt when a frightened horse plunged into an automobile in which he was riding, careened into the seat and out of the back end, crushing Holman in the process.

Hungry Fish Ring Bell

At Port Logan, in Galloway, England, is a rock pool where fish are kept and trained so that they will poke their heads out of the water to take from human hands such delicacies as are offered. The haddock and cod are especially amenable to this training. Minnows in the English private pools have been taught to ring a bell when they are in want of food.

Auto Using Much Asbestos

The present day highly developed automobile calls for a large use of asbestos and it was recently estimated that the automobile industry uses 50 per cent of the asbestos products made in the country. For brake lining alone it is said automobiles use 70,000,000 feet yearly.

Babies Born at Tourist Camp

Automobile camps for tourists have become a regular and well regulated institution especially in the west. Three babies were born during the season of 1924 at the motor park camp near Seattle, the mothers all being newcomers from the east, intent upon reaching their settling place before the stork arrived.

Man Names Twin Co-respondent

Tommie Hardin of Bardstown, Ky., has asked a divorce from his wife and in the suit named his twin brother Jack as co-respondent. The marriage took place in the summer of 1920 and the father asks the custody of the one child resulting.

MINISTERS' ASSOCIATION MAKES PUBLIC ANSWER TO G. WARREN DAVIS

By request of the Norwich Ministers' Association, the following correspondence between the Association and G. Warren Davis of this city is published herewith, including a letter from Mr. Davis to Rev. James Gordon Gilkey, D. D., of Springfield, Mass., who was the preacher at the union Thanksgiving service here. In the request for the publication of the correspondence, the Ministers' Association says that "the knowledge displayed to us that Mr. Davis' letters to Dr. Gilkey and ourselves were known by many, makes us feel that perhaps many more people who are unknown to us may be interested to find out what our position is."

The Correspondence.

The following is the correspondence:
Mr. G. Warren Davis,
Norwich, Conn.

Dear Mr. Davis: The "Norwich Ministers' Association" is in receipt of two letters from you, which we wish to answer publicly. The first is a letter from you to the Reverend James Gordon Gilkey who, at the invitation of a group of ministers, preached the Thanksgiving Night sermon at the union service in the Central Baptist church. You sent a copy of the letter to Dr. Pitt, our president, who presented it to our Association. Your letter is as follows:

Dec. 1, 1924.
Pastor Congregational Church,
Springfield, Massachusetts.

My dear Doctor Gilkey: Your "What's Right With America" Thanksgiving Night here in Norwich last week prompts this note. I did not hear your address. I have read the press account of it. Others who were present have told me of one or two things the press omitted to mention, but I'll not discuss those omitted things here. A difficult thing about your lecture is that you think so much is right in America, while other observers see quite a good many things in America that are quite unright. If I can manage to do it, I will outline with pencil a stone that was thrown at the head of an American on the night of July 15th, last, while he was quietly seated on private property listening to matters of the Ku Klux Klan. He was in an assembly which should have been peaceful. Had his head been within about one inch more of the line of the path of the missile, his soul would have been on its way to its Creator shortly after.

A copy of a beastly letter is herewith. For nearly sixty years I thought I had lived here at peace with my varied associates. Yet some of those same persons devised the letter. The only offense of mine of which I am conscious is that I own the land upon which was burned "an emblem of hideous intolerance," as you called it in your lecture the other night. Please read the letter at least once.

Not long ago, through Doctor Pitt, in whose church you spoke, I asked the ministers of Norwich if they would either support, or be supported, in a movement to replace the Bible in our public schools. Delayed acknowledgement was made, which may have been due to unusual stresses upon Doctor Pitt himself; but your coming to represent the ministers of Norwich, and in outspoken opposition to the Ku Kulx Klan, suggests the impression that you made their answer for them, and that they do not want anything to do with a movement to restore the Bible to the public schools. Upon other occasions they have disclosed themselves as somewhat inclined to spaghetti spines—moist spaghetti—please—Please try to learn something about the Klan.

Yours truly,
(Signed.) G. WARREN DAVIS.

There is one sentence in this letter, about which we wish to speak clearly. You write to him:

"Your coming to represent the ministers of Norwich, and in outspoken opposition to the Ku Klux Klan, suggests the impression that you made their answer for them."

Your assumption, in this sentence, is that Dr. Gilkey came to represent the ministers of Norwich, and to make their answer to a letter of yours (which will be quoted below). We wish unhesitatingly to say that your assumption is both erroneous and an unwarranted aspersion upon the independence and integrity of a man whom we, his fellow-ministers, thoroughly respect.

Second Letter.

Your second letter is as follows:
Reverend D. A. Pitt, D. D.,
President Norwich Ministers Asso.,
Norwich, Conn.

My dear Doctor Pitt: "It is more than likely that you are well aware that the Bible in the public schools, as it almost universally was years ago, was a beneficently moulding influence; and it is also more than likely that you are well aware of the almost complete absence of the Bible in our public schools now. This inquiry is made of you: If a movement were initiated here in Norwich to re-establish the daily reading of the Bible in the public schools, would the ministers support the movement.

Perhaps if the question were stated this way, it would be more readily received: If the ministers initiated such a movement themselves, would they accept such support as might spontaneously go to them from groups of citizens?

Your response will be awaited with interest.

Yours truly,
(Signed.) G. WARREN DAVIS.
Norwich, Conn., November 9th, 1924.

Answer By Association.

In answering this letter, we would first of all tell you a little of our recent experiences, as ministers of Norwich.

1—We have been made aware that there has been a most unaccustomed and unusual interest displayed by certain laymen in the recent doings of our Ministers' Association.

2—This interest has limited itself to one inquiry: Concerning our reception of and response to your two letters quoted above.

3—This interest has likewise displayed to us the fact that these inquirers had clear knowledge that your letters above-quoted had gone to Dr. Gilkey and to ourselves.

4—In each inquiry, the interested layman has either deliberately told us, or led us to believe, that he was a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

Now, Mr. Davis, in these letters to Dr. Gilkey and to our Association, you have given us no information as to whether or not you are representing the K. Klux Klan. But, even if you are not so representing the Klan, and are writing to us merely as an individual, nevertheless we are surely safe in concluding—from the four items of experience mentioned above—that Klansmen as Klansmen know of the despatch of your two letters, and are interested in our reply. Therefore, we make this reply publicly, in order that you yourself, and any others who are interested, may know our positive answer.

Your first question is:

"If a movement were initiated in Norwich to re-establish the daily reading of the Bible in the public schools, would the ministers support the movement?"

To this question we reply: In some of the public schools, the Bible is now being read. That action is free, unconstrained, not compelled. If the reading were compelled or forced upon either reader or listener, the value of the reading would be doubtful.

Between optional and obligatory Bible-reading there is just the difference that always exists between any freedom and any compulsion. We are in favor of free reading. We are opposed to compulsion. We are opposed to compulsory Bible-reading in the public schools, because we recognize as a worthful national tradition not only the right to worship God according to the dictates of conscience, but also the right to use the instruments of religion according to the same dictates. A compulsory dictation over religion or its instruments, in our public schools, is obviously contrary to our national tradition. If a movement were initiated to re-establish daily reading of the Bible, and we were asked to support it, our first action as ministers would be to investicate the initiators of the movement, and then the spirit and purpose, methods and effects of such a movement. Our support, or non-support, would wholly depend upon the findings of such an investigation.

Your second question is:

"If the ministers initinted such a movement themselves, would they accept such support as might spontaneously go to them from groups of citizens?"

To this question we reply: We do not contemplate initiating such a movement, first, because we clearly recognize the legitimate objections to a compulsory re-establishment of the daily use of a religious instrument, for people of divergent religious opinions and customs. Hence, on this ground, the question of our accepting such support as you intimate might spontaneous be given us, needs neither to be further asked nor further answered.

But our chief reason for not initiating such a movement is this: We are already at work on a constructive programme of Bible use—a programme which both preserves our national tradition of free conscience and enhances the religious experience of all who enter into it.

We would respectfully remind you that for many years the churches have been faithfully at work on the problem of the systematic study (other than the mechanical use) of the Bible. In Norwich the Ministers' Association has been constructing a programme toward this end. We call to your attention the following particulars:

1—All the churches foster daily Bible reading in the home around the family altar.

2—We already possess our individual church schools where the Bible is regularly taught.

3—Last year we established a training school for religious education. Dr. M. A. Honline led it, and the memory of the sessions is still invigoratingly fresh in the minds of many of our citizens.

4—This fall we conducted another such school, with Prof. Myers and W. M. Woodin as instructors.

5—On Feb. 21st next, the second term of the school opens, again under the inspiring leadership of Dr. Honline.

6—Our association is actively interested in week-day religious education under trained leaders, for all children and within their respective religious affiliations. This is in line with a general movement that is becoming country-wide.

7—Our association is definitely pointing toward the time when the children of our schools will be released from their daily classes, at specific hours, to pursue suitable religious education in their respective churches—Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and otherwise.

We report these definite actions, and aims, which we believe do no injustice either to our democracy, to our national tradition or liberty of conscience in religion, or to the respective religious affiliations in our community.

Trusting that our answers are clear, we remain,

Sincerely yours,

BINGHAM OR HOLT?

A REPUBLICAN,

OR A

PACIFIST; AN ASSOCIATE OF SOCIALISTS?

Connecticut Residence

Hiram Bingham is a resident of Connecticut and has been a voter in this state for 17 years. It has been his home during the greater part of his life.

Hamilton Holt has been a Connecticut elector less than 3 months. He was made a voter on September 20, 1924.

The World War and Pacifism

Although beyond the draft age, Hiram Bingham was a World War volunteer and at the close of the war was a Lieutenant-Colonel in command of the Allies' largest flying center in France. Hamilton Holt was a recognized pacifist and conferee of prominent socialists before the war. During the war he "toured" the battle fronts as the head of a pacifist organization.

Before the war, Hamilton Holt publicly referred to preparedness on the part of the United States as "mob hysteria" and urged America to lead the World War in disarmament. His activities with the socialists and pacifists were referred to many times during the "Investigation of Revolutionary Radicalism and Seditious Activities" by the famous Lusk Committee of New York Assembly in 1920.

The World Court

Hiram Bingham favors President Coolidge's proposal of a World Court. Hamilton Holt insists that he endorses the World Court, yet less than two months ago, before he was nominated for Senator, speaking at Hartford and referring to international affairs in which the World Court question is a most vital one, he said, "President Coolidge has no remedies."

The Tariff

Hiram Bingham is for the Republican Tariff principle.

Hamilton Holt jeers at protection. He broadcasted his commendation of the last Democratic administration for reducing the Tariff, "on an average of from 42 per cent. on imports to 26 per cent." He ridiculed the protective Tariff policies of the Harding administration—"We propose to revive trade and bring back prosperity by re-enacting prohibitive tariffs."

The League of Nations

Hiram Bingham is against the League of Nations and endorses President Coolidge's statement that this country is "not disposed to become a member."

Since 1919 Hamilton Holt has zealously advocated America's entry into the League of Nations. In signed editorials in The New York Independent, the paper of which he was editor, he was constantly imploring America's acceptance of the League. His ardor has not abated.

His office in New York is the office of the League of Nations Association, today.

In the present campaign, he says: "I believe President Coolidge's hope to achieve universal peace by cultivating the domestic virtues alone is utterly inadequate. I shall oppose with what power I have his contention that the country is not disposed to become a member of the League of Nations."

The Senate Majority

The Republican majority in the next Senate will be dangerously close. It can be easily upset—witness the recent deaths of three Republican senators—and the President left powerless, and subject to dictation from radical minorities. Never before has the President had greater need of the support of every Republican.

Hamilton Holt is a Democrat and would have to be guided by Democratic party rules in the Senate as a Democrat. He would necessarily be part of a hostile minority, or he would stand alone.

Qualifications

Hiram Bingham has been closely identified with Connecticut's educational, social and political life. He is thoroughly familiar with Connecticut's requirements and has courage and ability to act.

Hamilton Holt being only a summer resident, occupying the position of a vacationist in Connecitcut, having a Connecticut citizenship of less than three months and with all former political and personal interests elsewhere, knows little or nothing of Connecticut's problems or requirements.

In a Republican administration, a Republican Senator has immeasurably greater influence than a Democratic Senator or an "Independent." When Connecticut elects Hiram Bingham, its Republican Senator, Connecticut will be the beneficiary.

CONNECTICUT WILL ANSWER THE QUESTION, BINGHAM OR HOLT, EMPHATICALLY, ON DECEMBER 16th.

Not long ago, through Doctor Pitt, in whose church you spoke, I asked the ministers of Norwich if they would either support, or be supported, in a movement to replace the Bible in our public schools. Delayed acknowledgement was made, which may have been due to unusual stresses upon Doctor Pitt himself; but your coming to represent the ministers of Norwich, and in outspoken opposition to the Ku Kulx Klan, suggests the impression that you made their answer for them, and that they do not want anything to do with a movement to restore the Bible to the public schools. Upon other occasions they have disclosed themselves as somewhat inclined to spaghetti spines—moist spaghetti—please—Please try to learn something about the Klan.

Yours truly,
(Signed.) G. WARREN DAVIS.

There is one sentence in this letter, about which we wish to speak clearly. You write to him:

"Your coming to represent the ministers of Norwich, and in outspoken opposition to the Ku Klux Klan, suggests the impression that you made their answer for them."

Your assumption, in this sentence, is that Dr. Gilkey came to represent the ministers of Norwich, and to make their answer to a letter of yours (which will be quoted below). We wish unhesitatingly to say that your assumption is both erroneous and an unwarranted aspersion upon the independence and integrity of a man whom we, his fellow-ministers, thoroughly respect.

Second Letter.

Your second letter is as follows:
Reverend D. A. Pitt, D. D.,
President Norwich Ministers Asso.,
Norwich, Conn.

My dear Doctor Pitt: "It is more than likely that you are well aware that the Bible in the public schools, as it almost universally was years ago, was a beneficently moulding influence; and it is also more than likely that you are well aware of the almost complete absence of the Bible in our public schools now. This inquiry is made of you: If a movement were initiated here in Norwich to re-establish the daily reading of the Bible in the public schools, would the ministers support the movement.

Perhaps if the question were stated this way, it would be more readily received: If the ministers initiated such a movement themselves, would they accept such support as might spontaneously go to them from groups of citizens?

Your response will be awaited with interest.

Yours truly,
(Signed.) G. WARREN DAVIS.
Norwich, Conn., November 9th, 1924.

Answer By Association.

In answering this letter, we would first of all tell you a little of our recent experiences, as ministers of Norwich.

1—We have been made aware that there has been a most unaccustomed and unusual interest displayed by certain laymen in the recent doings of our Ministers' Association.

2—This interest has limited itself to one inquiry: Concerning our reception of and response to your two letters quoted above.

3—This interest has likewise displayed to us the fact that these inquirers had clear knowledge that your letters above-quoted had gone to Dr. Gilkey and to ourselves.

4—In each inquiry, the interested layman has either deliberately told us, or led us to believe, that he was a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

Now, Mr. Davis, in these letters to Dr. Gilkey and to our Association, you have given us no information as to whether or not you are representing the K. Klux Klan. But, even if you are not so representing the Klan, and are writing to us merely as an individual, nevertheless we are surely safe in concluding—from the four items of experience mentioned above—that Klansmen as Klansmen know of the despatch of your two letters, and are interested in our reply. Therefore, we make this reply publicly, in order that you yourself, and any others who are interested, may know our positive answer.

Your first question is:

"If a movement were initiated in Norwich to re-establish the daily reading of the Bible in the public schools would the ministers support the movement?"

To this question we reply: In some of the public schools, the Bible is now being read. That action is free, unconstrained, not compelled. If the reading were compelled or forced upon either reader or listener, the value of the reading would be doubtful.

Between optional and obligatory Bible-reading there is just the difference that always exists between any freedom and any compulsion. We are in favor of free reading. We are opposed to compulsion. We are opposed to compulsory Bible-reading in the public schools, because we recognize as a worthful national tradition not only the right to worship God according to the dictates of conscience, but also the right to use the instruments of religion according to the same dictates. A compulsory dictation over religion or its instruments, in our public schools, is obviously contrary to our national tradition. If a movment were initiated to re-establish daily reading of the Bible, and we were asked to support it, our first action as ministers would be to investigate the initiators of the movement, and then the spirit and purpose, methods and effects of such a movement. Our support, or non-support, would wholly depend upon the findings of such an investigation.

Your second question is:

"If the ministers initiated such a movement themselves, would they accept such support as might spontaneously go to them from groups of citizens?"

To this question we reply: We do not contemplate initiating such a movement, first, because we clearly recognize the legitimate objections to a compulsory re-establishment of the daily use of a religious instrument, for people of divergent religious opinions and customs. Hence, on this ground, the question of our accepting such support as you intimate might spontaneous be given us, needs neither to be further asked nor further answered.

But our chief reason for not initiating such a movement is this: We are already at work on a constructive programme of Bible use—a programme which both preserves our national tradition of free conscience and enhances the religious experience of all who enter into it.

We would respectfully remind you that for many years the churches have been faithfully at work on the problem of the systematic study (rather than the mechanical use) of the Bible. In Norwich the Ministers' Association has been constructing a programme toward this end. We call to your attention the following particulars:

1—All the churches foster daily Bible reading in the home around the family altar.

2—We already possess our individual church schools where the Bible is regularly taught.

3—Last year we established a training school for religious education. Dr. M. A. Honline led it, and the memory of the sessions is still invigoratingly fresh in the minds of many of our citizens.

4—This fall we conducted another such school, with Prof. Myers and W. M. Woodin as instructors.

5—On Feb. 21st next, the second term of the school opens, again under the inspiring leadership of Dr. Honline.

6—Our association is actively interested in week-day religious education under trained leaders, for all children and within their respective religious affiliations. This is in line with a general movement that is becoming country-wide.

7—Our association is definitely pointing toward the time when the children of our schools will be released from their daily classes, at specific hours, to pursue suitable religious education in their respective churches—Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and otherwise.

We report these definite actions, and aims, which we believe do no injustice either to our democracy, to our national tradition or liberty of conscience in religion, or to the respective religious affiliations in our community.

Trusting that our answers are clear, we remain,

Sincerely yours,

BINGHAM OR HOLT?

A REPUBLICAN,

OR A

PACIFIST; AN ASSOCIATE OF SOCIALISTS?

Connecticut Residence

Hiram Bingham is a resident of Connecticut and has been a voter in this state for 17 years. It has been his home during the greater part of his life.

Hamilton Holt has been a Connecticut elector less than 3 months. He was made a voter on September 20, 1924.

The World War and Pacifism

Although beyond the draft age, Hiram Bingham was a World War volunteer and at the close of the war was a Lieutenant-Colonel in command of the Allies' largest flying center in France. Hamilton Holt was a recognized pacifist and conferee of prominent socialists before the war. During the war he "toured" the battle fronts as the head of a pacifist organization.

Before the war, Hamilton Holt publicly referred to preparedness on the part of the United States as "mob hysteria" and urged America to lead the World War in disarmament. His activities with the socialists and pacifists were referred to many times during the "Investigation of Revolutionary Radicalism and Seditious Activities" by the famous Lusk Committee of New York Assembly in 1920.

The World Court

Hiram Bingham favors President Coolidge's proposal of a World Court. Hamilton Holt insists that he endorses the World Court, yet less than two months ago, before he was nominated for Senator, speaking at Hartford and referring to international affairs in which the World Court question is a most vital one, he said, "President Coolidge has no remedies."

The Tariff

Hiram Bingham is for the Republican Tariff principle.

Hamilton Holt jeers at protection. He broadcasted his commendation of the last Democratic administration for reducing the Tariff, "on an average of from 42 per cent. on imports to 26 per cent." He ridiculed the protective Tariff policies of the Harding administration—"We propose to revive trade and bring back prosperity by re-enacting prohibitive tariffs."

The League of Nations

Hiram Bingham is against the League of Nations and endorses President Coolidge's statement that this country is "not disposed to become a member."

Since 1919 Hamilton Holt has zealously advocated America's entry into the League of Nations. In signed editorials in The New York Independent, the paper of which he was editor, he was constantly imploring America's acceptance of the League. His ardor has not abated.

His office in New York is the office of the League of Nations Association, today.

In the present campaign, he says: "I believe President Coolidge's hope to achieve universal peace by cultivating the domestic virtues alone is utterly inadequate. I shall oppose with what power I have his contention that the country is not disposed to become a member of the League of Nations."

The Senate Majority

The Republican majority in the next Senate will be dangerously close. It can be easily upset—witness the recent deaths of three Republican senators—and the President left powerless, and subject to dictation from radical minorities. Never before has the President had greater need of the support of every Republican.

Hamilton Holt is a Democrat and would have to be guided by Democratic party rules in the Senate as a Democrat. He would necessarily be part of a hostile minority, or he would stand alone.

Qualifications

Hiram Bingham has been closely identified with Connecticut's educational, social and political life. He is thoroughly familiar with Connecticut's requirements and has courage and ability to act.

Hamilton Holt being only a summer resident, occupying the position of a vacationist in Connecitcut, having a Connecticut citizenship of less than three months and with all former political and personal interests elsewhere, knows little or nothing of Connecticut's problems or requirements.

In a Republican administration, a Republican Senator has immeasurably greater influence than a Democratic Senator or an "Independent." When Connecticut elects Hiram Bingham, its Republican Senator, Connecticut will be the beneficiary.

Bran facts!

If you eat bran it is because you seek relief from constipation and toxic poisoning!

To get the relief your physician will tell you that bran will give—you must be certain to get Kellogg's, BECAUSE it is ALL BRAN! That is the kind your physician intends you to eat.

You only delay positive relief when you eat foods with a partial bran content, because they can only help you in proportion to the amount of bran they contain! You haven't time to waste on 25 per cent or 50 per cent relief when you know that Kellogg's will give you 100 per cent relief BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN!

Every day's delay lets your condition become worse! Pills and cathartics can only aggravate distressing conditions. Part bran foods cannot permanently help you! They do not have the necessary bulk or roughage that makes ALL BRAN positive in its mechanical action! That is why Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a necessity!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is GUARANTEED to give you permanent relief if you will eat two tablespoonfuls each day, or as much with each meal in chronic cases!

If you would realize how delicious Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is—cooked, krumbled and ready to eat—and what it means to your health—you would not lose a minute starting to eat it! All grocers sell Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the Red and Green package.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

WESTERLY

Fire alarm No. 33 was again sounded Thursday afternoon about 3.15, for a fire outside the Westerly fire district. Fire Chief Egger and the pumper responded, going to Bradford, where they found the two and a half story house of Guiseppe Perro on the right side of the highway from Westerly leading into Bradford a mass of flames. The fire entirely consumed the house although some of the first floor furnishings were saved. All the Westerly department men could do on their arrival was to use some of their chemical to extinguish a burning pole. The department returned to Westerly at 4.30.

Thursday forenoon there was a good attendance at the first session of the south district convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union which held in the vestry of the Broad Street Christian church. Mrs. Thomas Nichols welcomed the visiting delegates on behalf of the Westerly union and Rev. A. L. Schoning extended greeting from the church. Mrs. Elmer E. Browning president of the Ocean View union, responded to the two addresses of welcome.

Matters of business, including presentation of the treasurer's and secretary's reports, were transacted during the morning. Mrs. Ethelyn Roberts, state president of the W. C. T. U., spoke informally on the organization's work in the district and state. Thursday afternoon Mrs. Roberts presented a report on the national jubilee convention held recently in Chicago.

The morning session began at 10 o'clock and the afternoon session at 2. A basket lunch was eaten at noon.

Worthy State Master C. Palmer Chapman of Westerly was re-elected for his third term in the Rhode Island State grange for the ensuing two years at the second day's session of the order's 35th annual meeting in Elks' hall, Thursday in Providence. Other officers elected are: Overseer, Curtis J. Hopkins, Chepatchet; lecturer, Mrs. Louise Rodman, Davisville; steward, Senator Arthur A. Sherman, Portsmouth; asst. steward, William B. Babcock, East Greenwich; chaplain, Gideon A. Burgess, North Scituate; treasurer, Sayles B. Steere, Chepachet.

The morning meeting opened with the annual report of Isaac L. Sherman, representative of the grange on the state board of agriculture. In the report an appeal was made to the grangers to support additional appropriations which the board was forced to call for in order to exterminate insect pests. Mr. Sherman explained that owing to the lack of appropriations during the past year, the spread of the brown tail and gypsy moths and white pine blister had increased to an alarming extent.

A telegram was received from Senator Sherman in Rutland in answer to a message of remembrance telegraphed Wednesday by the grange.

"We know that our problems are economic and not political," State Master Chapman declared yesterday in his address, in which he expressed his lack of faith in political farm aids.

To show the magnitude of the farmers' economic problems, he quoted the findings of the National Grange that during the past three years farm values have shrunk $20,000,000,000 and 6,000,000 tillers of the soil have gone into other occupations.

In declaring for good roads, he urged that bus and truck operators be assessed in proportion to gains they receive from the use of the roads. "It is not the ordinary pleasure car that makes the maintenance so expensive but the transportations van and bus."

Mr. Chapman recounted the Grange's 50 year apostleship for temperance, and urged the rigid enforcement of the prohibition laws.

In praising the work of the Rhode Island State college, he urged the grange to lend its support to the five yearbuilding budget for the college, which is to be recommended at the coming session of the legislature.

"The 39 granges as a whole in our state are in better condition, than at any previous times in our history," Mr. Chapman was pleased to report. He briefly summarized the policies outlined by the National Grange in its Atlantic City session.

Dr. Russell H. Conwell, author, preacher and journalist, delivered a lecture, "Acres of Diamonds" at Wednesday evening's session. There was vocal and instrumental music.

Today (Friday) the sessions will be largely given over to unfinished business and the reports of committees At 3 p. m. the new officers will be installed, which will close the work of the 38th annual session.

A NEED FOR MORE "KICKERS".

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

The "kicker" is not apt to be popular. He is not a social favorite in any rank of society, whether that which gathers around 4 p. m. tea tables on Nob avenue or that which assembles a "gas-house gang" in some speakeasy of the slums.

Which is why I suspect some of you will wonder if I've taken leave of my senses when I say, with all the emphasis I can muster, that there are not half "kickers" enough going round.

No, I don't personally select them for table or idle hour companions. I think they irritate me as much as anybody. Honest injun, I don't like 'em.

Neither do I really hanker after castor oil. Nevertheless, castor oil is something which enters into most of our lives, and which is, despite its disagreeabilities, a useful and helpful thing.

The man who is forever kicking about his job, or his neighbors, or his newspaper, or his minister, or his city, or his town or his state, or his country is usually just about as agreeable a companion as a bear with a sore head. We all of us have engagements in some other place when he begins to roar. We don't like him. We don't like to hear him grouch. We don't like to see him "kick."

Again, castor oil.. It doesn't look good. It doesn't smell good, and it has about the rottenest taste of anything on earth. Nobody was ever known to take it as an aperitif or a table beverage. But, nevertheless, there are times when we are mighty glad to have it in the medicine case. It has its uses in the scheme of life. We could hardly do without it. Anyway we often do a deal better because of its nauseous ministerings. Bad to take? Yes, indeed, but "good for what ails you," all the same.

Therefore I repeat that, while you and I, like the great majority of our fellows, dislike "kickers", especially the permanently soured sort whom we call "chronic kickers," the world, the country and ourselves included would, on the whole and in the end, be better off if there were more of 'em.

I recall, some weeks since, calling your attention to the fact that the burden of taxation under which most of us groan, comes not from federal sources but from immediately local impositions. Later information, including that contained in various government reports and the recent presidential messages, not only sustains the truth of the statement but aggravates it.

Federal expenses and federal taxation are being remorselessly cut down. Though we have already paid off more than three thousand millions of the Wilson administration's war debt, we have, while doing that, cut down the running expenses of the government from something like seventy per cent above pre-war rates to only thirty per cent above them. That is, the government is being carried on today for an outlay only thirty per cent greater than before the war.—This, of course, does not include interest on the war debt, which is something beyond government control.—

As Mark Sullivan says in The Herald-Tribune: "There are few corporations, or for that matter few households able to keep their running expenses down to only thirty per cent above the pre-war level of wages and costs."

When it comes to local taxation and local debts, those incurred by states and cities and towns and school-districts, etc., the story is very different.

Instead of a decrease, brought about by retrenchment and a wise budgeting, local spending is steadily increasing by leaps and bounds, and local indebtedness, with its inevitable accompaniment of high interest paying, is rising with equal speed and volume.

The national industrial conference board finds after a careful census of the whole country, that the net indebtedness of the various local governments which are supposed to look after local affairs has grown from $8,-822,000,000 in 1912 to more than $10,-500,000,000 in 1924. This is an increase of a hundred and twenty-eight per cent in purely local debts. That figure leaves out all sinking funds, too.

Some of this, you may say in excuse, was debt incurred during the war for the same great purpose as the national debt. Perhaps. That might account for some dollars. But the war ended in 1918. And the total of our purely local debts has grown from $8,697,000,000 in 1922 to $10,500,000,000 in 1924. War expenditures can't be asked to account for a single penny of that wholly unwarranted and inexcusable increase in the last two years. Plans for new (local) financing, popularly approved at last month's elections, call for the issuing of about $500,000,000 more bonds, in addition to over $300,000,000 already issued in the first ten months of the present year.

Say, don't such figures as that make your head swim a little? They are so vast that they are difficult of comprehension. Even a million is a sum hard to appreciate. Why, if Adam had begun to save a dollar a day the time he was turned out of Eden to hunt his own grub, and he had lived to this time and kept that thrifty habit up without a miss, he would have had only about two millions to his credit, today.

And yet, in the last year alone, we voters have authorized our purely local agents to sink the eight hundred million deeper in debt! May I quote another paragraph from Mark Sullivan's resume?

"It is to pay the interest on this debt that the owners of farms, homes and factories face steadily increasing taxation. Very few farmers pay any income or other taxes to the Federal government. It is the constant incurring of debt by local states and counties that has raised the farmer's taxes to the point where they embarrass him seriously."

While the federal government is sweating the national debt till we can see it shrink before our eyes, and is cutting down running expenses in a way that nobody thought even possible, three years ago, local governments, state, county, city, town, village, school, etc., are running races in an apparent effort to see which can "blow in" the most in the shortest time. Not only are they spending a good deal more than thirty per cent over pre-war costs for ordinary running expenses, they are plunging into debt with the recklessness of a Micawber.

The Toledo Blade rather frankly tells the story of how this thing has worked and is working in that big city. It seems that, some years ago, the Ohio legislature sought to win favor with the voters by fixing the tax-rate at not over one cent on the dollar, a bit of cheap demagogy which led shoals of shallow-brained and short-sighted morons to proclaim the legislators public benefactors. Says The Blade:

"Then it happened. One per cent on then-existing valuation failed to yield sufficient revenue to run the public business. Valuations were increased, not once, but repeatedly. Still more money must be raised.

"Issuing bonds—city bonds, school bonds, county bonds in huge amounts and for long terms—was the next number on the program of profligacy. Bonds were sold to pay old debts, to pay city running expenses, to meet deficiencies, until the legislature was forced to amend the Smith law again and again to authorize higher tax rates and to pass laws to curb the reckless and riotous issue of interest-bearing bonds. The glib excuse for which was, 'posterity will pay.'

"Well, we are paying now, and must continue to pay. Toledo pays out between forty and fifty per cent of all its revenue from general taxation to meet interest charges and retire maturing bonds. We thus are cramped for money for operating expenses. Other cities face problems of the same kind, varying only in detail."

Yes, indeed, not only "other cities," but other towns and villages and school districts and counties and states. Even if the present orgy of local extravagance should be stopped, instanter, right now, we shall yet have to pay interest on bonds from two to three dollars for every dollar we actually received, when we sold them.

That is what some big-mouthed people call "financing public needs."

As a cold matter of fact, it is simply taking two dollars or more out of your left-hand breeches pockets, to pay for ones dollar slipped by the "financers" into your right-hand pocket.

The truth is, as I said at the outset, we need more "kickers." We need more men to set their faces like flint against a continuance of this "programme of profligacy" as The Blade sententiously calls it.

There is small excuse for any man's becoming a cantankerous "kicker" against everybody and everything.

Which is undeniably good "business" for the financers. But how about the tax-payers?

But when some lumbering idiot puts his hob-nailed boot down on your sorest corn and begins twisting it around, and won't get off when you cry "Ouch!" a judicious kicking on his shins will sometimes avail to get him off that corn.

The most of us are too afraid of being sneered at by the mob. We are altogether too easy-going with the fools and faddists who are ready to "boo" us down if we lift voice or hand or foot against their spendthrift prodigality. We won't "kick" when we ought to, in fear lest some pursy financier or some gang of hoodlums will denounce us as "old fogies" or "right-wads" or "skinflints" or something of the sort.

In the meantime, the process of spoiling the Egyptians goes merrily on, you and I being cast for the role of Egyptians.

In the Mosaic history you'll be able to read, if you turn to the right chapter, what happened to the Egyptians in the Red sea, when they started, too late, to chase down the Hebrews who had spoiled.

There's a "sea of bankruptcy" right ahead of us on the route we are at present following. The sooner we kick our leaders into a willingness to change their line of march the better our chance to get around it. We shall get our feet wet, anyway. But, ugh, drowning is a dum sight worse!

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CLOSED STRONG.

New York, Dec. 11.—Violent bullish demonstrations in half a dozen specialties, which soared 4 to 9 points in the last hour of trading, checked the selling movement which has been under way in the stock market for the last two days. Rumors that the local federal reserve board was to increase its rediscount rate, which inspired much of the recent selling, proved to be groundless, no change being announced as today's meeting of the board which was held after the market closed.

The commercial [illegible] and West Penn Power issues were the sensational performers in the last hour. Commercial Solvents "A" soared nine points, the "B" 3 3-4 and the "rights" four. West Penn Power common jumped 3 1-2 points and the preferred 3 1-2, all to new weak prices for the year. Spirited bidding also took place for May Department Stores, which closed five points higher at 114, likewise a new top.

United States Steel common, Baldwin, American Can and several other standard industrial issues closed fractionally lower after having been depressed 1 to 2 points in the wave of selling that swept over the market in the early afternoon. While considerable difference of opinion exists among brokers as to the immediate course of prices, it is generally believed that the recent "shakeout" has eliminated a number of weak accounts and materially strengthened the market's technical position.

Chief interest in the rail group centered in the so-called Van Sweringen stocks, which were actively accumulated on reports that the deposit of stocks in connection with merger plans has been unusually large and that early ratification of the proposed lease was expected by the Erie railroad. Chesapeake & Ohio moved up 1 1-4 to a new maximum 1924 quotation at 94 3-4, and Erie second preferred crossed 43 to a new top on a gain of more than 3 points, while Erie common and first preferred, and "Nickel Plate" closed a point or so higher.

New Orleans, Texas and Mexico opened 3 points higher on the announcement that its merger with the Missouri Pacific has been approved by the interstate commerce commission. The preferred stock of the latter road showing a gain of 1 3-4 at 70 1-2. Kansas City Southern dropped more than 3 points to 34 and then rallied to 35 1-2 while Gulf, Mobile and Northern, New York, Ontario and Western and Wabash preferred B dropped 1 to 3 points. Lehigh Valley crossed 74 for a net gain of 2 points, touching the highest price recorded since the segregation of the coal properties.

Further selling of the oil shares, based on speculative expectations of a large increase in production by the new Texas pools, was accentuated by the injunction proceedings brought against the stock exchange by one of its member firms which has been active in some of these issues in an effort to prevent threatened disciplinary action. Extreme losses in these issues, which ran from 1 to 3 points were materially reduced before the c[illegible] twenty-three individual issues attained new peak prices for the year.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Dec. 11.—Bond prices reacted sharply today on heavy selling inspired by apprehension over the trend of money rates and the contradictory reports regarding a prospective increase in the federal reserve bank's rediscount rate. Total sales exceeded $25,000,000, the largest single day's volume of business since early in August.

Liberty bonds bore the brunt of selling pressure early in the day, some on the government issues dropping almost 1-2 a point on fears that the discount rate might be advanced. Intimations from Washington that no change in the rate would be made at present, which were confirmed by the New York bank after the close of the market, steadied the bonds most of them reaching their earlier losses. Trading was unusually heavy in this list, the total turnover approximately $10,000,000, of which more than $6,000,000 was accounted for by sales of the fourth 4 1-4s.

Liquidation of various corporation bonds increased today, causing generas recessions in railroad, industrial and public utility bonds. Louisville & Nashville 5s dropped 1 1-4 and Atchison General 4s, St. Louis-Southwestern 4s, and Minneapolis and St. Louis refunding 5s lost about a point each.

Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s developed independent strength, advanced to a new 1924 high level on the improved outlook for completion of the Nickel Plate railroad merger. International Great Northern adjustment 6s also responded to approval of the Missouri Pacific merger but met me taking [illegible]ter.

An increase of $4,000,000 Murray Body corporation first mortgage 6 1-2 per cent 10-year sinking fund gold bonds was oversubscribed.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of $15,000,000 Fisher Body corporation 1 to 4 year 5 per cent notes, which will be priced to yield 4.25 to 5.12 per cent to maturity. Sixty per cent of the company's stock is owned by the Federal Motors corporation.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Grain values here underwent a material setback today, largely on account of profit-taking sales and because of lower quotations on wheat at Liverpool. Closing prices for wheat in Chicago were easy 1 3-8 to 1 3-4c net lower, May 164 5-8 to 164 3-4 and July 144 5-8 to 144 3-4, with corn 1 1-2 to 2 1-8c off, oats 3-4 to 1c down, and provisions showing 10 to 30c decline. Apparently a majority of wheat traders were acting on a prevalent opinion that in view of the recent long continued upturn in prices a reaction was overdue. It was evident at any rate that for at least the time being buyers were showing a disposition to await declines before taking hold. Sentiment was also bearishly affected by a report that the movement of new Argentine wheat was developing volume earlier than had been expected.

Stock market weakness counted further as a handicap to friends of higher prices for wheat, and so, too, did the fact that European demand for wheat today seemed to be confined chiefly to wheat from Canada. On the other hand, some of the early sellers of wheat turned buyers on the decline, and it was pointed out that receipts today at domestic primary terminals were less than half as large as a week ago. Estimates were made also that in the last 48 hours 500 carloads of wheat had been loaded out o fthe elevators here.

Reports of rain in parts of Argentina gave a downward trend to corn and oats. Besides, country offerings of corn were larger, and commission house selling of corn was persistent.

Provisions were weak, sympathizing with grain.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Dec. 11—Reactionary tendencies predominated in today's session of the curb market although closing quotations generally were above the low levels of the day. Oil shares continued to yield to selling inspired by unfavorable trade developments but excent for declines of a point or so in Imperial of Canada, Ohio and Prairie Oil & Gas (new), the net losses in the active issues ere held to fractions. The radio shares moved within narrow and irregular limits, the only change of any consequence being a drop of one point in De Forrest. Commonwealth Power recovered its three point loss of the day before, fluctuations in the other public utilities being of a nominal nature.

There was a good demand for Nickel Plate common which advanced more than a point to 86, on the assurance of the Van Sweringen Brothers that the merger plans would go through.

A slight gain in Lehigh Valley Coal certificates was offset by a loss of nearly 1 1-2 points in Pittsburgh Terminal Coal.

Speculative interest in the mining group was confined to a few penny issues.

GIRL SCOUTS CAMPS GROW IN NUMBER AND VALUE

More than 300 camps were maintained by Girl Scouts during the summer of 1924. The number has grown "like a snowball rolling down a mountain side," according to Louise N. Price, secretary of the camp department of the organization. In 1921, the first year, only 46 camps were reported.

An experimental station, called Camp Andree, is maintained at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., and there many of the camp directors and councilors are trained.

A successful summer's work is reported by the Highland Park community center, near Richmond, Va. The school auditorium was used as a meeting place for the community orchestra, for the annual flower show, and for the community rehearsals.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"A famous lawyer says that to attain success in his profession a young man should work with a will."—Twice Told Tales.

Dot—Why is Myrtle so unpopular?
Tot—Won first prize in a beauty contest.—Everybody's Magazine.

Van Sippit—Do you think that whiskey improves with age?
Van Guzlit—I know it does. The older I grow the better I like it.—Bucknell Belle Hop.

Squire—Did you send for me, my Lord?
Launcelot—Yes, make haste. Bring the can opener. I've a flea in my knight clothes.—Good Hardware.

So Jack Harduppe is engaged to the heiress. They say he fell in love with her at first sight.
He didn't even wait for first sight. He fell in love with her the instant he heard of her.—Boston Transcript.

The Madman—I believe I'll take one of those large lobsters.
The Fish Dealer—Yes, ma'am, and shall I wrap it up?

The Madam—Yes, I guess you better had. I'm afraid he doesn't know me well enough yet to follow me home.—Princeton Tiger.

You sold me a car about a week ago.
Yes, sir. How do you like it?
I want you to repeat everything you said about the car again. I'm getting discouraged.—Passing Show, London.

"I can't get a job at interior decorating," complained a young man.
Why not try exterior decorating.
What is that?
Putting paint on the side of a house.
But that would be house painting.
Just so, and there is a big demand for it nowadays.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Clarence—That church over there is 200 years old.
Nettie—Why, grandma says it's only 100.
Clarence—Oh, I suppose that's as far back as she can remember.—Chicago News.

Teacher—Willie, can you tell me how matches are made?
Willie—No, ma'am. But I don't blame you for wanting to know.
Why, what do you mean?
Mother says you've been trying to make one for over a year!—The Progressive Grocer.

Undertaker's Place Hit by Bolt

During a thunder storm in Stuttgart Germany, a lightning bolt hit the undertaking establishment of H. E. Rhodes and burned out all the electric wiring. The building caught fire, but with the aid of the hard rain that accompanied the storm, the blaze was quickly put out.

Comet Is Racing Sun

According to observers at Harvard University, the new comet of the seventh magnitude discovered by the astronomer Finsler at Bonn, Germany, is blazing across the sky just two hours behind the sun. As comets go, the newcomer is a big one and is getting brighter all the time.

70-Pound Salmon Trapped

A giant salmon found its way into Puget Sound near Anacortes, Wash., not long ago and was caught in a salmon trap operated by the San Juan Company. It measured four feet long. Trollers in the Seattle harbor reported catching many salmon that weighed 50 to 60 pounds each.

18 Acres Yield 1,134 Bushels

Percy township in Ontario, Canada, claims the record bumper crop of its section, the farm of John Sullivan yielding the heaviest return. He had 18 acres summer fallowed in 1923, which returned 1134 bushels of fine wheat. This is at the rate of 63 bushels to the acre.

Training for foreign service of government and business was offered in 1923-24 in 34 states and the District of Columbia, according to information just issued by the United States department of the interior, bureau of Education. More than 12,000 students were enrolled in the foreign service training subjects in colleges and universities of those states.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Pumpkin Center is the name of a town in Dakota.

Canada's poultry production last year was valued at $50,000,000.

More than 1,000,000 persons in the United States are troubled with hay fever.

Professional etiquette prevents French judicial officials from riding in public vehicles.

If all the rice grown in India were planted in the British isles there would not be standing room for it.

The so-called "pink-snow" or arctic and Alpine regions is due to algae, which are primitive one-celled plants.

A cat recently died in San Quentin Prison at the age of twenty years, thirteen of which were spent in the institution.

The opium poppy was first known among the Greeks and Romans. It spread eastward, carried probably by Arab traders.

An uncouth stranger approached Mrs. Eugenia T. Early in San Francisco and demanded that she give him her purse. "I will not," responded Mrs. Early in a decided tone of voice. "A dollar is enough for you." The bandit took the dollar and meekly went his way.

Scarcity of irrigation water in some of the high-line districts in the state of Washington has had a queer effect on potatoes. Patches here and there are yielding tubers about twice as long as usual and of a regular thickness, giving them the appearance of cucumbers. The formation is caused by pulling of root growth searching for moisture.

The 1924 silk cocoon crop in Italy has been very satisfactory, the yield being estimated at 50,000,000 kilos (kilo equals 2.2046 pounds) of fresh cocoons, as compared with 42,580,000 kilos in 1923, according to the local trade press. The season was favorable, and the quality of the yield is regarded as superior to that of last year. The recognized commercial importance of this crop is bringing it into increasing favor with Italian farmers.

The broadcasting of a beetle's love song to his mate was the feature of a radio program sent out from the London station of the British Broadcasting Company. The occasion was a natural history lecture, in which the life cycle and habits of the beetle were discussed. At the appropriate moment the beetle, which had a special microphone to himself was permitted to give his call. Many radio fans complimented the beetle on his performance.

Thousands walk over the northeast corner of Maiden Lane and Broadway in New York and never know that they are stepping on the face of a clock. This clock, measuring about two feet across, is imbedded in the sidewalk and is covered with glass an inch thick. The hour and minute hands are painted a jet oack. Because of the dust and dirt the clock is scarcely discernible during the daylight hours, but at night it is illuminated and is a useful teller of time.

Two brothers, Wilbur and Garned Hoyt, of Wilton, Conn., are letting the world go by as they cling to the old ways of living providing all their needs. They live within fifty miles of New York city. They make their own clothes, shoes, grow their own tobacco, and even grow their own broomcorn for brooms. They provide their own food for the year around, as well as feed for the stock. Sugar from nearby maples, and honey, keep them in sweets.

Beet seeds retain their germinating power for seventeen years, according to experiments recently conducted by Professor K. Dorph-Petersen of the Danish seed testing station. A considerable amount of this stock was stored away seventeen years ago and some withdrawn for experiment every year. The tests showed 55 per cent of germination the second year and 24 per cent the seventeenth year of dormancy. Seeds of white clover germinated after twenty-five years. Only a few grass species tested showed much life after seven or eight years. Various environmental conditions may influence the length of time a seed may remain alive, Professor Dorph-Petersen believes.

To measure the temperatures in lava at various depths, a party of United States volcanologists is drilling a series of holes in the huge crater of Mt. Kilauea in Hawaii. The possibility of utilizing the steam from the crater for power purposes will be studied at the same time. For this a small laboratory with small engines and condensers has been built over the hottest of the crater holes. In drilling, much difficulty has been encountered, due to the great hardness of the basalt rock that forms the solid lava foundation, says Popular Science Monthly. It is possible to bore only two or three feet a day. The work is expected to reveal new facts concerning the increase in temperature toward the center of the earth, as well as a new knowledge of mineral and gas changes underground.

OPPORTUNITY

Master of human destinies am I!
Fame, love, and fortune on my footsteps wait.
Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate
Deserts and seas remote, and passing by
Hovel and mart and palace—soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate!

If sleeping, wake—if feasting, rise before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate.
And they who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire, and conquer every foe
Save death; but those who doubt or hesitate
Condemned to failure, penury and woe,
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore.
I answer not, and I return no more!

— JOHN J. INGALLS.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn

Thousands who have piles have not do the same for you. learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription is HEM-ROID, a tablet medicine, taken internally, that is now sold by druggists generally. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent, and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands of people, and should do the same for you—it seldom fails.

NORWICH TOWN

The annual meeting of the Lathrop Memorial Foreign Missionary society, was held Wednesday afternoon in the First Congregational chapel. Reports covering the societys activities during the year were submitted and the following officers were elected: President, Miss Susan C. Hyde; vice president, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery; secretary and treasurer, Miss J. M. Case; superintendent of Home League, Mrs. Edwin Hutchinson; secretary for Missionary Herald, Miss Louise Hyde; superintendent of cradle roll, Miss Marion L. Bailey; junior lookout, Miss Jessie E. Hyde.
Some very encouraging items of Missionary interest were given, as well as an account of the annual meeting of the Women's Board of Foreign Missions, by Miss Susan Hyde. This meeting which was held for three days in Hartford, about the middle of November, involved all of the eastern part of the United States, extending from Maine to Florida. In the course of her summary, Miss Hyde said: The reports from the treasury were very gratifying. While the W. B. F. M. could use more money yet this year it reached its goal, for the first time in many years, although it has always been able to meet its pledged work. One of the interesting speakers was Dr. Z. Wemer, of Cairo, Egypt; widely known as one of the chief authorities on the condition of the Moslem world. The morning of the third day's session, a commission service was held for Miss Gertrude I. Jacobus, who is to be sent to North China. Dr. William Strong of Boston, gave the commission of the A. B. C. F. M.
The December meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society, of the First Methodist Episcopal church, was held with the president, Mrs. James B. Aldrich, Thursday afternoon at the parsonage.
The minutes of the previous meeting were read, and a very interesting programme of readings and songs entitled Our Thanksgiving, was carried out, under direction of Mrs. George Manning. Besides the leader, others who read clippings pertaining to Thanksgiving were, Mrs. William Randall, Mrs. Stanton W. Brown, Mrs. William Weaver, Mrs. John Thompson and Rev. James B. Aldrich. This also was the Thank Offering meeting.
Rev. Dwight C. Stone of Stonington Congregational church, is to preach at the First Congregational church, Sunday morning, in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey.
Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, is to have charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms. He will be accompanied by members of that church quartet.

TAFTVILLE

A number of automobile parties have been organized among the local members of Council Gagnon, 208 Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique, who will attend the big meeting and initiation of the Order in Jewett City on Sunday. The Sacred Heart orchestra of this village is to furnish the music for the occasion.

The A-O-Wa-Ki-Ya Camp Fire Girls were entertained Thursday evening by Miss Selena Adams of North Third avenue.

Chief Ranger William Smith presided at the semi-monthly meeting of Court Wequonnoc, No. 88, Foresters of American, which was held Thursday evening in the courtrooms on Dion street.

The Sunshine Sewing Circle met Thursday evening at the home of Miss Yvonne Phaneuf of South A street. After the sewing hour, a social hour was enjoyed, refreshments being served by the hostess.

William H. Beers of New Haven, has been a recent guest of Earle M. Wood of North Third avenue.

Troop 3, Boy Scouts met Thursday evening in the recreation rooms in the basement of the Taftville Congregational church, with the scoutmaster Harold E. Linderson in charge.

The weekly meeting of the Thursday evening Basketry Class was held in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Gaucher of Dion street returned today (Friday) from a three weeks stay with relatives in Canada.

Miss Alice Frechette has resigned her position with the spinning and spooling department of the Ponemah company.

The choir of the Taftville Congregational church met Thursday evening at the church for a rehearsal of the Christmas music.

Messr. Boon and Colt of Norwich were in town Thursday, inspecting the voting machine in Ponemah Hall, and making it ready for the coming senatorial election.

Taftville Textile union, annual meeting, in St. Louis hall, Dec. 12, at 3 p. m. Election of officers.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lang and family of Springfield, Mass., are the guests of Mrs. Lang's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Leonard of South Second avenue.

There are narrow escapes daily at the junction of Providence street and Norwich avenue, where many of the youngsters of the town coast down "Post Office hill" on express wagons and scooters. This is a rather steep grade and traffic is fairly heavy on Norwich avenue.

The road over Merchants avenue to Norwich Town is now pretty rough in spots and motorists with that part of the town for a destination have more comfortable riding through the center of the city. It was the hope of all those who reside in Taftville that the road would have been improved this past summer. Travel over the road is sufficiently heavy to warrant a new highway. Why the work on the road should have stopped less than half way is still a mystery to many local people.

It is said by those who are out to gather their Christmas decorations that the recent rains and heavy winds have ruined the black alder and boxwood branches, as most of the berries have blown off.

RAIN HELPED TWO RESERVOIRS A LITTLE

The rain of last Saturday amounted to only .55 of an inch, but it enabled Fairview reservoir to hold its own for a day or two and has resulted in Stony Brook reservoir adding something so that there is now about 9 feet of water in Stony Brook.

Fairview is down 16 feet and 3 inches from full pond.

OLD NORWICH-WORCESTER CAR SHOP PROPERTY BOUGHT BY J. R. SLOSBERG

What has been known for many years as the car shop property on North Main street, where the repair work of the Norwich and Worcester railroad was done for a long period, was sold Thursday by the Norwich & Worcester and the New York, New Haven & Hartford to Jacob R. Slosberg of this city, who stated Thursday night that he has no immediate plans but makes the purchase for investment and development. Mr. Slosberg is president of the Shetucket Coal & Lumber Co. at 203 North Main street. The car shop property runs from 47 to 95 North Main street with an open plot of 320 feet in length at its northerly end extending to the railroad crossing to the city gas and electric plant.

The property has a frontage of about 1,100 feet along the easterly side of North Main street and a width that varies from about 30 to 60 feet. The railroad tracks of the Norwich & Worcester branch of the New Haven road extend all along the easterly side of the plot where the railroad has retained a narrow strip for the entire length but this will be occupied by the new owner under a lease. The area of the entire plot is about 65,000 square feet.

The principal buildings on the land are the old round house and the big brick car shops, the latter occupying a considerable portion of the North Main street frontage. These are three brick buildings adjoining each other, two big two-story buildings with a one story building between them.

The automobile business of the Irving E. Bogue Co., is occupying the old round house and two other buildings adjoining it, these two having been built by the Bogue company which has a lease of the portion it occupies that does not expire until 1929. The purchase by Mr. Slosberg covers the land upon which the garage buildings stand but not the buildings which the Bogue company has erected.

The Vaughn Foundry company is a tenant in the old car shop under a lease that expires in 1931 and other occupants of space in the shop are the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. and the Norwich Auto Body Co.

In the negotiations for the property Mr. Slosberg had as his counsel Judge T. J. Kelly and the railroad was represented by H. R. Ailsworth in the final transfer after Mr. Slosberg had interviewed Mr. Bardo, general manager, and other high officials of the company.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB HOLDS SUCCESSFUL SALE

The annual Christmas sale of the Catholic Women's club of St. Patrick's church was held at 45 Broadway Thursday from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m., proving highly successful. By mid-afternoon everything was sold out.

The decorations were poinsettias, Christmas wreaths and bows of scarlet crepe paper. Mrs. James J. Dutton was general chairman for the sale, to which members of the parish contributed with proverbial generosity.

At the domestic table Mrs. James J. Casey and Mrs. Joseph Marshall were co-chairmen, having the assistance of Mrs. Maurice F. Kelly, Mrs. John Gallivan, Mrs. Charles F. Lee, Mrs. Thomas F. Burns, Mrs. Frank A. Sisk, Mrs. D. J. Hayes and Miss Mary McManus.

The doll table was in charge of Mrs. William P. Farrell, chairman, Mrs. James T. Woods assisting.

A football, which greatly interested the boys who attended the sale, was in charge of Mrs. George P. Madden, and this went to Miss Mary McKeag. A handsomely dressed doll was awarded Miss Mary E. Sheridan.

Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh was chairman of the table of fancy articles, the other members of the committee being Mrs. J. Corcoran, Mrs. John H. Cleary and Mrs. F. Donahue. At the cake and candy table the chairman was Mrs. Daniel T. Shea, who had with her Mrs. Annie C. Cunningham, Mrs. George P. Madden, Mrs. William P. Farrell and Mrs. John Murphy.

The children had much sport with a grab bag, in charge of Mrs. Nelson C. Disco, who was aided by Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke and Mrs. John J. O'Rourke. The new president of the club, Mrs. Daniel McGillicuddy, was chairman at the children's table, Mrs. Max J. Foley and Mrs. John Kennedy assisting her.

Tea was served during the afternoon from a prettily decorated table and at two individual tables, in holiday red, with red candles. For this Mrs. William P. McGarry was chairman, and associated with her were Mrs. Alexander Jordan, Mrs. William Muir, Mrs. Bernard M. Coyle and Mrs. Frank T. Sylvia.

A handsomely decorated Christmas cake, donated by the Wauregan house, went to Mrs. Daniel T. Shea. A Jerusalem cherry tree prize was awarded Mrs. James J. Dutton.

The proceeds of the sale and tea go toward the fund for helping the needy in St. Patrick's parish.

Backus Hospital Training School, received word on Thursday, from Hartford, that they had successfully passed the state board of examination and registration for nurses. The members of the class receiving these notices were the Misses Ruth Morgan, Dorothy B. Scott, Amy Bergman, Doris Bullard and Marion Brightman.

CHRIST CHURCH ALLOWED TO USE TOWER FUND

Christ Episcopal church parish of this city is to be allowed to use the income of the "tower fund," according to a decision handed down Thursday by Judge G. E. Hinman of the superior court, before whom the petition by the church was heard last Friday. Judge Hinman directs that the income of the fund may be used for care and maintenance of the church edifice, but does not grant the petition of the church that any balance remaining from such use for repairs, etc., could be used for the support of religious services.

The "tower fund" was left to the church in 1885 by the will of Maria E. Johnson but has never been used for the purpose of building a tower. It amounted to $10,000 and she left an additional bequest of $10,000 in a codicil, but this was an invalid bequest because of an insufficient number of witnesses to the codicil. The original fund of $10,000 has accumulated to $45,000, and the church petitioned the court for a decree establishing the money as a permanent fund from which the income could be applied primarily to the repairs of the church edifice and any surplus of income to the support of religious services.

The petition represented that the church could not afford, because of its depleted membership, to have the added burden which building the tower would involve, and that probably the money was insufficient for the purpose. It claimed that establishing the fund, according to the petition, would come as near as may be to the secondary or particular intention of the testatrix, i. e., the tower, without defeating her main and general purpose, the promotion of the interests of the parish, of the Episcopal church and of Christianity.

At the hearing before Judge Hinman, the witnesses for the parish were Henry H. Gallup, Paul H. Zahn and Lloyd G. Hall. Judge Gardiner Greene was attorney for the parish. The Johnson home was named as defendant in the case, as it had been residuary legatee of Marie E. Johnson. Attorney C. L. Stewart as counsel for the home offered no objection to the petition.

Judge Hinman's memorandum of decision follows:

It is clear from the admitted allegations of the complaint and the evidence submitted at the hearing that not only was the original bequest entirely inadequate to its stated purpose, but the fund with its accumulations to the present time yet amounts to little more than half the cost of a suitable tower, such as was contemplated by the testatrix.

It further appears that the erection of such a tower is now not only not necessary or advisable, but, considering the changed conditions, is impracticable and inexpedient for the reason among others, that its maintenance would impose a further burden upon resources which are now hardly adequate to the necessary expenses of the church and parish. To enforce performance of the specific method adopted by the testatrix would be detrimental to rather than promote the general intent manifested by her bequest, in other words, would result in "impairment of the charity" which was her dominant purpose. The situation permits and calls for the exercise of power of the court to substitute such practical application of the bequest as existing conditions justify and as most nearly approximates effectuation of the testatrix's intent.

The most practicable and consistent course appears to be to constitute the bequest in question and its accumulation an endorsement fund, the income thereof to be applied to the repair, improvement and care of the present church edifice and appurtenances. The propriety of the application of any surplus of income above the amount required for such purposes to the support of religious services is not quite so obvious, although it is not now held to be inadmissible. It would seem, however, to more nearly approximate the general intent of the bequest that any such surplus of current income be allowed to accumulate until required for extraordinary repairs or replacements, or for or toward needed additions to the church plant, such, for example, as the parish house, a pressing need for which was suggested at the hearing.

The plaintiff may prepare and submit a form of judgment authorizing it to hold said bequest and its accumulations as a permanent fund and apply the income therefrom to the repair, improvement and care of the church edifice and appurtenances, with a further provision that accumulations of future income remaining unexpended for such purposes may be expended for or toward the erection of additions to the church edifice or additional buildings found necessary for the purpose of the parish.

WILL HOLD MONDAY SESSION OF COURT

The superior court here with Judge G. E. Hinman presiding spent another day Thursday in the trial of the suit of Frank M. Roche, a New London builder, against John C. Robinson, for whom he repaired and renovated a big summer cottage at Hackett's Point, Old Lyme, during the season of 1922. The bill that Roche presented amounted to about $19,000, and a payment of $9,000 has been made on the job, but Mr. Robinson declines to pay the rest on the ground that the work was "sloppy" and the charge is too high. Edwin Cruise, Philip R. Robinson and Henry H. Black made the concluding witnesses for the plaintiff Thursday. Mr. Robinson, the defendant, was on the stand for a short time before court adjourned for the day, and Judge Hinman agreed to hold court next Monday in an effort to get this case finished.

RUMMAGE SALE WILL PROBABLY BRING $70

From 10 to 5 o'clock Thursday a rummage sale was held in Buckingham Memorial by the women of the United Congregational church. There was a large and generous patronage and it is expected that between $60 and $70 will be realized. This sum will be added to the $70 cleared from a like event last spring and used for the purpose of painting the church school rooms. Articles for the sale contributed by the women of the church were called for by a committee comprising Mrs. C. T. Bard, Mrs. Emil M. Fox and Miss Marion Bishop.

ENTERTAINMENT AND FAIR BY LADIES' AID SOCIETY

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the German Lutheran church, an enjoyable entertainment and fair was given Thursday evening in the church parlors.

The entertainment consisted of a two act play, Handicapped, which was cleverly presented. During the evening aprons, fancy work and other articles were on sale and found ready purchasers and a fine musical program was rendered by the young people's orchestra.

The characters in the pal which was written by Sallie Toler, were as follows:

GASOLINE CAR GIVEN TRYOUT ON RAILROAD

A tryout was given the gasoline propelled car on the Norwich & Worcester line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, Thursday and the car made the run in regular time, allotted to the passenger train which usually made the trips.

The gas-car left Norwich at 7.15 o'clock for New London, having nearly a full load of passengers and a full load of baggage and left New London on the trip north at 8.10 o'clock arriving in Norwich at 8.40, the usual time for the run.

All along the line people watched the car and it was loaded to capacity for the entire trip north, according to people who watched it as it travelled towards Putnam, the last stop north.

The gas-car is smaller than the passenger coaches and there was some question in the minds of passengers if the car was large enough to accomodate the travelling public. Evidently the trip was a success for the running time was easily made.

It is understood that the trips Thursday were simply tests for the car to figure on running time and travel limit, and, as there are larger cars available, it may be possible that one or more of these may be used on the Norwich & Worcester line if the travel is heavy enough to warrant their use on the line.

Conductor Fred Noon was in charge of the car Thursday and a factory man was in charge of running the car over the lines. No mail is carried on the gas car, mail being carried on regular mail trains, these cars to be used simply for passenger and regular baggage service on the company's lines.

FOUND MAN IN BROOK UNDERNEATH AUTOMOBILE

Rural Carrier John Casey on route No. 9 from the Norwich Town post office, while engaged in hauling slabs from the farm of Edward Bishop of Bozrah, about 3 p. m. Thursday, when near the Gardner Avery bridge, just at the foot of Bean Hill near the bridge, discovered in the water, 8 or 10 feet below, a Chevrolet touring car bottom side up. A man was pinned beneath the car and the water was just on a line with his mouth. The man was Charles Morgan of Fitchville, a fish dealer.

It is not known how long Mr. Morgan had been in the water. When found he was in a dazed condition There were bruises and cuts about his face and forehead. One leg and one arm were caught in such a way that it required assistance to release him. After propping the man up, Mr. Casey went to the home of Clarence Lathrop of Bozrah street and he and his two sons, Elmer and Lawrence Lathrop, assisted in releasing Morgan.

The car plunged through the railing. It is thought Morgan may have been returning home from Bear Hill, and in some way lost control of his wheel.

He was taken to the home of Mr. Lathrop, where he was attended until members of his family called and conveyed him to his home.

COL. BINGHAM MADE A VOTER IN SALEM, CONN., 17 YEARS AGO

Removed to New Haven About Fifteen Years Ago, Where His Name Was Placed Upon the Voting List By the Registrars of Voters, and Where It Shall Remain—Was a Presidential Elector in 1916 and 1920—Facts Repute Puerile Contention of Democrats Regarding His Status As An Elector—Prominent Lawyers Are in Accord on the Legislators of His Candidacy For the United States Senate.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Dec. 12.—Afternoon newspapers in Connecticut today carried the story that the democratic town clerk of New Haven, together with the board of selectmen, a majority of whom are democrats, were about to remove from the voting list of that city the name of Col. Hiram Bingham, republican nominee for United States senator, alleging that he had not fulfilled all of the technicalities in being made a voter fifteen years ago.

Colonel Bingham was made a voter in Salem, Conn., seventeen years ago. About fifteen years ago he moved to New Haven, and his name was placed upon the voting list by the registrars of voters, where it has since remained

1. He has been a presidential elector in 1916 and 1920, was
2. to the last republican nation, and was nominated
3. lieutenant governor of the state two years ago.

Chairman Rorabacck of the republican state central committee had the following to say today when his opinion was asked regarding the report of the contemplated action in removing Colonel Bingham's name from the New Haven list:

"It has been reported that the New Haven board of selectmen, a majority of which are democrats, and the town clerk of New Haven, also a democrat, claim to have discovered some flaws in the admission of Colonel Bingham as a voter in New Haven and, in spite of the fact that he has been voting in New Haven for the past fifteen years, will attempt to have his name removed from the voting list as campaign propaganda.

"Colonel Bingham was made a voter in Salem. Fourteen or fifteen years ago he removed to New Haven, and his name was placed on the voting list by the registrars of voters—one a democrat, one a republican. He has been voting since from the same address. No question has ever been raised regarding his status as an elector, and he has been elected and served the state as lieutenant governor. Now, four days before election, for some reasons of their own, the democrats made this 'discovery' and are attempting to use it for campaign purposes, this regardless of the fact that no objection was made to the apparently vital failure on their part to file the nomination of their candidate with the secretary of state, as provided by statute.

"Of course, there is nothing to it excepting noise."

Connecticut's most prominent lawyers agree that the threatened action in New Haven concerning the removal of Colonel Bingham's name as voter has no bearing upon his status as a candidate for United States senator, and by some it is criticized as being extremely poor politics. Following are the statements of leading members of the Connecticut bar:

Lucius F. Robinson of Hartford: "It's absurd. Colonel Bingham is a citizen of the state of Connecticut, and there is no question of his eligibility as a candidate for the United States senate."

Ex-Gov. Marcus H. Holcomb of Southington: "Nonsense. This is the smallest of peanut politics."

Charles B. Whittlesey of New London: "If Colonel Bingham has voted in New Haven for fourteen years, to question his qualifications for election as United States senator is ridiculous. He is an elector of the state of Connecticut."

State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown of Norwich: "I have heard of the question raised in New Haven. It has no bearing whatever on Hiram Bingham's qualifications for the United States senate. It is foolishness."

State's Attorney William H. Comley, Jr., of Bridgeport: "In my opinion the point raised has no bearing upon the qualifications of Mr. Bingham as a candidate for United States senator."

State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn of Hartford: "The facts reported to me have no bearing whatever on Hiram Bingham's qualifications as a candidate for the United States senate."

Judge Edmund Zacher of New Haven: "Colonel Bingham is a citizen of the state of Connecticut. The question raised concerning his status in New Haven cannot affect his eligibility as a United States senator."

Hon. J. Moss Ives of Danbury: "This is an unfair attempt to question Colonel Bingham's qualifications as a candidate for United States senator. The facts reported to me do not in any way affect his status as such. It's a smoke screen."

Arthur M. Marsh of Bridgeport: "The facts as reported cannot affect Colonel Bingham's eligibility. As manner of conducting a campaign it seems to be about the smallest thing that could be thought of."

Edward M. Day of Hartford: "Hiram Bingham is over 30 years of age. He has been a citizen of the United States for more than nine years, and is an inhabitant of the state of Connecticut. According to the constitution of the United States he is a proper person to be chosen a senator. The fact that there may have been some technical error in the way his name got on the republican list in New Haven fifteen years ago would not affect his eligibility to be chosen."

VOUCHES THAT BINGHAM HAS AN UNUSUAL SENSE OF DUTY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Dec. 12.—The following letter received by Col. J. W. Gilson of Hartford, who is in charge of the statewide non-partisan committee of ex-service men who are working in behalf of Hiram Bingham's candidacy for United States senator, has created a large amount of interest among the many service men who are taking part in the present campaign. The letter comes from Henry Clay Ferguson of New York, former captain in the air service of the United States army, who was an acquaintance of Colonel Bingham overseas. The letter follows:

"It seems that in recent publicity there has been an attempt to throw a questioning atmosphere about Col. Hiram Bingham's sense of duty and sincerity in politics. I use the following facts to show that he has an unusual sense of duty. I believe it is pertinent for me to explain that, first, as an officer in charge of the training of all combat aviators in the American army, and, later, as a member of the famous 'Storks Escadrille,' I met and knew the greater part of all the United States aviators, and many of the most famous French and English airmen.

"It first met Colonel Bingham overseas, when he took command of the post where I was in charge of the acrobatic flying. He was suddenly taken out of the personnel department, where he had done excellent work, and put in charge of the world's largest air center. The men under him were all trained in elementary flying before they came to his post, and only the most expert in preliminary work came there at all. It was here that these crack flyers learned to use the fastest, smallest and most dangerous machines built, machines designed for combat only. It is common knowledge among airmen that successful flying of this type machine depends to a large degree on the quick reflexes of young men.

"Colonel Bingham at this time was a breveted aviator, nevertheless a gray haired man. To my definite knowledge he was the oldest man to fly a Nieuport day in and day out. He demanded a machine for his own use and flew each day, against the arguments of his whole staff. He had many narrow escapes, but nothing stopped him. He always said: 'I can't ask my men to fly machines that I can't or won't use.' There were other machines, less hazardous, that he could just as well have used, but his sense of duty wouldn't permit such practice.

"'In a service where devotion to duty . . . means so much, the effect on his men was tremendous. It made it possible for him to overcome obstacles which had resulted in the failure of several more experienced men. He doubled the output of his post with less equipment, and the morale of his men was up to 100 per cent.

"Remember, if you will, that Colonel Bingham at this time had everything to live for. A comfortable home, with seven boys and a very charming wife, and a place on the faculty of Yale university. What he did was more than was asked or expected of him.

"Think over these facts and tell me, if you can, that this adds up to anything more or less than the highest kind of a sense of duty and sincerity of heart in his job.

(Signed)

"HENRY CLAY FERGUSON.

BINGHAM ELIGIBLE TO VOTE IN NEW HAVEN

Hartford, Dec. 13—Attorney General Frank E. Healy, speaking unofficially, declared today that there is no question of Colonel Hiram Bingham's eligibility to vote in New Haven Tuesday and meets all the requirements of the Connecticut law for a United tSates senator. Ten eminent lawyers of of all sections of the state, interviewed separately, agreed that the eleventh hour attack on Colonel Bingham's eligibility could not be supported by the statutes.

HOLT NOT PETTY IN HIS POLITICAL AMBITION

New Haven, Dec. 12—Hamilton Holt, democratic nominee for United States senator, forwarded the following letter today to Town Clerk John E. Doughan, of New Haven, following reports that Governor-elect Hiram Bingham, his publican opponent, was not a legal voter in this city:

December 12, 1924.

Mr. John E. Doughan, Town Clerk, New Haven, Conn.

Dear Mr. Doughan: I am informed that Colonel Hiram Bingham is not now and never has been a legal voter in New Haven.

I sincerely hope that no political capital will be made of an incident of this nature where there are such serious considerations entering into the senatorial campaign.

I trust that there may be some way found to overcome what appears to be a technical difficulty and I am sure that I am speaking for the entire democratic party of this state when I say this.

Very truly yours,
HAMILTON HOLT.

HOLIDAY LIQUOR SEIZED IN NEW YORK TENEMENT

New York, Dec. 12—Holiday liquor, valued at between $35,000 and $50,000, was seized in a Mulberry street tenement today by prohibition agents.

Thirty-six families occupying the building, police said, were in danger of death in case of fire because of the presence of the highly inflammable alcohol which filled three bath tubs and four casts in the apartment where it was seized.

Labels proclaiming the contents to be "Rare Old Scotch, Bottled in Bond, Edinburgh, February, 1746," were found. Three sheet iron bath tubs were filled with denatured alcohol in various stages of distillation, the agents said.

Carmine Di Tonasso, Edward Tiesle and Joseph Russo were arrested and charged with illicit manufacture of intoxicants.

St. Patrick's Day—Wet or Dry?

Dublin, Dec. 12.—The question of whether St. Patrick's day shall be wet or dry has caused a deadlock in the Dail Eireann and the Free State senate over the government's compromise liquor bill. The senate today presented in its decision to insist on the reinsertation in the bill of a provision making St. Patrck's day dry. This provision had been struck out by the dail. Lord Mayor, in discussing the question, declared: "There is no use blinking our eyes at the fact that many get blind drunk on St. Patrick's day."

THREATENED TO SUICIDE IN ORDER TO AVOID SCANDAL

Boston, Dec. 12.—William J. Hartnett, one of the six men on trial in superior court on indictments charging conspiracy to extort $50,000 from Victor Albert Searles in 1920 threatened to kill himself and Eleanor Barnes in order to avoid scandal, the woman testified today. She pleaded guilty and became a witness for the state after having been arrested in New Jersey and brought back to Boston. William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex county, who is on trial with Hartnett and four others, is acting as his own cousel in the case.

The indictment charges that Miss Barnes and Blanche Paul lured Searles and another man, Captain Austin, to apartment which had been engaged for them, and were there discovered by Hartnett and other, and that money was extorted from Searles on threat of exposure.

"Hartnett called me up and we met and walked to the bank of the Charles River," she said. "He said the papers were getting after us and that I had to get out of town. He said that Captain Austin had demanded money and when he was not given any had gone to the papers with the story. He said he would jump in the river to avoid the scandal, and started walking toward the water, but I pulled him back. Then he threatened to kill me and himself to avoid the scandal."

Hartnett later advised her to get Blanche Paul and get ready to go away, the witness said. Finally it was arranged that they should go to a boarding house in New Hampshire. They spent some time in Dover, N. H. The witness said that a a conference held in an attorney's office in Boston before she left she met a man she did not know at the time but had since learned was Corcoran.

The witness identified a letter written from Concord, N. H., in 1921. It was written by her, she said, at the dictation of Hartnett and because of the latter's threat to have her sent to jail if she refused to write it. It was addressed to Hartnett's attorney and denied any plot to blackmail Searles who was referred to in the letter as a "past."

PREPARED OPIUM GROUP HAS BEEN ORGANIZED

Geneva, Dec. 13—(By the A. P.)—"A prepared opium group, consisting of six of the most powerful nations of the world, has been formed in consequence of an agreement by the first opium conference," declared Representative Stephen G. Porter of the United States, in presenting chapter two of the American proposals to the international opium conference plenary session today. Chapter two provides for agreements establishing almost complete government monopoly on importation, sale and distribution of opium.

"I regard the organization of this group," Representative Porter said, "as a decided step backward in our endeavor to suppress the opium traffic, and by reason of the agreement the world is farther from the goal than in 1912 when the nations agreed that the use of prepared opium should be permitted only temporarily, and decided upon progressive measures for its effective supression."

Representative Porter was sharply opposed, at least as regards the procedure he intends to employ, by Holland, Great Britain, Japan, France, Portugal and India, only Uruguay, Brazil and China coming to his support at today's session. Nevertheless he is confident that a way will be found to permit the American viewpoint to be aired in the conference.

Delegate Van Wettum of Holland in asking that chapter two of the American proposed be referred to an appropriate committee, declared that this portion of the United States proposition was beyond the scope of the conference and woud be in the nature of passing judgment of the members of the first opium conference. He declared that "the situation would be intolerable" and ended with a reference to "lofty idealists who are always throwing stones at people no less honorable than themselves."

Mr. Porter, in reply, said that he must dissent from the Holland delegate's intimation, that the Americans were "trying to reform the world."

"I don't know whether I am an idealist or not," he said "I leave that to my fellow delegates to decide. The United States cannot admit the right of any power signatory to the Hague convention to release itself by separate agreements from obligations to suppress progressively the traffic in prepared opium. No state is entitled to found its prosperity on the misery of others. There must not be one standard for the east and another for the west."

Paris Police Hold Would-be Assassin

Arrested Woman Lying in Wait For Leonid Krassin, New Soviet Envoy to France

Paris, Dec. 12.—J(By The A. P.)—An attempt to assassinate Leonid Krassin, the new soviet envoy to France, by a woman eager to avenge the killing of her brother by the bolsheviki, was declared by the French police today to have been averted by their arrest of the woman, carrying a revolver, in front of the Russian embassy late yesterday.

The woman, Russian born, gave her name as Marie Ergeweuwa, taking the name of Dickson by marriage in 1917 to a New Yorker who has since died. Before her arrest she told plain clothes men who saw her loitering before the embassy building that she had come to Paris for the special purpose of killing Krassin.

The woman had been standing in front of the building for hours when the detectives began questioning her. When she confided her purpose to them they at once arrested her and lodged her in the St. Lazarie prison. Besides the revolvers she had forty-two cartridges in her possession, and she will be prosecuted on the charge of carrying concealed weapons, it was stated. She has been in Paris a month and described herself as a literary woman.

The police kept the fact of her arrest secret until late today.

ACTION IN SUGAR INQUIRY MOMENTARILY EXPECTED

Washington, Dec. 12.—Indications were given at the White House today that action by President Coolidge might be expected at almost any time on the sugar inquiry conducted by the tariff commission.

Many of those acquainted with the progress of the two year inquiry made by the commission expect the executive to decide upon retention of the present sugar duties of 1.76 on Cuban and 2.20 on sugar from other foreign countries.

The sugar inquiry was initiated by the tariff commission upon application filed in November, 1922, by the United States Sugar Association, an organization of American refiners with producing properties in Cuba, which asked that the duty of 50 per cent. the maximum possible under the flexible provisions of the tariff act, be reduced.

The commission divided in its report to the president last July, Chairman Marvin and Commissioner Burgess holding for retention of the existing rates and Vice Chariman Culbertson and Commissioners Costigan and Lewis recommending a reduction to 1.23 for Cuban sugar. Commissioner Glavis did not participate in the report because of disqualification.

The president subsequently asked for additional information from the commission and the department of agriculture, which recently was furnished to him.

HOLT PAYS TRIBUTE TO NEW BRITAIN MAN

New Britain, Dec. 12—Hamilton Holt, democratic nominee for U. S. senator, speaking at a democratic rally here tonight, paid tribute to Elihu Burritt, of New Britain, whom he characterized as the "first man on this planet to predict and advocate a world court."

Mr. Holt said he would endorse liberal policies whether advocated by the republican or democratic parties, pledged his support to 26 out of 28 questions brought forward by President Coolidge in his annual message, and asserted he was in favor of a tariff to protect the industries of Connecticut.

Declaring that the greatest problem the world is the abolition of war, Mr. Holt said that the republican party is wrong in its policy toward the world court and the democratic party "is afraid of it."

Former Congressman Lonergan of Hartford, declaring that the world court question is not a party question nor a domestic question, but a question of humanity, said that the foreign relations committee controlled by the republicans had failed to support President Coolidge in his efforts towards the establishment of a world court as recommended by President Harding, but that many democrats had given their support to the president.

Mr. Lonergan made the prediction that if every man who voted the democratic ticket November 4, votes democratic next Tuesday, Holt will be elected, explaining that the democratic nominee would get enough independent and republican votes to place him in office.

Robert Butler of Hartford, referred to the fact that Hiram Bingham, the republican nominee, is not a registered voter in New Haven, charging that the latter had voted illegally for fourteen years.

COOLIDGE IS NOT ADVERSE TO POSTAL PAY BILL PASSING

Twelve Senators, After Conference With the President, Feel That Mr. Coolidge Would Not Object to Passing of Bill Over His Veto, if the Increased Cost Could Be Adequately Provided For.

Washington, Dec. 12.—(By The A. P.)—Legislation proposing increased postage rates on practically all classes of mail except letter mail to take care of pay advances for postal employes is expected to have active administration support as a result of a White House conference today between President Coolidge and a dozen republican senators.

The conference was called by the executive after the blocking in the senate yesterday of efforts to postpone action on the president's veto of the postal pay bill passed at the last session. There was a rather general discussion of the whole situation, including the prospective opposition to mail rate advances, particularly those on second class matter, embracing newspapers and magazines.

Mr. Coolidge was represented as holding the view that such advances should be made in order to provide the necessary revenue for what he regards as a merited raise in pay of the employes of the postal service. Some senators said they carried away the impression that such legislation would have his support.

After the White House conference, efforts of administration leaders in the senate to get an informal understanding for an unanimous consent agreement fixing a date for action on the president's veto of the pay bill were renewed. The discussions will be continued early tomorrow with a view to presenting a new agreement to the senate before night.

Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, who is in charge of the pay increase measure, said, he still was prepared to move at the first opportunity to take the measure up for passage over the veto.

Administration leaders and others participating in the meeting with the president expressed the opinion that Mr. Coolidge's concern was confined to providing the necessary revenue, and that there was no disposition to delay unnecessary senate action on the veto. Many proponents of the pay bill expressed a contrary opinion, however, charging that there was a purpose to kill the pay measure.

Republican leaders in the senate are of the opinion now that with administration support behind it, the mail rate increase measure could be put through at this session, but many members both of the senate and the house entertain a different view. They point to bitter fights on this question in the past and profess to see little hope of final action at a short session of congress.

PHOHIBITION AGENT HELD IN MALFEASANCE CHARGE

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 12.—United States District Attorney Walter G. Winne will ask the federal grand jury in Newark next Tuesday for the indictment of Albert ("Breeze") Ranson, federal prohibition agent working in conjunction with R. Q. Merrick, regional director of prohibition in New York city, on a charge of malfeasance in connection with the Weehawken liquor conspiracy, Prosecutor John Milton announced after Ransom's appearance before the Hudson county grand jury today.

Ransom later told newspaper men that he was "tipped off" as to the expected arrival of a cargo of liquor on the Weehawken waterfront on the night of Nov. 21 by William P. Verdon, republican leader of Hoboken, and that, accompanied by David J. Allen, who recently was dismissed from his position as purchasing agent for the Atlanta penitentiary by Attorney General Stone, he went in a taxicab to the anticipated landing place of the liquor shipment. Ransom said he took Allen with him as witness and that he was innocent of complicity in the conspiracy.

Ordering the taxi driver to wait for them, Ransome asserted that he and Allen concealed themselves near the road leading from the waterfront. As a truck which Ransom said he suspected of containing liquor passed the spot, the agent commanded it to halt, covered the driver and his two helpers with a revolver and told them they were under arrest.

Ransom boarded the truck, according to his story, and told the chauffeur to drive it to the nearby Weehawken police station. En route to the police station, Ransom said the men on the truck, including the driver, escaped. Ransom explained that he did not attempt to recapture them because he feared he would lose the evidence he supposed the truck contained.

ASK FOR RESIGNATION OF HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

Windsor Locks, Dec. 12.—The Windsor Locks school board has asked for the resignation of Leander Jackson, principal of the high school and until a month ago superintendent of schools. No reason for the request was given in the letter. Mr. Jackson who is asked to leave his present position by Jan. 1, said today he had not yet resigned and would not say what action he would take. He has been principal for eight years.

A month ago the town schools went under state supervision at the request of the school board and Francis E. Harrington of the state education department force was assigned as supervisor. The latter denied today that he had made any complaint to the local board regarding Mr. Jackson. John Dowling, secretary of the board, said that his reasons for voting to ask for Mr. Jackson's resignation were unsatisfactory standing of the schools and the failure of the principal to cooperate with Mr. Harrington. The vote in the board on the Jackson resignation was not unanimous.

BEATEN UNCONSCIOUS BY TWO MASKED BANDITS

Waterbury, Dec. 12.—Search is being made today for two masked bandits who, at the point of revolvers held up Edward Winton, 11 Sumner street, operator of a one-man car of the Connecticut company late last night and when he refused to give up the company's money, beat him unconscious and robbed him of about $45. The holdup took place at the end of the street car line in Fairlawn, a lonely district. The bandits disconnected the telephone signal box before leaving.

Winton revived within a few moments and was able to board the car and hurry back to the center, where he notified Policeman Patrick Hayes.

About twenty minutes previous to the hold up an attempt was made to hold up Louis Burns, of Walnut street, operator of an auto bus for the connecticut company. Burns succeeded in getting away from the bandits who were also masked.

WHISKEY AND WINE SEIZZED IN HARTFORD

MRS. COOLIDGE HONORED BY BOSTON UNIVERSITY

Boston, Dec. 12—The first lady of the land, a graduate of the University of Vermont and once teacher of a country school, returned today to academic scenes and educational activities in ceremonies at which Boston University added to the degree of Bachelor of Arts which she already held, its own honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. It was as "Grace Goodhue Coolidge, student, University graduate, teacher, daughter, wife, mother," whose fine qualities of mind and heart "have gained the confidence, admiration and love of the American people," that President Lemuel H. Murlin conferred on the wife of the president the hood of purple, with trimmings of red and white, that brought added color to her academic robes, hemmed with purple, and mortarboard hat, with tassle of gold.

The occasion for the award was the induction into office as dean of women at Boston University of Mrs. Lucy Jenkins Franklin, brought from the middle west to create the office, and for the occasion Boston University honored also with its honorary degree Doctor of Laws its own daughter, Miss Marion Talbot, who is one of the outstanding deans of women among the colleges of the middle west in her position at the University of Chicago. The new old south church was the site of the exercises, attended by a gathering that was as representative of women in education as it was of high church men and persons of official standing.

The picture of Mrs. Coolidge, seated or standing, against a background of rich walnut chairs and panels, her head held high by a net collar and academic robe and hat that gave her the appearance of a boy chorister, was unusual, she was thinner than when Boston saw her last. As she intoned, without reading, the hymn "Oh, God, Our Help in Ages Past," the impression was heightened but as she smiled her thanks to President Murlin, and to the women educators who assisted by investing her with the vari-colored hood she bowed her head slightly to assist the process, the first lady familiar to the country was recalled. Her smile of thanks was her only acknowledgement of the honor, but it was broad enough to carry appreciation to all.

TO CALL CONFERENCE OF POLITICAL "PROGRESSIVES

Washington, Dec. 12.—A roll call of the executive committee of the conference for progressive political action late today indicated that a majority desired to call a general convention of organisations and individuals who supported the presidential candidacy of Senator La Follette.

Considerable opposition to the program of calling a convention, however was understood to exist in the committee's conference. A statement was prepared showing the alignment of the members attending, and adjournment was taken late in the afternoon, after an all day session, until 8 p. m.

The resolution declared it to be the "sense of this meeting that a special convention be called in accordance with the directions of the Cleveland convention of July 4."

The statement explained that the "majority of those voting in the negative were representatives of railroad labor organizations, who stated that they took this action in accordance with the instructions from their chief executives." It added that they "are waiting instructions as to further action."

The four railroad brotherhoods, consisting of engineers and trainmen and a number of shop craft organizations of railroad workers, were represented in the session, and have participated in previous organization activities.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1131
Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 6 p. m.

The special short calendar session of Windham county superior court held in this city Friday opened at 11:15 o'clock, with Judge William A. Maltbie on the bench and did not conclude until late in the afternoon. There was no luncheon recess the entire time being taken up with the hearing of several cases, the disposition of others and the drawing of the jury for the next term. The evidence in the case of Edward K. Keegan vs town of Thompson et als, was taken up during the session, Attorney E. O. Wells of Hartford appearing for the plaintiff and Attorney Charles L. Torrey of Putnam for the defendant town. The plaintiff sought an injunction one year ago to prevent the town of Thompson from paying members of the town school committee their stipulated salaries and present and past officials and school committeemen were present at the hearing. Witnesses included Town Clerk Dyer Elliott and Committeemen Asa M. Hess, E. H. Corrin, Oscar Munyan and others. Bills for services as committeemen dating at intervals from 1910 to recent years were questioned by Attorney Wells. It was brought out that by virtue of a town vote the compensation of the members of the school committee was two dollars a day for work performed and the same amount for attendance at a regular meeting, with three dollars a day as compensation for acting school visitors.

Edward J. Keegan stated that he had been paid money for service rendered as committeeman but Town Clerk Elliott denied this, testifying that the money paid Keegan was for work as school enumerator. The court ordered that the certified copies of the bills in question with the briefs by the attorneys be placed in the hands of the court.

A report of a committee in the matter of final distribution of money received from the sale of property was handed in by Attorney R. W. Davis of Hartford, representing the plaintiff in the case of Daisy Sophia Scheu vs Eliza Clark Weaver, et als. It was noted in the report that the sum of $1,110 was realized and that with expenses taken out there remained $841.07 to be divided among six beneficiaries. Judge Maltbie took the file for further consideration in the case of the town of Hampton vs Robert D. Hastings, executor of the American Surety Company of New York, a reference to the state referee. Arguments by the attorneys were given in the appeal by Henry W. Clarke from the highway commissioner, the arguments being by Attorneys Back for the plaintiff and Russell for the defendant in regard to an order for the appointment of a new committee. The court sanctioned this request and the new committee named consists of Attorney William A. King, John Ash and Charles Hawkes.

The case of William A. Arnold vs the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company, default for failure to plead, was stricken from the list, as was also the case of Bernard Richmond vs F. H. Mailhot.

The two uncontested divorce cases on the docket were then taken up. Dora Boucher of Wauregan, represented by Attorney A. G. Bill desired a divorce from John Boucher, on a charge of desertion. The couple were married September, 1911 and only lived together a few months when the husband deserted. He returned twice and left as many times. The last time he was seen in January, 1915. While they lived together he worked but very little and was intimate with another woman. Witnesses testified that the defendant had been away from Wauregan for eight or nine years. The decree was granted by Judge Maltbie and the plaintiff was restored to resume her maiden name of Russell.

John Kotarba of Danielson sued his wife, Weronika, for divorce on the ground that she had left him and remained in her native home in Poland, embodied in charge of desertion. They were married in November, 1906 and in 1911 the wife left. He followed her to Poland, but failed to induce her to return to this country. They had one child born to them in this country and another in Poland and he wanted both. The children are minors and are now living with the mother. Pleading letters sent to the wife brought only replies that she did not love the plaintiff any longer and did not care for this country. Witnesses testified to her leaving. Judge Maltbie granted the decree.

Court adjourned for an indefinite period.

The jurors for the criminal side of the January term of court to be held in Putnam were then drawn, as follows: Windham, Walter Abbe, Jr., F. Leslie Hall; Putnam, Joseph Rivard, Alexander J. Shippee; Ashford, Howard Goodwin, Brooklyn, George A. Parker; Canterbury, Clinton E. Frink; Chaplin, Charles E. Hoew; Eastford, Dana Keith; Hampton, John Lewis; Killingly, Walter B. Fiske, Irving W. Leake, Percy Otis, John Blake; Woodstock, Frank Armstrong, George Clarke and W. A. Ingersoll.

The Seniors entertained delightfully at the Academy of Lyceum, at Windham High school Friday morning with a recital, under the direction of Miss Hyde and Miss Avis Thompson. Selections were rendered by the Senior Orchestra and Roderick Cote was heard in a pleasing saxaphone solo. A poem, the story of Robinson Crusoe was read by Miss Alice Yeoman. A fine Dutch interpretation of the discovery of America and a parody on the rescue of Capt. John Smith by the Indian Princess Pocahontas was cleverly depicted on an Elizabethan stage, the students representing scene, characters, scenery and properties. The closing number was a group rendition of a senior song written by Miss Avis Thompson.

The possibility of Hamilton Holt having his support to President Coolidge, if elected United States Senator, was labeled a "purely ridiculous supposition" by First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett, former governor of the state of New Hampshire, in an address delivered to over one hundred and fifty republicans at a rally held here. The rally was under the auspices of the Windham republican Club with Judge Otto B. Robinson as chairman. Mrs. James D. Tillinghast of Boston, chariman of the Woman's Division of the republican state central committee of Massachusetts defined in chosen language the reasons why Windham voters should cast their ballots for Hiram Bingham at the special election next Tuesday. Ex-Governor Bartlett said that according to the principles which Holt maintains are his in his campaign he appears to be a "man without a party." Holt's policies were declared a fine scheme to ensnare some 15,000 votes which represented the Coolidge majority in this solid old New England state. "The policies of Calvin Coolidge represent business prosperity and international peace but a few votes in the senate can wreck the entire program. Let Connecticut make no mistake," concluded Mr. Bartlett.

The funeral of Frank C. Lummis was held at one o'clock, Friday afternoon, with services conducted in the Chaplin Congregational church by Rev. John H. Knott. Burial was in the South Chaplin cemetery. The arrangements were by Avery and VanZandt. Frank C. Lummis had resided in Chaplin for 56 years.

The adventurous young Mrs. Alice Tate who fell into the hands of the police Thursday while she sought some means of raising funds to pay her carfare back to New York City and to her loving husband, was handed a ticket by the board of selectmen and escorted to the 5:30 train for New York by a police officer. It was found that the vivacious young woman had been induced to come here by a young man who told her to call at a certain house in the vicinity of South Windham. She did this but it soon developed that she was skilled in the art of appropriating others' clothing and when she left the house Thursday she was wearing a corset, a skirt and an undershirt which belonged to her hostess. The latter wanted her corset and skirt back and Mrs. Tate was ordered by the police to take these off and return them which she did.

Mrs. Tate had taken a fake hundred bill, the kind used in advertising, from her hostess, under the impression that it was a good one. Mrs. Tate called at a bank here to have the bill changed but she was given the grand ha ha. Undaunted she tried to have another bank change the bill but without result.

The current issue of the Catholic Transcript has the following notice of borough interest:

Mrs. Joanna Regan O'Neill, wife of the late Michael O'Neill of Willimantic, and mother of Rev. Felix J. O'Neill of Stafford Springs, died suddenly last Sunday evening, as she was about to step into the automobile of her daughter, to dine with her. She was nearly 90 years of age. Full of health till the moment of death she had lived a long, busy, happy life as the mother of seven children. Of these, two died very young, leaving Felix, Matilda, Frances, Mary O'Neill Hickey and Agnes O'Neill Turner. Mrs. O'Neill was born within sound of the Bells of Shandon, in Cork, Ireland. She came of an almost centenarian family. Uncommonly talented as a little girl, she had received an education far beyond her years in the national schools of her native city at the age of 16. Then with her three sisters she came to Willimantic, where she resided most of the time till her death. Her future husband was already there, only eight years old, as a member of one of the first six Catholic families to settle in Willimantic. The infant history of the parish was closely associated with those two families. The home of the four sisters was like the house of Martha and Mary. It was Mary, afterwards Mrs. Rourke, who made the first set of black mass vestments ever used at a funeral in Willimantic. Joanna was one of the best singers in the original choir for years. In teaching catechism she used no book. She had memorized the biggest Butler's catechism from cover to cover, questions and answers, long before leaving Ireland. And she taught it that way to her children while busy with housework. Her knowledge of the Scriptures was astonishing. At her instigation her favorite Bible was read by her son from cover to cover when he was only 12 years old. History was her second favorite. Then came the poetry of England, Ireland, Scotland and America. She could quote three hundred poems and songs without an error. Even to the end she took a keen pleasure in current events. Thus closed a beautiful Christian life. At the funeral service in St. Joseph's church, the solemn high mass was sung by her son, Rev. Felix O'Neill of Stafford Springs. Rev. James A. Broderick of Terryville, a relative, was deacon. Rev. Charles M. Kelly of Willimantic was sub-deacon, Rev. George J. Donahue of Pomfret was master of ceremonies. Rev. John Quinn, the new pastor, was present with all the other Willimantic priests, and many from other places. Professor Frank L. Farrell of Norwich was organist, and Mrs. Farrell assisted members of the local choir. Father O'Neill's own hymn, When Evening Comes, with words and air by himself, and harmony by Sister Annette of Hartford, was sung with such exquisite art and sympathy by Bernard L. Mullins, baritone, of Hartford, that the large congregation will never forget the profound impression which it made.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

BIRDS REWARD PROTECTION BY EATING INSECT PESTS

The economic value of birds, especially insectivorous birds in farm districts, can not be too strongly emphasized, in the opinion of the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture. For this reason the bureau is interested not only in the protection of migratory game birds, which is one of its important functions, but also in the conservation of all beneficial bird life.

Hardly an agricultural pest exists but has numerous effective bird enemies. For instance, 25 kinds of birds are known to feed upon the clover weevil, and a like number upon the potato beetle, 36 on the codling moth, 46 on the gipsey moth, 49 on horseflies, 47 on billbugs, 45 on clover-root borers, 98 on cutworms, 120 on leaf hoppers, and 168 on wireworms.

Birds benefit the farmer also by eating quantities of weed seeds. It has been estimated that a single species of sparrow in a single state—Iowa—consumed annually 875 tons of weed seeds. Birds do not, of course, especially single out the noxious seeds or an insect pest for food; but eating indiscriminately and voraciously, the most abundant feed is taken first, and this is likely to be the moving caterpillar or adult insect, or the seeds on the plant or on the ground, where they have been carried by the wind. Many species of birds perform another important service to man through their feeding habits, since they act as scavengers. In districts where the disposal of waste is not completely taken care of by community and individual effort birds make a valuable contribution to public health.

Next to man himself, wantonly using his gun, the worst enemy of farm birds is the domestic cat. Storms also destroy a great many birds by cutting off their food supply. Protection against the elements can not often be provided for birds except where refuges or sanctuaries are maintained for them, but a protective public sentiment, supported by effective laws, will lessen the damage done by man and domestic animals. Birds may be still further encouraged and increased by the provision of food trees, such as the mulberry, which will serve the double purpose of attracting them away from cherry or other fruit trees and supplying them with suitable food.

DOMESTIC CLOVER CROP SHORT AND POOR

The 1923 crop of red clover seed in the United States was only 40 per cent of the average over a period of years. Higher prices last season stimulated production for the past year. Clover fields were reported in excellent condition in the middle west throughout the summer. Unbelievable as it may seem to Connecticut farmers, rains were excessive during July and August in the central states. The clover grew rank but failed to form seed. Large acreages were not threshed and yields generally were very low. Latest reports are more discouraging than those of a few weeks ago.

Complete reports from Europe are not available yet. Indications are that the central European crop will be very low while the Mediterranean section has an average crop. Prices on the European market are higher than last year and without the stimulus of export trade as yet. There may be little surplus to export.

The low yields will tend to maintain high prices for the next season. High prices will be an incentive for marketing low quality clover seed. Shrivelled seeds, small seeds, old seeds, weed seeds, and dirt mean a waste of money.

Just as for the season gone by, every buyer of clover will do well to be extraordinarily careful in buying clover seed. Why not demand a guarantee from your seedsman which will tell you where and when the seed was grown, how well it was cleaned and its germination and purity? When your crop is at stake is it not fair to ask this much of all seedsmen?—J. S. Owens, Crops Specialist.

FEEDING METHODS OF HENS NOTED

Questions as to systems of poultry feeding are frequently asked. It is wise to adopt some one system of feeding and follow it, say experts. Birds in poor laying condition will never lay many eggs even if they eat the best laying mash on the market. They cannot stand the drain of laying until they are first put into good condition.

There may be contagious diseases in the flock, and if so, the best laying mash will not have much effect until the diseases are controlled. Take out an ill-looking bird from the flock the very minute she is noticed and put by herself to prevent the spread of sickness.

If a flock is thin in flesh and low in vitality, it is evident that it must have more feed, and feed higher in carbohydrates, than at any other time. Such a flock should either have a tonic or raw cod liver oil plus a wet mash for a period of about three weeks. This wet mash may be: Equal parts of an egg mash with equal parts of cornmeal fed once a day. The cod liver oil may be put into the dry mash in this way: One quart of raw cod liver oil mixed with four or five pounds of charcoal, then this mixture with 100 pounds of mash.

If the birds are not very thin in flesh, probably the best way to increase their weight would be to gradually increase the scratch grains, especially the corn.

CUT OLD WOOD FROM BACKYARD GRAPEVINE

The question of pruning the home backyard grapevine comes up about this time each year. The country agents receive many requests for information as to the proper method of pruning. In general, it is well to understand a few fundamental facts before starting to prune. First, the grapes are borne on wood of the current season's growth. That is, next spring new shoots grow out from buds set on canes that developed this year. On the new shoots fruit buds develop and become grape clusters. Second, where the vine is not required to support too much wood growth the new shoots make a strong growth and set large bunches of fruit. Third, as old wood does not bear fruit, the least possible amount of old wood should be kept.

Keeping these facts in mind, the pruning of a grapevine resolves itself into a commonsense selection of a few sturdy canes of this year's growth starting from as far back near the crown of the plant as possible. Those shoots should be sufficient to cover the allotted space on the trellis or arbor and all the others should be pruned away.

Another scheme would be to train the main stalk, which may be old wood, vertically to the top of the trellis and to leave lateral shoots of this year's growth extending a foot or so to each side, two to each horizontal wire or arm of the trellis.

A third method by which one plant covers a great area is that of training an old cane the length of a trellis and leaving each year short spurs of new wood at intervals along its length, these spurs being cut back to one or two buds from which the next year's canes will grow.

MARKET BLIGHTED CHESTNUT BEFORE WOOD IS DAMAGED

During the past four months the office of forest pathology of the bureau of plant industry, cooperating with various other agencies has conducted a survey to determine the extent of the chestnut blight in the southern Appalachians. From these results, and the continuance of the survey during the coming year, forecasts will be made of the probable time of the death of the chestnut stand in different parts of this region.

The virulence of this imported fungous disease, its rapidity of spread, and the vastness of the infected forests make control impossible. But since the death of the tree is brought about by the growth of the fungus in the bark, rather than the wood the blight-killed timber is not injured for commercial purposes if cut before it deteriorates from checking, decay, or insect injury. Large tracts are already heavily infected and require prompt cutting to prevent heavy loss from deterioration.

Since the disease has spread into this area from the northeast it is natural that the destruction is most marked in the northeastern portion, in northern Virginia more than half the chestnut trees are dead and the remaining trees are rapidly dying. In western North and South Carolina, and in northern Georgia, in a few restricted areas about three-fourths of the chestnut trees are already infected. Over the area as a whole the per cent of infected trees is much lower, as some of the counties have less than 1-10 of one per cent of the trees diseased. In the western portion of the southern Appalachians the chestnut stands are much less affected by the blight. In Tennessee and Kentucky there is relatively little timber injury evident except in one restricted area in the southeast corner of Tennessee. Numerous spots of advance infection, several even to the west of Knoxville and Chattanooga, are scattered throughout the area. Some of the counties in these two states have not been examined and the amount of inspection work done in most of them has been very limited.

In the northeastern part of West Virginia, more than half of the chestnut trees are infected, while in the southwest part of the state much less than 1 per cent of the trees are infected.

All indications point to the continued rapid spread of the blight. Data on the distribution and forecasts on the spread of the disease will be available at a later date, but, as the advance of the blight is by no means uniform, each owner should keep watch on his chestnut growth and make plans to market his poles and timber before severe loss takes place.

SUBWAY TRAINS HALTED IN HONOR OF BELMONT

New York, Dec. 13.—Subway trains throughout greater New York halted for one minute at 4 o'clock this afternoon while funeral services for August Belmont, "Father of the City's Subways," were being held in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on Morningside Heights.

Those present at the services in the Cathedral made very nearly a complete roster of the social and financial circles of New York. Many leaders of the turf world also appeared to pay their last respects to the "Godfather of American Horse Racing and Breeding." In the congregation that taxed the capacity of the partly finished edifice were also many theatrical people who had been associated on the New York stage with the former Eleanor Robson, Mrs. August Belmont.

Following the services the casket was carried to the Gothic Chapel of the Savior, one of the seven Chapels of Tongues, which Mr. Belmont, a trustee of the Cathedral, donated in 1903 in memory of the first Mrs. Belmont.

The body was to remain there until midnight, then to be taken by train for Newport, R. I., where interment will take place tomorrow.

Bishop William T. Manning and Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's church, officiated at the services in the Cathedrald.

MERCIER ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF HIS WIFE

Pittsfield, Mass., Dec. 13.—Louis P. Mercier, on trial here charged with the murder of his wife, Eugenie, with poison, testified today that, after placing poison in a bottle from which he had emptied paregoric, which Mrs. Mercier was accustomed to use, he warned her and the children of its presence in the bottle, he declared, also, that in the presence of his wife and his children, he had used the acid on a small bank in an effort to open it so that he could obtain the $4.45 which it contained. He described events in his home when Mrs. Mercier met her death. Cross examination had not been concluded when court adjourned for the day.

Mercier said that on the morning Mrs. Mercier died, he had been feeling unwell and that she had obtained some cough medicine for him, bringing it to his bedroom at about 6 o'clock. The next time he saw her, he testified, she came into the room saying "I am dizzy." She fell down and died a short time afterward, he added. Physicians declared that poison similar to that in the paregoric bottle was found in Mrs. Mercier's stomach.

No mention was made in Mercier's testimony of the woman, to whom, the prosecution alleges, he made presents of clothing and a ring.

MASKED BANDITS ROBBED PAYMASTER IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., Dec. 13. — Five masked, automobile bandits this afternoon held up Julius Ford, paymaster of the Dutee W. Flint Oil Company, Inc., and William C. Angell, financial executive of the same concern, and robbed them of a payroll of $3,356. Ford and Angell were in a small sedan on their way to the Flint offices from a downtown bank.

The bandits' car crowded the smaller car to the curb and the five robbers, each with a revolver, surrounded Ford and Angell forcing them to hand over the money which was in two envelopes.

The bandits' car bore Massachusetts registration plates, which it was later learned belong on a car stolen in Attleboro, Mass., last October.

A resolution against ratification of the federal child labor amendment was adopted after a spirited general debate by the Maine State Grange.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Boston papers are giving considerable attention to the case of Fred Perry, 19, of Bath Me., and Danielson has an interest in the case of this young burglar for a car he stole was recently recovered here.

The following is relative to the case: Fred Perry, 19, of Bath, Me., wanted on charges of having made 26 breaks in Maine and Connecticut, three of them postoffice jobs, was pounced upon by police of Bath and Boston while in a bed in a rooming house at 13 1-2 Howard street early this morning and arrested. He was sought by the Bath police.

The postoffice breaks were made in Maine, at Wells, Yarmouth and Gray. Perry admits 23 of the breaks, but protests his innocence of the postoff.ce jobs.

The arrest was made by Inspector J. E. Rackley of Bath and Special Officers Hennessey, Mullen and Daniel Donvan. Perry was living here under the name of Frank Perkins of Bangor.

A 22-calibre revolver was found in Perrys room. When questioned about it, he said he didn't dare use it in Boston because of the order given the Boston police "to shoot to kill." In the room were found paper rolls, such as are used in postoffices to roll money. Perry was impoverished, having only a penny in his possession.

A pal of Perry's was captured while the pair were making a break in Richmond, Me., according to Rackley. Perry got away and the pal sought refuge in a hencoop and emptied his revolver shooting at the police. His companion was Wesley Mallett, and he was taken to Bath.

Perry, it is charged, stole an automobile in Bath and went to Portland, then back to Bath, where he stole another machine. This car later was located in Danielson, Conn., and a 45-calibre revolver said to have belonged to a postoffice entered, was found in it.

Danielson, it is established, is getting a very generous amount of town trade this Christmas season, so there is compensation for the local trade that slips away to other buying centers. Country for miles around is contributing to boosting trade here this season, an evidence of the appreciations through a large territory of of the excellence of Danielson's stores.

MRS. NORMAN B. REAM DIES AT THOMPSON HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Caroline Putnam Ream, 72, widow of Norman B. Ream, died Friday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock at her home, Carolyn Hall, Thompson. She had been in ill health for the past two years and at times during that period she was in a critical condition, but her death this afternoon came very unexpectedly. Mrs. Ream was born March 1, 1852, at Madison, N. Y., the daughter of Dr. John Putnam.

Her husband died in 1912, leaving a fortune estimated at $40,000,000, of which she inherited the greater part. During most of her husband's career in business and financial affairs they lived in Chicgo, but for a few years prior to and since his death she made her home at Carolyn Hall, probably the finest of the show places in this territory of large private estates.

Six children survive her: Mrs. A. A. Vonsiatsky, who was formerly Mrs. Marion R. Stevens, of Chicago; Mrs. John Kemmerer, Short Hills, N. J.; Norman P. Ream and Robert Clark Ream of New York city, Edward King Ream, Louisville, K., and Louis Marshall Ream, Thompson, Conn.

Friday evening a fair sized audience assembled in Union hall, to witness the formation of a troop of Boy Scouts. The first part of the evening's program was in charge of Mrs. Mary Peckham, principal of the Center school and consisted of songs, reading and folk dances by the pupils from the primary grades and a patriotic drama by children from the upper classes. The second part of the program was in charge of George R. Edmond of the school committee, who introduced F. A. Benton, scout executive of Norwich who gave a thorough explanation of the Boy Scout movement. He was followed by Scout Master Arthur L. Peale, of Norwich who outlined scout work and called on his troop of Boy Scouts to demonstrate the games and tests. The scouts demonstrating were members of Troop No. 1 of Norwich and gave a good account of themselves. A call was issued for boys wishing to join the new troop to step forward and enroll. Thirteen responded and the Voluntown Community Troop No. 1, B. S. A. was organized and placed in charge of Charles A. Downing, as scout master. A rising vote of thanks was tendered the visiting officials and scouts at the close of the meeting. The visitors were Scout Executive F. A. Benton, Scoutmaster A. L. Peale, John Sherman, W. F. Lester and ten members of Troop No. 1 of Norwich. The roster of the new local troops is, Charles A. Downing, scout master; Joel Bitgood, Wilfrid Hammell, Eugene Bebo, Arthur Russl, Armand Doyon, Victor Magrey, William Magrey, Edward Malbourne, Wilfred Perry, Peckham Magrey, Howard Davis, Euclide Derosier, Floyd Magrey. STATE'S DEATH RATE SHOWS SMALL DECREASE

The department of commerce announces that the 1923 death rate for Connecticut was 1,261 per 100,00 population as compared with 1,202 in 1922. This small decrease in 1923 is accounted for by decreases in the death rates from cancer (from 106 to 1 per 100,000 population), tuberculosis all forms (from 94 to 90 per 100,00 population), and diarrhea and enteritis, under 2 years (from 30 to 22.)

Increases in 1923 are shown in the death rates from whooping-cough (from 6 in 1922 to 9 per 100,000 population,) and measles (from 3 to 11.)

CONDITION OF GOMPERS IS GREATLY IMPROVED

San Antonio, Tex., Dec 12.—(By The A. P.)—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, arrived here this afternoon shortly after 5 p. m., after a 46 hour ride from Mexico City. He was much improved over the condition in which he left the Mexican capital.

"At this hour Mr. Gompers is greatly rehabilitated from effects of an excessive altitude," according to a statement given out by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, after consultation with Dr. W. S. Cockrell, who has attended Mr. Gompers since leaving Mexico City.

"His condition is much improved over last night," Mr. Morrison said. "He is taking adequate nourishment. His temperature is normal, and his pulse ranged from 85 to 90."

A marked improvement began as soon as he reached the American soil and he has retained the advantage throughout the trip from Laredo, it was said.

Mr. Morrison quoted Dr. Cockrell as follows:

"President Samuel Gompers is suffering from a condition which has been acute for about a year and a half. This was aggravated by the altitude of Mexico City. On Saturday it became urgent that he be removed. The beginning of the journey was made under great strain. There was little improvement in Mr. Gompers' condition after leaving the crest of Central Mesa last night. With the descent to a lower altitude there was gradual, continuous improvement."

Every possible attention and courtesy was shown Mr. Gompers in Mexico City, his friends said. President Valles went to the station to bid him farewell and to see if there was anything he could do for the departing guest. Luis N. Morones, secretary of the Mexican department of industry, also was at the station.

THE GAS AND ELECTRIC PLANT.

By the action of the court of common council the owners of the gas and electric plant are to be given a chance to say whether they desire to sell it.

For a score of years Norwich has been putting municipal ownership of a public utility to a test. It has had all the experiences that might have been expected, and it is believed it is ready to sell.

Without a question the council committee and the council came to the right conclusion when it decided to give the people a chance to express themselves on the matter of disposition of the plant. It will be noticed that the committee has not recommended the sale of the plant but leaves that decision to be made by the voters. If in the opinion of the voters the light plant should be sold the committee favors the sale for the highest price obtainable.

Some months ago the attention of the city was called to the fact that it was paying much more for the production of electric current than it could be bought for. As the result of that disclosure and the subsequent offers Norwich has been confronted with the advisability of eliminating the lighting department and getting back to that condition from which in the belief of a large number the city should never have departed.

From such progress as has been made Norwich appears to be in a fair way to rid itself of a municipal light plant and by placing the light and power business in the hands of a private corporation eliminate the costly and unsatisfactory accompaniments of politics.

Dealing with the bids which have been received in such a manner that the voters will have a chance to give expression to their feelings concerning a sale, which means the ending of municipal ownership of our light plant, is the proper attitude.

ROADS AND COMMERCIAL VEHICLES.

The idea that those who get the benefit should pay has been advanced with much success in connection with the collection of a tax on gasoline. Connecticut devotes such revenue to the maintenance of its improved roads. Other states do likewise or use a certain proportion for that purpose.

It is an interesting development which has taken place in Indiana where a state organization of owners and operators of motor busses, commercial trucks and commercial vehicles has admitted that there should be regulation of such vehicles but which believes that there should be an increasing of the gasoline tax in order that there might be a speeding up of the road paving programme. It would have the owners of automobiles taxed for the purpose of obtaining the money to build the roads which they consider necessary for the maintenance and extension of their business.

As might be expected that has produced no small amount of protest from and in behalf of the auto owners. The Indianapolis News holds that "There is every reason to encourage bus transportation, where it is needed, but there is no excuse for raising the gasoline tax as a subsidy for the bus lines. The busses should be taxed for the damage done the roads, and for the use of them."

Thus there looms up that old contention that if one form of transportation, such as the railroad, maintains its own roadbed there is no good reason why the same should not be expected of other transportation lines. Or when it is insisted that trolley lines must maintain such portion of the highway as they use the same ought to be required of its competitor.

Good roads have come in for an increasing amount of attention for the past quarter of a century. The demand for them is greater today than ever. More will be built before there are less and it is quite evident that the use of the roads by commercial vehicles will come in for steadily increasing attention.

MUSCLE SHOALS.

Just because the Ford offer has been withdrawn it doesn't facilitate government action concerning Muscle Shoals, for while it was considered that the Ford proposition meant the getting of a big property under what looked like most favorable terms, the problem of getting the most satisfactory results from the government standpoint is not a simple one.

That there should be objections to the idea of having the government operate the plant for the purpose of insuring a government supply of nitrates for ammunition, as well as for fertilizer, is natural. It is known what the effect of getting government into business is and it is desirable that it should keep as far away from it as possible. Clearly it is a proposition for private enterprise, and even then it is not to be overlooked that there is plenty of risk and uncertainties involved.

Just at the present time it is the Underwood plan, with modifications, which is being looked upon with favor. Under this there would be a lease of the plant for the purpose of nitrate production, to be devoted to government requirements in time of war and to be used for fertilizer in time of peace. By it the government would complete the construction, and in making the lease take into consideration the fact that the lessee must devote much time and money in experimentation, since nitrates so produced must be able to compete with the Chilean supply and that hasn't been possible in the past.

This means that the lessee faces no small job, that he is bound to demand avorable terms and under the conditions there seems to be nothing unreasonable in the plan to permit the sale of power for the purpose of offsetting losses through experimentation.

Muscle Shoals has been regarded as a big proposition from the beginning, and it hasn't grown any less as the years have gone by.

INSIST UPON BINGHAM.

Voters should not be unmindful of the importance of going to the polls next Tuesday for the special election to select the successor to the late Frank B. Brandegee in the United States senate.

There is no doubt as to the importance of that office. There is no question as to the need of sending from Connecticut a man who will give support to the Coolidge administration and there is no getting away from the fact that the man who can be relied upon for that very service is Hiram Bingham.

Connecticut is faced with a serious duty. It must realize the undesirability of contributing in any way to that group in the United States senate which insists upon taking an independent stand regardless of the party standard under which elected, and regardless of the best interests of the state which is to be represented.

Connecticut doesn't want a senator who is going to play with the democrats today and the republicans tomorrow, and with the league of nations bloc the next day. It wants one who will be true to the policies enunciated by the president, to a protective tariff which means so much to the industrial activity of the state of Connecticut and to the will of the people as already set forth at the ballot box. It knows that it is assured of such representation through the election of Hiram Bingham to the senate.

The voters of this state will be remiss in their duty next Tuesday unless they turn out in large numbers and through their votes demand Bingham for United States senator. Special elections seldom attract the usual vote. Every republican should therefore make the necessary effort to see that his ballot is cast.

The president needs Bingham, congress needs Bingham and the state needs Bingham in the United States senate.

A CITY'S RESPONSIBILITY.

In connection with the recent communication of President Coolidge to Mayor Kendrick of Philadelphia it is impossible to overlook the manner in which the attention of the Quaker city was called to the responsibilities that rest upon it to maintain its own government.

Difficulties in maintaining law and order in Philadelphia and the necessity of cleaning up made it advisable to go outside for an official with sufficient backbone to meet the situation, and seemingly one who could handle the job and not be susceptible to the many evil influences. Because the government permitted General Butler to leave the marine corps to undertake the job many have gained the impression that the government was taking a hand in the housecleaning.

It is this point which the president seeks to correct. He sets forth in plain language that the government has no connection whatever with it, gives the impression that such a plan will not receive approval in the future and points to the need existing in the city of dealing with its own problems.

Should the Philadelphia method come into general practice it would not be long before the federal government would be called upon to render police service in cities all over the country, and just as often as a city admits that conditions are beyond adjustment by itself it presents a deplorable state of affairs. Wherever such exists public sentiment should not be long in insisting that the city get a proper grip on itself and keep its house in order. Possibly Philadelphia will yet awaken to its own responsibilities.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Many an educational institution longs for its Dukes and its Eastmans.

The man on the corner says: Even those collecting their Christmas funds understand anew the value of thrift.

As election day draws near the sentiment for Hiram Bingham for senator continues to grow stronger and stronger.

If you have gotten your Christmas shopping out of the way there's a chance to go to work on your list of new resolutions.

Bear in mind the new traffic regulations, respect them now and there'll be no danger of violation when enforcement starts.

With 89 per cent of the voters in Germany going to the polls it is a fine example for those who have the franchise in the United States.

Don't let it be said next week that you jeopardized the sending of Hiram Bingham to Washington by remaining away from the polls.

Don't make any arrangements for next Tuesday that will interfere with a trip to the polls and the casting of a vote for Hiram Bingham for U. S. senator.

Connecticut voters are not in the habit of getting out to the polls in December, but the need of sending Bingham to Washington will accomplish it next Tuesday.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

It may be that a financial depression is necessary to make a nation correct its extravagant habits. There can be little doubt that we as a nation have been, and still are, extravagant, and if anything comes along, even a period of industrial slackness, that brings us face to face with out thoughtless extravagance, it is a national blessing. Extravagance is buying things that we neither need nor can afford, and, as a matter of course, sooner or latter we are going to feel the pinch. Along this line President Coolidge has set us a wholesome example. Instead of traveling to Chicago in a private train for which an exorbitant price was charged, he decided to take an ordinary parlor car compartment paying only the ordinary price. Those who are bound to find fault with the administration anyway, no matter what is done, will call it penuriousness unbecoming the position of the chief magistrate, but the bulk of the people will applaud his action.

It is reported that our federal courts are staggering under an abnormal pressure of business, and that violators of the liquor laws are the principle offenders. Have not our courts themselves to a great extent been responsible for this accumulated business? And in their hands is there not the only solution? If they don't meet the emergency, and do it quickly the situation will grow rapidly worse. We need not look far for the cause of this extra burden of cases to be tried. There has not been any noticeable increase of murders, thefts, business failures, but there has been a tremendous increase of violations of our liquor laws. Have not our courts shown too much leniency for old offenders? Is there any sense in sticking on heavy fines and light jail sentences? The fines are cheerfully paid, but they do balk at stiff jail sentences. Let the jail find the solution!

While a layman is not supposed to understand all the subtleties of diplomacy, yet by using his own cranium, if he has any logical power whatever, he will be able to see how somethings ought to be regarded in the treaties between nations. There is a widespread feeling outside of Great Britain that her present attitude toward Egypt is inconsistent with her pretentions. She has boldly proclaimed her attitude toward any interference of other nations with her dealings with Egypt. Great Britain is one of the fifty-five countries composing the league of nations, and has been very solicitious that this country throw in its lot with the others. Now what is one of the leading functions of the league of nations? It very plainly stipulates, that when any serious disagreement arises between one or more of the signatories the matter shall come up before the league before there is any threat of armed interference. Now England is turning her back on the league. Isn't the United States wise in keeping out of it?

Joy riding is not to be commended under any circumstances for general practice. It always carries with it a large per cent of hazard. If there are special reasons why a person finds it expedient to jump into eternity as quickly as possible, there has nothing yet been discovered that will fill the bill more completely than joy riding. The latter scheme is more likely to function if the night season is selected for the tryout and especially if the "ten curves" of Marlborough hill are selected for the speeding. To make the scheme absolutely sure let bootleg whiskey be the final factor involved. One of the saddest facts of life is that the majority of people do not learn from experience or observation. Not that the majority of people speed along the "ten curves" at night when under the influence of liquor. But if the speeding bug has got into their heads and rum into their stomachs they are going to invite death just the same.

What is the man of limited means to do at this season of the year when every mail comes loaded down about subscriptions for all sorts of periodicals, books, and everything else that is salable? But the tragedy of it all is this propaganda is put in such a nice way that we are made to feel that it will be an insult to our Maker unless we tumble to all of it. But what makes a man a pessimist—until the year ends—is that he is not a "bloated bondholder." Suppose for instance that you are a school teacher, or, what is a thousand times worse, a minister, and by the most rigid economy that involved doing about almost in rags, you had been able to save up for Christmas during the year $7.19. Christmas is ahead of you and at you want to be human in your giving. But how is it to be done? There are dear old grandparents, parents, wife and her eight brothers and sisters, your six children and their seven children—all looking for presents. O, to be Andrew W. Mellon or Roger Babson for the next two weeks!

The foregoing paragraph reminds one of how the colleges and universities in these times are just soaking it to their alumni for this that and the other needed thing! And, hang it all, the things they are moving heaven and earth to get are much needed things! If they only came out with some wild and visionary scheme, we college chaps could get back at them. But they do nothing of the kind. The corporations of our educational institutions are so provokingly reasonable that there is no loop hole whatever through which we can escape. We have simply to shut our mouths and open our purses. It is the price we pay for living in civilization rather than in "some vast wilderness or some vast continuity of shade."

We see him now very tall, very big—almost gigantic in his physical structure, with mind and soul commensurate with his body; one of America's greatest lights in the ministry; a man who made every pulpit he occupied a throne. Not only do we see him, but after a lapse of years we again hear him speak, and that speaking was unique in the whole history of pulpit oratory; it was a sort of rapid gun-firing of great eternal truths that no intelligent person could escape! This man of God was a combination of John the Baptist and Francis of Assisi, vehemence tempered with spiritual serenity. We are particular in making mention of him today, because he was born December 13, 1835—the same year as Mark Twain—and for some inscrutable reason the Lord took him in 1893. America has done well to put this great servant of God in her Hall of Fame, because his name was Phillips Brooks.

When great issues are at stake, Connecticut has not been found wanting. This is true of the country at large. We may be very slow at times in grasping great situations, but when the people see them clearly they usually have the courage of their convictions and deal with the matter adequately. On the 16th (next Tuesday) the people of the state are called to a special election for a United States senator to succeed the late Frank B. Brandegee. Without overemphasizing the party idea, it seems reasonable that the unexpired term of the late republican senator should be filled by a member of the same party. It seems also reasonable so long as President Coolidge has been so overwhelmingly endorsed by the people that he should have a man that will help rather than hinder him. Let Connecticut do just as it did in the November election.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

DWELLING IN GOD

The apostle says that whosoever dwells in love dwells in God. Long before John was born the Psalmist said, "Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations," and yet again. He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most high shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. The children of Jacob dwelt in tents; the almighty was their refuge.

We sometimes sing Nearer my Go to Thee. But we may do better still. We may abide under the shadow of the Almighty. We may dwell in God. This is a safe dwelling place. The world is full of dangers. There are temptations afflictions and sorrows. The Psalmist speaks of the strife of tongues. We know what that is. The tongue is sharper than the sword; it pierces the spirit. I wounded spirit who can bear? But in God the soul is safe. No temptation can surprise Him. His life is hid with Christ in God and nothing can by any means harm him.

Eternal God my soul would rest
Secure within thy care
And when by many trials pressed,
Find all its comfort there.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

CROSSING THE CONTINENT BY AUTO

The pueblo of San Ildefonso lies about twenty miles to the northwest of Santa Fe at the foot of the Black Mesa, which is a prayer shrine of the Indians. It is an immense square of basalt, unscalable except by one narrow, rocky foot path up one side.

The adobe houses of the pueblo are built around an open square some being one and some two stories high. The latter do not have stairs to get from the lower to the upper story, but against the outside of the house stands a ladder, built of the trunks of two trees, with the rungs of smaller tree trunks and on the roof of many of the houses is a dome shaped oven, built of adobe, in which all the bread and tortillas are baked.

Pottery and Paintings

We went to San Ildefonso, chiefly to see Marie Montoya and her pottery, and Mone-Mo-nu, the Indian artist, who paints the pictures symbolical of the Indian dances which are held annually on fiesta days. The figures of these pictures are first outlined in ink and then water colored in the colors in which the Indians dress for the dances. Mone-mo-nu will tell you with much pride and in very excellent English, that he has "never had a lesson." Perhaps he never has had one in painting, but in charking for his pictures—either he needed no instruction along that line, or he has been well taught!

Marie Montoya—the best pottery maker in all the southwest—was plastering the outside of a house with adobe the first time I saw her. A young Indian girl, clothed in a gorgeous burnt orange garment, was kneeling on the ground, mixing the adobe plaster with her hands. As fast as it became of the right consistency, she would make a big ball of it, place it in a bucket and carry it to Marie, who in turn, took it by handfuls and patted and smoothed it on the outside wall of the house. On the roof, was another Indian girl, who hauled her plaster up in a bucket, and covered the outside of the chimney, her purple dress making a beautiful bit of color in contrast to the cream of the adobe building. While the girls—and one of them the greatest pottery artist in this country of pottery makers—were mixing and carrying and plastering, there lay at full length in the sunshine, lazy eyes half closed and smoking the inevitable brown paper cigarette, the man of the family!

The Indian men all wear their hair in one of two ways. It may be in two long braids, one directly over each ear and hanging down in front, with strands of bright wool, strings of beads or of wampum braided along in; or they bob it over each ear, leaving a long strand down the middle of the back, which they turn up two or three times, until it is about six inches long, then wrap it with wool, ribbon or beads, often with a bunch of eagle feathers, which stand straight up behind the head.

The Kiva

In the center of the village stands the kiva, or ceremonial chamber and about which one does not ask too many questions. It is circular, built of stone blocks, and about 30 feet in diameter, with a wall that extends about ten feet above the roof and many feet underground. In the roof, is a door, with woven brush covering, and through this doorway, the men descend by means of a ladder. In the kiva, the youths are taught the customs and the reasons for the customs of the tribe, the older men plan the work (for the women, I suppose) and carry out the old customs of their people. Exactly what takes place, I cannot say. No women, not even an Indian, is ever admitted, but as this kiva has been standing for at least 300 years, it is impossible not to wish that the old walls could talk!

Marie's House

Marie's house stands at the edge of the village in a little orchard of fruit trees and is as clean and neat a little home as one can find anywhere. She makes two kinds of pottery—the black and a sort of putty colored, painted in dull red or brown. Other than her hands, she uses two implements—leaves of the yucca, which she gathers on the mountain sides and fringes out for paint brushes, and dried squash rind, with which she smoothes the clay after she has formed her vase or bowl or jar.

I doubt if any one, and certainly no white person, knows just where Marie gets her two special kinds of clay. When she has completed the mixture of this clay with water, she stirs and kneads it as though it were bread, until it is a certain consistency which is known to her alone. Then, taking a piece of it, she rolls it between her hands until it is a long rope like affair, which she then starts to coil into the shape of bowl or jar or whatsoever she wishes to make. When the shaping is finished, with her fingers and the bits of dry squash rind, the smoothing process is commenced, and when the condition is satisfactory to Marie, the texture of the surface is like satin. Next is the painting of a design with the feathered out yucca leaf and colored clay or vegetable paint.

Firing The Pottery

The firing of the Indian pottery is a long, disagreeable and very painstaking process. First, from the corral is gathered a quantity of thoroughly dried cattle dung, a layer of which is placed on the ground where the pottery is to be burned. On this bottom layer is carefully set some pottery and between each two pieces must be ample space for the circulation of air and for the escape of smoke. Over the pottery is placed another layer of dung, then another of pottery and so on into a cone shaped heap, then the dung is lighted. If the fire does not burn exactly right, the entire firing is spoiled by smoke, or if it dies down too the bowls and jars become cracked from cooling too rapidly. I've heard the expression, the patience of an Indian. Certainly a pottery making Indian needs patience. But the results of that quality in Marie are very beautiful, which no one knows better than she and each piece has her signature burned into the bottom of it.

Good Looking Animals

At San Ildefonso, the Indians have good looking horses and cattle and their barns are overflowing with alfalfa hay.

As the United States government does not "permit" them to worship their own gods, there is a little Roman Catholic church in the pueblo, which all the Indians attend. The children, when they attend the United States Indian schools, as they all must, are not "permitted" to speak one work of any language other than English, yet, in the pueblo, one never hears a word of English when they are speaking to each other. We cannot but wonder how much of their worship is really carried on in the little mission church—and how much in the little mission church—and how much in their kiva.

Most easterners, when they think of New Mexico at all, think of it as a land of barren desert, with a relentlessly hot sun beating down day after day. Tonight, as we look at the moonlit landscape, as far as we can see, the ground lies buried under six inches of snow, each bough bends under it's burden, each window sill is high piled and the snow clad mountains, in all their grandeur, seem to reach up and touch the sky. Another bit of beauty added to the charm of old Santa Fe!

Jane Cowl Was Bashful and Poor

Bashfulness gripped Jane Cowl so cruelly in her childhood that she suffered keenly in public, but poverty compelled her to choose a calling that brought her almost constantly before the gaze of assemblages.

Born in Boston, she was taken to Brooklyn at three. At the public school she was diffident and was not considered to be a specially "interesting" child. Having learned to play the piano, she attempted to give a solo in the school room, but fell from the stool in a faint. Valedictorian of her class in high school, she was so frightened that she could not deliver her address.

Soon afterward her mother was taken ill. The family finances were so shattered that Jane had to seek a livelihood at 14. A letter to Tony Belasco opened an opportunity to go on the stage, but her diffidence made her task trying. The death of her mother at that time brought her a new sorrow.

To overcome her timidity she attended a dramatic school. Given a small part in Rose of the Rancho, she nearly lost it because at first she could not make her voice audible. Realizing the need of further education, she attended Columbia university for two years while acting in New York. Then to eke out her meagre earnings she wrote stories and offered them to a newspaper. At the publication of one she met Adolph Klauber, who married her writings, and later became her husband.

After playing inconsequential parts in several productions, she made a success in The Gamblers at 24, and Within the Law Common Clay and other plays later.

To overcome fear resulting from "too much self analysis," she played in a stock company that gave 13 performances a week. Touring Europe on $400 to broaden her education, she was in Paris at the outbreak of the World war and had to seek help to get home. Then with Jane Murfin, she wrote in Lilac Time in three days and scored a success. Smilin' Through, another success, followed.

For three years she desired to play Juliet, yet feared the ordeal of a critical first-night audience. Finally she essayed the role, and her portrayal established her as a leading Shakespearean actress.

Connecticut's Senatorship

A Consistent Position

(Bristol Press)

Governor-elect Hiram Bingham, who is also republican nominee for United States Senator, states that he did not ask for or seek the office, but the convention having selected him he believes it his duty to accept. In this he is consistent. He has said from the beginning that when the people summoned a man to any office he regarded it a duty to accept. It is interesting to note that the state of Connecticut in its statute laws recognizes and establishes that principle. A part of Section 2195, revision of 1902, relating to school district officers, reads—"Any resident of the district so chosen who shall refuse or neglect to perform the duties of the office shall pay five dollars to the district." Certainly it is logically sound to assume that if the state commands a citizen to accept a minor office the duty in the case of a more important one is correspondingly imperative.

The Republican Record

(Boston Transcript)

The republican party doesn't need to make promises in Connecticut; it has the record. Moreover the figures of the record are not disputed. The net indebtedness of $10,961,273 of 1915 has been entirely erased. The sinking fund of more than $11,000,000 against outstanding bonds is sufficient to pay the total bonded indebtedness of the state at its maturity. In proportion to its size, Connecticut has more miles of modern roadway than any other state, all of which have been paid for out of current income. Schools, human institutions, asylums and reform schools have been increased. In 1914 the total expenditure for educational purposes was $1,253,000 and in 1923 it was about $5,000,000. The tax department which for 1924 shows receipts of almost $15,000,000 and is one of the largest departments of the state is conducted under an appropriation of $86,000. In spite of growing needs of departments and institutions and in spite of the war, Connecticut shows the smallest increase of any state in the Union in state taxes for state purposes. Since 1922 no new taxes have been laid, and the republican legislature of 1923 reduced the state tax on towns half a million dollars a year. The recent report of the federal trade commission showed that the average rate of increase on tax collection for state purposes, 1917 and 1922, was for all states 101 per cent. The Connecticut rate of increase was 15.8, the smallest in the country, with no rival a close second.

It is the republican organization that has done this—the intolerable machine. Mr. Roraback has guided it. It has won elections in Connecticut because the people like the results. That is why it endures. Because of this it is likely that by the time the people go to the polls next Tuesday they will not be much stirred by the charges that the convention was under machine domination when it nominated Bingham.

Refuses to Support Holt

James D. McKenna of New Britain, who was a delegate from that city to the democratic state convention which nominated Hamilton Holt for United States senator, has announced his refusal to support Holt, and has declared for the election of Colonel Hiram Bingham, the republican nominee.

McKenna was a soldier in the Engineers' Headquarters Company, A. E. F., and it is understood he bolted Holt because of dissatisfaction with the latters war record. He volunteered his services for the e-service men's campaign for Bingham, directed by Major John L. Gilson of New Haven. McKenna is a memoer of the democratic town committee of New Britain.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prof. Charles S. Sargent, who has been awarded the Loder Rhododendron Cup by the Royal Horticultural Society of England in recognition of his distinguished services to horticulture, is a horticulturist and arboriculturist of international renutation. For nearly fifty years Prof. Sargent has filled the chair of arboriculture at Harvard university and during an even longer period he has served as director of the Arnold Arboretum, which is Harvard's famous museum of trees and a wonderful botanic garden in which is grown every tree and shrub which can endure the climate of New England. The bestowal of the Loder Cup on Prof. Sargent is an unusuadl honor, for the cup has never before been sent out of Europe. Al of the previous recipients of the honor have been eminent horticulturists of Great Britain.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

ALUMINUM

Helium has had wide publicity from the Shenandoah's flight; aluminum which makes possible the performances of both the Shenandoah and the ZR-3 seems scarcely to have its just due.

"Aluminum is the foundation of duralumin, the metal bones of modern lighter-than-air sky cruisers," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters at Washington, D. C. "The metal usually hides the light of its powers, such as the blowing up of Vimy Ridge, under bushels of other names and it is a 'rookie' among the old-time major metals.

"Iron, copper, tin, zinc and lead did service to man earlier than the birth of Christ. Aluminum will be only 100 years old in 1927. Seventy years ago aluminum sold for $7 an ounce and was advertised as 'silver from clay.' Even the 7,500 tons produced in 1900 must be multiplied 25 times to approach last year's total, while the 'silver' of the sixties sells now for two cents an ounce.

"To play a joke on a jeweler ask him for 'some nice stone in aluminum, about two or three carats.' Probably he will look puzzled but if he knows the chemistry of his trade he will lay before you gems fit for a king's crown. The ruby, sapphire, garnet and turquoise have a normal base of aluminum. Greater quantities of it are found than any other true metal; only half as much of its nearest rival, iron, occurs in igneous rocks, which include all rocks hardened out of the original boiling mass of which the earth once was composed.

"An element of such frequency is not confined to one country or continent. It is a partner in nearly all shales and clays, the latter a necessity of man from civilization's dawn. The evening potatoes which are boiled in an aluminum pan are placed before the family on china plates partly aluminum. Salts of aluminum play a part in the abrasive father uses to sharpen the carving knife, the dyes in his suit, the tanning of his shoes and even his evening newspaper. Kaolin, the foundation of chinaware, has a large content of aluminum and the man who develops a method of getting it out cheaper than pulling it away from the mineral now used, bauxite, will receive honors and riches.

"Bauxite takes its name from the French hamlet of Baux, ten miles east of Arles, on the lower Rhone. Best bauxite still comes from southern France, particularly among the hills back from the Riviera coast. But mineable quantities of bauxite, which is an earthy, soft, weathered mineral, are found in Antrim county, Ireland in many parts of Germany, in British and French Guiana, and in India and Italy. More discoveries are being reported from time to time. In the United States important workings are near Little Rock, Arkansas. Steam shovels also scoop it up in northern Georgia and Alabama.

"American aluminum companies have bought control of large bauxite deposits in British and French Guiana.

"To Charles M. Hall, whose rise to fame and fortune reads like an Alger romance, the housewife owes credit for her shining pots and pans. Hall, a Congregational minister's son, one day discovered an old chemistry textbook without cover or title in his father's reading room. It decided his life ambition. At the age of 22, while attending Oberlin College in Ohio he invented the electrolysis process by which practically all aluminum is made today. Electrolysis is called 'electric loosening.' Aluminum in combination with oxygen, to which it is attracted like steel to a magnet. Hall subjected under certain conditions to a powerful electric current and split the particles to form pure aluminum.

"Duralumin's production is a trade secret. Aluminum is its chief content and there is also copper. It is so light that a girder 16 feet long can be balanced on one's little finger, but so strong that if its ends are supported by blocks it will support eight men.

"The qualities of aluminum win it more friends constantly. Weight for weight it offers twice as smooth a road for transporting, electricity as copper. For its virtue of radiating heat more rapidly makers welcome it. Because it absorbs heat quickly, is light and does not rust, it is used for utensils. One western alkali plains, however, it turns black and comes off in flakes.

"Under certain circumstances aluminum has a violent affection for oxygen. This quality workmen emulow in making molten metal on the spot. When you see a hooded man working in a brilliant light on the street-car track he is employing the thermite process. A mixture of aluminum powder and iron oxide (rust) is ignited with magnesium. In a violent effort the aluminum robs the iron of oxide; the iron liquifies in the terrific temperature attained, 6000 degrees Fahrenheit, within 30 seconds, and welds the rails. This temperature approaches the heat of the steel-carving oxy-acetylene blowtorch, the highest temperature common to industry."

Stories That Recall Others

Magic.

The grownups were talking about a moving picture in which there is a magic carpet and how well done were the mechanical effects of the picture. The little daughter had seen the picture, also.

"Well, I wish I had a carpet like that," she said. "I'd just say 'Whiff' and my 'rithmetic lessons would be all done."

Oh, Doctor!

He was descending the steps and fell and sprained his ankle. His attentive wife, very much concerned, asked whether she shouldn't call a doctor.

"Doctor, pshaw," said the injured man, "get a veterinarian. Only a jackass would do a stunt like that."

Wise Beyond His Years

Mrs. X, mother of Buddie, aged three, in discussing with her husband what disposition to make of the young hopeful on this particular evening, as they were going out to look at a probable Christmas present for him, spelled out the following sentence, "W-e w-o-n-t t-a-k-e h-i-m."

Buddie who evidently had his ears back, chimed in, "Well, what you going to do with me, then?"

Has It Come to This?

A story told by a filling station attendant shows to what extreme some people go in order to possess an automobile.

A certain man, owner of a seven passenger "junker" moved in the neighborhood of the filling station. After he had become established in the community he approached the filling station man and asked credit.

"I want to take a short trip tomorrow and I won't have the money with which to buy gasoline until Saturday," he said.

He was told the company would not permit gasoline to be sold on credit, and went away. Presently he returned with a new proposal.

"Would you take some groceries in exchange for gasoline?" he inquired.

The manager wanted to make a sale and he remembered his wife had told him to get some flour. So he decided to accomodate the owner.

The man went down the street and soon returned from the grocery with a sack of flour. The manager was puzzled. How could the man buy flour when he had no money? While he filled the fat gasoline tank on the "junker" the dealer asked for an answer to the question.

"That's easy to explain," the automobile owner said, "You see I have credit at the grocery and I had the sack of flour charged."

Two Lauder Stories

Sir Thomas Lipton, America's cup challenger, who is in America on business, is telling two new stories about his friend, Harry Lauder. Here they are:

"I asked the noted Scotch comedian to whom he was going to leave all his money and Sir Harry replied: 'To the widow of the Unknown Soldier.'

"I was walking along Piccadilly with Lauder one morning. When he came to a big sign which read, 'One thousand pins in a package for three pence,' the comedian went in and purchased a package and left later for Glasgow. When he met me on his return to London he said: 'There were three pins short. I am going back to the shop!' "

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Meaning of Mousie's Story

Sing and whistle at your work,
Happiness can never shirk.
Hum a ditty, laugh a while,
Lay upon your lips a smile.

"I'm trying hard," answered the dwarf as the fairy queen stood in the door of the hut. "The giantcomes today the rude but. "The giant comes today for his flying suit. It is almost finished. Just a few more stitches," and

There was nothing stirring back and forth flew the needle until, just as he made the last stitch, the giant himself stood outside.

"Is my suit ready? he asked in a hurricane voice that bent the trees like grass and shook the mountain tops.

"It is," answered the dwarf. "Stretch your hand in through my door and drag it out. It is too large for me to hand it to you." And goodness me, no wonder! It had taken the dwarf a year and a day to make it.

"Are you sure the wings will carry me?" asked the giant. "this will pay you more than enough for your labor," and away he strode to his tall castle on the mountain top.

"And that's the end of my story," said Little Miss Mousie, smiling at the bunny boy. "Did you get the meaning?"

"Perhaps," answered the truthful little rabbit. "I suppose it means that no matter how small we are if we trust and believe and work hard we can do big things."

"That's the meaning of my story," answered Little Miss Mousie, giving the bunny boy a hug. Now let us tiptoe in to see if Mr. Lucky Left-hindfoot is still asleep."

Yes, he was. The big armchair was so comfortable, how could one expect the dear, tired old gentleman rabbit to wake until the Old Red Rooster crowed in the morning. But he did when Little Miss Mousie tickled his ear, very gently, because she knew it was better for dear Uncle Lucky to hop upstairs and into bed.

"What have I been asleep?" he asked, rubbing his eyes. "I declare, I dreamed I was a boy again, and that some one was whistling down the lane."

"Maybe he heard the dwarf whistle," whispered the little rabbit.

Just then the Grandfather Clock in the hall went;

"Ticky, tock, tock,
Pull off your sock.
Hop into bed.
Rest your tired old head."

"Ha, ha," laughed good natured Uncle Lucky. "Come, little rabbit. We'll hop upstairs and when morning comes, we'll wake up with bright eyes."

Then, winding the clock on the mantel-piece, the old bunny rabbit hopped upstairs, followed by his bunny nephew and Little Miss Mousie, and pretty soon, not so very long, there was nothing stirring in the little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)
